

LEADING CHANGE VIRTUAL CONFERENCE

#LEADCC21

February 18 & 19

ASK THE EXPERT: Pamela L. Eddy, Ph.D.

Professor in Educational Policy,
Planning, and Leadership, William and Mary
Author of *Leading for Tomorrow:
A Primer for Succeeding in Higher Education Leadership*

MODERATED BY Ben Selznick, Ph.D.

Assistant Professor,
School of Strategic Leadership Studies,
James Madison University

Dr. Eddy's research interests include community college leadership and development, organizational change and educational partnerships, gender roles in higher education, and faculty development. Eddy serves as a consultant for campuses, system offices, and on funded grants regarding strategies to support community college student success and to support leadership development. Eddy is the author or co-author of six books, and has written 40 peer reviewed articles and given over 100 keynote presentations. Eddy is an associate editor for the Higher Education: Handbook of Theory and Research and the Editor-in-Chief of New Directions for Community Colleges.

In this session, Dr. Pamela Eddy (William & Mary) will share findings and insights from her recent publication Leading for Tomorrow: A Primer for Succeeding in Higher Education Leadership. Attendees will be invited to fully engage and reflect on this work as they consider its applications for today's complex leadership landscapes.

HOSTED BY

SCHOOL OF
Strategic Leadership Studies

JAMES MADISON UNIVERSITY.

Register at jmu.edu/leadership/LEADCC21/registration