My heartfelt thanks goes out to everyone who has in any way contributed to the successful publication of the 2010 Mental Health Directory. This has truly been a collaborative effort that has included not only people from the JMU community, but many people from the broader local community.

First, I want to give a very special thanks to Lennie Echterling and to Lisa Ellison for walking with me every step of the way and offering very practical help. Lennie brought with him the history of all the editions that were published previously and, with that history, excellent suggestions for ways to continue to improve the directory. Lisa’s management skills and high level of productivity helped the project move forward steadily and in an organized fashion.

There were many other people and organizations on the JMU campus, as well as in the broader mental health community, that provided information and suggestions that have been incorporated into the 2010 edition of the directory. Page 3 of the Mental Health Directory (see Appendix D) lists many of those names and organizations. I am indebted to each and every one of them, as well as to many people whose names are not mentioned. You know who you are.

By completing this project, I have had the opportunity to learn to know our mental health community in a way that I had not experienced before, and I am gratified by what I have learned. Together, we bring much energy and many skills to the people that we serve. I am so grateful to be a part of this caring group of professionals.

Finally, to my fellow graduate students and to my professors: you have taught me so much. I am truly blessed by what each of you has brought to my life. Thank you.

Abstract

The purpose of this project was to update the 2007 edition of the Comprehensive Directory of Mental Health Services and to expand the geographical areas covered. The directory was first published in 1990 and, with regular updating, has continued to provide helping professionals with resources for making referrals and for working in a collaborative framework to meet the mental health needs of our communities. All information included in the 2007 edition was verified and updated and new listings were added. The directory is available in printed form and online at http://www.psyc.jmu.edu/counseling/servicesdirectory.html.
Comprehensive Directory of Mental Health Services 2010: A Tool for Collaboration in Providing Services

My Aunt Ina has passed. However, she left on her bed something that spoke volumes about her life. Aunt Ina was someone who attracted attention because she walked with heavy braces on her legs as a result of polio, which she contracted at the age of 2 in 1916. I see her in my mind’s eye, walking awkwardly with her hand on Aunt Nancy’s arm or with her hand reaching out to grasp pieces of furniture as she passed by. The one memory that I do not have of Aunt Ina is ever hearing her complain about her lot in life. As a result of her positive approach to life, a large family of siblings, nieces, and nephews, and many friends, loved and admired my Aunt Ina. What she left on her bed was the collaborative effort of many of those family members and friends to show that love and respect. It was a quilt made of 56 embroidered squares. Many hands joined to create that beautiful masterpiece to honor Aunt Ina on her 64th birthday.

There is a Scottish proverb which says, “Many hands make light work. Because it is but little to every one.” By working together, many can achieve that which one person cannot achieve alone. It is my hope that my Ed. S. project, the updating of the 2007 Comprehensive Directory of Mental Health Services, will support and enhance the way mental health professionals work together in creating collaborative alliances to meet the needs of our diverse community.

The Collaborative Process

The collaborative process in the mental health field takes place in many contexts and situations. These include, but are not limited to, interactions between client and therapist; between universities, local schools, and communities; between therapists and community agencies and organizations; and between therapists and their colleagues.

Bruce Kuehl (1995), a graduate professor in the Marriage and Family Therapy program at the University of Wisconsin-Stout, advocated a collaborative relationship between the therapist and client. In an article for the Journal of Marital and Family Therapy, Kuehl (1995) said of using a solution-oriented genogram, “Constructing a genogram…demonstrates respect for client self-authority and a willingness by the therapist to work collaboratively” (p. 239). He compared therapy to rock climbing and suggested that clients will sometimes show us alternative ways to climb those mountains (Kuehl, 1995). “Clients have taught us how to help them reach their goals and sometimes they have taught us it will take something other than our usual procedures to get there” (Kuehl, 1995, p. 239). By remaining open to building and operating within a collaborative relationship with their clients, therapists create opportunities to learn from their clients how best to reach the client’s goals.

Another advocate of collaboration in the therapist/client relationship is Karl Tomm, a Canadian psychiatrist, family counselor, and professor of psychiatry at the University of Calgary. Strong, Sutherland, Couture, Godard, and Hope (2008), in a journal article about Tomm’s collaborative approaches, said of Tomm, “For Tomm, counseling is shaped by counselors’ ways of talking and relating to clients and their goals. But his ethical intent is to collaborate – inviting clients’ resourceful ways of talking that draw on their preferences and resourcefulness” (p. 183).

Collaboration is sometimes between only a few people, as when it is between a client and a therapist, but it also happens on a much broader scale such as when mental health professionals reach out to communities in times of crisis. Lennis Echterling, Professor of Counseling at James Madison University, has worked collaboratively in many communities across the country and around the world in times of crisis. When introducing their Outstanding Faculty Awards, the State Council of Higher Education for Virginia wrote of Dr. Echterling, “He has provided crisis and disaster intervention services in the US, including Mississippi and Texas after Hurricanes Katrina and Rita, and other countries, including India after the 2004 tsunami” (SCHEV, 2010). They also noted that Dr. Echterling worked as a volunteer following the 9/11 attacks. In these instances, the collaborative process was an integral part of the healing process.

We do not need to, nor should we, wait until disaster strikes to begin collaborative efforts in our communities. Echterling, Presbury, and McKee (2005), Professors of Counseling at James Madison University, advocate developing and refining disaster plans that offers disaster preparedness, crisis intervention, community education, outreach, consultation, support, and follow-up interventions long before disaster strikes. “These are components of a successful plan designed to promote a collective resolution” (p. 223).

As a university campus in a vibrant and diverse community, JMU has many opportunities to create collaborative exchanges. Kellett and Goldstein (1999), in a journal article outlining the benefits and barriers of collaboration, stated, “Collaboration is important if we are to create a campus culture that values and rewards community partnerships that address significant societal issues” (p. 35).

Another example of this type of community collaboration is what is happening for our children between schools and community mental health care providers and agencies.
According to Brown, Dahlbeck, and Sparkman-Barnes (2008), “Expanded school mental health programs are a growing movement in the United States, which represents partnerships between schools and community health agencies” (p. 332). In the conclusion to their study of how school counselors react to and experience these partnerships, they stated, “Schools are in need of myriad services in order to address the emotional, behavioral, and social needs of their student body, and the collaborative partnerships of schools and mental health agencies appear to be a step in the right direction” (p. 335).

These are but a few examples of how the collaborative process can support mental health endeavors across a spectrum of alliances and activities. The continued updating and publication of the mental health directory is a collaborative effort that enhances further collaboration as we partner with our clients and community schools, agencies, and organizations to address mental health issues.

History of the Mental Health Directory

Beginning with the first edition of the mental health directory, the effort has been a collaborative one. The first mental health directory was published in 1990 by the Mental Health Association of Harrisonburg-Rockingham County. Following the dissolution of the Mental Health Association in 1996, the James Madison University Counseling Program stepped in to keep up this important endeavor and completed the first update in 2000. Tara Jensen, a counseling graduate student, coordinated the project which was cosponsored by the JMU Human Development Center (Laver, 2005).

The 2002, 2003, and 2005 updates and revisions were cosponsored by the JMU Counseling Program and the Office on Children and Youth. In addition to the Counseling Program and the Department of Graduate Psychology, the 2007 updating project was supported by the Office on Youth and Children, the Central Shenandoah Valley Youth Suicide Prevention Initiative, and the Central Valley Counselors Association (Laver, 2005).

The 2010 edition again reflects the collaborative efforts of many people and organizations, including the JMU Counseling Program, Department of Graduate Psychology, Institute for Innovation in Health and Human Services, Office on Children and Youth, Central Shenandoah Valley Youth Suicide Prevention Initiative, Central Valley Counselors Association, and Smart Beginnings Shenandoah Valley. The names of individuals who contributed to this latest edition of the directory are too numerous to list, but their efforts, which are highlighted more specifically in the following section of this paper, proved the Scottish proverb, “Many hands make light work.”

Updating the Directory: A Collaborative Process

Creating this update of the directory has truly been a collaborative process. Page 3 of the directory (see Appendix D) lists some of those persons and agencies that participated in the process, but it is by no means an exhaustive list. The many listings in the directory represent help from numerous people who provided us with accurate and current information.

One of the first steps in beginning this project was to contact all those persons, agencies, and organizations that were listed in the 2007 edition of the directory for updated information. Letters were written (see Appendix A) and mailed, asking for any necessary changes to the 2007 directory information (see Appendix B). Also, in the spirit of collaboration, letter recipients were asked to provide names and telephone numbers for persons, agencies, or organizations that they knew were not listed in previous editions of the directory so that letters could be sent to those persons, as well (see Appendix C). The generous sharing of information from those previously listed means that the 2010 directory is now even more comprehensive.

In addition to those contacts suggested by current listings, we added to the list of new contacts by inviting information through word-of-mouth, checking telephone book listings, and expanding our circle of helpers. We reached out to many colleagues on the JMU campus and to agencies and organizations throughout the geographical areas covered by the directory. Hundreds of emails, as well as many telephone calls, represent an elaborate network of collaborative efforts to create a directory that is as inclusive as possible.

One of the goals in updating the directory was to find ways to build on all that has been done before to increase its ease-of-use and accuracy. Our collaboration with Faith Miles from Virginia 2-1-1 proved to be especially helpful in making such an improvement to the Support/Self-Help Groups section. At a meeting at the Harrisonburg League of Therapists, where representatives from JMU and other agencies were exploring ways to collaborate better to meet needs in our community, someone mentioned Virginia 2-1-1. That comment led to a contact with Faith. She provided a spreadsheet of self-help groups that helped us expand our listings, and she also suggested that we provide website and telephone contact information for group meeting times and places rather than listing that specific information because it is subject to frequent change. Faith also helped to edit the section before the directory went to the printers.
This collaborative effort reached across numerous contacts and agencies, and has provided us with a significant improvement to the directory.

Over the years, the geographical area covered by the directory information has been increasing with each update. The 2010 edition is no exception. With help from a number of Jane Hubbell’s social work students, the directory now includes providers and agencies located in Page and Shenandoah Counties.

A project of this magnitude takes money to bring to completion. Again, a collaborative effort brought together enough funds to print over 400 copies of the directory for distribution. Those who have given gifts are listed on page 3 of the directory (see Appendix D).

Distribution of those 400 printed copies of the directory is another example of the collaborative process. Lisa Ellison oversaw the distribution process with the intent of getting copies distributed as widely as possible and into the hands of those who will benefit most from having printed copies. Jane Wiggins from the Campus Suicide Prevention Center of Virginia, Jane Hubbell from the Institute for Innovations in Health and Human Services, and Stacy Jackson from Smart Beginnings Shenandoah Valley helped to get copies into doctors’ offices and into our schools in Rockingham, Augusta, Page, and Shenandoah Counties. Copies were also distributed through the Central Valley Counselors Association with guidance from Sandy Hite.

The directory is also available on the JMU website due to our collaboration with CISAT Creative Services. As we were working with the printing company on final edits, CISAT Creative Services made the necessary changes to the website so that it remained up-to-date with last minute corrections. We will continue to collaborate with CISAT
Creative Services to keep the website directory current. This, in effect, becomes a collaboration with those persons who will do the next update and edit of the directory.

Format of the Directory

This is the 7th update of the mental health directory and, over the years, efforts have been made to improve the user friendliness of the directory. As with those previous updates, we have made changes that we felt would benefit the user.

One of those changes was to go to a smaller print font. Due to the expanded geographical areas included in the 2010 edition, the size of the document increased. The use of the smaller font not only keeps the booklet at about the same number of pages as the 2007 edition, but also helps control printing costs. We also streamlined the entry format to take up less space and standardized all entries, as much as possible.

The second major change concerned the overall organization of the directory material. Previously, Bath, Highland, Rockbridge County, and Lexington City information was in a separate section of the directory. For ease of use, we have incorporated those listings in with the other listings.

Due to the emergency quality of the suicide and hotline information, those sections have been moved closer to the beginning of the directory, ahead of the Mental Health Care Providers section. Also, the resources in the Basic Needs/Crisis/Non-Profit Service Providers and Support/Self-Help Groups sections have been categorized by type of need to make it easier to locate the best resource. A similar format has also been used for the Helpful Websites and Suggested Readings sections.
Many more listings now contain both email and website addresses than before due to the expanded use of these methods of communication. We have also established a database with these addresses to make it simpler to update information as it changes.

Over the years, the directory has been a work-in-progress. With every updated edition, improvements have been made in the layout and the content of the directory. We believe we have carried forth that tradition with the 2010 edition.

Suggestions for Future Updates

This project has been a learning experience. Therefore, in the spirit of collaboration, we would like to pass on some suggestions that we believe will be helpful to those who will do future updates.

We found that one of the greatest challenges was finding the most efficient way to obtain information from current listings. Although we did most of our initial contacts by letters through the mail, we found that we had to do a great deal of follow-up via emails and the telephone. We collected and recorded email addresses and suggest that, as much as possible, those addresses be used for future updates. This method also reduces costs and the time between inquiries and responses.

We believe that a welcoming letter remains the best avenue for connecting with people and organizations that are not yet listed in the directory. Due to the way we found new listings, we did not have access to many of their email addresses. We were also concerned that our unsolicited emails would not receive a response. By sending a standardized letter, we provided consistent guidelines for entry into the directory and sample entries to help them create their own listings.
This endeavor was a large project and it was helpful to break it down into manageable pieces. The various sections of the directory provided a natural way to do this. As one section was completed, we moved on to another section.

As with the directory itself, we also found it helpful to establish a completion date and then to break down the time allowed in increments. By setting deadlines along the way, we were able to monitor our progress and to make adjustments, as necessary. In developing a timeline, we were also mindful of seasonal interruptions, such as holidays and school breaks.

Another successful strategy is to approach the counseling community, including students and professors, for help. Many generously provided us with resources for the various sections of the directory as well as suggestions for layout and organization. Others helped with verification of information and Jason Kacmarski formatted and converted the directory file to a PDF file.

Finally, do not hesitate to add sections to the directory or to expand the geographical areas covered by the directory. The needs of our communities will continue to change and evolve and the updating process provides an excellent opportunity to bring those changes to the attention of our mental health professionals.

Conclusion

It is our hope that this 2010 edition of the Comprehensive Directory of Mental Health Services will continue to support the collaborative efforts of the mental health providers in our communities. Each of us individually will not be able to meet all of the needs that confront us each day, but by reaching out to each other, we can expand our abilities to meet our clients’ needs.
Kellet and Goldstein (1999) said of collaboration, “Genuine collaboration is reflected in shared goals and new ways of working” (p. 35). As we work together toward the goal of helping people live more satisfying and whole lives, we can explore new ways of working that will enhance outcomes for our clients. The Comprehensive Directory of Mental Health Services serves as an important tool as we work together to meet the needs of our communities.

RE: 2010 COMPREHENSIVE DIRECTORY OF MENTAL HEALTH SERVICES UPDATE

To Whom It May Concern:

We are updating the Comprehensive Directory of Mental Health Services, 2007 edition. This is a very exciting process for us. For years, this directory has been a valuable source of information about vital services for those in need in our communities. We would like to verify your current directory information and make any needed updates. Our plan is to continue to make improvements to the directory and we are asking for your help.

WHAT WE NEED FROM YOU:

- We have attached a copy of your 2007 directory listing. Please review it and make any necessary updates. We will list name, address, telephone number(s), website and email addresses, fees, office hours, and services. The description of your services is limited to 100 words. If no changes are needed, please check the appropriate box on the attached form and mail or email it to the address below.
- Please include your email address on the following page and indicate if you want it published in the directory. In the future we hope to do much of our updating via email.
- We are considering adding an additional section to the directory that would direct people to professionals with special training and expertise in particular areas. Please complete the section on the attached form, if applicable.
- Are you aware of therapists, agencies, or organizations that are missing from the 2007 directory? If so, please provide us with names and phone numbers on the attached form.
- Please list any books or websites you recommend that have been helpful to your clients. We will consider adding them to our current list of resources.

We need financial assistance to continue the publication of the directory. We provide your information in this directory at no charge and distribute the directory free of charge to hundreds of referring professionals. In some of our service areas this directory is the only comprehensive list of mental health services available for those in need. Those making gifts of $50.00 or more will be acknowledged by name in the updated directory. Checks should be made payable to James Madison University. THANK YOU!

We appreciate your support in this endeavor!

Sincerely,

Lennis Echterling, Ph.D

RE: 2010 COMPREHENSIVE DIRECTORY OF MENTAL HEALTH SERVICES UPDATE

To Whom It May Concern:

We are updating the Comprehensive Directory of Mental Health Services, 2007 edition, and are inviting you to put your listing in the 2010 edition of the directory. For years, this directory has been a valuable source of information about vital mental health services for those in need in our communities.

WHAT WE NEED FROM YOU:

• We have attached a form for you to complete as well as a copy of two sample listings, one for a mental health provider and one for a community agency. We will list name, address, telephone number(s), website and email addresses, fees, office hours, and services. The description of your services is limited to 100 words. If you are part of a group or community agency, you may also include a second listing with only your name. Please mail the completed form to Lisa Ellison at MSC 7401, JMU, Harrisonburg, VA 22801 or email the information to Lisa at ellis2la@jmu.edu. If you have questions, you may call Lisa at . . .

• Please include your email address on the form and indicate if you want it published in the directory. In the future, we hope to do much of our updating of the directory via email.

• We are considering adding an additional section to the directory that would direct people to professionals with special training and expertise in particular areas. Please complete this section on the form, if applicable.

• Please list any books or websites you recommend that have been helpful to your clients. We will consider adding them to our current list of resources.

We need financial assistance to continue the publication of the directory. Appreciation

We wish to thank all of the dedicated and talented individuals who gave their time and energy to this project. A special thanks to Glennys Shouey, and Lisa Ellison, for their tireless efforts to reach many of our mental healthcare providers. They received additional input, information, and support from the following people: Ashley Gerding, Courtney Boyd, Jason Kacmarski, Jennifer Behm, Jennifer Hatter, Jorli Swingen, Madeline Dupre, Megan Hovanic, Samantha Jennings, Sandy Hite, Shannon Regi, and Susan Frangos. Lennie Echterling, Jane Hubbell, and Jane Wiggins offered leadership and constant support. We would like to extend a special thanks to Faith Miles from 2-1-1 VIRGINIA Northwest Region for her extensive information and editing suggestions.

We are also grateful for the generosity of those who helped to make this directory a reality and helped it to reach beyond Harrisonburg and Rockingham County: Anne Martin, Children’s Services of Virginia Inc., Commonwealth Psychological Services PLC, Harriet Cobb, Joan Eberly, Joann Henderson, John R. Eagle, Judith Weaver, Lennis Echterling, Mental Health America of Augusta, Newman and Associates PC, and Smart Beginnings Shenandoah Valley.

Finally, we are grateful to the members of the JMU Counseling Program, Department of Graduate Psychology, Office on Children and Youth, Campus Suicide Prevention Center of Virginia, Central Shenandoah Valley Youth Suicide Prevention Initiative, Central Valley Counselors Association, Institute for Innovations in Health and Human Services, and Harrisonburg League of Therapists for their support in developing this 2010 edition.

This directory is updated approximately every two years. It is part of an ongoing project that is available for download from the internet at: http://www.psyc.jmu.edu/counseling/servicesdirectory.html. If you have any questions about the content of the directory, please contact Lennie Echterling at (540) 568-6522 (echterlg@jmu.edu)

Using This Directory

The 2010 edition of the Directory of Mental Health Services is the biggest yet because we have more local resources than ever before, including listings for Page and Shenandoah counties. As our community has grown, the number and variety of services available have increased dramatically. While the growth is exciting, referring someone for mental health services has become more complicated. It is our hope that this directory will make the task of providing referrals simpler for you.

A Useful Tool
The intention of this directory is to serve as a useful tool to find out what mental health services are available in the cities of Harrisonburg, Lexington, Staunton, and Waynesboro, and the counties of Augusta, Bath, Highland, Page, Rockbridge, Rockingham, and Shenandoah. If you are involved in education, health provision, human resources, social services, a religious affiliation, or any position where you are in close contact with others, you regularly meet people who need help. That person may need a support group, a professional helper, a treatment program, or a public agency. Using this directory, you can help that person to get the assistance he or she needs.

Directory Organization
The directory is organized into ten different sections:

- White Pages – Introductory and supplementary information.
- Yellow Pages – Quick Reference Telephone Directory
- Blue Pages – Suicide Prevention Information
- Pink Pages – Listing of hotlines and other services
- Green Pages – Mental Health Care Providers
- Peach Pages – Basic Needs/Crisis/Non-Profit Service Providers
- Gray Pages – Support/Self-Help Groups
- Purple Pages – Schools, School Counselors, and College Counseling Services
- Tan Pages – Helpful Websites
- Ivory Pages – Suggested Readings

A Few Tips
Here are a few suggestions to help make this directory a more useful tool:

- Become familiar with the directory before you need it.
- Keep it close by and always in its place. If you are sharing this directory with others, have a policy on where it is kept. Better yet, have extra copies on hand. You can download additional copies of the directory from the following website: http://www.psyc.jmu.edu/counseling/servicesdirectory.html.
- Keep the directory current by adding updated information. It is likely that there will be many additional services that become available before the next edition is published.
- Pages 6 and 7 are designed to be a handout for the person who needs help, so you may want to have plenty of copies of these pages for distribution. This handout has tips on choosing a professional helper or program, and space for writing specific information about your referrals. Each time you make a referral you can give the person a copy of pages 6 and 7.

A Disclaimer

Publication in this directory does not imply the endorsement of any providers of mental health services. This directory is to be used as a referral tool by individuals who are familiar with the range of mental health needs and the services available to address them.
The Steps of a Referral

Remember – a good referral is much more than passing along a name and telephone number. If you take the time to go through the steps of a referral, the person is more likely to follow through on getting help. Just a few extra minutes can make a big difference.

1. Link: The first step is to link with the person, that is, to have contact with them. Whether it is over the phone, in person, or in writing, you first have to be in contact with someone before you can make a referral.
   - Spread the word that you know what mental health services are available in our community.
   - Be available. If people know how you can help and where you are, they are likely to turn to you when they are troubled.
   - At times, you will have to reach out to the troubled person. Keep your eyes open to the signs of trouble, and connect with the person in need when you are concerned about what you see.

2. Listen & Share: You need to listen actively to understand not only the problem to be solved, but also the person who has the problem.
   - You can make the best referral when you know both the problem and the person. Even if someone asks only for the name and number of a specific referral, it is still wise to invite the person to talk more about the situation with you. You will likely be more helpful if you have some basic facts.
   - How you listen and share depends a lot on who made the initial link. If the person contacted you for a referral, he or she already recognizes that there is a problem and wants your assistance in finding the right kind of help. You can help them continue along the right track.
   - On the other hand, if you started the referral process, you may be facing some special challenges. For example, the person may be in denial, unwilling to admit that there is a problem. In such cases, you need to share, without judging or condemning, exactly what you have observed in a calm, clear, and respectful way. Through this caring process, you may bring the person face-to-face with the problem.

3. Push for Action: Once there is a good understanding of the person and the problem, it is time to push for them to take action.
   - Usually, all a person needs is a gentle nudge in the right direction through simply talking about the types of help that are available.
   - Discuss several referrals whenever possible to give the person a choice.
   - Be specific and let the person know the who, what, when, where, and how of any referral. The more someone knows what to expect, the easier it will be for them to take action in getting help.

4. Check: The most common mistake in making referrals is the failure to check if the person followed through.
   - Ask the person to let you know what happens, even if she or he is a stranger on the phone.
   - Check back whenever possible if you have not heard from the person.
   - Checking gives you another opportunity to link, and provide them with an opportunity to discuss any problems they might have with the referral.
   - Checking can serve as a powerful motivator for the person to take action.
When You Need Professional Help:
A Referral Handout

The Next Step
At some point in our lives we all run into problems that seem too big or persistent to handle alone. Yet our pride and our fears can often get in the way of asking for help. Making the decision to find help is a sign of strength and courage. In fact, it can make the difference between feeling that things are spinning out of control and gaining new tools to turn life around in positive ways.

If you have decided that you need professional help, you have already taken that first big step towards a better life. The next step is choosing a mental health professional or program. The right provider can make a big difference as you go through the personal and sometimes painful process of change. However, most people spend more time buying a car than picking a professional helper. In fact, they often take the first name they get. While it is true that the sooner you get help the better, in many situations you can take a little time to choose the right help for you.

Some Tips to Follow

• See your primary care physician to rule out a medical cause of any problems. If your thyroid is “sluggish,” for example, symptoms such as loss of appetite or fatigue could be mistaken for depression.

• Ask people you trust for suggestions. Check with a family physician, minister, school counselor, friend, or relative.

• Therapy is a collaborative process, so finding the right match is important. It’s OK to “shop around,” so feel free to call several providers before you decide. Keep in mind that you and this person will be working as a team, and that you are the best judge of how comfortable you feel with this person.

• Find out about the therapist’s training and experience with a particular problem. You can do this by consulting the directory or asking the person’s receptionist. Since different psychotherapies are tailored to meet specific needs, the best therapists will help you create a treatment program that works for you.

• Money is one of the factors you will need to consider. If you have insurance, check your coverage. Be sure to find out which providers are in your network, about your deductibles and co-pays, and the number of visits that are covered. If you cannot afford the fees of a private provider, then call one of the public helping agencies.

• Time is another consideration. Can you arrange to meet with the helper at a convenient time? How frequently will you be meeting? How long is the treatment likely to last?

• When you call for an appointment, find out all you need to know before making your decision. Ask about office hours, fees, how payment is to be made, how insurance is dealt with, how canceled appointments are handled, or any other information important to you.

• Remember—you are buying a service and have a right to ask questions. Don't worry—professional helpers do not resent being asked these questions. They want you to make an informed decision about their services.

• Once you have set up an appointment, be sure that you know practical details, such as how to find the office and where you can park. The more you know, the easier it will be to begin getting the help you need.

• After you find someone, keep in mind that therapy is work and sometimes it can be difficult. However, it can be rewarding and life-changing as well.

• One last point—most people benefit from professional help, but even the best therapists will sometimes make a mistake. Usually when that happens, it’s best to talk about it and give your provider a chance to respond to your feelings. If the mistake is serious enough, you may decide to find another helper. If you have a complaint, you may call the Virginia Department of Health Regulatory Boards at their toll-free number: 1-800-533-1560.

How to Pay for Mental Health Services

The high price of health care can make treatment out of reach for many people. Those who do not have health insurance – more than 38 million Americans – often avoid treatment entirely because the costs can be staggering.

The cost of mental health services is a financial challenge for just about everyone. This section discusses ways to pay for the care that you may need.

For people experiencing mental health problems – such as anxiety or depression – brief yet effective treatment options may exist. For people with severe mental illness, treatment is also effective, although it may take longer and cost more. In either case, treatment works for most people and helps many recover and get on with their lives.

Private Insurance

The majority of working Americans are covered under employer-provided health insurance plans. There are two common types of private insurance.

- The first type of plan is a standard indemnity policy: people are free to visit health care providers of their choice and pay out of pocket for their treatment. The insurance plan reimburses members for some portion of the cost.
- The second common plan is a managed care plan. Medically necessary care is provided in the most cost effective – or least expensive – method available. Plan members must visit health care providers chosen by the managed care plan. Sometimes a co-payment is charged to the patient, but generally all care received from providers with the plan is covered. Recently, managed care companies have begun to provide services in many states for low-income Medicaid and Medicare beneficiaries.

Both types of health coverage may offer some coverage for mental health treatment. However, this treatment often is not paid for at the same rate as other health care costs, or there may be limits on the number of visits. A few states, including Virginia, have enacted “parity” laws that require insurers to pay for mental health and other health related costs at the same rate.

For the Uninsured: Community-Based Resources, Self-Help/Support Groups, and Public Programs

If you are not insured, or if your income is limited, you might try other strategies to pay for mental health care. Some providers, for example, have sliding-scale fees. Based on your income – and your spouse’s, if applicable – the provider will reduce his or her fees. Other providers, if made aware of your financial limitations, may be willing to negotiate a payment plan that you can afford or to lower their rates according to what your insurance plan pays. The latter is called a “write off.”

Community-Based Resources

The communities covered in this directory have Community Services Boards (CSB). These centers offer a range of mental health treatment and counseling services, usually at a reduced rate for low-income people.

Your local religious association of choice can put you in touch with a pastoral counseling program. Certified pastoral counselors, who are ministers in a recognized religious body, have advanced degrees in pastoral counseling, as well as professional counseling experience. Pastoral counseling is often provided on a sliding-scale fee.

Self-Help/Support Groups

Another option is to join a self-help or support group. Such groups give people a chance to learn more, talk about, and work on their common problems, such as alcoholism, substance abuse, depression, family issues, and relationships. Self-help groups are generally free and can be found in virtually every community in America.

Public Assistance

People with severe mental illness may be eligible for several forms of public assistance, both to meet basic costs of living and to pay for health care. Such programs include Social Security, Medicare, Medicaid, and disability benefits.

Preventing Suicide: Some Basic Information

Suicide. It’s a word we don’t hear in polite conversation and it’s a topic we don’t like to discuss. The problem is, stigma and silence increase risk for suicide. AND… information and understanding HELP TO REDUCE RISK.

FIRST, GET the FACTS. Misinformation interferes with people getting the help they need.

FACT: Most people who talk about suicide are thinking about suicide, in some way. Take all threats of suicide seriously. MOST PEOPLE WANT HELP, though they may not be able to ask directly.

FACT: Most people who die by suicide told others in some way in the weeks before their death. Recognizing and responding to risk can prevent suicide attempts and deaths.

FACT: Most people who consider suicide have terribly mixed feelings about life and death. Most want a better life, even while they are stating that they want to die. MOST PEOPLE are desperate for relief and WANT HELP.

FACT: Most suicidal crises are temporary. When people get the help they need, most will not seriously consider suicide again. However, if emotional distress continues without relief and help is not sought, the risk remains for further suicidal behavior. It’s important to help people connect to professional help.

FACT: Asking if someone is thinking of suicide will not make a person begin to consider suicide. Most people who think about suicide want to talk and want others to recognize their pain. If you ask someone about suicide and the answer is “yes” stay calm, take the time to listen, and help the person to find resources. To learn more about suicide “First Aid” training in our area, go to www.suicidepreventioncsv.org.

SECOND, know the risk factors and warning signs.

Risk Factors: (things that can increase, or are connected to, risk)

Depression: Untreated depression is thought to be a major contributor to suicide risk. Although most people who are depressed do not consider suicide, depression significantly increases the risk. Symptoms of depression include:

- Expressions of sadness and hopelessness, or anger and rage
- Withdrawal from friends and extracurricular activities
- A decline in enthusiasm and energy
- Overreaction to criticism
- Lowered self-esteem, or feelings of guilt
- Indecision, lack of concentration, and forgetfulness
- Restlessness and agitation
- Changes in eating or sleeping patterns; eating or sleeping more or less than usual
- Neglect of appearance and hygiene
- Fatigue and lack of motivation
- Decline in performance at school or work

Beginning use, increased use, or abuse of drugs or alcohol. Sometimes people "self-medicate" to reduce emotional pain. But substance abuse can greatly contribute to both depression and suicide risk.
Depression and substance abuse are serious but treatable problems. People who are depressed and/or using substances are in need of help, even if there is no thought of suicide. And, most people who get treatment improve dramatically and feel “like their old selves again.”

Warning signs: You may not know for sure if someone is thinking of suicide. But if you see the following, don’t wait. Get help right away.

- Talking or writing about suicide or death
- Looking for ways to kill him/herself
- Talking or writing about death, dying, or suicide
- Giving less direct verbal cues, such as "You will be better off without me," "What's the point of living?"; "Soon you won't have to worry about me," and "Who cares if I'm dead, anyway?"
- Expressions of hopelessness
- Expressing rage or uncontrolled behavior
- Acting recklessly or engaging in risky activities, seemingly without thinking
- Expressing feelings of being trapped like, “There’s no way out”
- Withdrawing from friends and family
- Exhibiting anxiety or agitation
- Displaying dramatic mood changes
- Increased alcohol or drug use

THIRD, Consider how you could help if you fear someone may be thinking of suicide.

1. Take it seriously; do NOT dismiss the behavior as simply a “bid for attention”

2. Be willing to listen
   - Let the person know you are concerned and tell why. Make it clear that you are willing to listen.
   - Listen without judgment. Consider the importance of helping someone feel heard.
   - Don’t feel as though you have to fix everything. Chances are there are no easy answers.
   - If you are worried, don't be afraid to ask whether he or she is considering suicide, or even if they have a particular plan or method in mind.
   - Do not attempt to argue anyone out of suicide. Rather, let the person know you care and understand that he or she is not alone, that suicidal feelings are temporary, that depression can be treated, and that problems can be solved. Avoid the temptation to say, "You have so much to live for," or "Your suicide will hurt your family."

3. Get professional help
   - Be actively involved in encouraging the person to see a physician or mental health professional immediately. Individuals contemplating suicide often don't believe they can be helped, so you may have to do more.
   - You can make a difference by helping the person in need find a knowledgeable mental health professional or reputable treatment facility.

4. In an emergency:
   - Do not leave the person alone until help is available.
   - Take your friend or loved one to an emergency room or call your local Community Services Board 24-hour emergency care number. Check for numbers in your area.
   - Remove from the vicinity any firearms, drugs, or sharp objects that could be used in a suicide attempt.
   - Hospitalization may be needed at least until the crisis is over.
   - If these options are not unavailable, call 911 or the National Suicide Prevention Hotline 1-800-273-TALK.
5. Follow-up on treatment

♦ People who are in distress are sometimes hesitant to seek help and may drop out after an initial contact unless there is support for continuing treatment.

♦ If medication is prescribed, take an active role in supporting medication therapy. Be sure to notify the physician about any unexpected side effects. Often, alternative medications can be prescribed.

Mental Health Care Providers

All of the private and public providers listed in this Directory are licensed by appropriate boards of the Virginia Department of Health Regulatory Board to practice various aspects of mental health services.

- Psychiatrists are providers with a medical degree (M.D.) and therefore may prescribe medication.
- Other academic degrees and specialties include:
  - Psychologists (Ph.D., M.A.)
  - Clinical Psychologists (Ph.D., Psy.D.)
  - Licensed Clinical Social Workers (LCSW or M.S.W.)
  - School Psychologists (Ed.S., Ph.D., Ed.D.)
  - Licensed Marriage and Family Therapist (LMFT)
  - Substance Abuse Certifications (CSAC, NCACII, LSATP)

The training, expertise, and areas of interest of mental health professionals vary considerably. All providers listed can receive third-party payments, but some health insurance companies allow coverage for only certain mental health professions and place a ceiling on the total amount allowed. Check your policy or talk with your employer for specific information about coverage. Some providers have "sliding scales" based on a client's ability to pay. Every professional has an ethical responsibility to give the same quality of service to all clients regardless of ability to pay. The fee for group therapy is usually at a lower rate per hour.

You will need to make an appointment in order to receive services from a private or public provider. Many providers have evening hours if you cannot arrange a daytime appointment.

Providers are listed alphabetically. Please read "When You Need Professional Help" on pages 6 and 7 to aid you in choosing a provider.

Arbaugh, Thomas, Ph.D., LPC
219 W. Beverley Street, Suite 106
Staunton, VA 24401
Website: www.DrArbaugh.com

My small practice is designed to be unique and comfortable. I do not report to insurance companies and so they do not have a record of sessions or the client’s clinical diagnosis. I do provide a sliding fee scale in place of filing insurance. I work with couples and individuals with anxiety, depression, PTSD, and with basic personal growth issues. I also work with many sexuality issues and have considerable experience with lesbian, gay, bisexual and transgandered clients. I have had special training in Transactional Analysis and have done extensive research into the emotional survival of people who experienced sexual abuse. My dog usually attends sessions and is also intuitive about the needs of the client.

Randall Hook, Program Coordinator

The RMH Partial Hospitalization/Day Treatment Program offers a convenient and efficient way for people to get the help and therapy they need with the least amount of disruption to their lives. Participants come to the hospital in the morning, stay during the day for therapy and/or treatment, then go home in the evening. The goal of the program is to provide quality care in a structured but relaxed setting that acknowledges the patient’s dignity, motivation, and ability to effectively manage his or her life. The program uses a strengths-based approach to care.

Areas of specialization: depression, anxiety and mid-life crisis. Theoretical orientation: spiritual psychotherapy, for people who are tired of trying to fix the ego. Every symptom has a hidden positive meaning. Misdiagnosis is the main problem in psychotherapy. I only take patients who are willing to invest a year in serious work on self. I am willing to correspond with you by email and to conduct an initial interview before I would make such a commitment to you.
Basic Needs/Crisis/Non-Profit Service Providers

Sometimes we all need a helping hand. The agencies in this section offer a variety of different services from crisis intervention to prevention and education. Agencies specializing in crisis intervention offer assistance in a variety of circumstances ranging from natural disaster recovery to domestic violence and abuse. Many of these agencies also provide basic needs to families such as shelter, food, and clothing.

Non-Profit Service Providers come in all shapes and sizes. They may offer assessment, emotional support, financial assistance, education, medical treatment, mentoring, or temporary shelter. Some are staffed by professionals only, while others rely on volunteers. Many of the services provided are free; however, some agencies do charge for their services. Most agencies will handle a variety of problems but regularly refer people to mental health care providers for more specific counseling needs. Many non-profit service agencies also provide prevention and education services. Please contact the agencies to find out if these services are available.

The mission of the agency is to promote self-reliance and protection for Virginians through community based services. Please check with your local office to see what programs and services are available in your location.

Financial Services include:

- Temporary Assistance for Needy Families (TANF)
- Food Stamps
- Medicaid
- Auxiliary Grants for the Aged, Disabled, and Blind
- General Relief
- Energy/Fuel Assistance
- State-Local Hospitalization

All of these programs have differing eligibility guidelines and require application and verification of information. They are designed to assist low-income families or individuals through cash grants or in-kind payments for financial needs.

The Social work programs are as follows:

- Protective Services for Children and Adults
- Foster Care Services
- Adoption Services (limited - usually referral to private or public agencies)
- Nursing Home screenings and placement
- Adult Home placements
- Adult stabilization and support
- Family stabilization and support
- Day Care Services for Children
- Employment Services under the Federal and State Welfare Reform initiatives--VIEW (The Virginia Initiative for Employment, not Welfare)

Some of the service’s programs are provided based solely on need and not on income eligibility. The focus of the services is to strengthen the family's or individual's ability for self-sufficiency or independence, avoid inappropriate institutional placements, and provide protection to those who are unable to protect themselves.

The Infant & Toddler Connection of Harrisonburg-Rockingham is a service of the Harrisonburg-Rockingham Community Services Board. We provide early intervention supports and services to infants and toddlers from birth through age two who are not developing as expected or who have a medical condition that can delay normal development. Early intervention supports and services focus on increasing the child’s participation in family and community activities that are important to the family. In addition, supports and services focus on helping parents and other caregivers know how to find ways to help the child learn during everyday activities. These supports and services are available for all eligible children and their families regardless of the family’s ability to pay.

Office on Children and Youth
P.O. Box 1753
Harrisonburg, VA 22803

Kim Hartzler-Weakley, Executive Director

The Office on Children and Youth, a partnership program at the Institute for Innovation in Health and Human Services at JMU, promotes positive youth development through working with all youth-serving organizations in Harrisonburg and Rockingham County to support, coordinate, and examine the needs of our youth. The Office gathers and evaluates data related to the needs of youth, works to coordinate services for efficient delivery, advocates for needed services, and is a resource center for information concerning youth.
The Central Shenandoah Valley Office on Youth (OOY) is a regional local government agency serving as a department of the Cities of Staunton and Waynesboro and Augusta County. The mission of the OOO is: To develop positive connections between youth, their families and communities, and to build a strong foundation for a successful future. The OOO has been a presence in this community since 1977 and works collaboratively with area human service organizations to provide resources and services to area youth and their parents.

Services are provided the following areas:
- Employment Training
- Teen Pregnancy Prevention
- Programs for Juvenile Offenders
- Supervision of Suspended and Expelled Youth
- Parent Education and Support
- Gang and Substance Abuse Prevention
- Positive Teen Activities

People Places is a private, non-profit child welfare agency dedicated to the simple notion that all children – no matter how troubled or troubling – need families. We exist to help children and their families heal the wounds of abuse and neglect. We place children with emotional problems with trained foster and/or adoptive parents who offer them care, guidance, and the opportunity to learn responsible family living. Age of Clients Served: 0 to 21

Project STAR (Family Resource & Referral Center)
1600 N. Coalter St., Suite 11
Staunton, VA 24401

Project STAR is a partnership between parents and a parent educator. You are your child’s first and most important teacher. A parent educator can support and encourage your efforts to be the parent you want to be. We do this with in-home visits that help empower parents to help their child reach their full potential and be prepared to enter school. We give parents child development information, demonstrate age appropriate play techniques, and make referrals to other community agencies. We are also a safe, neutral site to host supervised visits between parents and their children. Referrals primarily come from the Department of Social Services and the courts.

Intensive In-Home Services: Intensive in-home therapy is a home-based treatment model that provides services to families who are at risk of having a child removed from the home, who have a child returning to the home from a hospital or residential setting, or who have a child who has not positively progressed in treatment using outpatient therapy interventions. The philosophy of the program is that a child’s emotional and behavioral needs can be addressed more effectively when the child remains in the home. Our treatment providers assess the family system as a whole and provide “hands on” family interventions directly in the same environment where the child lives and grows. Services are provided to the family at least three hours a week for up to six months. This level of intensity provides the therapist a solid appreciation and understanding of the child and family, contributing to positive change and helping the child remain in the home.

The mission of Teen Pregnancy Prevention is to provide information and skills to help teenagers and young adults make healthy choices and avoid risky behaviors, such as sexual activity and drug and alcohol use, by presenting quality school- and community-based prevention services. This mission is being addressed through various educational programs and public awareness campaigns established through collaborative efforts between TPP, youth-serving community agencies, public and private school systems, faith communities, colleges and universities, and corporations within the community. TPP provides the following interventions:

Baby Think It Over: an eight-pound lifelike infant simulator distributed to youth for a 67 hour “parenting” experience.
Vision of You: a ten-session program to help teens improve decision-making skills, make healthy choices, and make competent decisions about their futures. Available to any interested group.
Healthy Choice Presentations: focus on life’s choices concerning sexual behavior, and how the consequences of some choices can stay with you forever. Available to any interested group.
Partners in Prevention: programs for young adults aged 20-29, availability varies.
* TPP also provides presentations dealing with teen pregnancy issues, the local situation, and how to talk to teenagers about sex to educators, providers, youth leaders, and parents.

Winchester, VA 22602

The Arc of Northern Shenandoah Valley is a membership organization made up of and for people with intellectual and developmental disabilities, their families, friends, professionals and interested citizens. We are an affiliate of both The Arc of the United States and The Arc of Virginia. It is our mission to work through advocacy, education and collaboration to improve the lives of people with intellectual and developmental disabilities in our community. We believe that if all citizens are accepted and have the supports and services needed to exercise control over their own lives, communities as a whole are deeply enriched. We strive to increase community inclusion for all.

Pleasant View, Inc. is a not-for-profit agency that serves adults with developmental disabilities in residential and day support services. Over 90 adults with disabilities, including mild to profound mental retardation, autism, cerebral palsy, as well as other disabilities, are served in nine group homes, supervised apartments, an intermediate care facility, and independent apartments. One hundred twenty-five people are provided day support through two developmental day programs, Community Connections and Supported Employment. Locations are in Harrisonburg, Broadway, and Dayton. Providing people with disabilities the opportunity and training necessary to achieve their highest level of independence is an important part of our programming. For more information, contact Social Services at the number above or visit the website at pleasantviewinc.org.

The Rockbridge Disability Service Board serves the cities of Buena Vista and Lexington and Rockbridge County. The mission of the DSB is to learn the needs of area residents who have physical and/or sensory disabilities, to raise public awareness, and to influence long-range state planning and investment. As catalysts for change, we intend to find solutions through cooperative efforts of concerned individuals, local agencies, local government, and area businesses.

Shenandoah Valley Autism Partnership (SVAP) offers support, networking, and training for families and professionals who care for individuals with Autism Spectrum Disorder in the Shenandoah Valley of Virginia.

Valley Associates for Independent Living, Inc (VAIL) offers expertise in disability laws and accessing community-based services and funding. Most importantly, CILs provide a cross-disability, consumer-directed perspective that promotes choice and self-advocacy. At least 51% of the staff and board of directors are people with disabilities to ensure that people with disabilities play an integral role in shaping the services that impact their lives.

Virginia Dept. for the Blind & Vision Impaired (DBVI) is to enable blind or visually impaired individuals to achieve their maximum level of employment, education, and personal independence through specialized training programs and services. Services include: orientation & mobility training, rehabilitation teaching/independent living services, vocational counseling, education services, deaf/blind services, the rehab center in Richmond, low vision services, and the Library & Resource Center. Referrals may come from any source and vision loss needs to be worse than 20/70 acuities with correction. Services/programs are available to any Virginia individual.
Residents of the Shenandoah Valley are served by the Staunton Regional Office. Most services are provided through in-home visits.

Our office offers administrative support for the Waynesboro Disability Services Board, which acts as a city-appointed advisory committee for those with physical and/or sensory (auditory or visual) disabilities. The board administers a meal program for residents under age 60 who live alone and have difficulty shopping or preparing meals due to a disability. The Board maintains a used medical equipment program and issues equipment, as available, to those residents in need for as long as necessary. The office also acts as an Information and Referral Service to other agencies. Office Hours: Part-time: Call and leave a message, if necessary.
The Woodrow Wilson Rehabilitation Center is the first state-owned and operated comprehensive rehabilitation center in the country. Staff at WWRC provide training and therapy to people with disabilities to enable them to re-enter the work force and live more independently.
Support/Self-Help Groups

More than 12 million people help themselves and others in more than 500,000 support groups in the United States. We are fortunate to have a variety of these support groups here in the area. Support groups are groups of people who meet regularly to talk about their common problems. Support groups offer information, understanding, acceptance, and encouragement, and at times are led by people who are also group members themselves.

Support groups are not replacements for therapy groups. Many people benefit from both experiences. Therapy groups often deal with a wide range of mental health issues and problems. Mental health professionals lead therapy groups by encouraging self-expression and interpersonal feedback in a free-flowing format. Support groups usually focus on a specific concern, using education and problem solving in a more structured format. While most support groups are free and open to all concerned, some involve a registration fee.

If you are interested in a particular group, you can call the contact person in the listing. You can also write to the National Self-Help Clearinghouse:

Schools, School Counselors, and College Counseling Services

Schools often can be the first line of help for those who are in need. Children, adolescents, and young adults attending our community’s educational systems can find themselves in developmental life stages where circumstances may become problematic. School settings from kindergarten through high school, as well as universities and colleges, are staffed with professionals serving the unique needs of their students.

K-12 schools typically have both School Counselors and School Psychologists on staff. School Counselors help students to understand and deal with social, behavioral, and personal problems. These counselors emphasize preventive and developmental counseling to provide students with the life skills needed to deal with life’s challenges, and to enhance personal, social, and academic growth. School Psychologists typically provide assessment and intervention planning to address learning, behavioral, and/or emotional problems that may be affecting a student’s academic performance.

College and university counseling centers are staffed by counseling and clinical psychologists, counselors, clinical social workers and other professionals who provide services. Services include help for personal, educational, emotional, and interpersonal concerns and questions.

Please contact each educational setting if you wish to inquire about specific services or service providers. In the following section counselor’s names are in italics.

All area codes 540 unless otherwise noted

This list is current as of March, 2010. Please see individual school websites for updates regarding counselor positions.

The School Psychologists and School Social Workers/Visiting Teachers, and Child-Find Specialists of Harrisonburg City Schools are available for referral, consultation, assessment, and other services aimed at helping students with various needs. As specialists in working with students with disabilities, these professionals are familiar with resources and services to assist children with special needs in the public schools. With their respective training in counseling, mental health, and family dynamics, they also consult with families who have students enrolled in Harrisonburg city schools regarding the school-related impact of various relevant issues on all children. Office hours are 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday.

The Bridgewater College Counseling Center (CC) provides confidential, individual counseling services for Bridgewater College students. The CC also produces relevant and engaging outreach programming, and offers consultative and collaborative services to faculty, staff and administration on the mental health needs of students and the campus community. Support groups are also made available as needed and/or requested. There is no additional cost to students for counseling services.

Eastern Mennonite University - EMU
Counseling Center
1200 Park Road
Harrisonburg, VA  22802
EMU Counseling Services provides a safe environment where anyone can bring forward any number of issues, including feelings of depression or anxiety, loneliness, identity issues, conflict or relationship difficulties, or even just take time to vent after a difficult day. For those enrolled EMU students seeking counseling, EMU provides a benefit of one initial evaluation and up to seven sessions at no charge. Additional sessions are evaluated between the counselor and student at a charge of no more than $15 per session. For further information or assistance, call the Counseling Center office at 432-4317.

James Madison University – JMU
CSDC
Varner House, MSC 0801
Harrisonburg, VA  22807
The Counseling and Student Development Center is open Monday through Friday 8am to 5pm. We are always available after hours through the Office of Public Safety at 568-6911 for emergencies. Appointments to meet with a counselor may be made in person at the CSDC office in Varner House, or by telephone at 568-6552. Each year, the Counseling & Student Development Center provides personal counseling to over 1000 undergraduate and graduate students at James Madison University. The Center is staffed by psychologists, counselors, and graduate students, and the services rendered to students are free, voluntary, and confidential. The Center's staff is dedicated to assisting students in their pursuit of personal and academic growth, to helping students gain a better understanding and appreciation of themselves, and to supporting students as they make important decisions about their lives.
Nadia Kuley, Ph.D., Licensed Clinical Psychologist, is the Director of Counseling and Psychological Services on the campus of Mary Baldwin College, located in Blakely House. Short term psychotherapy is offered by Dr. Kuley and graduate level interns. Students are provided crisis intervention and treatment for a wide variety of emotional disorders [i.e., mood disorders, eating disorders and anxiety disorders], in addition to homesickness, academic stressors, stress management and motivational issues. Students are also provided resources in the community for psychiatric services and other mental health providers that may be indicated.

In addition to direct services to MBC students, Counseling and Psychological Services also offers consultation to professors, staff, and resident advisors. Educational programs are offered to students, as well as training to resident advisors. With the exception of a student in crisis, students are seen by appointment by calling the office secretary at 540-887-7281. For further information, please see our website at mbc.edu

Virginia Military Institute (VMI)
Lexington, VA 24450

Cadet Development and Counseling provides short-term counseling that focuses on addressing personal concerns that may impede current and future learning and personal development. Some cadets seek counseling to address specific problems, such as coping with stressful situations, substance abuse, losing important relationships, decreased self confidence, and feelings of loneliness, depression, and anxiety. Cadets also seek counseling to further their personal growth. For example, cadets come to counseling to learn more effective social skills, improve the quality of their interpersonal relationships, and learn more about their personality. All counseling is confidential.

Washington Lee University
Student Health & Counseling Services
204 W. Washington Street
Lexington, VA 24450

Washington and Lee University is committed to the development of the whole person, therefore a highly trained and experienced counseling staff is available to help students with a variety of difficulties that might impact not only a student's academic work, but overall sense of well-being. University Counseling provides direct psychotherapy services, assessment of academic problems, and (with student consent) collaboration with faculty, administrative personnel, or parents to provide necessary supports for struggling students. Psychiatric consultation is also available. All students enrolled at Washington and Lee University are entitled to services as needed and all costs are covered by tuition.

Suggested Readings

Millions of self-help books are sold each year. Obviously, some self-help books are more helpful than others. We asked local mental health professionals to tell us what books they recommend to their clients. The following is a brief compilation of the books they named. All of these suggested readings are written for the general public. More importantly, they offer accurate information, helpful insights, and practical suggestions concerning specific problems. Many of the books listed are available at the public library and at local bookstores. You are also invited to browse through the excellent library at Women's Health Focus. Most of the public agencies have some literature available, so give them a call if you have a particular interest.

We offer one warning, however. Watch out for the books that sound like traveling snake oil peddlers with their outrageous promises. Just remember that if it sounds too good to be true, it probably is.

Please pass along to us any additional books you would recommend. We hope to update and expand this listing in the next edition of the directory.
