Seniors who were elected are Dorothy Nover, president of student government; Marjorie Proffitt, president of Y. W. C. Bubbles Becker Has Played At V.P.I. Westwood, U. of R., W. & M.; Over NBC

Bubbles Becker and his orchestra, who play for the German club dance with juniors and freshmen attending tomorrow night, come to Madison direct from a month's engagement at Westwood Supper club in Richmond, where his programs were broadcast every Tuesday, Thursday, and Friday nights from 10:35 to 11:00 o'clock.

During the past year, Becker has made quite a name for himself as a result of his broadcasts over the National Broadcasting system. The band has played in some of the country's outstanding spots, including the Summit club in Baltimore, where Becker had as his guest stars Sammy Kaye and Gene Krupa, and he has appeared from New York to Florida, and locally at Tantilla in Richmond.

The orchestra has played recent college engagements at V.P.I., University of Richmond, Sweet Briar, William and Mary, Medical College

Breeze Makes Apologies For Mistake About Song

Accidents happen in the best of publications. The Breeze apologizes for stating that Jeanne Tuttle's song, "Why Should I Care," has been played on Tommy Dorsey's radio program.

The story was written when Tuttle's composition first appeared, and when we found that it hadn't happened yet, we held the write-up. Last week the printer had some extra space, so he used it for filler.

In case you want to hear the song again, we have a hunch it will be played at the Kappa Delta Pi-Sigma Phi Lambda benefit canteen dance.

Club Sponsors Beauty Contest

"Miss Madison" Will Be Selected On Beauty Points Of Posture, Proportions

Introducing an innovation on campus, the Art club is sponsoring a beauty contest to select a "Miss Madison" from among the student body, according to an announcement by Carmen Nin, president. Ballots with space for two names will appear in next week's Breeze and ballot boxes will be placed in each dormitory.

The 7 girls receiving the highest number of votes will be announced in the Breeze and introduced to the student body at assembly, at which time one will be selected by vote for the title of Madison's most beautiful girl.

Carmen Nin urges that judging be made strictly on the beauty points of posture, proportions, grooming, and facial expression and not on personality, popularity, or class divisions.

Since this is a project of the Art club as well as an attempt to select Miss Madison, club members are working on posters for the contest.

The Girl-About-Campus column next week will be based on the conception of a beautiful girl.

Art club members and sponsors will count votes for both balloting and the final choice of the girl who is to be the first Miss Madison will be announced in the Breeze.

Lawrence and Boyd Will Lead Figure For German Mid-Winter Dances

Marion Lawrence, president of the German club, and J. H. Boyd, Jr., of Franklin, who will lead the figure at the annual Mid-winter dance which will be held tomorrow night in Reed gym.

Bubbles Becker Will Play For Tea And Formal Dances On February 8

The German club will sponsor its set of Mid-winter dances consisting of an informal tea dance from 3 to 5 p. m. and the formal dance from 8:30-12 p. m. tomorrow in Reed gymnasium. The decorations will follow a "Stardust" theme, with silver stars sprinkled over a blue sky.

The figure, which will be formed by the seventy-one German club members and their escorts, will come through a huge star filled with blue cellophane. The window drops will portray the same silhouette theme of the boy and girl found on the programs.

Bubbles Becker, who recently finished a long engagement at Westwood Supper club, will play for both dances. There are fourteen dances on the card, but the one after the sixth and before the intermission is labeled extra while there is one extra dance after the twelfth. The bids cost $3.00 for both dances while stag bids for the afternoon dance cost $1.00.

Marion Lawrence, president of the club, with J. H. Boyd, Jr., of Franklin, will lead the figure wearing a white net and satin gown with tight bodice trimmed with white feathers and carrying an arm bouquet of red roses. Dot Council, vice-president, will wear white net trimmed in silver braid with a tight bodice and full skirt with an arm bouquet of red roses.

Other officers of the club in the figure and their dates are: Dorothy Councill with Jack Beal of Franklin; Ann Batson with Henry Lawrence of Portsmouth; Elizabeth Hammond with Robert Kash of Lynchburg; Elinor Turner with John Westbrook of Franklin; Evelyn Reade with Carol Hasler of Harrisonburg; Annette Rogers with Bill Huddleston of Roanoke; and Gertrude Ames with Junie Huddims of Norfolk.

The receiving line will be composed of Annette Rogers, introducing, and other officers of the club. The sponsors of the club who will act as chaperons at both dances are Dr. and Mrs. S. P. Duke, Dr. and Mrs.

Dingleline New Student Prexy

Lynch, Sanford, Kilpatrick, And Shelton Are Other New Major Officers Chosen

Following in the footsteps of her mother, who was the first president of student government at Madison college, Jane Dingleline was chosen to fill the post of student head in the major elections this week. Dingleline ran against Evelyn Jefferson.

Filling the Y.W.C.A. presidency for next year will be Ruth Lynch, who was slated against Kitty Walker.

New head for the Athletic association is Betty Sanford, who defeated Lee Schaaf.

The new editor in chief of the Breeze will be Julia Kilpatrick, while the Schoolma'am will be edited by Margaret Shelton. The candidates against whom the latter two were pitted were Louise Parks and Phyllis Partridge, respectively.

These new officials will be installed on March 26 at the spring quarterly convocation, and will serve their respective organizations for three quarters.

The heads of student government, Y.W.C.A., and the Breeze will assume their duties of office in the spring quarter, while the two remaining officials will not take over until next fall.

This year's returns revealed a voting percentage of approximately 53 per cent, or six hundred thirty-eight students, an improvement over previous years' results.

Among the outstanding speakers of the conference are Dr. Mary DeGarmo Bryan, Teachers college, Columbia university; Miss Mary B. Settle, president of Virginia Home Economics association and associate director of Farm Security administration; Dr. Hazel Stiebling, senior food economist, Bureau of Home Economics, U. S. Department of Agriculture; Dr. M'Ledge Moffatt, dean of women, East Radford State Teachers college; Dr. Mildred Tate, chairman of state Nutrition committee; Miss Martha Creighton, state supervisor of home economics education.

WHY CLUB REPORTERS?

Do you belong to the W.P.A. workers on this campus? We mean those club reporters who are holding positions and receiving honor points, yet shirking their duty. A reporter of a campus organization is the person most responsible for making her club well-known on campus, and even over the entire state, if the news about her club merits such publicity.

Everyone likes to belong to an organization which is held in esteem by all the students on campus. The reporter of an organization can do more than any member of the club to have her club in the foreground by merely fulfilling her position of reporting news to The Breeze or to the news service of the college.

To you, your club activities may appear too insignificant to report, but a good reporter gets all the news and then lets the editor use her discretion as to what is important.

Don't you hate to tell someone you go to Madison college, and upon their faces appears the blankest expression of unrecognition? Your "nose for news" is partly responsible by this blank expression, for by faithfully reporting your club activities you are also helping the publicity of your college.

The two mediums of news which function on our campus are The Breeze, our weekly newspaper, and the college news service under the direction of Mr. Slaughter. Your position—club reporter—is maintained by your organization to help these two mediums of news give better publicity to your club and to Madison. At first, the reporters lived up to their names, but the novelty soon wore off, and now when a reporter is elected she wonders why, but never wonders enough to find out her duty.

The duty of all club reporters is to get a detailed account of the news of her club and report that news, whether small or large, to Mr. Slaughter, and to be prepared to give an account of the news to a Breeze reporter when she calls.

WATCH RADIO HOURS

About five weeks ago we were granted the privilege of radio ownership and usage, but on the condition that we abide by certain regulations. Some thought the regulations as announced then were rather stiff. However, these regulations, it was explained, were designed as a sort of test—if we could faithfully live up to them over a certain period, the grip of the rulings would be relaxed somewhat. The extent of our freedom would be in proportion to our obedience to the regulations and thereby, our evidencing responsibility in self-discipline.

However, it seems that we have fallen down rather miserably in living up to what was expected of us. We have been lax in observing the regulations, particularly those concerning the hours of listening. At present no less than a dozen cases are to appear before the Administrative council for infringement of these regulations, several of the violations having been the use of the radio after eleven p. m.

It is important that we remember that we were granted the radio privilege only on trial. Unless we are careful and make this probation period a successful one, we may possibly lose the privilege altogether.

F. WRIGHT

Campus Correspondent

Usually 'tis a barrel of fun to sit in a "session" with your best friend, or your favorite roommate, or an understanding professor, and thrash over the dangling points in each other's character. That is the time when it seems that you really become frank with another human being and say things explicitly, practically, even cold-bloodedly. . . .

There really should never have been such a word coined as "candid" in Man's system of verbal communication. Why? Because no person, in verbally expressing himself, ever quite reaches the nth mark in measuring the capacity of the meaning of "frank." There are those conversationalists who are semi-candid. In its fullest definitions, frankness infers a loosening of thought strings wherever the inner gleanings of the mind fall by the way, to smoulder or to yield brilliant flame. Where most of us fall short is in that we allow the inner gleanings to smoulder before they fall. . . .

The semi-candid soul allows an unguarded thought to drop just not and then. The recipient is so amazed by the suddenness, and the instigator, by the mere utterance thereof, that both think "What a dose of frankness!" More concretely, this might be portrayed by your confessing to the roommate, as you wheel around with your mouth full of hairpins, "I've been wanting to know for a long time—what in the world do you see in that bulk-of-a-Charlie to love? . . ."

The circum-candid speaker, is one who tantalizes, vexes, and annoys the listener. Perhaps it's during a "private conference" where frankness prevails for the good of all concerned. This circum-candidness is a method of dropping daggers which are wrapped in cloaks of metaphors, similes, and inferences. Dr. Jekyll says, "We were to discuss the probable psychological reasons for your aloof attitude while Miss Boop made her exam speech, were we not?"

"Yes, sir!"

"I think I know you, young lady. You are wrapped up in yourself. There's a shell around your personality. You are boxed up, hedged in. You should let yourself go—expand. Now take that home and digest it.—Next Appointee!"

Secretly you wonder whether you're a dress-form, an oyster, an orchid or a small boy's balloon. The oyster is most logical, you decide, because he said something about digesting it. . . .

4:00 p. m.—Dash in and change like a flash into my new dress wool in those luscious new South American colors and that ducky little hat of a contrasting color that Mother sent. It should knock his eye out at the tea dance—figuratively speaking, of course!

8:30 p. m.—Wonder what kind of flowers he'll send? Wouldn't an orchid be simply divine, with my new white crepe formal—it's almost like the graceful Directoire gown Valentina designed for Lily Pons to wear in "Daughter of the Regiment!"

Survey Shows Madison College Faculty To Be Versatile In Field Of Writing From Symphonies To Textbooks

In response to a recent survey conducted by the Breeze, the faculty of Madison college has proven itself versatile and prolific in the field of research and writing. The projects, either underway or completed, include everything from symphonies and text books to "study of the optical properties of several specific vitamins now obtainable in the isolated crystalline form."

From the music department, we find that Mr. Marshall has completed a suite in four movements for a professional symphony orchestra, entitled "Shangri La," based upon the story of "Lost Horizon," by Hilton. Nearing completion is a symphony for school orchestras, while four years ago Mr. Marshall heard his own composition, "The Sea Farers," a symphonic poem, played by the Sherwood Music school orchestra.

Mrs. Marshall Completes Book

Mrs. Marshall has written two books, which have already been published, and she has recently finished a third which has not yet come off the press. These books give information pertaining to methods for learning trumpet-playing, to be used by children in the public schools.

The English department has been equally as talented in its field. Dr. Tresidder has published a text book in oral interpretation which is being used in different colleges and universities throughout the country, as well as at Madison. At present he is writing a book on criticism, which will contain chapters for popular reading on critical theory, the theatre, literature, the movies, radio, music, painting and sculpture, dancing, and the domestic arts. Dr. Tresidder is preparing to write the book for a musical play, but this is still in its early stages.

Sawhill Reviews Publication

Somewhat in keeping with the line of Dr. Tresidder's basic topic is Dr. Sawhill's critical review of "Rogues' Gallery," a Latin prose reader published by the Cambridge university press.

In the field of scientific research, the two respective heads of the chemistry and physics departments, Dr. Pickett and Dr. Pittman, are collaborating in studying the optical properties of several of the vitamins. They are engaged in searching current literature for anything pertaining to the subject in preparation for the investigation.

Science Articles Written

Dr. Miller is doing research as regards the effects of adrenalectomized mammals upon blood-cell forming tissues. Final results may be ready for publication this fall.

Dr. Showalter is making extensive study of certain algae growing within the eggs of salamanders and also of transplanting of mountain trees, shrubs, and herbs to valley gardens.

Honor Roll vs. Birth Months

Mr. Hanson expects to have a report ready for the January 1942 issue of the Madison Quarterly concerning honor rolls versus student birth months. It seems that January, February, March, November, December, mark birthdays of persons of extraordinary accomplishment, and Mr. Hanson is preparing statistics as regards this, using the honor roll and the high scores on standard English tests as two measures of local student accomplishment.

Mr. Slaughter, besides editing the N.B.E. news, is preparing an article for publication in the Modern Business Education World, entitled "The Future Guidance in Business Education." In collaboration with Mr. Slaughter, a second article, "Motivating Learning in Bookkeeping," is being prepared.

Education Theme Used

Dr. Houchell is working on several articles, suitable for publication in leading educational or general periodicals, around the theme of democratic education. This is an attempt to clarify some of the issues that arise under present defense efforts and the current wave of creative comment on shortcomings in the schools.

Mr. Logsdon has a dissertation in process entitled The Changes in the Instructional Literature of Sociology, 1900-1940. It will probably be completed sometime this year.

Aeolian Club Will Give Chapel Program Monday

The Aeolian club, with Kathryn Walker, president, presiding, will have charge of chapel on Monday, February 10.

Mrs. Schneider, wife of Dr. Joseph Schneider, will give a talk on Czech music.

Braque, five works of Giorgio de Chirico, six works of Andre Derain, ten works of Joan Miro, twenty-two works of Henri Matisse, and eighty-nine of Pablo Picasso.

The tremendous collection of Picasso ranks first in importance in America, and is a complete survey of the artist's work. Picasso, of Spanish birth, is considered the most important painter of our times. He came under the influence of Toulouse-Lautrec, Cezanne, and African negro art, when he came to Paris in 1901.

This exhibition is the first large showing of the Expressionist masters in this section of the country.

Whether Living To Eat Or Eating To Live Madison Girls Consume Much Food

My—how we eat!

Did you know we consume from 6 to 7 bushels each of potatoes, carrots, and turnips a day? Yes—and approximately 170 pounds of "garden-fresh"-tasting frozen vegetables, too. It takes 500 pounds of Idaho baking potatoes for just one lunch. No wonder I'm getting fat!

When it comes to meat, the quantities vary from 110 pounds of Frankfurts to 400 pounds of veal cutlets. Going up the scales between these two, we find calves' liver, ham, pork, beef, and one lamb.

Even the few people who go to breakfast manage to keep the fruit plantations in business. Hundreds of oranges, grapefruit, and grapes are bought per day—to say nothing of the three hundred pounds of bananas. The big kitchen in the service building is literally buzzing with activity from morning 'til night, baking, broiling, frying, boiling, and so on into the night.

Mrs. Fred Sharp, of Independence, Missouri, national sorority educational director, will be on campus from February 10 to 15 to act as inspector for the Beta Epsilon chapter of Alpha Sigma Alpha sorority. As chairman of the National Panhellenic council for 1940-1941, she will visit the local Panhellenic council.

Madison Downs Blackstone Six In Initial Match

Varsity Wins By 24-3 Lead; Turnes Is High Scorer; Sesze, Haynes Star

Chalking up an easy victory over the Blackstone sextet, the local varsity basketball squad played its initial match for the '41 season in Reed gym last Saturday night. Boosted by a trio of strong defense men, who held their opposing forwards to a scoreless first half, the Madison team was sure of a victory after the first quarter's play.

Early in the opening period of the game Dorothea Fleischer, first string forward, was removed from the floor due to a knee injury sustained when she fell. Aply filling her place was Turnes, aided by Godfrey and Waddell. With each of the three making field goals, the half ended 8-0 in favor of the home squad.

Although Godfrey had been placed on the sidelines due to a hard fall, she re-entered the tussle for the latter half, while Shaeffer and Willard, freshmen forwards, and Waddell and Mann, upperclassmen, worked in the scoring zone at various times.

Haynes, Sesze, Schaaf, Jacobs, and Pitts managed the defense area so efficiently that only one field shot was sunk by the Blackstone scorers. The other point was made through a foul goal. Madison's squad picked up and checked with more precision during the final quarter, as twelve of the twenty-four points were basketed then.

Starting line-ups were:

Madison	Blackstone
M. Godfrey.....F.....	Gibbs
D. Fleischer.....F.....	De Varonfa
M. Mann.....F.....	Draper
L. Schaaf.....G.....	Joyner (c)
M. Sesze (c).....G.....	Elliot
J. Haynes.....G.....	Rowe

Six New Books Are In Browsing Room; Circulate Tonight

The following six new titles have been added to the Browsing room shelves. They will be ready for circulation this evening at 7 o'clock.

Lawrence Edward Watkin of W. and L.'s English department, follows up his 1937 success, On Borrowed Time, with Geese in the Forum, a satirical novel which aims its thrusts at traditional southern higher education.

Harry A. Franck trekked to the far north for the material which makes up his twenty-third fiction-like volume of travel, The Lure of Alaska; one hundred reproductions of photographs make vivid description more vivid.

The seething period preceding the American revolution, the war itself, and restoration of peace following the gaining of independence, come to life in Raleigh's Eden, by Inglis Fletcher.

The Pacific, greatest of oceans, which has experienced a wealth of adventure, has been the background of a pageant of thrilling conquest. Felix Reinsenberg has combined history and fiction to produce a glowing account of the ocean's drama in The Pacific Ocean.

In his accustomed running commentary manner, Ted Malone has compiled The American Album of Poetry from his broadcasts and magazine publications of Between the Bookends.

The narratives and experiences of John James Audubon, portrait and landscape painter, writer of history, and traveler, are collected in Audubon's America, edited by Donald Culross Peattie.

Browsing Room Circulates 500 Books Last Month; 65, High For Single Day

Through January about five hundred books circulated from the Browsing room shelves. A record high of circulation in a single day was hit January 4, when sixty-five books were checked from the room.

Fiction leads the list of popularity, although the circulation list is headed by Raymond Gram Swing's How War Came. Runner-up was Richard Llewellyn's How Green Was My Valley, which was the national best-seller over a long period. Next followed, in order: Escape, Ethel Vance; Christmas Holiday, Somerset Maugham; It Can't Happen Here, Sinclair Lewis; Native Son, Richard Wright; Portrait of Jennie, Robert Nathan; Too Much College, Stephen Leacock; Free and Clear, Marguerite McIntyre; Black Narcissus, Rumer Godden; Inside Asia, John Gunther; and Maine Ballads, Robert P. T. Coffin.

From each list of 6 which is placed weekly in the room, an average of at least 2 or 3 should find their places among the best sellers of the years.

A bulletin board, renewed each week, advertises the recently-added wares of the department.
