Breeze Staff Adopts New Style

Spacious Breeze Is Modern

Style is the password of journalism. After much study of the many varieties of styles, the new Breeze staff has finally selected a style that coincides with the purpose of journalism today. It is modern, realistic, exciting and, most of all, different.

The new style solves all the problems journalists have had down through the ages. It is based on spaciousness. In the Breeze, as the reader can see, we make abundant use of this new trend.

Interesting the reader has always been a tremendous problem of the journalist. What can he put into the paper that will truly catch the eye of the student-reader? With this new style, the problem has been solved. The staff includes only those articles they know will interest the reader. All other articles that the staff might have doubts about or that are just put in the paper as "fillers" are excluded. The reader doesn't have to plod through endless, dull reading to find the exciting news and feature stories. They are now easily visible.

Another big problem in journalistic style is good make-up of the paper. Poor arrangements, poor headlines, poor placements of the articles constantly detract the reader's eye from the news. With this new, contemporary style, the editors have little to worry about. There is such a limited amount of interesting news, the editor has only to place the story in an eye-catching place (such as in the middle of the page).

Headlines constitute another problem in journalism. Often they are misleading because the headline editor has to cut out words and phrases in order that they may fit into the limited space available. No longer is this true. More space . . . more headlines. The reader will never again be misled by abbreviations and short vague words.

This new style alleviates other small problems. No longer does the staff have to worry about new recruitments. They aren't needed. No longer does the staff have to worry about circulation. After several editions of the new style, it won't be needed.

Notice To Freshmen

Please remove your cars from the Senior Parking Lot. We realize that there is a shortage of room where you can park your MG's, Volkswagons, and Mercedes Benz, but the Seniors are finding difficulty in locating space to put their Cadillacs.

No Registration For This Spring

Dean Warden has announced that there will be no registration this spring. After much study, the administration has found that registration is a needless waste of time and energy.

It has been decided that all students will go to the class of their choice after making out their own schedules. If the room is too full when the students arrive, they must leave and choose another class.

It is hoped that there will be no further complaints about registration.

New Hours, Too

Tea Room To Be Renovated Soon; To Have Modern Equipment, Service

The Madison College Tea Room will be completely renovated this summer and will follow a new schedule for the 1962-63 session.

Dr. Jay T. Curtis, a professor who is very interested in the growth of the tearoom, revealed this information in a press conference held Friday Afternoon. "Plans call for modernization in both equipment and service," he said. "We will spare no expense in making the Madison College Tea Room a haven for weary students, a place they will be proud to take their dates and friends."

According to Dr. Curtis, plans include an enlarged staff of ten persons, $10,000 worth of new equipment, and enlargement of the present Tea Room to include the space now allotted the faculty. "Facilities for faculty members will be relocated in the basement of Jackson Hall," explained Dr. Curtis. "The new hours for the Tea Room will be from 5:00 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. and from 5:00 p.m. to 10:30 on Monday through Friday. On Saturdays and Sundays the hours will be 6:00 a.m. to 1:00 p.m. Another innovation will be the installation of a juke box which will play records for two cents a record. Recreation Council has agreed to purchase the newest selections to keep on file on a lend-borrow basis.

Dr. Curtis is seeing his dream come true. Since he first came to Madison ten years ago, he has actively campaigned for improved Tea Room facilities. "I am certainly gratified to have finally achieved my goal," he admitted. "The only trouble is that now I'll have to find a new problem to work on."

"How about a Student Union?" we suggested as we waved adieu. "Mmm," he mused . . .

Library Hours For Exam Week

During the week of exams, the Madison College Library will only be open between 2:00-4:00 in the afternoon and from 7:00-9:00 at night. This is to alleviate the tension being built up by the students who use too much of their time studying. (This ruling was recommended by the infirmary and was unanimously approved by the faculty.)

Letters To The Editor

Communist Party Disbands After Reading Blevins

Dear Editor,

We received a copy of your last week's edition of The Breeze. We were very interested in Mr. Blevins' article dealing with the reasoning for not according one of our Party Members the opportunity to present the side of the Communist Ideology. As you might know, the American National Communist Party is presently holding its annual meeting in Little Rock, Arkansas. The sessions will carry over into the first week in April. At the General Meeting of over 15,000 Party Members, the original request for fairness in allowing us to speak was reviewed. The Congress Polit Minister then presented the points taken by Mr. Blevins. After a three-hour debate and lengthy sub-committee meetings, we reached a unanimous agreement. A resolution was presented and adopted. We have discussed and weighed Mr. Blevins' suggestions and opinions; and, by unanimous consent, we agreed wholeheartedly with Mr. Blevins' viewpoints. We are presently drafting a withdrawal resolution to be submitted to Moscow. Mr. Blevins should be pleased to know that he has single-handedly converted 600,000 members of the Communist Party.

We are now offering speakers on "The Fallacies of Communism, Its Lies, And The Manner In Which The American People Can Destroy This Wicked, Un-Christian, Un-American System."

We hope that Mr. Blevins will be able to come to us and further explain his ideals. I'm sure that he stands an excellent chance of being elected President of the New Anti-Communist Party.

Sincerely, the former American Communist Party Lecture Bureau

Why NOT Abolish Monday Classes?

Dear Miss Editor,

I would like to express my complaint of our administration here at ole P. U. (er, I mean M. C.) This absurdity of Monday classes has really gone far enough! You know, not many of us appreciate having to roll out of bed in the middle of the night (8:00 a.m.) like that (Yah, especially those of us too groggy to realize we sleep on triple-decker bunks this year).

Now I am not one to start unnecessary trouble, but I do feel that I have here a few well-meditated points to offer in opposition to Monday classes:

- (1) They are bad for morale after an off-campus weekend.
- (2) They don't give one time to raise bail after a fun U. Va. riot.
- (3) They do not cure pepsi hangovers (A-hem).
- (4) They do not provide a chance to unpack one's suitcase from the weekend trip.
- (5) They do not provide a chance to make plans for the oncoming weekend trip.
- (6) They do not give us an extra hour on Monday to compensate for compulsory Wednesday assembly.
- (7) No Monday classes would cut down on the "Blue Monday" infirmary patients.
- (8) No Monday classes would spare many from getting out of bed to face "Chipped beef on the rocks" for breakfast.
- (9) Monday classes do not give one time to stop vibrating from the U. T. and the twist.
- (10) No-class Mondays would offer students an ideal time to steal class banners, toothbrushes, stuffed animals, etc.
- (11) Last, but not least—Monday classes are definitely psychologically "bad news" for our professors!

Ah, Dear Miss Editor, while I am thinking of it, we the student body have so much we could do on Mondays that we were wondering if we could complain about Tuesday and Wednesday classes also?

Thank you, Bed Rock

Prowler Is Captured

Using ingenuity characteristic of Madison College coeds, several girls from Jackson Dormitory aided in the capture of the now infamous "prowler".

At 1:30 a.m. Sunday morning when they heard him in the bushes outside their window, Minnie Mc-Mad and her roommate, Sparrow Boiler, kept him in view while their third roommate, Ferianne Sotut-heart, ran screaming down the upstairs hall, calling hysterically for Mrs. Deck, the housemother.

Meanwhile the prowler remained hunched against a boxwood, mumbling "...98, 99, 100; coming ready or not!" Misses McMad and Boiler kept their eyes on him, despite the fact that the whole second floor of the dorm was in their room pushing and shoving their way to the window trying to get a glimpse of the villain.

Mrs. Deck managed to get the story from the distraught Miss Stoutheart and decided the best measure was to get out her trusty whistle and blow for the night watchman.

After blowing for approximately twenty minutes, the night watchman finally came strolling up and said with calm dignity, "Evening ma'am. Is there anything I can do for you?"

He was shown the prowler who was now standing up facing the parking lot with his hands on his hips apparently waiting for someone to try to get "home free". "Boy, I think you had better come with me," the night watchman said as he led him away.

The prowler, who was identified as David Lovins, has been sent to Staunton for observation. It is feared by those familiar with the case that he may be suffering from acute schizophrenia.

Men Create Modern Dance

Just as Miss Sergio's talk precipitated follow-up discussion sessions, Eric Hawkins created some interesting results on the campus. A new club has been created with the purpose of advancing interpretive dance. The boys involved have been busy at work in preparation for a concert to be given in May.

The gentlemen explained that their practice sessions are unusual in the methods of warm-up. The exercises consist of crawling through barbed wire entanglements with snake dummies strapped to their waists.

A second exercise is conducted in rabbit costumes with the usual hairy attire. The exercise is nicknamed "The Carrot Patch Mambo" and consists of foot-tickling while hopping around on one leg.

Several other warm-up exercises include "The Lovebirds' Twist," "The Lewd Dude," etc.

The new club has been awarded a grant from Mr. Biggins, the school treasurer, of $3.67.

The boys wish to thank the school for the excellent cooperation in the formulation of this new and worthwhile enterprise.

The concert will be given in May as part of the Pagan Orgie Day held each year. The binding theme this year is Stevinskies, "Rites of Sprang"—the popular ballet.

The charter members in this group are Duain Dumberg, Fary Daytun, Halph Rarlow, Gennis Dolliday, and the president, Davud Lovings.

Night Club Plans Opening

"We got it, we finally got it." This was just one of many jubilant cries heard Saturday afternoon when Mr. Kyle Silverpolish, manager of the new Bombed Club, announced the club's opening to a group of Madison College coeds.

"For years we have tried to get someone to open a night club near Harrisonburg," explained one of the girls. "Now there will be something to do when we have dates."

The new club is located on Route 11, just south of the Harrisonburg city limits, approximately seven miles from the coeds of Madison who say they plan to be its best customers.

"We realize the need of collegians for a place to congregate, and we have designed the Bombed Club with that idea in mind," said Silverpolish. There will be a featured combo each week, and dress will be informal to facilitate doing anything from the U. T. or Twist to the Double Cha Cha."

"The new club is similar in design to the Tropicanna at Virginia Beach," Silverpolish continued, "and atmosphere is our watch word."

This atmosphere includes three "back rooms" to accommodate private parties of from five to ten couples, a spacious dining room, a twenty-foot horseshoe-shaped bar, and a hardwood dance floor estimated by Silverpolish to be twice
