Warren looks back on year

Mark Miller
news editor

Because he achieved his goal of setting a "sense of direction" for the academic program, JMU's vice president for academic affairs called his first year here rewarding but busy.

Dr. Russell Warren, who assumed the position last July, said, "I've worked harder this year than in any year of my life. Because it's been rewarding, that's been OK."

Most of Warren's time went into developing a five-year plan for academic excellence, outlining the university's goals for its program. It recently was endorsed by the state legislature.

Other improvements in the academic program Warren sees include:

- a feeling among faculty that the university is open to their ideas and supportive of doing things in new ways;
- a group of deans supportive of each other and each other's ideas;
- an understanding among incoming freshmen that they are at JMU primarily to learn; and
- completion of accreditation of all business programs.

Warren said he enjoyed his first year because it was productive and because he was supported by the faculty. "There were ready for a new academic vice president in my view. . . The faculty wanted me to succeed. Working in an environment like that is splendid."

He said he is proud of the university — "not what I did for it, but what had already been done before I came. It's just nice to be associated with it."

One of Warren's goals this school year is to spend more time with faculty and students to hear their ideas. "It's been my greatest frustration that there was so much work to be done and so much learning I had to do and I felt sort of locked in this office."

He said he wants to have more time for planning. An assistant to Warren has been hired and will allow him to get out of the office more often. (See related article on page 2).

Also, "I'm going to spend less time just learning how to navigate the system — figuring out who people are and what they do and what form is used for what."

Although the five-year plan already is developed, Warren said, "we have a long way to go." This year committees will analyze the plan's objectives, develop specifics and determine how to implement them.

Academic assistant provides view of faculty

Mark Miller
news editor

The new assistant vice president for academic affairs said he will bring to JMU an appreciation of faculty concerns and a commitment to education.

"What I am going to bring to Russ (Dr. Russell Warren, vice president for academic affairs) and this office is the point of view of a faculty member," Dr. Lynn Gillette said.

An assistant professor of economics at the University of Texas at Austin, Gillette was chosen this summer for the position here after being reviewed by a committee headed by Warren. About 40 people applied, about five of whom were considered for the position, Warren said.

Warren, who taught Gillette in two classes at the University of Richmond, said the contact probably had "some bearing" on his selection. "An 'assistant to' kind of position almost requires that they be me," he said.

Gillette said he is looking forward to being at JMU because of the "dynamic" attitude at the university. "I have a passion for excellence for academic education and JMU does also."

The quality of education is good now but "the vision of the future is just unbelievable," he said. He is impressed with the willingness of the faculty and administration to try new things, he said.

Since Gillette came to JMU Aug. 28, "The most impressive thing by far is the vision and comradery of the faculty, staff and students," he said.

His responsibilities in his first administrative position will be to:

- manage the day-to-day operations of the office,
- represent the office to faculty and staff,
- research certain issues on higher education,
- teach a class, beginning next semester, and
- help coordinate the five-year plan for academic excellence.

He will attend all meetings of the futures committee, which coordinates the 12 committees analyzing the plan, to publish a newsletter on the plan's progress.

He also will aid Warren and Dr. F. Douglas Moore, vice president for university advancement, in seeking private funding for the five-year plan.

Gillette said he still is learning names, buildings and issues here but already has met with the Student Government Association and the Honor Council president and vice president.

Dr. Lynn Gillette

The Honor Council is doing "extremely important work," he said. "We should try to develop the idea that a JMU student does not do that (cheat)."

Gillette has a bachelors degree in economics from the University of Richmond and a master's in economics from Texas A&M University.

Warren

Warren also will be trying to get more financial support for the plan. Already $125,000 has been appropriated for 1985-86, and the governor's target figures are for another $125,000 a year for 1986-88.

A resource committee has been formed and Warren is seeking private funding from the Association of American Colleges.

He said he is pleased with the initial appropriations because "they were based only on a dream" — there were no results of the plan to present when requesting funding.

Four models of development skills assessment are being tested here and one or a combination of them will be chosen, probably in February. This will be a way of measuring progress in the academic program.

Warren also discussed the following topics:

- the Honor Code.

Recent changes have made the system a good one, he said. "The than from people who are the same as them, he said.

- a plus/minus grading system.

"Any way the faculty and students want to do it is fine. If there's a feeling that... it's a fairer grading system, that's reason enough to have it."

- the credit/no credit option.

He said he hopes the recent change disallowing this option for general studies courses will cause students to realize the importance of general studies and to take those courses more seriously. The change will be effective fall 1987.

He added that he likes students to be able to experiment by taking some non-major electives credit/no credit.

- athletics.

Athletics are more important than academics at some colleges and universities, but Warren doesn't think that is the case at JMU. When he came here, he heard that academics weren't "terribly important vis-a-vis athletics."

"The first thing I did the first week here is I requested all athletes' grades from the registrar's office" and found "pretty good progress" being made in graduation rates, he said. "I think we can do better though."

A full-time counselor for athletes has been hired as a liaison between the academic office and the athletic office, and an "absolute minimum"

"They were ready for a new academic vice president in my view . . . . The faculty wanted me to succeed."

— Dr. Russell Warren

fundamental question is will one work. The jury's still out on that."

He hopes the system works so faculty do not have to "walk the aisles" during tests. "That changes the relationship so fast," he said. "You (teachers) become wardens that way."

- a more diverse student body.

Warren said this objective in the five-year plan is "based on the hypothesis that one of the most powerful teachers students encounter is one another." People learn more from people with different interests and backgrounds

- the trend toward business majors.

The current system of accepting all students who meet requirements is fair, he said. But if the business school gets too large, limiting the number of students and having students apply may be considered.

One reason Warren doesn't want the business school to get too large is because he wants business majors to come in contact with students other than business majors. "I want a marketing major to meet a tuba player or an anthropologist."

SAT score for acceptance probably will be set.

- social life.

At least 50 percent of a student's education comes from outside the classroom if that time is spent effectively, he said.

"The unstructured part — whether it's drinking beer or talking late in the dormitory — can be terribly important" because it brings people together. "Nobody says they have to be aware that they're learning."

Police require students to register bikes

police reporter

Students are required this year for the first time to register bikes with campus or city police, said Alan MacNutt, director of campus police.

Bike owners will be issued a decal and police will engrave a serial number on the bike if it does not have one, said Robert Baker, investigator with campus police.

Students living on campus should register with campus police and off-campus students should register with city police, MacNutt said.

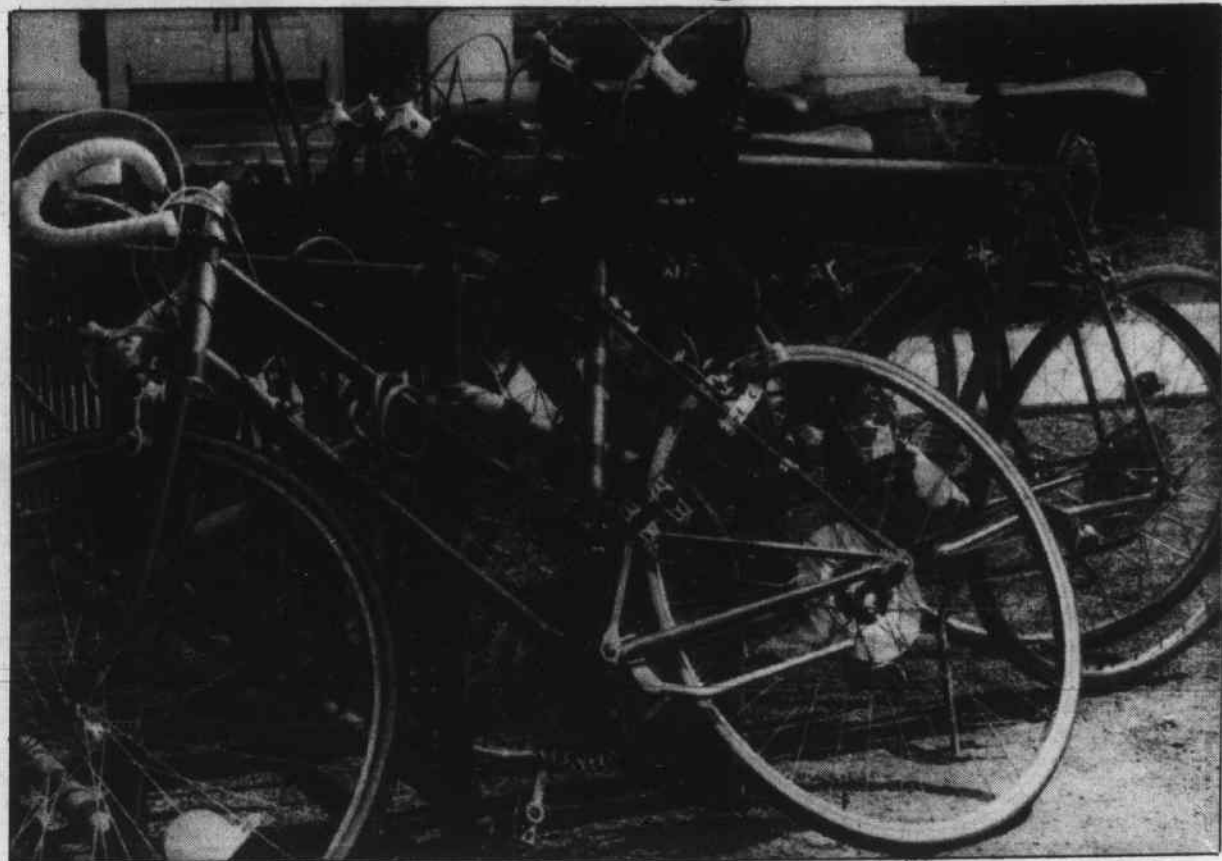

Harrisonburg police have registered bikes for at least 28 years, according to Capt. M. L. Stroble, Harrisonburg City Police.

MacNutt said campus police are starting to enforce the ordinance as a preventive effort to deter theft, to help locate stolen bikes and to return abandoned bikes.

Currently abandoned bikes found around campus are auctioned at the end of each year.

If a bike is not registered, "Technically, we can cut the lock and impound the bike," MacNutt said. After a bike is impounded, the owner can pick it up but police have not decided whether a fee will be charged for impounded bikes.

A ticketing policy for unregistered bikes also has not been established, MacNutt said.

Campus police will enforce a Harrisonburg ordinance requiring students to register bikes.

Car registration

All cars must be registered at the campus police station.

A car owner is issued a free decal to be placed on the right side of the rear window. For sports cars or jeeps, a bumper sticker is issued.

The decal allows a car to be parked in designated parking lots.

Police will ticket cars parked on campus without stickers or in non-designated areas, MacNutt said.

Students must pay fines before registering the following semester or graduating.

Tickets for illegally parking are $5 or $10 depending on the location. The fine for parking in a handicapped space has risen from $5 or $10 to $25.

Registration of valuables

On-campus students may register valuables by engraving their driver's license numbers on items and giving the information to their hall staffs.

One copy of the information will be filed in the security office by the hall staff and students should keep a copy in a safe place.

JMU among 'best buys'

JMU has been selected as one of 221 colleges in the country to be featured in a book written by the education editor of The New York Times titled "The Best Buys in College Education."

The book, written by Edward B. Fiske, will be published in October.

Times Books, which is publishing the book, described Fiske's work as "a consumer's guide to colleges that offer high quality education at a reasonable cost."

"This fact-filled guidebook will be a reliable, informative and valuable tool for parents and students wrestling with the spiraling costs of higher education," according to Times Books.

JMU was ranked earlier as one of "50 Bargain-Priced Colleges" by Changing Times Magazine. The Changing Times list included colleges and universities that "offer high academic standards and below average prices."

JMU also has been cited in several other national publications in recent years. A national survey conducted by U.S. News and World Report ranked JMU as one of the top comprehensive universities in the nation.

In a survey of college presidents around the country, JMU was ranked seventh among comprehensive universities in the East.

JMU was the highest ranked public university in the U.S. News and World Report survey. The six eastern schools ranked higher were all private universities.

JMU was the only college or university to be included on both the U.S. News and World Report list and the Changing Times list. It was the only comprehensive university in the country to be included on both lists and one of only five colleges and universities of any type to make both lists.

In addition, JMU has been listed recently in "Barron's Guide to the Best and Most Exciting Colleges," "Barron's Guide to the Most Prestigious Colleges" and "Peterson's Guide to Competitive Colleges." Each of those guides contains listings of 200 to 300 colleges throughout the country.

Dukes' Grill workers unfazed after Phillips Center delay

assistant news editor

While the delay in the opening of the Phillips Center has caused overstaffing at Dukes' Grill, the food service operation is in better shape than at the start of last year, the student manager said.

"We had more problems last year coming back. . . . It's been smooth," Richard Jones said.

Students have been hired all summer to staff the Phillips Center, which had been scheduled to open this fall. Only 120 employees are needed to staff Dukes' Grill but about 150 employees have been hired, he said.

Food service officials had projected about 160 to 170 employees would be needed for the Phillips Center facility, he said. Now the projection is closer to 200.

"Usually we come back and we're short-handed," Jones said. Additional jobs were promoted with posters and Breeze advertisements this summer.

Because Dukes' Grill is overstaffed, the number of hours each employee works has been reduced, he said. Employees usually work between 10 and 15 hours per week; now the shifts are between seven and eight hours.

Dukes' Grill employees also are scheduled to work shifts every other weekend.

Jones said he has not heard any complaints about the shortened schedules. New employees "don't know any different," and other employees don't mind having fewer hours at the beginning of the year, he said.

Employees can use the extra time to work out scheduling problems and to do errands at the beginning of the year, he said.

Hiring soon will begin for additional openings at the Phillips Center, he said. The new facility will open no sooner than Oct. 1.

Training for the new facility will take place at Dukes' Grill for some operations that will remain the same, he said. However, managers and supervisors must be trained before teaching old and new employees the new operations for the Phillips Center.

Workers will not know until they have moved into the new facility if all operations will go smoothly or if additional problems need to be worked out, he said.

Graduate plans benefit

Mark Miller
news editor

A JMU graduate has organized a concert to aid African relief and the needy in the Harrisonburg area.

The event will begin at 4 p.m. Sunday in the Convocation Center and will be broadcast live by JMU public radio station WMRA-FM (90.7).

Larry Rogers, who graduated in 1979 and earned his master's from JMU in 1981, said more than half the money raised from the "benefit for life" will be used for the community.

Some may go to halfway houses, day care centers, and clothes and food to be distributed during Christmas. "We're looking to touch the community in any way possible," he said.

More than 2,500 tickets have been sold, and 5,000 to 6,000 people are expected to attend.

The theme of the benefit is "We've been separated too long." Rogers said the concert will bring together Mennonites, Catholics, Protestants and Jews.

The concert will feature gospel musicians Michelle Piller, the Mighty Clouds of Joy, the Rose of Sharon, Ralph Sampson Sr., the JMU Contemporary Gospel Singers and the Divine Life Assembly.

The idea for the concert came from Sampson, he said. Rogers then established People United Together, which has met each week since July to organize the event.

He said he has been supported by many people at JMU as well as local businesses. "How can you not support life?" he asked.

Rogers said P.U.T. is much different from Live Aid, which raised money for the world's hungry this summer with concerts in this country and in England.

"Live Aid did not benefit the people of this country," he said. "At least 50 percent (of the benefit for life concert) is going to our community."

Also, "The people who put Live Aid together are wealthy and successful. . . . Instead of giving $40 million they could have given $100 million."

"We're putting this together from nothing."

He added, "It's great that they did it (Live Aid), but it was very political."

A donation of $5 is charged for the concert and tickets will be available at the door. Children under 12 will be admitted for no cost. For more information, contact Rogers at 434-5329.

SGA to hold special election for treasurer

Because the Student Government Association treasurer elected in April has resigned, a special election will be held Sept. 12 to fill the position.

Joe Tagliareni resigned from the office due to a "demanding academic year ahead," according to SGA President Helen MacNabb.

Declarations of intent for the office are due at the SGA office in the Warren Campus Center by 5 p.m. Friday, she said.

The SGA Executive Council unanimously appointed Michelle Shaffer as interim treasurer until the election.

SGA booksale to begin today

The Student Government Association booksale will be today and Friday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. in the South Ballroom of the Warren Campus Center.

The sale usually is held on the mezzanine of the WCC but the SGA was planning to have it in the Phillips Center this year. The rooms on the mezzanine were reserved for meetings, so the SGA decided to use the ballroom, said Greg Gromada, head of the booksale.

"Everyone working on the booksale seems to know what they're doing and we're very organized this year so I think it will be successful," he said.

The line for the sale will begin in the hallway by Dukes' Grill.

Election planned for SGA senators

Elections for Student Government Association senators will be held Sept. 16.

Declarations of intent will be available until Sept. 13 in the SGA office in the Warren Campus Center and must be returned no later than 5 p.m. that day.

Senators' responsibilities include attending all student senate meetings Tuesdays from 5:30 to 7 p.m. Senators also must serve on at least one senate committee as outlined in the SGA by-laws.

Senators represent students on university commissions and distribute SGA minutes to the general student body.

Dorm senators attend hall council meetings. Commuter senators attend Commuter Student Committee meetings and hold regular office hours in the commuter office.

Greek senators attend Interfraternity Council and/or Panhellenic Council meetings.

The first senate meeting will be Sept. 24 in the North Ballroom in the WCC. The chairman pro-tempore will be elected at this meeting.

University galleries announce exhibits

The fall art exhibition season at JMU galleries opens Monday.

The 10th International Miniature Print Exhibition in Sawhill Gallery features prints no larger than four square inches. The artists represent 28 states and 17 countries. Sponsored by the Pratt Graphics Center and the department of exhibitions at Pratt Institute in Brooklyn, the exhibit continues through Sept. 25.

Photographs by Manuel Alvarez Bravo will be displayed in New Image Gallery through Sept. 28. His photographs reflect the culture of Mexico.

Artworks and The Other galleries will feature the work of undergraduate students through Sept. 29. Sarah Otto's watercolors and Brian Goings' three-dimensional paintings will be in Artworks Gallery. The Other Gallery will display drawings and watercolors by Cindy Andes.

Dukes don dashing duds

Article by Alison Colby

Photos by Ming Leong

They've got the look — the new look. Jordache jeans? Shaker knit sweaters? No. A West Point cadet's uniform? Not quite, but almost.

A new marching band uniform.

The Marching Royal Dukes, JMU's 283-piece marching band, will sport their new look in the JMU's first home football game Sept. 14. The Dukes will play Morehead State University.

The uniform, similar to the one worn by West Point cadets, consists of a white jacket with deep purple trim and purple pants. A gold-trimmed purple hat tops the uniform. While lightweight, the new uniform is more durable and versatile than the old.

Unlike previous years, the band can dress up for special occasions such as Homecoming and parades — the uniform comes with optional sequined sashes and shoulder adornments.

The Royal Dukes' director, Pat Rooney, says, "They (the uniforms) are very contemporary. We wanted to get away from purple."

The old uniform consisted of a purple jacket with a diagonal gold stripe and purple pants.

According to Rooney, a new costume brings the band more than just a new look.

"When you come up with a uniform, you come up with a tradition."

The assistant professor of music says the new uniform gives the band a "slick and traditional look." Since JMU is steeped in tradition, Rooney says an idea for a new uniform was difficult to develop. The band needed a look that was classy, sleek and contemporary but still traditional — a combination difficult to obtain.

The result of efforts to create this look will be seen at the Morehead State University football game.

The Royal Dukes will perform a halftime show to the visiting side of the stadium and a post-game show to the students' side.

Songs presented by the group will include "Crown Imperial," the opener; a medley of country and western songs with a little swing; and a medley of Civil War pieces.

Rooney explains that the group is excited about the upcoming year. "We'll have the same type of energy that Purzycki is radiating with the football team."

"We're one of the best college marching bands in the country."

"We know we're good. The kids know it (the band) is good, and they want to make it better."

Rooney says he is not just optimistic about his group — he is thrilled and invigorated by them.

"I'm excited," the assistant professor of music says.

After one week of practice, the group knows the show and is taking on more work. Rooney credits the band's fast-pace learning to good leadership.

"We have real good student leaders. Our drum majors and section leaders have been super. We're further along than we've ever been."

This year, Rooney has appointed five drum majors to lead the band. Senior Bryan Simpson, senior Chris Card and junior Scott Harrison were drum majors last year and were chosen again for this season. Junior Joy Humphries and junior Dean Leipsner are the newcomers. Previously, only four drum majors were appointed.

Rooney is in his fourth year here. During his first year, the marching band had about 225 members. Now, the band is at its maximum.

"We won't let it get any bigger," Rooney says the band is at the size now where he can accomplish what he wants to and where teaching drills and music is possible. If the band grew much bigger, the basics would be hard to teach; therefore, the quality of the band would disintegrate.

Of the 283 people in the band, 45 members form the color guard, 40 members comprise the percussion section and one twirler adds an extra sparkle. And the antic-filled sousaphone section has 16 members.

Although trying to organize 283 people can be a handful, Rooney does not run the band single-handedly. Six assistants contribute to the common cause of making The Royal Dukes "Virginia's Finest." Each assistant is assigned a duty such as teaching color guard drills, working with the percussion section and helping coordinate trips.

In previous years, the band performed at the University of Virginia football games in Charlottesville, Washington Redskins games and various festivals and parades.

This year, the group is planning trips to the Sept. 28 JMU — College of William and Mary football game in Williamsburg, the Oct. 5 Oyster Bowl in Norfolk and the Nov. 9 JMU — Virginia Military Institute football game in Lexington. Rooney hopes to take his band to the Neptune Festival in

After Hours

• Calhoun's — Court Square, offers a variety of food, drink and entertainment. A bar, lounge, dance floor and tables well-situated for socializing comprise the "front" room. The Backroom provides another bar, dance floor and stage. Dressy/casual dress required.

• J.M.'s — Main Street across from campus, is the place to drink with your buddies and dance the night away. It has a well-stocked circular bar, dance floor, video screen and many arcade games. J.M.'s caters to students by hosting contests and specials. Casual dress.

• The Mystic Den — S. Liberty Street, provides local color and maintains a steady clientele of rock'n'roll fans. Live bands play in the restaurant/bar almost every weekend. Many campus bands debut here. Casual dress.

• Belle Meade — South of Harrisonburg on Main Street, generally provides DJ dance music and frequent two-for-one drink specials.

• Scruples — Located in the Sheraton Harrisonburg Inn off Route 33, is a more sophisticated bar in Harrisonburg. On weekends, bands or DJ's play popular tunes. Scruples is a nice place to go for a first date or special occasions, but the average beer chugger might not feel compelled to let loose here with the older clientele and bow-tied bartenders. Appropriate dress required.

• Scotland Yard — located a few miles from town on Rt. 11 South, is worth the trip for anyone spotted with rock'n'roll fever. Top-billed bands from D.C., Richmond and other cities frequently gear-up for an "anything goes" crowd. Punks, motorcyclists, yuppies and students convene on the immense dance floor or catch their wind while sitting at their tables in the upstairs "loft." Dress to be different.

Virginia Beach but is unsure if that can be arranged since the festival may conflict with the William and Mary football game.

The Royal Dukes also will host the annual Parade of Champions, a high school marching band contest on Oct. 19. And to conclude the group's season, the annual Stadium Echoes concert is planned.

Travel is another reason Rooney wants to halt the growth of the band. With about 280 members, the band can comfortably travel in six buses. If the group grew, more buses would be needed.

Rooney says the marching band is an important element to JMU. When the group performs in other stadiums and in competitions, people relate the band to JMU. Rooney says the band is a factor in many students' decision to attend JMU.

Russell Smith, a freshman chemistry major from Lynchburg says having seen and heard of The Royal Dukes influenced his decision to come here. "I knew it (the band) was a good organization."

While some students are swayed toward JMU by the band, all are not.

Steve Weber, a transfer student from the University of New Mexico, says the business department drew him here. "I came here but I wasn't going to get in band. Then I saw the band the first day I was here, and I was impressed. I called my mom and said to send my stuff down." Now, he is a member of the trombone section.

Most band members arrived here Sunday. The culmination of the group's preparation will be Sept. 14. Rooney says, "The first game is at night . . . I can tell you that our show will end with a bang."

He promises lots of excitement but will not tell more.

"You'll have to go" and see for yourself.

The Royal Dukes perform a halftime and a post-game show at all home football games.

Soccer win sparks optimism

JMU forward Andres Salinas (16) beats a Longwood defender.

Rob Washburn
staff writer

When talking about the potential for the 1985 JMU soccer team, coach Bob Vanderwarker is so excited he is "trying to temper the enthusiasm until Sunday."

Vanderwarker had good reason to be optimistic following Wednesday's 3-0 victory over nationally-ranked Division II Longwood College.

The Dukes' return 13 lettermen from last year's squad and hope to challenge for the title in the Colonial Athletic Association.

JMU's strength lies in the midfield, which Vanderwarker calls "the most solid part of our team."

Heading up the midfield is junior Dan Stewart, the Dukes' Most Valuable Offensive Player in 1984. Stewart will be joined by sophomore Frank Radics and freshman Craig Baur.

Vanderwarker said Radics and Baur give JMU "a good dimension at the wings." Also seeing time at the midfield positions will be sophomores Steve Werrlein, Dan Wright and freshmen Andrew Richardson and Rodney Giese.

The Dukes will be "stronger offensively," Vanderwarker said. Returning are seniors Mark Agee and Marc Weaver, along with last year's leading scorer Dan Villasenor.

"I have two forward lines that are very quick," Vanderwarker said. "We have seven people who could start."

Returning juniors Andres Salinas and Tony Dickson also will see a lot of playing time along with newcomers Kingsley and Billy Leimbach.

The backs will be anchored by senior captain Ted Stack. He will be flanked by sophomore Marc Hinson at left back, senior Kurt Luedy at stopper and freshmen Trevor Hershey and Bob Prachar. The starters will be pushed by returning senior Steve Shaw and freshman Jorin Hood.

The goalie position was one of concern for Vanderwarker, with the graduation of two-time all-state goalie Eric Erdman.

He said he is very pleased, though after senior John Morrison and junior transfer Jim Miller combined for the shutout against the Lancers.

"Both goalies have performed very well," Vanderwarker said, "and I haven't decided which one will start."

The Dukes open their season here at 2 p.m. Sunday against Georgetown University and Vanderwarker can't wait. "I'm trying to avoid overconfidence before the season begins, but I am cautiously optimistic about our chances for a good season."

Volleyball team eyes repeat of last season

By Sonny Dearth
staff writer

At Tuesday's volleyball practice, JMU freshman Erika Johnson dove to her right. Arms outstretched, she returned the seemingly impossible shot back into the court as she hit the floor.

Such plays were typical of coach Deb Tyson's Dukes last year. JMU won the ECAC South (now the Colonial Athletic Association) championship as the only Division II conference team.

The Dukes advanced to the NCAA Division II tournament before falling in the early rounds and finished the year fifteenth in the nation among Division II squads.

With nine returning players from that championship team, its chances to duplicate or surpass last year's success seem excellent.

According to Tyson, her 1985 team fits the cliché, "same song, different verse."

"We've taken a lot of pride in our accomplishments from last year. We're very pleased with the pace and level we're at so far."

The Dukes' nucleus of returning players should offset the loss of 1984 all-conference performer Sheila

East Tennessee Buccaneers

1984 record: 6-5

Head coach: Mike Ayers

Ayers record: First season

Series record: ETSU leads 3-2

Basic offense: I formation

Basic defense: 50 Shade

The Dukes travel to East Tennessee this weekend to face a team that returns 37 lettermen from a year ago. Last season the Buccaneers won the Parents' Day game 9-6 on three Herbie Campbell field goals.

ETSU returns with its leading passer Robbie White and running back Jerry Butler. Campbell, who buried the Dukes with 10 seconds remaining in last season's meeting, also returns.

JMU limited the Buccaneers to Campbell's three field goals in that contest, and with much of that defense still in tact, the Dukes should be able to pressure ETSU.

The defensive line is inexperienced for JMU and could be even more questionable with an injured Doug West at nose guard.. ETSU has also lost starting offensive lineman Don Beedle.

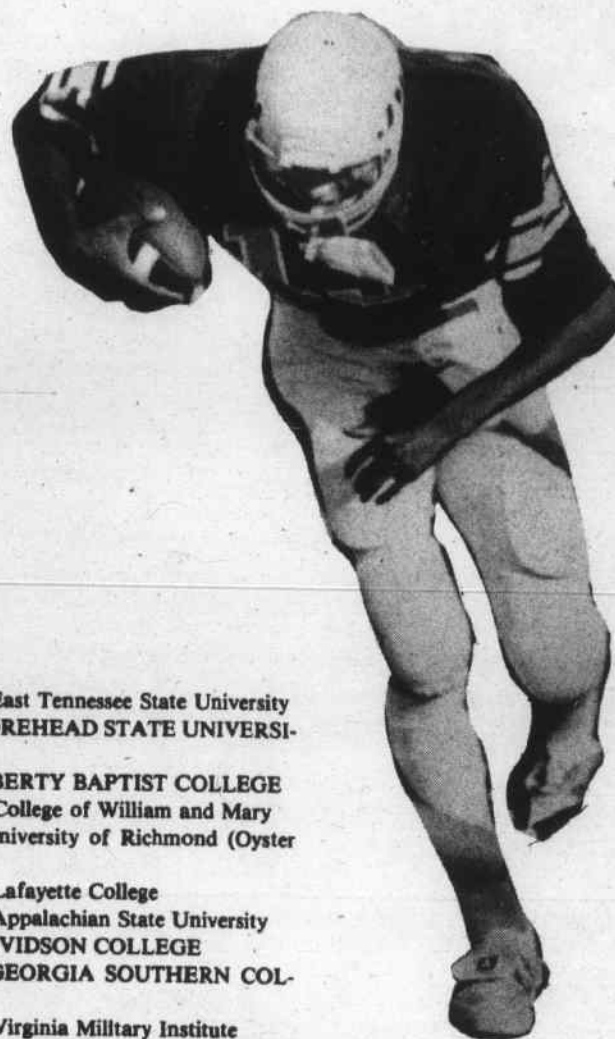

If head coach Joe Purzycki's Wing-T is in good form, then the Dukes should be able to muster more offense than the six points scored last year against the Buccaneers.

Purzycki still insists that the quarterback job is up for grabs between sophomore Eric Green and senior Jon Roddy.

"All in all the quarterback situation really has not changed that much," Purzycki said. "Roddy and Green both did the things that they do well."

Purzycki is also eager to see how his team will so in the season opener against a quality team.

"I don't think you know how ready you are until you hit the hard competition," he said.

Chittams, with setters senior Debbie Griffith and junior Sandy Heinbach heading the list of returnees.

According to Tyson, Griffith is one of "our most competitive players, as well as by far our best defensive player."

Heinbach, Tyson said, "played a very key role on the team, since the setter is the key to the offense." Tyson referred to Heinbach as a "real fighter and pacesetter, a feisty person to have on your side of the net."

Senior middle blocker Michele Mazza is a "very strategic player" who will receive a great deal of playing time this season, Tyson said. Sophomore "pointmaker" Bonnie Brosdal is a "very aggressive, balanced all-around player."

"Their (returning core) strength is each other. They have really committed themselves in the off-season, practicing twice a day," she said. "They've put in a lot of time."

JMU also had a productive recruiting year. Freshman Chris Scott "could be our soundest defensive player, though she has a long way to go."

First-year player Christine Penas is "our most explosive player, though she lacks college experience," Tyson said.

Freshmen Dina Thomas and Johnson also might contribute significantly to the squad this year.

The Dukes, however, will have to play top-notch volleyball to stay ahead of the toughest schedule in the team's history. Moving into the Division I level next season, it will face tougher opponents than in the past.

About 70 percent of JMU's opponents this year are in Division I; the remaining 30 percent are the top Division II teams in the nation. "We planned our schedule in the manner to play top teams in order to get nationally ranked," Tyson said.

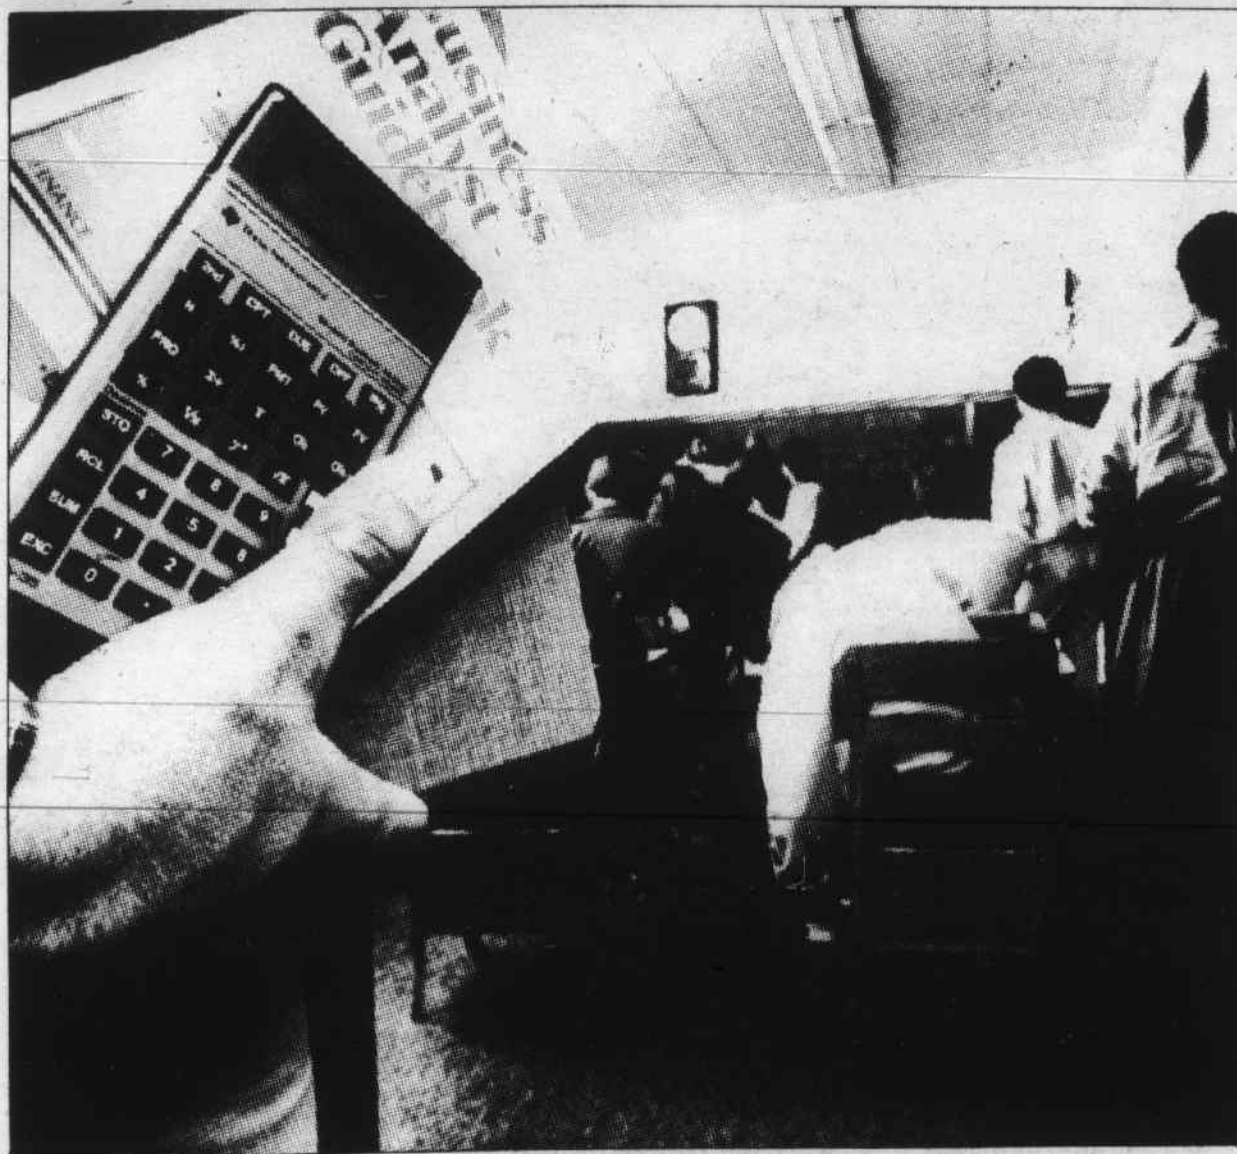

In mid-season, the Dukes will host Troy State (Ala.), one of the top eight Division II teams in the nation last year.

"Those matches (Oct. 11-12) are a key because they will have an effect on our (national) ranking. We scheduled them for the middle of the season because hopefully we'll be playing our best ball then."

The Navy Invitational Tournament in Annapolis, Md., and the Colonial conference tournament will have a large bearing on whether JMU can receive its second consecutive NCAA bid.

The Dukes begin their season Oct. 10 in Godwin Hall against one of their closest conference competitors, George Mason University.

"I'm really excited about the team," Tyson said. "As long as we keep loyalty to our goals, we'll have a great season."

Policy change

Policefile. You know the term.

Probably the most famous and infamous part of The Breeze, Policefile has been a source of anxiety for those people who appear in it, and a source of humor and gossip for those people who read familiar names in it.

This is not what Policefile was set up to do.

The editors of The Breeze have decided to modify the policy concerning Policefile, effective this issue. We no longer will print the names and offenses of those arrested for minor infractions. We will, however, continue to run the names of those arrested for serious offenses. Courtfile will similarly be modified effective next issue.

One of the purposes of Policefile, in addition to keeping students informed as to the crime situation on campus, is to act as a deterrent to crime on campus. Although we believe we were successful to a degree, we also believe the reporting of names did more harm than good in some cases, especially with minor offenses.

The degree of some of the offenses did not warrant the amount of attention they received in Policefile or the amount of attention students paid to them.

The minor offenses that will be dropped from Policefile and Courtfile are excessive noise, drunk in public, drinking in public, urinating in public, and abusive language. Breach of peace and disorderly conduct will still be reported because they indicate some degree of violence.

Serious offenses such as driving while intoxicated, larceny, sexual assaults and destruction of property will be reported as usual. The seriousness of these offenses do warrant the publicity they receive.

Judicial charges also will be reported as usual, though the names are not used. A judicial charge is a violation of university policy.

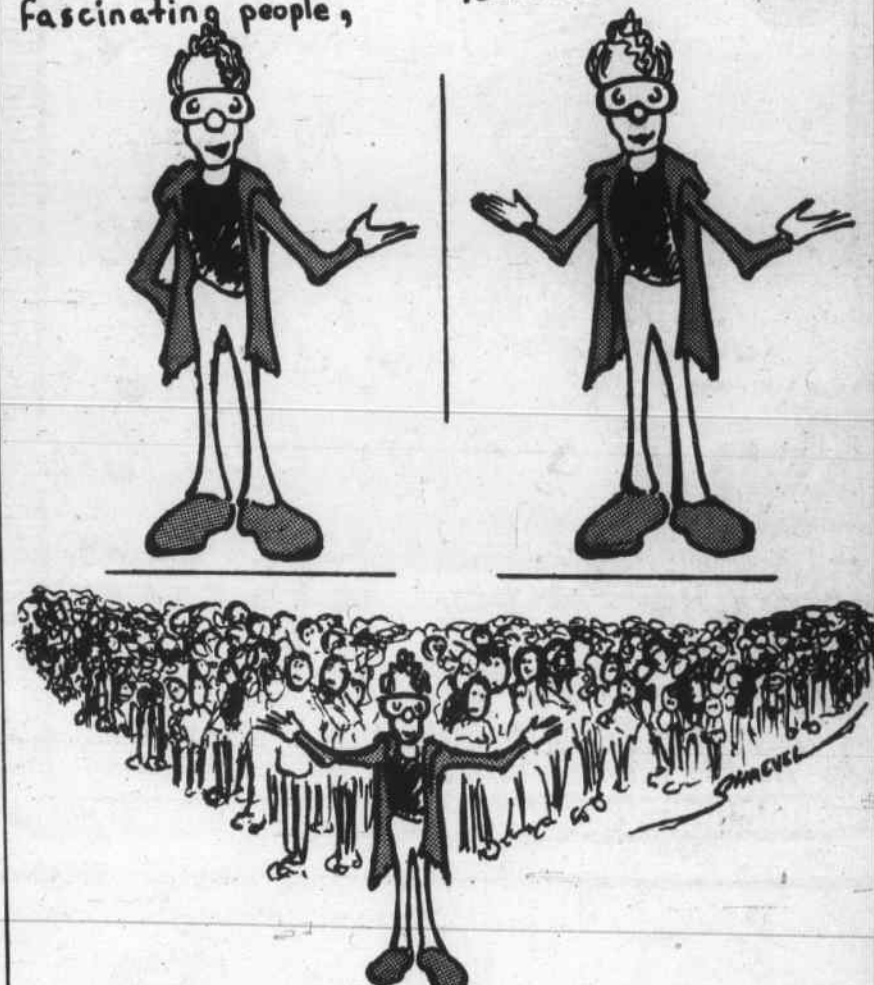

Statistics will be compiled on the number of minor offenses that occur on campus and they will be printed at regular intervals during the semester.

The above editorial is the opinion of the editorial board.

The Breeze's editorial board consists of editorial editor Brian Rawdon, assistant editorial editor Charles Lundy, editor Gwen Fariss and managing editor Cay Fultz.

College is great! Where else can you expand your mind, meet lots of fascinating people, be independent, broaden your horizons, and really learn how to...

...stand in line.

Apathetic students missing freebies

On Sept. 16, JMU students will elect 50 of their peers to the student senate and, as usual, the election will be a farce.

The student government is run largely by young people of ambition and talent. A representative body of students elected from within the college community to serve the students and the university is a noble ideal. But if the premise is that this body is elected democratically, we have sorely missed the mark.

We have no one to blame but ourselves. We don't vote. We don't run for office. In fact, we have had much better student leadership than we deserve. The culprit is apathy — our own.

For example, our SGA president, Helen MacNabb, was elected by only 14 percent of the student body. And voter turnout was at a record high!

Two of the five executive council positions were uncontested. Two interested students filled out declarations of intent to run and were handed the jobs on election day. The situation was similar for the office of Honor Council vice-president.

Many residence hall senate seats are uncontested each year. Some senators actually have been appointed.

In the last election for commuter senators, one candidate received 27 votes out of a possible 3,000 and won! (If he had campaigned we might have had a real landslide on our hands.)

The list of cases goes on where positions of privilege and responsibility fall to individuals because they were the only ones to apply. Herein lies opportunity.

The SGA, like any organization, has its share of altruists and self-servers. For the former, there is much opportunity to contribute. Most people in the SGA volunteer their time and ask nothing in return. There is always work to be done and a shortage of capable people.

For the latter, however, here is a hot tip: the position of SGA treasurer is vacant due to the resignation of Joe Tagliareni, elected last semester in an uncontested race. The job requires only a minimum of 10 hours of work per week.

What you get in return is:

- $1,400 a year salary
- A trip to Florida for a convention
- Free dinners with administration big-whigs
- Reserved seats at basketball games
- A seat in a convertible in the homecoming parade
- A private desk in the campus center
- Personalized stationery
- Countless photo opportunities
- And much, much more

Declaration of intent to run for treasurer are due by tomorrow at 5 p.m. The election will be held Sept. 12, and the elections for the rest of the senate will be four days later.

So get involved this year. Apathy might cost you more than you thought.

Company 'monopoly' limits ring selection

To the editor:

I am writing to protest the class ring committee's authority to tell a student from which ring company he must buy his college ring. At college we are taught to be responsible enough to make our own choices, but in this case we are told to not ask about other choices because there are none available to us. I took the initiative and contacted the JMU sales representative from a ring company that used to be allowed to compete with Art Carved and I was told they "did not have the contract" for the class of 1987.

A monopoly would contradict principles we have been taught at JMU. We are taught in the College of Business that competition in the marketplace keeps product quality and service up and prices down. I'm not suggesting a free-for-all for ring companies in the student union, but I feel students deserve more than one choice in the price, quality and style of their college ring.

I do not care for any of Art Carved's rings and if they are my only "choice" I doubt if I will buy a college ring. I cannot be the only JMU student who resents this denial of the basic right of freedom of choice. I encourage anyone else who feels as I do to make their views known to the SGA, their class ring committee and the "competing" ring companies.

SGA greetings

To the editor:

Welcome back, from your SGA officers. We're ready for an exciting and active year. All we need are your ideas, criticisms and energies to fulfill our expectations and goals for this year.

We encourage you to take advantage of your role as an SGA member by participating in the decision-making process at JMU. Student senators and students-at-large have contributed to JMU's development and growth over the years. Your help is needed to continue expanding JMU in new directions to reach our ultimate goal of being the best undergraduate institution in the nation.

Don't forget that you elected us to work on the big issues and the little things. We're here to help. Stop by the SGA office, Room 114, Warren Campus Center, or call 6376.

We wish you only the best in your pursuit of academic achievement and individual growth throughout the academic year.

Space shuttle revives Syncom 3 satellite

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP) — Space Shuttle Discovery's triumphant astronauts landed safely by dawn's early light Tuesday, completing a "near-perfect" repair mission in space that revived a lifeless $85 million satellite.

Engineers at Hughes Communications Inc., owner of the Syncom 3 satellite, reported its batteries and liquid-fueled rocket engines seem undamaged, despite four inactive months in the supercold of space.

Hughes president Steven Dorfman said the final success of the salvage effort will not be known until Oct. 29 when Syncom 3 is scheduled to fire the solid rocket and climb to an orbit 22,300 miles above the Earth.

Hughes spent $12.5 million on the salvage effort, including a $8.5 million payment to NASA.

Insurance underwriters paid Hughes $85 million, but will receive $65 million back in a profit-sharing arrangement if Syncom 3 works.

Syncom 3 is to be one of four satellites leased by Hughes to the U.S. Navy for global military communications.

Miller chose papers Soviets would like

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Richard W. Miller admitted to choosing carefully an FBI document for his Soviet lover that "he thought . . . would be an item of interest to the Soviets," the FBI's top polygraph expert testified Tuesday.

Paul K. Minor, the FBI's chief polygraph examiner and coordinator, testified at Miller's espionage trial that the fired agent admitted after days of probing questions to giving classified material to Svetlana Ogorodnikov.

Minor recalled that his own series of interviews began in a straightforward manner.

"I believe my exact question to Mr. Miller was, 'How did you end up here today? How did you end up in this predicament?'"

Miller's response was "Svetlana Ogorodnikov," Minor said.

Miller then began a series of admissions that culminated in his statement that he had picked out a document to give Mrs. Ogorodnikov — a 53-page FBI reporting guide on foreign intelligence information.

Minor noted that he never actually administered a lie detector test to Miller because there were too many things he said he had forgotten.

Study time does not affect grade average

STATE COLLEGE, Pa. (AP) — College grades will suffer more from cutting classes than from cutting study time to a minimum, according to researchers, but one of them said Tuesday he doesn't want to believe the results.

Of the 424 students interviewed in the 1973 study, the researchers said they found little correlation between the amount of time spent studying and a student's grade point average.

Students who reported studying less than two hours each weekday had an overall grade point average of 2.94. The average grade point was 2.91 for students studying two to three hours a day, 2.97 for those studying three to four hours, and 2.86 for students hitting the books four to five hours a day.

The grade average jumped to 3.25 for students studying five to six hours a day, but dropped to 3.18 for those going at it six or more hours.

The first study also found that grades went up steadily with the percentage of classes attended regularly by students.

Health official wants clean needles for addicts

NEW YORK (AP) — The city's health commissioner wants to make it easier for drug abusers to obtain sterile needles and syringes in an effort to slow the rapid spread of AIDs among addicts, according to a letter made public Tuesday.

Sharing needles and syringes among addicts is the second most common way of obtaining Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome, an often-fatal disease for which there is no known cure, Dr. David J. Sencer wrote in his letter to Mayor Edward Koch.

Koch said the proposals were "quite controversial" but sent Sencer's memo to the district attorneys of the five boroughs to get opinions before acting. No replies have been received, mayoral spokesman Tom Kelly said.

Fla. death row inmate wins stay of execution

STARKE, Fla. (AP) — Convicted murderer Willie Darden won a stay of execution from the U.S. Supreme Court late Tuesday night, hours before he was to die in Florida's electric chair.

Darden, nicknamed "the sage of death row" by friends and attorneys because he has been on Florida's death row longer than any inmate but one, had been condemned to die at 7 a.m. Wednesday, for killing a Lakeland furniture store owner in a 1973 robbery that yielded $15.

The stay was granted by the Supreme Court at one minute to midnight.

Darden was supposed to have been one of the first men executed in the state. The first two death warrants signed by Gov. Bob Graham carried the names of Darden and John Spinklink, who was executed in May 1979.

Sunken Titanic found 'Intact and upright'

BOSTON (AP) — The sunken Titanic is remarkably intact with a hull "like a museum piece," but any salvage attempts would desecrate the gravesite of the more than 1,500 people who died with it, the first man to view the wreckage said Tuesday.

Robert Ballard, chief scientist of the joint U.S.-French venture that found the oceanliner on Sunday and an engineer at the Woods Hole Oceanographic Institute, described the remote-control television survey he made of the 73-year-old wreck.

"It's standing upright on the bottom," Ballard said in a ship-to-shore telephone conversation with ABC News. "It appears to be in superb condition. One would expect that, given the fact that we're working in extremely deep water that's ice cold and in total darkness. It's an environment of high preservation."

Remote-controlled robot television pictures shows that the ship lies in a deep ocean canyon, according to videotape broadcast Tuesday on the "CBS Evening News."

Man kills himself after holding off police

CHARLOTTESVILLE (AP) — An armed man who turned his apartment into a makeshift fortress committed suicide early Wednesday after holding riot-clad police at bay for nearly 13 hours.

Donald Eugene Rexrode, 36, killed himself with a single 12-gauge shotgun blast at 1:04 a.m., moments after telling a police negotiator he was going to take a nap.

Rexrode had moved to the apartment building from the Harrisonburg area several weeks ago and lived there with his daughter, police and neighbors said. The daughter was not at the apartment Tuesday when the incident began.

W & L will welcome its first female students

LEXINGTON (AP) — Washington & Lee University, described by a school official as "the caboose on the coeducation train," will get its first women undergraduates next week.

"We can't change the fact we were a men's college overnight," said Frank A. Parsons, executive assistant to W&L President John D. Wilson. "But we don't want women to think they're going to a men's college, that they're interlopers or strangers of anything like that."

Since its founding in 1749, W&L has been a male institution. Women were barred until 1972, when the law school opened its doors to coeducation.

List cites Reagan as having good manners

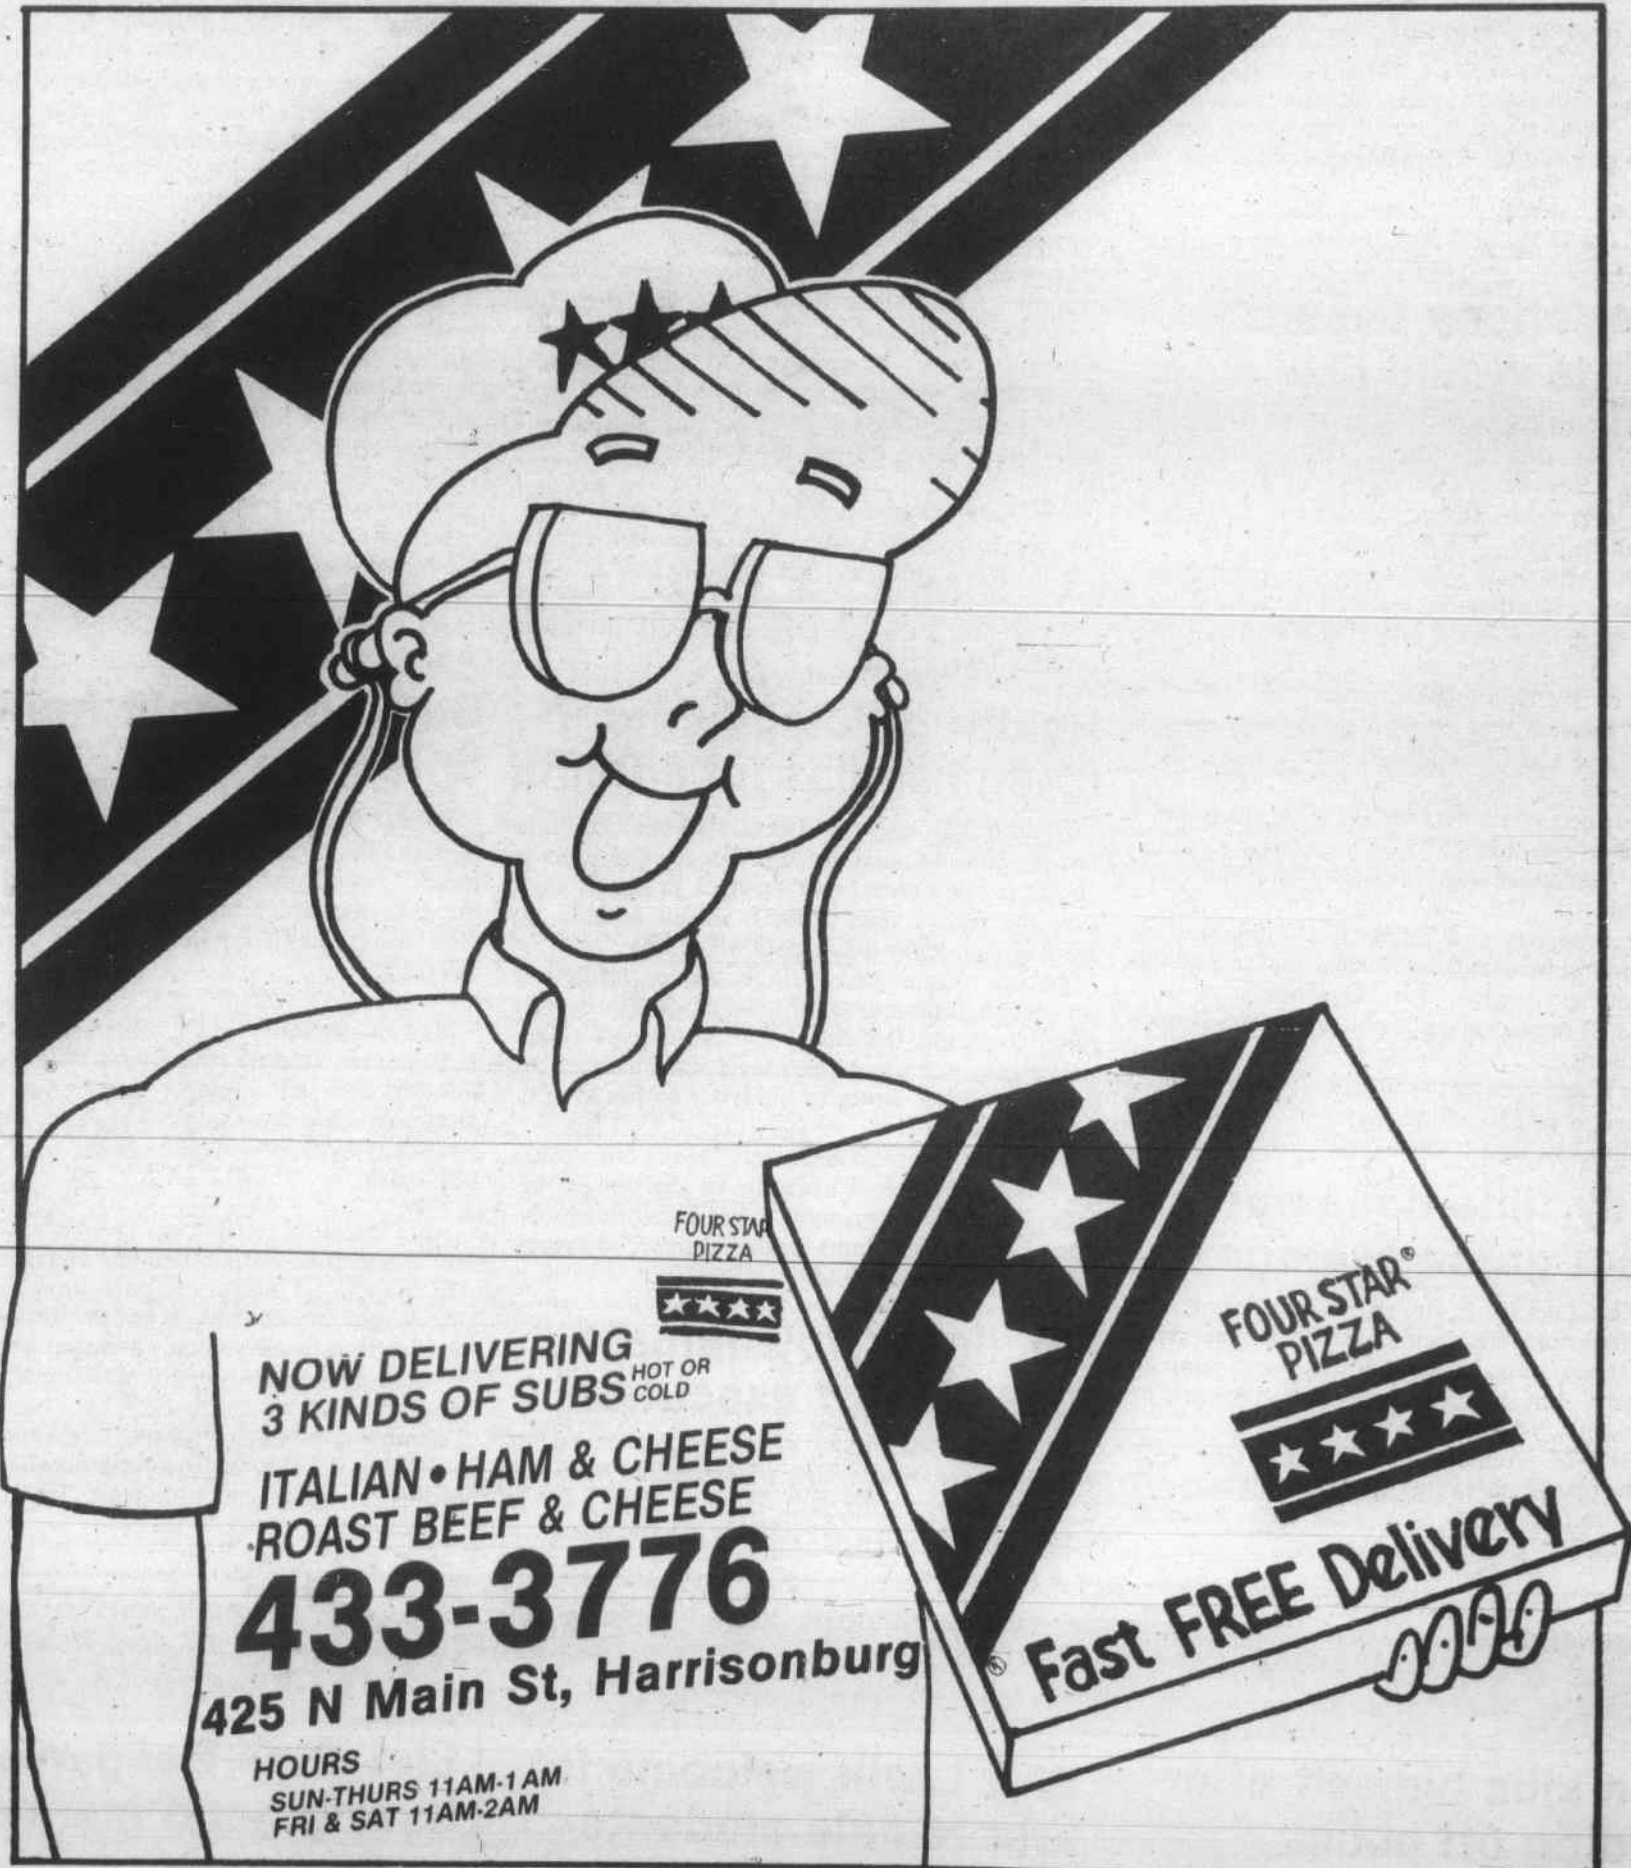

KEWANEE, Ill. (AP) — President Reagan leads the list of the 10 best-mannered people in the country, says etiquette expert Marjabelle Stewart.

"It used to be taboo to show affection," said Mrs. Stewart. "But he has a beautiful way of saying you can be nice to your wife. He is always reaching for Nancy's hand and helping her."

Others on Mrs. Stewart's list include actor Cliff Robertson, former U.S. Ambassador Jean Kirkpatrick, television host Gary Collins, actress Linda Evans, golfer Arnold Palmer and White House correspondent Helen Thomas.
