

Acknowledgments

Serious work to bring the International Journal on Responsibility to life commenced during the summer of 2015. In the intervening period between conceptualization and publication, many organizations and individuals within James Madison University and the wider community have contributed enormously to bringing the journal to fruition. At this juncture, the Editorial Board wishes to acknowledge the tremendous efforts of the following:

- Faculty and staff within Libraries & Educational Technologies (LET) at James Madison University, including Grace Barth (Head, Digital Collections) and her predecessor, Laura Drake Davis (now Digital Project Specialist at the Library of Congress).
- The Madison Academic Libraries Associates (MALA) Program within LET at James Madison University. In particular, we would like to thank our dedicated MALA Associate, Liana Bayne, for all of her wonderful work on the project, and also acknowledge the support she received in that role from her MALA advisors within LET – Carolyn Schubert (Interim Head of Research & Education Services) and Lynn Eaton (formerly Head, Special Collections, now Director, Special Collections Research Center at George Mason University) – and to thank those MALA advisors for their efforts.
- The Center for International Stabilization and Recovery at JMU, in particular the staff of the Journal of Conventional Weapons Destruction for their endless patience and willingness to allow us to consult with them regarding the logistics of publishing a new journal at JMU.
- University Legal Services at JMU.
- The Redekop Family Endowment, whose generous gift will ensure the development and ongoing publication of the International Journal on Responsibility.
