POETRY.

BINGEN ON THE RHINE.

By Mrs. Norton.

A soldier of the Legion

There was lack of woman's nursing

There was death of woman's tears,

But a comrade stood beside him

While his life blood ebbed away,

And bent with pitying glance,

To hear what he might say,

The dying soldier murmured:

As he took that comrade's hand,

And he said, "I never more shall see

My own, my native land;

Take a message and a token

To some distant friend of mine,

For I was born at Bingen—

At Bingen on the Rhine.

"Tell my brothers and companions

When they meet and crowd around,

To hear my mournful story,

To hear my mournful story,

To hear my mournful story,

To hear my mournful story,

To hear my mournful story,

To hear my mournful story,

To hear my mournful story,

To hear my mournful story,

To hear my mournful story,

To hear my mournful story,

To hear my mournful story,

To hear my mournful story,

To hear my mournful story,

To hear my mournful story,

To hear my mournful story,

To hear my mournful story,

To hear my mournful story,

To hear my mournful story,

To hear my mournful story,

To hear my mournful story,

To hear my mournful story,

POETRY.
None Suffrage.—The "local" of the Lodge Gazette occasionally gets off some good things. The following is one of his latest productions:
"Chalk and ivory! heels and shin!
Samba's glory now begins:
Go way white man! You don't know How to vote right! That is so Yaw, yaw, yaw! Yaw, yaw, yaw!
De happiest day I ever saw!
"What's de tickets? Fotch 'em straight!
I votes early, I votes late;
I votes early, I votes right;
I's no ignoramus white.
Man and brudder, equal born:
De maker's image (in a horn!)
De glory ob de risin' sun!
De callad cuss from Africa!
Oh, kinkey, kinkey, oh!
If dis an't glory, tell me so!"

A Quaker had his broad brim blown off, and chased it for a long time with fruitless zeal. At last, seeing a boy laughing at his disaster, he said to him:
"Art thou a profane lad?"
The youngster replied that he sometimes did a little in that way.
"Then," said he, "take a half dollar from his pocket, 'three may damn yonder fleeing fifty cents' worth." It takes a down east man to ask questions; but once in a while one of them finds his match. Jonathan overtook a gentleman who was traveling on horseback notwithstanding the disadvantage of having lost a leg.
His curiosity was awakened, as he rode alongside of him, to know how he managed to meet with such a misfortune.

"Been in the army, I guess?" said the anxious inquirer.
"Never was in the army in my life," the traveler remarked.
"Fit a duel, p'raps?"
"Never fought a duel, Sir."
"Horse thrown you off I guess, or something of that sort?"
"No, Sir; nothing of the kind."
Jonathan tried various dodges, but all to no effect; and at last, almost out of patience with himself as well as with the gentleman, whose patience was very commendable, he determined on a direct inquiry as to the nature of the accident by which the gentleman had come to lose his leg.

"I will tell you," replied the traveler, "on condition that you will promise not to ask me another question."
"Agreed, agreed!" exclaimed the eager listener; "agreed!"

"Well, Sir," remarked the gentleman, "it was bit off."

"Bit off!" cried Jonathan. "Wa'll, I declare, I should just like to know what on earth bit it off?"

Jonathan was no more inquisitive, and no more taken aback, than the inquiring Englishman, who had been betrayed into the presumption of asking a gentleman with whom he was traveling, if he was a single man?

"No, I am not, Sir."

"Oh, I beg your pardon—a married man, Sir."

"No, Sir, I am not."

"Pray, excuse me; I perceive you are a widower."

"No, I am not a widower."

The inquirer was nonplussed.
Not a single man, nor a married man, nor a widower: "Pray, what may you be, if I may be so bold as to ask?"

"It is none of your business; but if you are very anxious to know, I am a divorced man, Sir!"

The property and wealth of STATSMEN.—Jefferson died comparatively poor. Indeed, if Congress had not purchased his library and given for it five times its value, he would with difficulty have kept the wolf from his door.

Madison saved money and was comparatively rich. To add to his fortune, however, or rather that of his widow, Congress purchased his manuscript papers and paid thirty thousand dollars for them.

James Monroe, the sixth president of the United States, died in New York, so poor that his remains found a resting place through the charity of one of his friends.

John Quincy Adams left some $150,000, the result of industry, prudence and inheritance. He was a man of method and economy.

Martin Van Buren died very rich.
Throughout his political life he studiously looked out for his own interest. It is not believed that he never spent thirty shillings in politics.— His party shook the bush, and he caught the bird.

Daniel Webster squandered a million in his life time, the product of his professional and political speculations. He died leaving his property to his children, and his debts to his friends. The former sold for more than $20,000, the latter exceeded $250,000.

Henry Clay left a very handsome estate. It probably exceeded $100,- 000. He was a prudent manager and a scrupulously honest man.

James K. Polk left about $150,- 000, $50,000 of which he saved from his presidency of four years.

John Tyler left $50,000. Before he reached the presidency he was bankrupt. In office he husbanded his means, and then married a rich wife.

Zachary Taylor left $150,000.

Millard Fillmore is a wealthy man, and keeps his money in a strong box.
It will not be squandered in speculation nor in vice.

Ex-President Pierce saved some $50,000 from his term of service.

A schoolmaster, as a punishment to one of his pupils for using profane language, ordered him to take a pair of tongs and watch a hole in the hearth until he had caught a mouse.
The boy took the tongs and demurely waited for the visitor. Directly after he saw a mouse peeping out of the hole. Cautiously placing a leg of the tongs on either side of the hole, he grasped the mouse triumphantly swinging aloft, exclaimed,
"By G—d I've got him!"
