THE WEEK OF

"Look at that line!"

Now you know why they taught you to stand in a straight line in grade school — so you could get through the first week at college.

That's the way it seemed anyway. Standing in line to check into dorms and waiting to get post office box combinations so you could get registration material to get in line for registration and then to wait in line at the bookstore to buy books kept even seasoned standers at a standstill. Afterwards, if you had any money left in your checking account you could wait in line to buy a ticket for the Doobie Brothers concert or try to drive between lines of parked cars to go to McDonalds and wait in another line there to be served, rather than wait in the line for D-hall.

By the end of the week everyone was sure they'd scream if they stood in one more line. But at least you had a chance to see everybody else. They were all in line with you.

Octoberfest: More than a

If Building and Grounds is bringing out Mums, it has to be HOMECOMING!

Octoberfest proved a fitting theme for Homecoming as students flocked to bacchanalias on frat row, N-complex, and the quad. Homecoming events included the hypnotist James Mapes, the third annual Jayemu Revue, the parade, the football game, and halftime.

James Mapes captivated a packed Wilson Hall for the third consecutive year. The hypnotist extraordinaire sent willing students on a trip to an imaginary planet, to the movies, to an ice-cream licking contest, and finally returned them to Wilson Hall's stage.

The third annual Jayemu Revue played to a capacity auditorium, with Geno the Clown who emceed the spectacle with acts like the suicide squeeze, the non-bursting balloon, and fire swallowing. Prize winners included Doug Thompson;

Carlos Castells; and Dave Carter, who scooped up his second consecutive popular appeal prize. The Eagle girls grabbed the "no comment" award with their comedy chant. The Octoberfest parade on Saturday morning featured floats, bands, and antique cars. The twelve Ms. Madison contestants, each sponsored by a campus organization, rode in the parade.

The football game featured the Dukes against Frostburg State with the home team taking a 28-6 victory. At halftime Julie Hull, representing the Men's Lacrosse Club, was presented the Ms. Madison crown. Performing the routine they used at the Baltimore Colts game, the Marching Dukes received a standing ovation for a magnificent halftime show.

Experimental Alcohol Policy Formulated

The purpose of the Experimental Alcohol policy according to the student handbook is "to allow members of the University community to make their own choices regarding the use of alcohol in a private room or suite and to assume full responsibility for such use by residents and their guests."

The experimental policy began March 29, 1978, with the main premise of allowing beer kegs in dorms. Designed to permit students more choices and more responsibility according to Mike Webb, Director of Residence Halls, (The Breeze, March 28, 1978), the policies formed a major step in liberalizing campus alcohol control. "They allow students 'as many privileges as they're willing to take responsibility for.'"

Previously the university alcohol policy prohibited the presence of kegs within dorms. No stipulations were made as to the quantity of alcohol or the number of guests allowed.

Installation of the experimental policy strictly delineated alcohol use. It consisted of two separate policies, one dealing with recreation rooms and the second with individual rooms and suites.

Parties within a single room which involved ten or more people were required to be registered. A limit of one quarter keg per room and two in suite areas was placed.

Recreation rooms were made available for registered private parties serving beer. Guest numbers were to be limited by the fire safety code. Beer could only be served until midnight, an alternate, non-alcoholic beverage had to be provided, and food and refreshments were encouraged. Advertisement of party and sale of alcoholic beverages were prohibited without a banquet license.

The hosts assumed full responsibility for party control and penalties for violations were to be determined by the Inter-Hall Council.

Announcement of the policies prompted as much student criticism as praise.

Prompted by these reactions, Mike Dewitt, a past SGA president, in a Breeze guestspot denounced student criticism of the proposals. Dewitt defended the policy against attacks of its harshness. He pointed out that the other institutions did not have the good housing, student services and activities Madison has. Dewitt made the point that "the academic environment of JMU must control the social environment; or there should at least be a balance between the two."

Due to its success use of the original experimental policy continued the beginning of the 1978 fall semester.

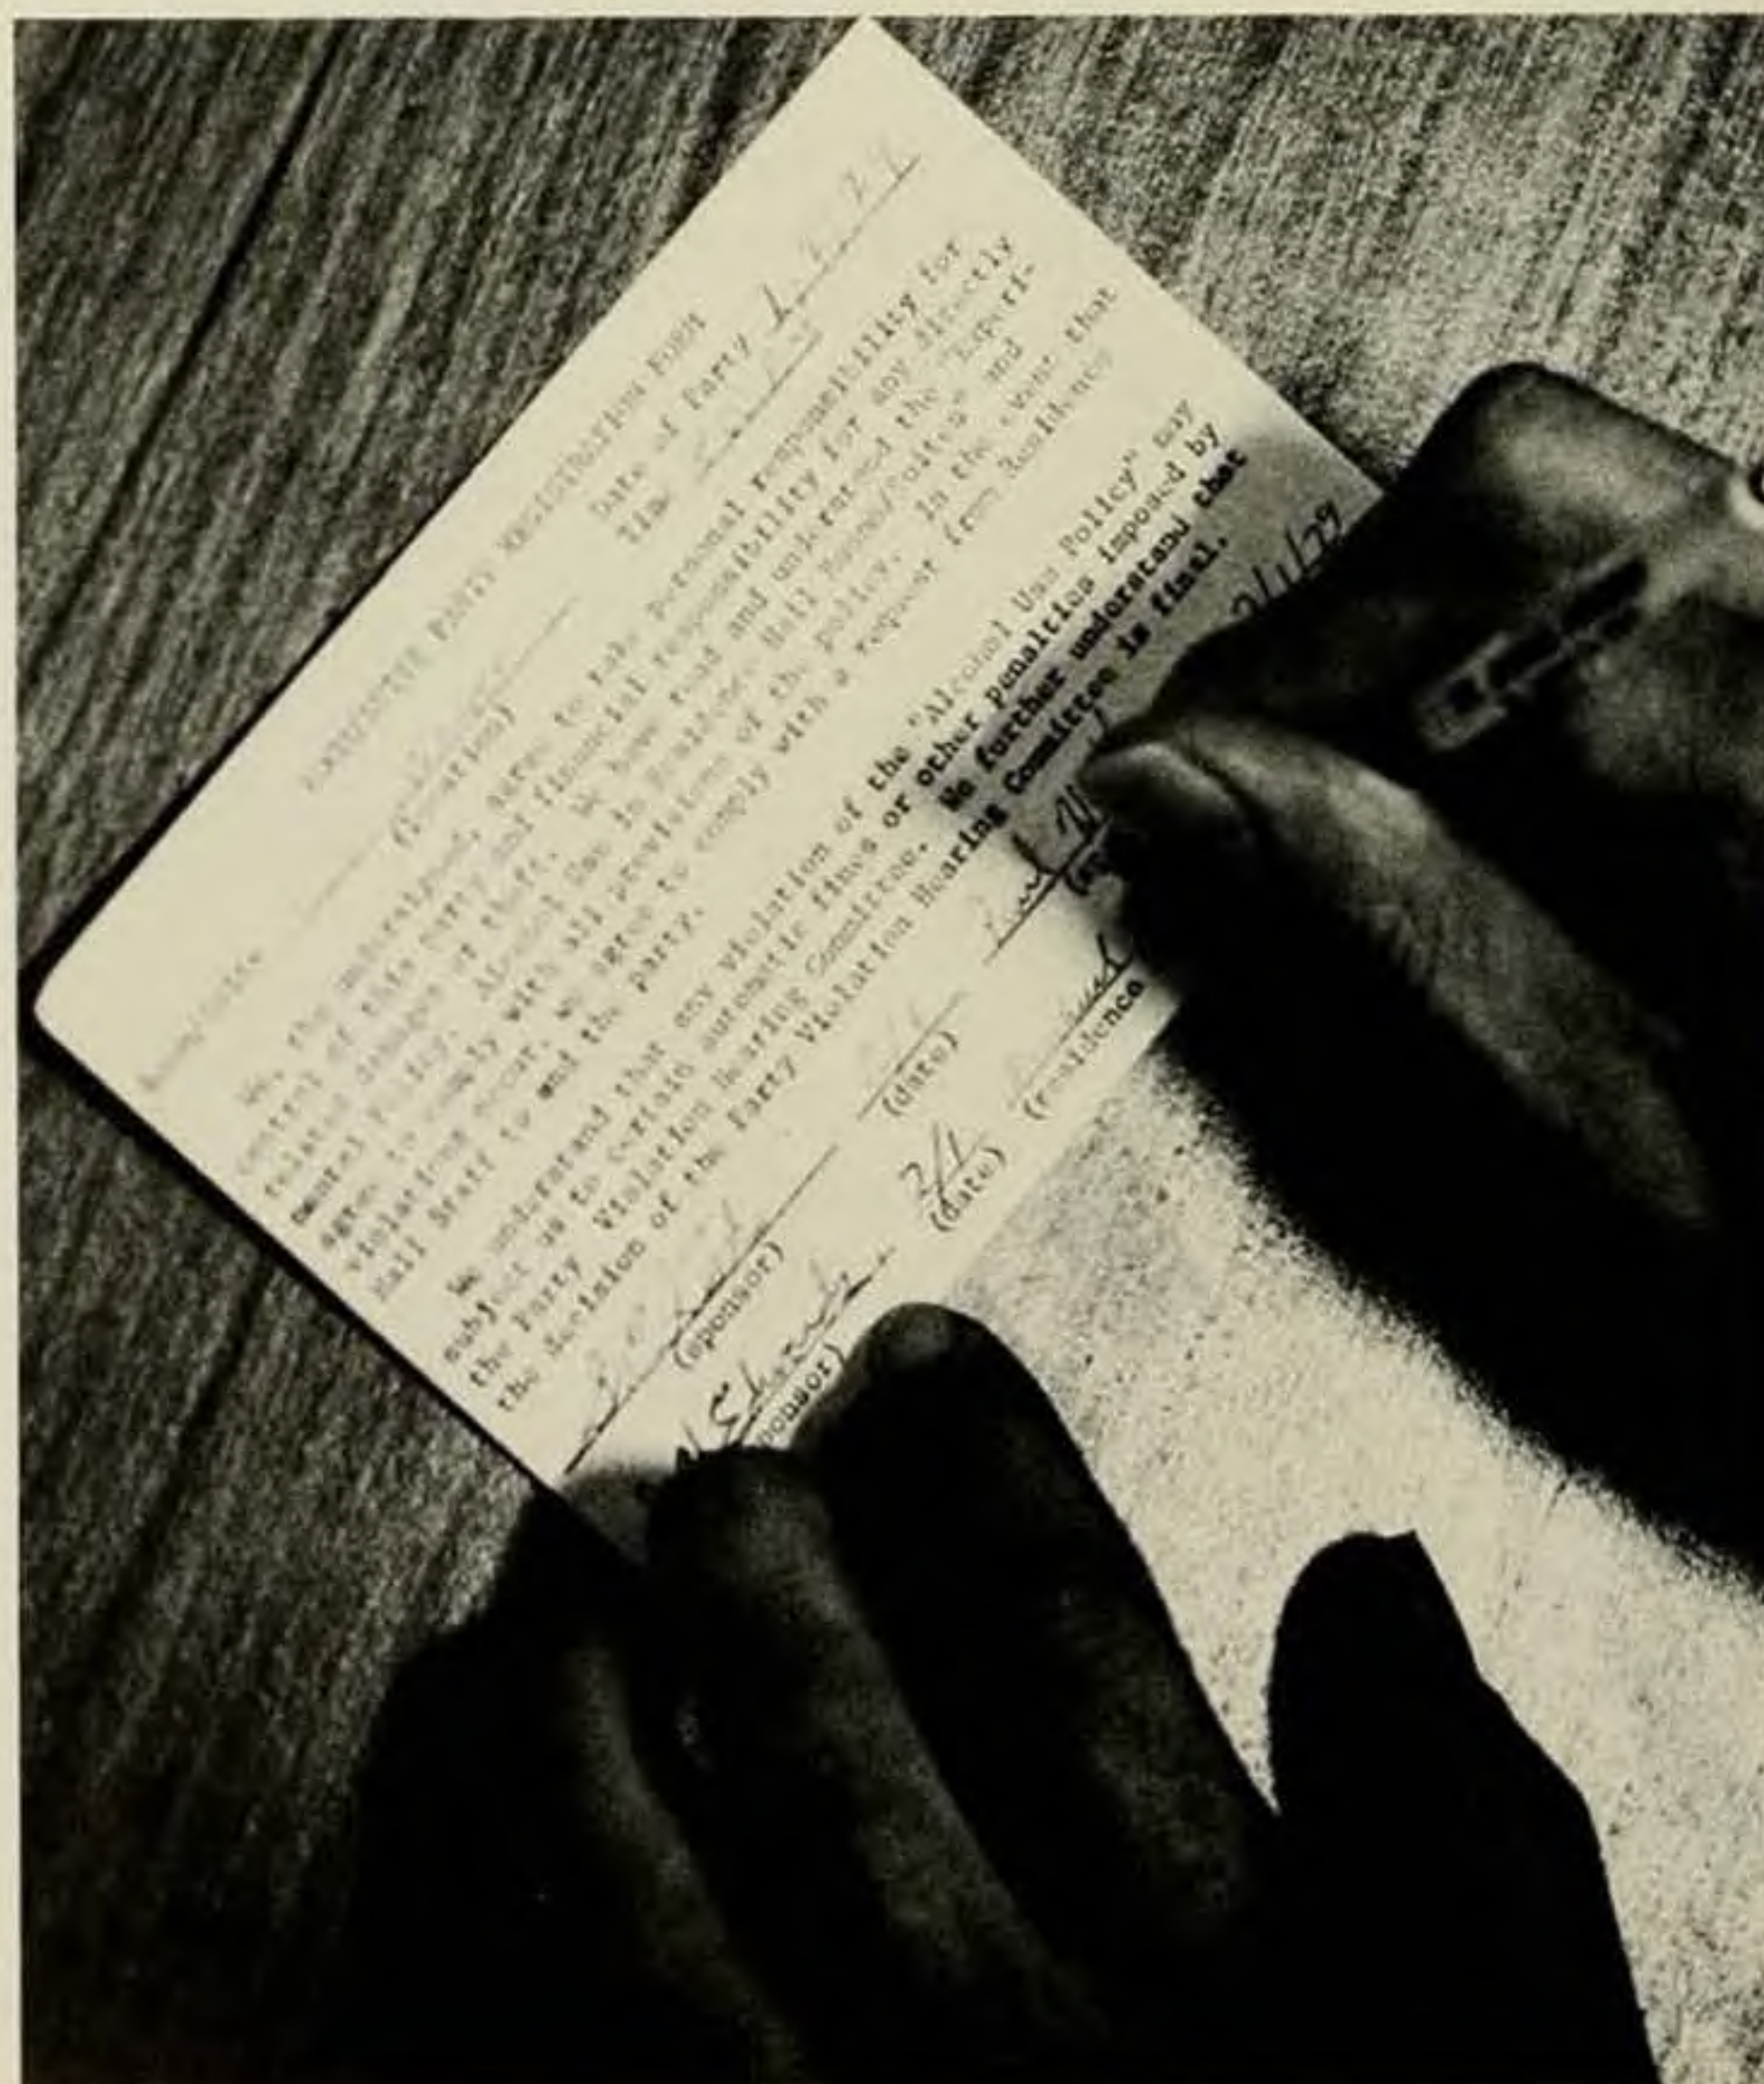

But on September 25, 1978, a modification dealing primarily with the problems of crowd control and state alcoholic law violations was issued. To eliminate these problems, new criteria were established for the maximum number of parties which could be held in a specific hall on a particular floor in one evening. Additionally, violations were to be referred to the University Judicial System rather than the originally designed nated special hearing committee.

Due to the subsequent changes in the alcohol policy approximately 70 students gathered on the quad September 29 to protest. The protest was largely unorganized and fizzled out quickly. A petition, protesting changes, circulated around campus gathering over 1000 signatures before it was presented to Lacy Daniels, Dean of Students.

Open hearings were conducted by a subcommittee of the Commission on Student Services in mid-November. At this time students were encouraged to express their own views on the policy and its effects. During the four hearings discussion centered around the size of the kegs allowed, recreation room parties, the responsibility of the hosts and limits on the number of parties within dorms.

Subsequent comparison to other school's policies prompted queries to the Alcoholic Beverage Control Information Office. Charles Davis, Director of Information, stated (The Breeze, Nov. 10, 1978), "We would consider a college dorm to be a public place." He added that restrictions on alcohol consumption at a specific location on a college or university campus "would be subject to determination by officials of the particular institution in accordance with the desires of the proper officials."

Tentative changes in the university's alcohol policy were presented to the Commission on Student Services December 5, 1978. Recommendations were based on topics discussed during the November opening hearings. Action on the proposals was delayed until spring semester.

During the first week of second semester five major changes to the policy were approved by the Commission on Student Services. It was then necessary for the revised alcohol policy to be approved by President Ronald Carrier and the University Council. Final decisions on these areas of revision would decide the permanent university alcohol policy.

Although finalization of the policy had not taken place by the deadline for publication of this book, it was our wish to include reference to one of the major university policies of this last year.

Midnight

Have you ever gotten what you thought was a terminal case of the munchies? Chances are some famous eatery in wild and wonderful Harrisonburg treated it.

A quick hike to Luigi's for a pizza or sub beat the walk in town for most students. Unless, of course, they took the easy way out and had them deliver it.

The walk in town, however, did give a lot more variety. Spanky's was a favorite munchout along with The Pub, Jess's, and Burger King.

Famished students also found McDonald's and Quarter Pounders only a short ten-speed ride away. Arthur Treacher's, Village Inn, and Ciro's, cured the munchies, too, be they intellectually or chemically induced.

For those very late-night hungry stomachs, C&E Diner and Donut King often solved the dilemma as a final munching ground.

THE 10' x 12' EXPERIENCE

Welcome to the JMU Country Club. At $1,200 for four months it's a real deal. Smart tourists realize that for $300 a month, $75 a week, and $10.71 a day Madison can't be beat. The club does a few stipulations, though.

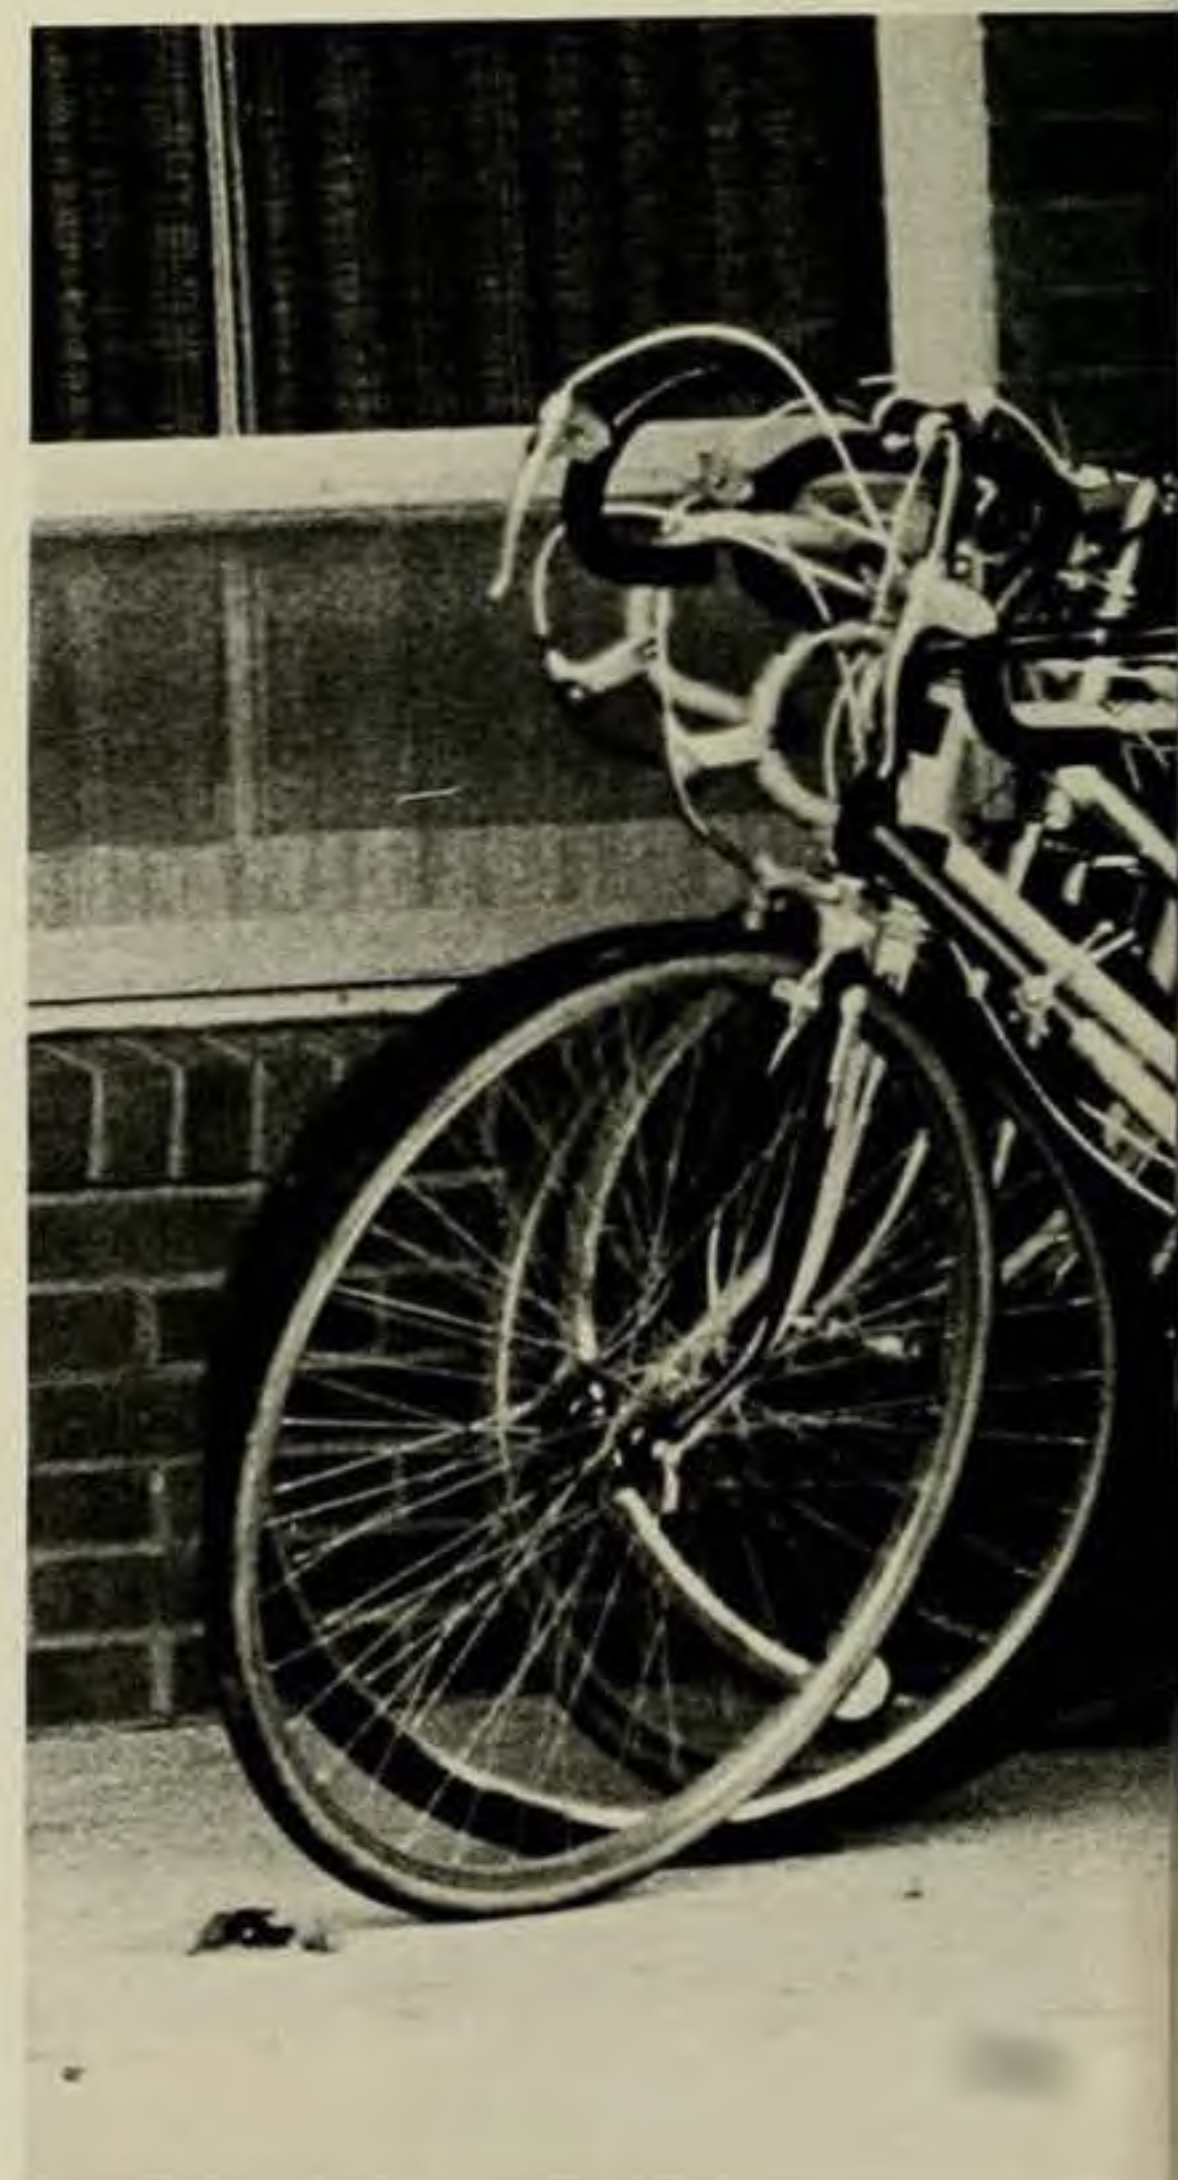

For the most part, visitors are only accepted double or triple occupancy. Private rooms are hard to come by. Occasionally, guests will be forced to room with someone they don't particularly care for. Privacy, unless your roommate dies or is unavoidably called back to Hong Kong, is at a premium. Likewise, inconsiderate revelers have been known to wake up roommates while coming in from a drunken blitz at 3:42 A.M. (obviously a digital clock owner). Social gatherings also have been known to get out of hand at the "club." Just ask anyone studying to the music of Pink Floyd at 102 decibels — the SST is quieter.

Meals are gladly provided for "clubbers" in our spacious, modern Gibbons Hall. A few problems develop, though, when our chefs find a bargain.

They have a tendency to overuse certain foods. Our menu includes chicken Breasteak, chicken cacciotorie, hot dogs, chicken salad, fried chicken, baked chicken, and hamburgers.

For $10.71 a day, our selected clientele can take advantage of our 21 lighted tennis courts, olympic pool, hiking trails and social get-togethers. Our Thursday Night Dukes is of particular interest. All in all our club covers 362 acres and is easily walked from north to south or east to west in 15 minutes. Late risers can take full advantage of our hourly (MWF) and 75 minute (TT) learning experiences with no problem. We at the club know how important those last few minutes of sleep are.

The best part is our one-payment plan. From the time you arrive all meals, lodging, and certain entertainment are free. Before you send in your deposit, however, remember the club has no maid service.

Welcome to the Real World

Commuter students obviously have the advantage over those people who live in dorms. They have already been prepared to face the facts of life before graduating. They will be past the point of cringing as the cash register at the grocery store rings up $46.12. They will have already graduated out of the peanut butter and jelly and T.V. dinner stage. Most commuters are now adept at trying their hands at such gourmet meals as beef stew and roast beef.

For those who drive to campus, paying outrageous gas bills will not be a new experience. For those who ride the bus, a job in the city would be quite appropriate as they have already developed proper padding in the right places. Arranging schedules around a carpool will also be a habit, and getting up at 7:30 when you don't have to be there until 9:30 will be old hat.

Butterflies in the stomach at the end of the month will be long gone for those used to paying electricity, water, and heat bills. Off-campus residents will also never sweat, as they have already learned how to survive without the benefits of an air conditioner.

Parking tickets will be an accepted way of life for most commuters. They have already bought a file to store them in — circular, of course. However, they still omit a sorrowful groan, when they see the little slips fluttering in the breeze. No one can become completely immune to the yellow devils. I could write more but I've got to go catch a bus.

CULTURE SHOCK

Although Madison is not the cultural capital of the Western World, there's also no famine. Programs sponsored by the UPB, the music department, and the general operations budget bring speakers, concerts, plays, and seminars.

As part of the Fine Arts Festival, "Yeah, But is it Art?" Stan Lee, publisher of Marvel Comics, and Al Feldstein, editor of Mad magazine came and led panel discussions and question and answer periods on their field and its relation to art.

The Music department also offers many cultural events. They range from senior recitals, to the Brass ensemble and the Women's choir. Christmas Vespers is an annual highlight. Although not connected with music department the dance ensemble and Communication department also hold cultural events. Dance ensemble sponsors both modern and folk concerts. The Communication department directed plays such as "A Man for All Seasons," and "Fancies."

Arias and xylophones: A Beginner's Guide

Fall semester brought Phillip Morrison and his lecture on "Three Decades of the Arms Race: A Critical Look." John

Gardner came a day later speaking on "Is Art Moral?"

Scheduled speakers for spring semester included Fred Storaska lecturing on self-defense against rape and Dr. Edward Topping spoke on black history in Virginia. Bob Cousy rounded out the lecture series with a basketball clinic and lecture.

The Intellectual Marathon

When the "typical JMU student" tries to read six books at once; stumbles into a dimly lit, table-clothed dining hall; can't find a seat anywhere in the library, not even in the bathroom; and sees signs exclaiming "Dead Hours!" and "Munchies!" plastered everywhere, he instinctively knows something is up.

That something is exam week and the excruciating symptoms break out everywhere. The biggest change is in the student himself. He instantly produces an enormous capacity for learning when he suddenly realizes that the history paper assigned the first day of class has to be written in an hour and a half. He also remembers that the eight chapters of biology he was planning to read "sometime" are going to be on his exam the next day. And, of course, the girl he was going to copy two weeks of notes from has gone home with tonsillitis.

So, to forget all of his academic problems, the student falls back on the age-old solution to tension — food, and decides to go to the D-Hall. He is surprised at the sophisticated atmosphere; the dim lights, the table cloths and the game-birds on a bed of rice. Then he gets hit in the head with a forkful of peas and realizes that he really is in Gibbons Hall. The student begins to think he has stumbled into a crazy house instead of a cafeteria as eight girls sing "Three Blind Mice" at the top of their lungs, and a football player stands on a table spouting chemistry equations.

He wanders back to the library only to discover that a 250 pound boxer has stolen his seat. As he politely moves his books to a seat on the floor, he notices a guy in the corner auctioning off chairs to the highest bidder. Two people (at least) are whispering at every table, a few are talking out loud, and one girl is shouting at her boyfriend in the hallway. Realizing that it is not only impossible to concentrate but also impossible to write on the rug, the student decides to go home, leaving the hard cores to take advantage of the extended library hours.

On his way back to the dorm the student sees a line of people heading towards the D-Hall and decides to follow them to see what is going on. As he steps in the door, he is met with a roar of voices and laughter. Munchies — where the built-up tension is released. Balancing a plate loaded with doughnuts, cheese, and crackers in one hand and holding two glasses of milk in the other, the student heads for the table where his friends are sitting.

After he procrastinates for about 45 minutes, the student reluctantly decides to go back to his dorm and continue his studies. He gets to the front door and sees a sign proclaiming that dead hours are in effect. As he walks in, four people tell him not to make so much noise and one person asks him not to breathe so loudly. Holding his breath, he tiptoes to his room where he finds his roommate fast asleep, face down, on his calculus book. Suddenly he hears stereos blaring in every room and shouting in the hall. The dorm instantly springs to life, and the student remembers that "crazy hour" is in effect and people are cutting loose everywhere. At the end of the hour most of the noise instantly ceases, with only a few last hoots and yells.

And so the week goes on. Just when the student thinks he can't take it any longer, he realizes that he only has one more exam. He manages to get through it without a nervous breakdown, runs out the door, and explodes. When he gets back to his room, he begins stuffing clothes into suitcases and laundry bags, throwing books into boxes and loading four month's worth of junk into a Volkswagon. Somehow he squeezes everything in, hops behind the wheel and heads for home, relieved that he made it through another nerve-racking exam week.

Wins over Tech Highlight season

Defeating all other Division I schools in Virginia distinguishes champions, although there is no such official title. Two exciting victories over a new schedule addition — Virginia Tech — highlighted the Duke's season. The 9-6 victory at Blacksburg followed a devastating 21-8 win at home.

The 30-11 record won the team their first bid for the Eastern Collegiate Athletic Conference playoffs. Although favored to win, they were eliminated in the first two games.

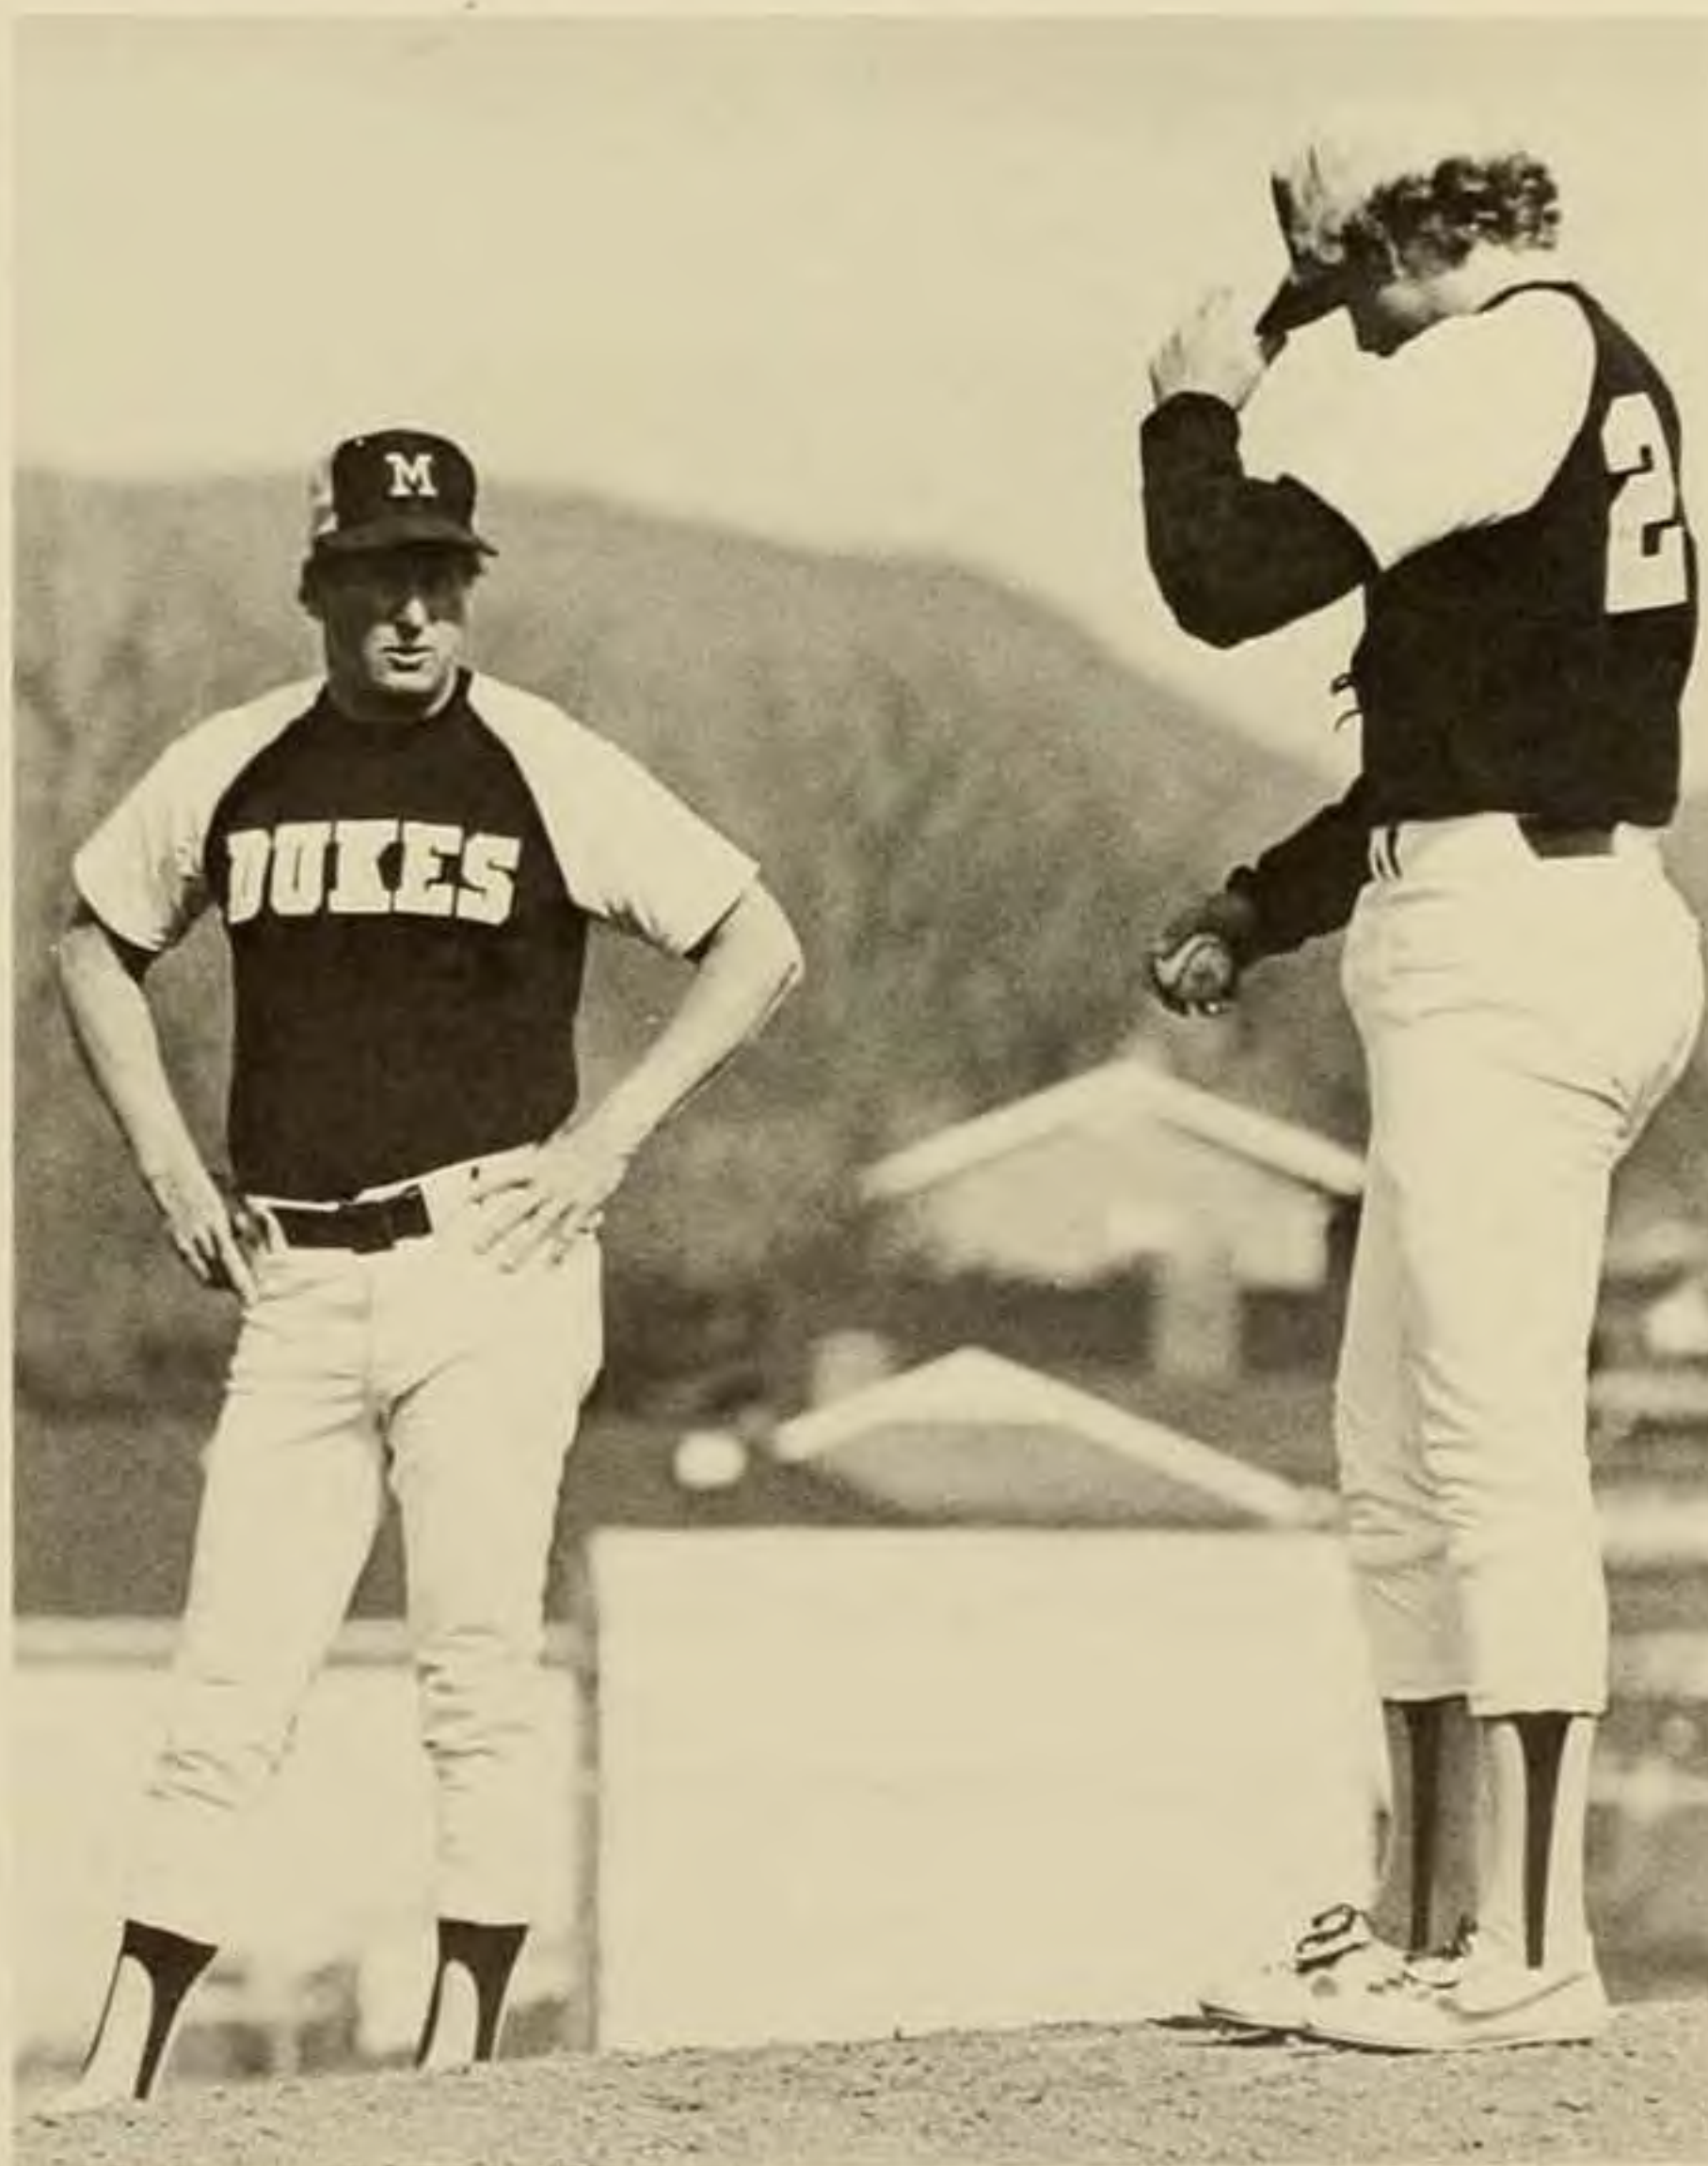

Five senior starters strengthened the team. Tim Semones and Dennis Mead each won 20 games as pitcher. Co-captain Dave Showalter was starting catcher for 4 years. Co-captain Mike Naff was very successful as relief pitcher, and Roger Lee's batting ability credited him with 10 home runs for the season.

Two more players will not return next year. J.W. Mitchell and Dan Prior had the option of returning as seniors or signing pro contracts. Both were drafted by major league clubs: Mitchell signed with the Chicago Cubs and Prior with the Philadelphia Phillies.

Because of Virginia's long, cold winters, and Madison's early ending spring semester, it was necessary to schedule 47 games into 55 days. This extremely heavy schedule causes tremendous academic strain, but as one player stated, "When you love the game, it's worth it."

Teamwork Captures VWLA State Championship

The first collegiate championship of the Virginia Women's Lacrosse Association (VWLA) yielded to the Duchesses. Winning the state title allowed the team to bypass the Regional tournament and compete in the first collegiate championship in the history of the United States Women's Lacrosse Association. The Duchesses finished seventh in the tournament held on the JMU campus in May.

Filling the high scoring position of second home became a major concern early in the season. Several veterans were tested in the position, but freshman Jill Heller skillfully solved the problem leading the team in scoring with 26 goals in only 12 games.

LACROSSE

The season had a frustrating start. The talent existed, but the players worked as individuals rather than as the essential unit. As the season progressed so did the teamwork. "We became more confident in each others abilities and learned to anticipate each other's moves. Then we began to win," said defensive key Sue Grainer. Consequently, a deceptive 8-6-1 record preceeded the team to their strong finish.

Competition Sparks Team

Starting the season in Florida's 90° climate gave the men's track and field team a mental as well as a physical boost. The Florida Relay was the first of several relays that filled most of their schedule. The fourteen man team well represented JMU in this high caliber competition, which highlighted the season.

The Colonial Relay at William and Mary, the most prestigious meet in Virginia, the Dogwood Relay at the Univ. of Tenn, the Penn Relay at Penn State, and 3 dual meets completed the schedule.

The relays precipitated a 4th place finish of 14 teams in the State Championship. Tripling their highest point total to date, the team improved their previous 6th place state finish.

In order to participate in relays a team member must qualify in dual meets or with their best performance to date. JMU's representation reflected the individual talent and determination on the team. Captain Keith Pope was a high hurdle finalist in all the relays, winning the Colonial. Sam Onwuli (long and triple jump) and Richard Ferguson (1000 meter) joined Pope in qualifying for the Intercol-

The individual determination of thirteen girls won the Virginia Association of Intercollegiate Athletics for Women Track and Field Championship. Adversities of cold weather, 6 o'clock morning practices, and sickness reduced the ranks drastically, but the team that remained continued powerfully, breaking many state records. The Duchesses accumulated 82 points by entering each team member in several events. This strategy enabled them to capture the title with the extra edge given by points collected in seconds, thirds, and fourths. The state championship coupled with a 6-1 regular meet record garnished the season of the baker's dozen.

Steady Record Marks Season

Scheduling Division I schools produced a drastic change in the men's tennis team's schedule, but stiffer competition improves playing. Acquisition of freshman Mark Snead proved to be a tremendous asset to the team. Several wins at #2 singles and teaming up with #1 player Steve Gill to win the A flight doubles championship at the Towson Invitational Tournament culminated an excellent season for Snead. Steve Gill's three set victory over Virginia Amateur Champion Jim Milley of V.P.I. highlighted the fall season.

Dave Rigotti, playing #5 singles and teaming with John Witt at #3 doubles, recorded several important wins. Witt at #4 singles had a big win over V.P.I. A disappointing team finish in the State Tournament ended the fall season.

Women Have Strong Tennis Program

"Madison is in the middle between prestigious and scholarship schools, but we have a good women's tennis program that counterbalances this," said junior 3rd seed Cathie Tyler. The New York tournament in October drew 39 strong teams from all over the East. The duchesses' impressive 9th place tie with Rutgers highlighted the fall season and demonstrated the true success of the program. Two team members were entered in singles, Karen Dickey and Heidi Hess. Dickey placed in the top 8. Cathie Tyler-Marsha Williams, and Mary Perkins-Martha Hall were the doubles teams entered. Tyler-Williams finished in the top 12.

A third place finish in large colleges at the 1978 Spring State Tournament accentuated their record. Unfortunately a two point margin between JMU and Va Tech prevented the women from going to the Regional Tournament.

Tournaments have replaced dual matches in the men's golf schedule. "In tournaments you find out how you stand against more teams at one time. They give better recognition which results in a better schedule," explained senior golfer Mike McCarthy. The team won two invitations this fall. The Canaan Valley Invitation and the Joseph Bartell Memorial, in which Mike Moyers and Mike McCarthy won first and second respectively. Both seniors maintained a 73 stroke average throughout the season.

An invitation to the Foxfire All American Tournament, at Pinehurst, N.C., was finally received. Forty-three schools participated from all over the East on the finest golf course on the East Coast. The Dukes finished a strong 9th, falling short of 5th by only 8 strokes.

Because the traveling team consists of only 6 members, summer tournaments give individuals recognition they might have missed during the season. They also help JMU's publicity and eventually the recruiting. Many of the golfers are very successful in these tournaments.

Elusive State Title Reclaimed

GOLF

"He who has the will to win will not be beat." This motto accurately portrayed the women's golf team as they made a comeback over Longwood to win the State Championship for the first time since 1974. Individuals always placed high, but a weaker fourth player had kept the title out of reach. This strong team reversed that trend. Pam Maurer explained that "we give each other a lot of moral support which helps your attitude and your game, but you're alone on the course and then you play for yourself."

One transition for the team was the change from match play scoring to overall stroke scoring. Each girl was paired against the opposing teams member of equal rank. Whoever shot lowest won. All scores combined to determine the winning team.

Archers Dominate State

Archery competitions are regional. JUM's team competes in the north eastern region, which includes Penn., NY, and NJ, traveling no further south than Virginia.

The winning team is chosen by combining the scores of the top 3 scoring archers for men and for women. The top 2 men's and the top 2 women's scores are added together for the winning mixed team.

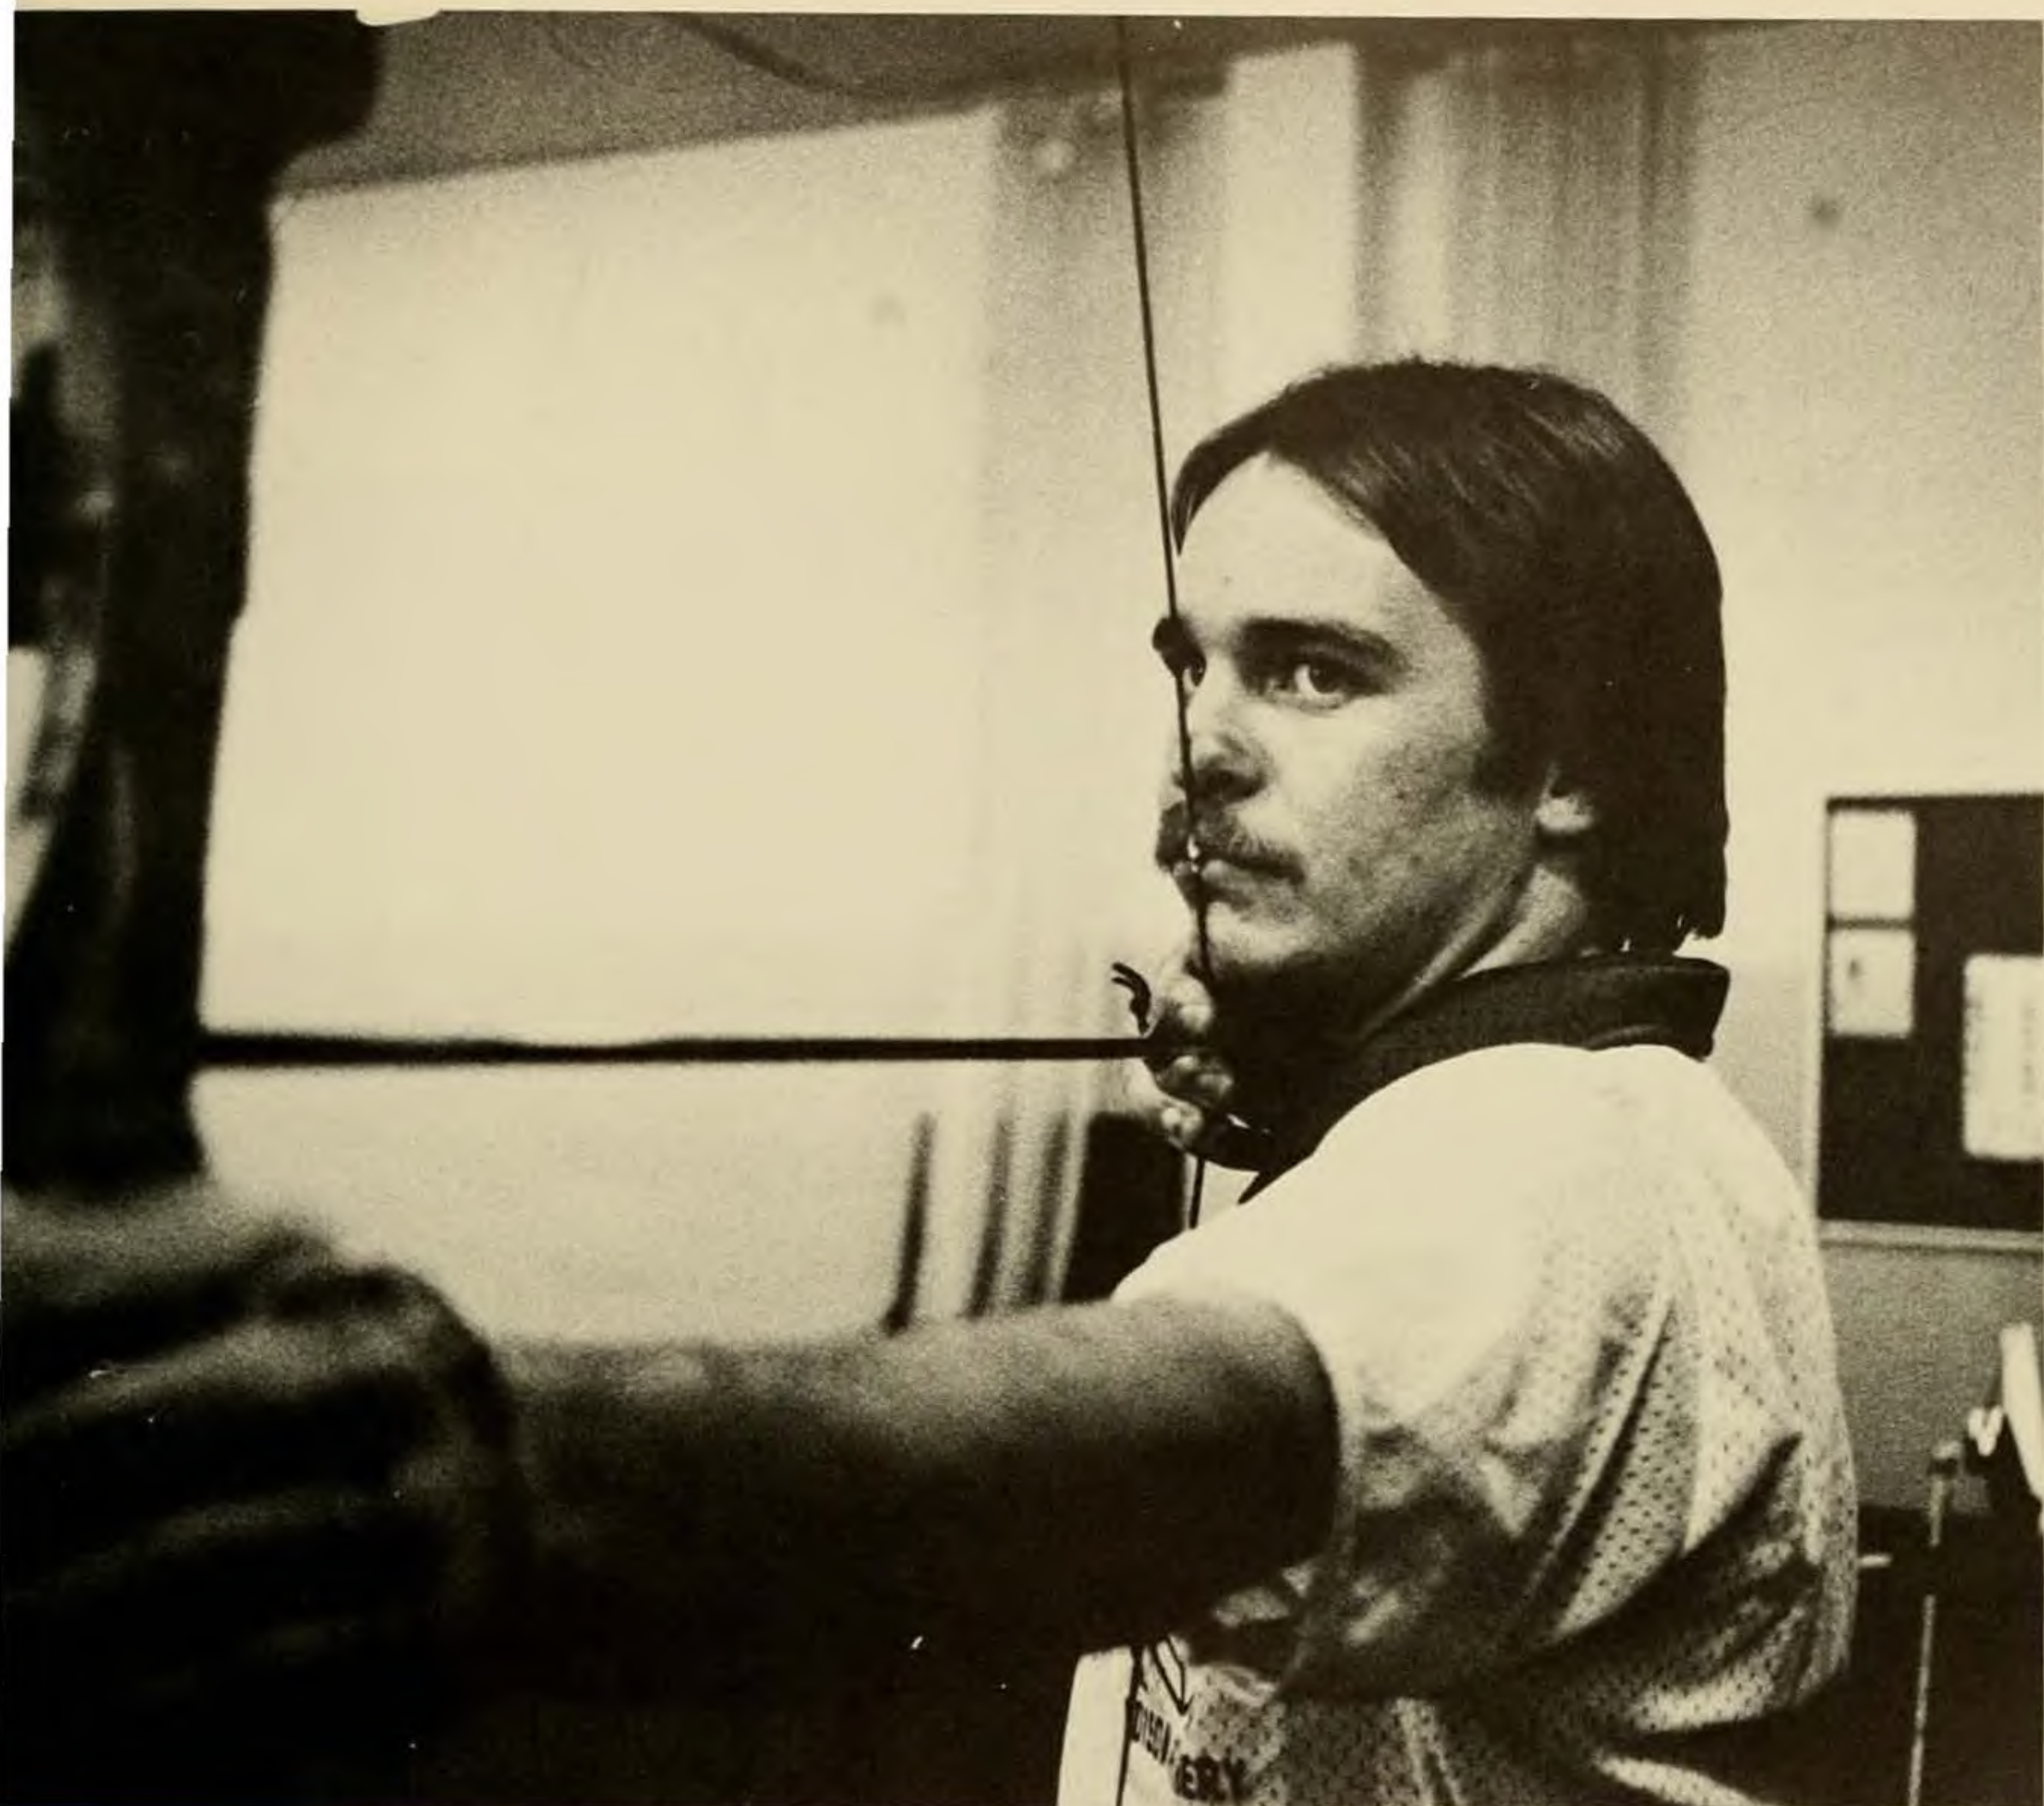

The strong men's team finished 10-3, losing only to East Stroudsburg, the top team in the region. The state title fell to JMU, followed by second place in the Eastern Regionals, and the North American Indoor Championship (NAI).

Kevin Wilgus placed 1st in State, 2nd in Region, 3rd in NAI, and was a selected Alternate All American. Rick Kiser followed Wilgus in State, placed 5th in U.S. Indoor, 5th in NAI, 9th in U.S. Intercollegiates, and was a selected Alternate All American.

The women's team also won the state championship, and placed 3rd in the eastern region. Diane Jeffrey finished 1st in State and 9th in Region. The women lacked some depth, which was reflected in their 5-9 season record. The mixed team ended the season with a 2-9 record.

Concentration's the Key

Cross Country is not a sport that many people wish to participate in. Most bodies do not relish the idea of running mile, after mile, after mile . . . "The key is keeping your concentration on running the race," said junior cocaptain Jeryl Turner, "you concentrate on your form, staying relaxed, and a positive attitude about the race."

The distance run is not a major concern. Cocaptain Richard Ferguson feels the second mile is the most important for position. Your position then is roughly where you'll be until the end. It becomes hard to make up ground after the second mile, especially on hilly terrain. The team runs five miles at dual meets, and approximately 6.2 miles at tournaments and state meets.

Individual performances improved, but their 0-4 record doesn't reflect this because of the switch to running against Division I schools. Ferguson finished 7th in the State meet which qualified him for the NCAA meet in November.

Playoff Bid Blocked

The JMU football team completed the season with an 8-2 record in a crushing 42-12 win over Emory and Henry. The Dukes allowed no more than two touchdowns per game by their opponent, with the exception of William and Mary, and broke several school records. In their last victory, senior quarterback John Bowers set records completing 19 of 25 passes for 270 yards, and 302 total offensive yards. His 2074 passing yardage total broke the previous high mark. Joe Showker, senior placekicker, set a new record by connecting 32 of 33 extra point attempts. A single season interception mark of 19 was set by the team.

The team expected the loss to William and Mary, but the surprising fall to Salisbury marred the near perfect record.

"The Shippensburg victory was especially satisfying because they beat us so badly last year," said Bowers. Bowers completing to Rich Hetherington gained a first down on the game's initial snap. Passing comprised much of the Dukes' playing in the first half, however, the only scoring resulted from a pass interference penalty, which gave JMU the ball at the SSC 37. Bowers, on a quarterback draw, gained 29 yards. Taking a pitch-out around left end three plays later, tailback James Fields gained JMU a six point lead. Showker made it 7-0. Two other scoring attempts from the SSC 1 and a field goal attempt were unsuccessful.

The defense set up the second touchdown with tough playing midway into the third quarter. Linebacker Ray Jarvis had a head-on collision with a halfback, giving JMU possession at the SSC 46. Fields, carrying four consecutive times, gained 27 yards. Six more plays alternating between fullback Todd Martin and Bowers, gained the last yardage, with Bowers sneaking the last yard for the final touchdown of the game. A strong defense continued to prevent determined Shippensburg from scoring. Defensive tackle Tom Martin stopped SSC's Bob Potts on fourth down at the JMU 35, clinching the Dukes' win.

JMU and Shippensburg were striving for play off bids. Both were unsuccessful. Although the SSC win put JMU back in the running, the team's 9th place final rank edged them out of the eight team playoff bearth. The team fell short of their ultimate goal but development of attitude and skill marked an excellent season.

FOOTBALL

Beginning the season relatively inexperienced, with only four starters from the previous year, the JMU Field Hockey team proceeded to end the season with a winning 13-6 record.

Unlike many teams, which rely on one or two strong players to win the game, the Duchesses were more well rounded — no one player stood out.

The traditional 5-3-2-1 system of field positioning used early in the season, failed to be extremely successful. The team went into a bad slump mid season, which set them back. Confidence levels dropped. "You need the losses to appreciate the wins, but continual losses kill your morale," said senior Captain Julie Hull. "Coach Luce talked to us and we began to talk amongst ourselves. We played our hearts out and we began to win." A switch to a 4-2-3-1-1 system resulted in a stronger team.

Coach Janet Luce taught the girls hockey sense. She helped form an inexperienced team into a very good team. Even though JMU lost to William & Mary early in the state finals, they had a winning season.

"To be a better performer you must play the best opponent," says Coach Vanderwarker. JMU's soccer team was the first Madison team to change to Division I, in 1973, and has been playing one of the toughest schedules in the country since the change.

Three frustrating losses began the high hope season, but the Dukes demolished VCU 10-0 in an uplifting fourth game victory. Defeating EMC established local superiority. The team then faced St. Louis University in the Loyola College Invitational; St. Louis soundly beat the Dukes. Not to be shaken, the team won the consolation game against St. Peter's College 1-0.

They then traveled to the Old Dominion University Tournament where they defeated William and Mary in the first round. An exciting championship game against UNC-Wilmington went into overtime in which UNC-W won the title. Destroying VaTech at Blacksburg marked the return of VISA State championship hopes. The following three games against Duke, Washington and Lee, and Lynchburg ended as JMU shutouts. The Lynchburg victory highlighted Homecoming and sent the Hornets crawling home. The UVA game ended in an aggravating tie, but wins over VMI and Roanoke College followed.

A 1-2 loss to William and Mary in the first VISA state championship playoff game ended the team's title goal, but a first time victory over the U.S. Naval Academy finished the season on a positive note. The loss to W&M was the only Virginia loss. The team boasted an 8-1-1 record against state opponents.

Seniors Hal Partenheimer and David Dragelin provided leadership throughout the season as captains and good performances as halfback and back respectively. Rodney Allen displayed expertise as marking back. Otis Fuller exhibited his versatility on the field adding two key goals to his record. Tom Hochkeppel made 4 goals for a 4 year total of 27 goals — 19 assists. Tom Zoner and Mark Wallace earned starting positions and made key contributions to the teams winning efforts. An 8 goal — 2 assist total made Partenheimer leading scorer for the season.

Practice for JMU's equestrian team begins two weeks after fall classes start and continues until two weeks before the spring semester ends. The six member team rides at Oak Manor Farms in Weyers Cave.

The team competes in open and intercollegiate shows. Competition includes form in jumps up to 3'6" and hacking, which is walking, trotting and cantering the horse.

"In intercollegiate shows, everyone rides the host school's horses. Judging is on the rider," said team member Lisa Vesper, "In open horse shows, depending on the class, judging is on either the horse or the rider. Participants may ride their own horse, but it's their coach's decision."

Depending on the level the rider is on, she is entered in the appropriate division — open; novice; advanced and beginner walk, trot, canter; and advanced and beginner walk, trot. At each intercollegiate show the high point school and rider are chosen. They are determined by total points earned from placing by total points earned from placing by the team members the coach has previously selected. A rider must accumulate 21 points to advance to a higher division of competition. Twenty-one points won in a division qualifies the rider to compete in Regionals. Qualifying in Regionals advances the rider to Nationals. Unfortunately, the girls can't accumulate enough points to get out of cleaning the stalls!

The JMU fencers worked together as a team, but when each fencer went to the strip they were totally on their own. Using skill, finesse, and quick thinking, each fencer attempted to score five touches within six minutes.

Eight of the nine team members were first or second year fencers. All nine learned to fence while at JMU, and five team members began fencing during the fall semester. Becca Cowan was the only third yearer.

All of the fencing teams on the East Coast are in one division belonging to the National Intercollegiate Women's Fencing Association.

"Our team does well in state," Coach Dalton said, "and out-of-state we do better than other Virginia schools." Out-of-state schools are added to the schedule to improve the team's skills through tougher competition.

Each JMU fencer bouts with each opponent fencer for a total of sixteen. Total bouts won determines the meet winner. Total touches break a tie.

The varsity team has a 5-5 season record, and the junior varsity ended with a 4-1 record.

Lacking height didn't inhibit the JMU's Women's Volleyball team. Using superior defense and teamwork, and a four player serve, for more specialization on offense, the girls finished the season with a 25-14 record.

The West Virginia University Invitational — a six team round robin tournament — chalked up on early season, no defeat, victory for the Duchesses. Within the state, JMU split matches with William and Mary, and Virginia Tech, lost to Virginia Commonwealth University, and won all other in-state matches.

The Duchesses ended as runner-up in the VAIW Large College State Volleyball Championship, losing a close three game match to VCU.

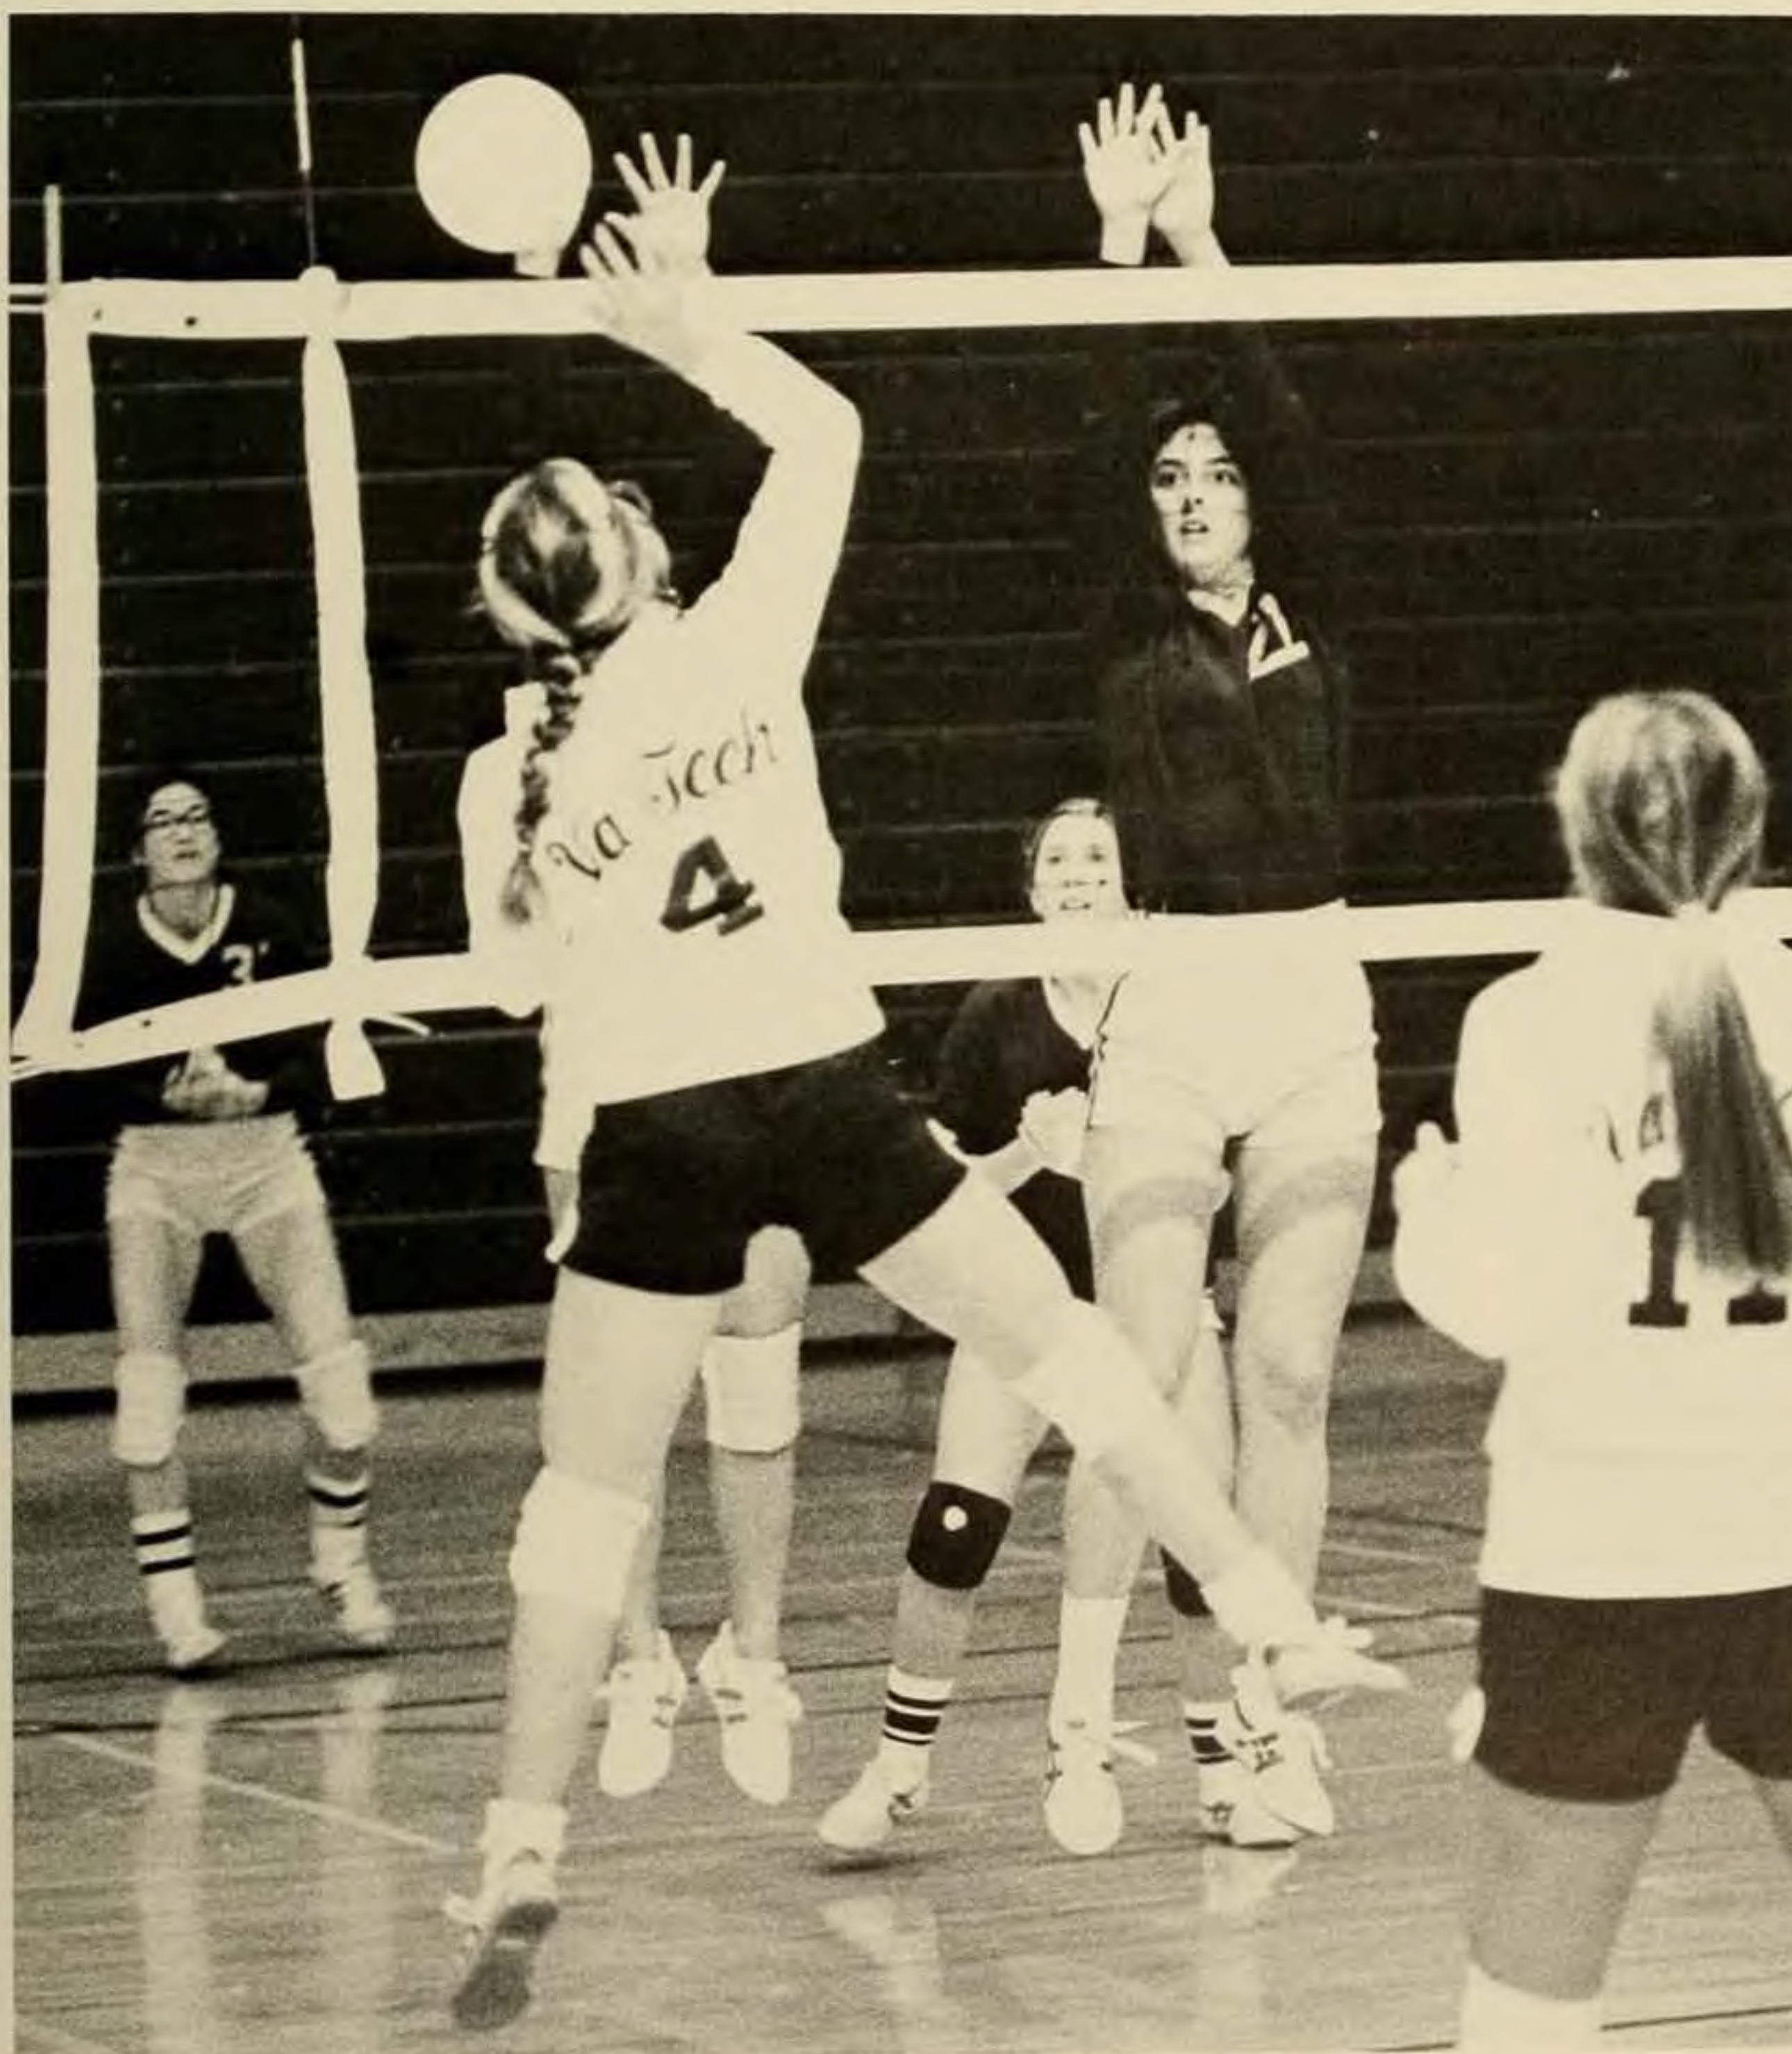

Seniors Mary Ford — setter; Trisha Hallam — center spiker; Diane Hicks — spiker; and Laura Wakeman — spiker and co-captain with Sophomore Sharon Barr, will be missed next year.

The junior varsity had an undefeated season playing both junior varsity and several small college teams.

BASKETBALL

The JMU men's basketball team used an effective position rotation strategy this season. "Every player on our team can play two or three positions," Senior Roger Hughett said. "There are a multiple of ways we can have five on the court."

The Dukes used this flexibility to their advantage by matching up sizes and abilities with their opponents. In case of foul trouble there was always someone to take over the position.

This strategy was tested to a maximum when Gerard Maturines's position was left vacant mid season. The key position, "the big man", was open. The void had to be filled, so to compensate Steve Stielper switched into the true center position. Steve Blackmon and Tyrone Shoulders filled Stielper's spot. The moves almost completely rearranged the team.

Everyone had to pitch in a little more to compensate.

Defeating George Washington in the University of Virginia tournament gave the team a good early season confidence boost. George Washington had been predicted to win big.

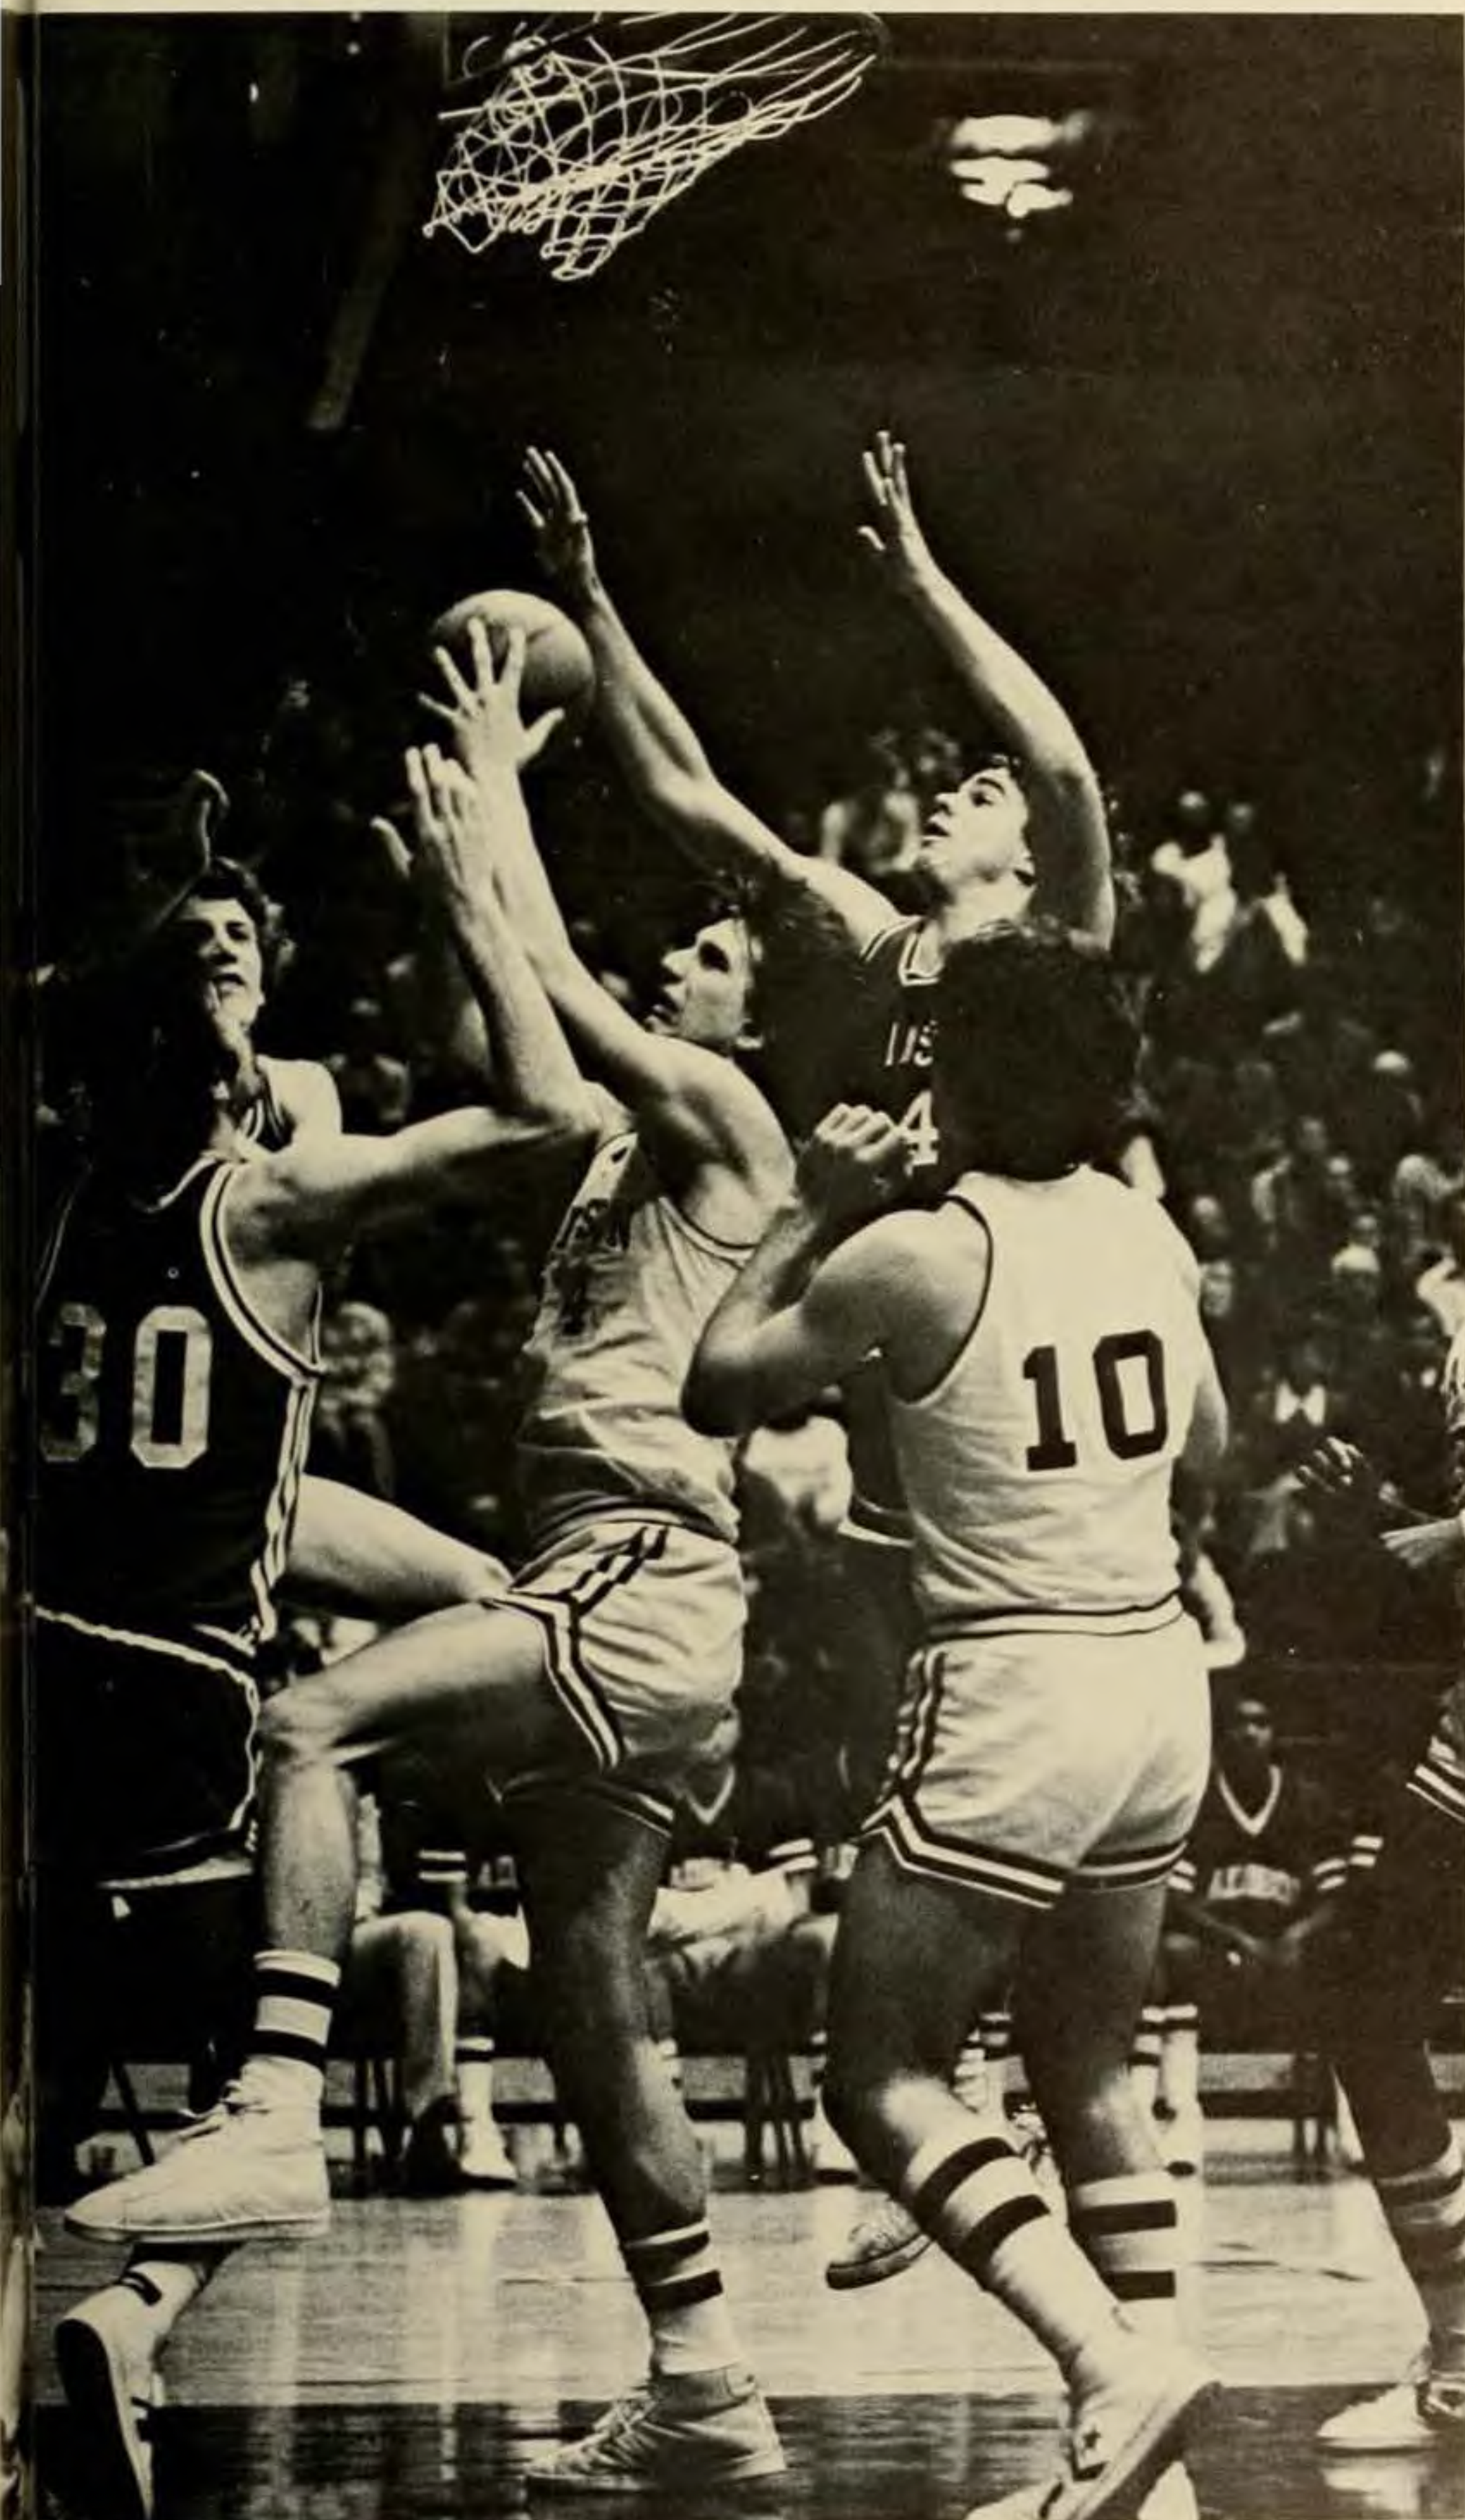

However, all hopes for an ECAC Division I bid disappeared with a ten point spread loss to St. Francis (Pa.). "We got the bad whistle that night," Hughett said, "and it drained us emotionally. That blew our chances of a bid."

Junior Steve Stielper set four new school records this season. His season points totalled 668, a 25.7 point game average. In the January 27th Robert Morris College game, Stielper scored 51 points. His field goal percentage was 59.8, and in free throws he ended the season with a 76.1 percentage.

Defense Ranked First in State

An extremely strong defense was the "Spark plug" to the JMU women's basketball team's winning season. The defense was ranked first in the state in allowing opponents to score the least number of points.

Most of the players returned from a season that was not particularly successful, Coach Jaynes said. This confidence problem had to be overcome.

Games were scheduled by a phase system. Phase I included all the games before Christmas. These were out-of-state games scheduled to prepare the team for division games. Phase II was a seven game trip during Christmas break. Phase III began mid January and included the division games. All three phases were directed toward getting a good seeding in the state tournament.

The team played very well on the Colorado trip. The five year long trip losing streak was finally broken, and the team's confidence increased.

With basically the same team as last year, the Duchesses faced their strong rival the University of Virginia, with memories of a forty point loss. This time U. Va.'s mental and physical plays failed as the Duchesses squelched them 65-46.

For the second time in the JMU women's basketball history, a player broke 1000 points. Mindy Childress broke the 1000 point mark in the Towson Invitational. A new individual scoring record was set at 34 points by Sharon Cessna in the JMU Invitational. During the Norfolk State game, Childress broke Cessna's record with 35 points.

The team set a new field goal record at 58 percent in the Bridgewater game. In the U. Va. game, a 84.4 percent free throw record was set.

Seniors Mindy Childress and Anna Harcey were the captains.

SWIMMING

Times Shaved Records Broken

The swimmers shaved their bodies before the state meet, and there most of them shaved their times.

A stronger program was implemented this season. A weight workout was added along with twice a week morning workouts. More yards were swam during the twenty hour week of practices. Each swimmer filled out "goal cards" and sealed them until the banquet. Everything directed toward states.

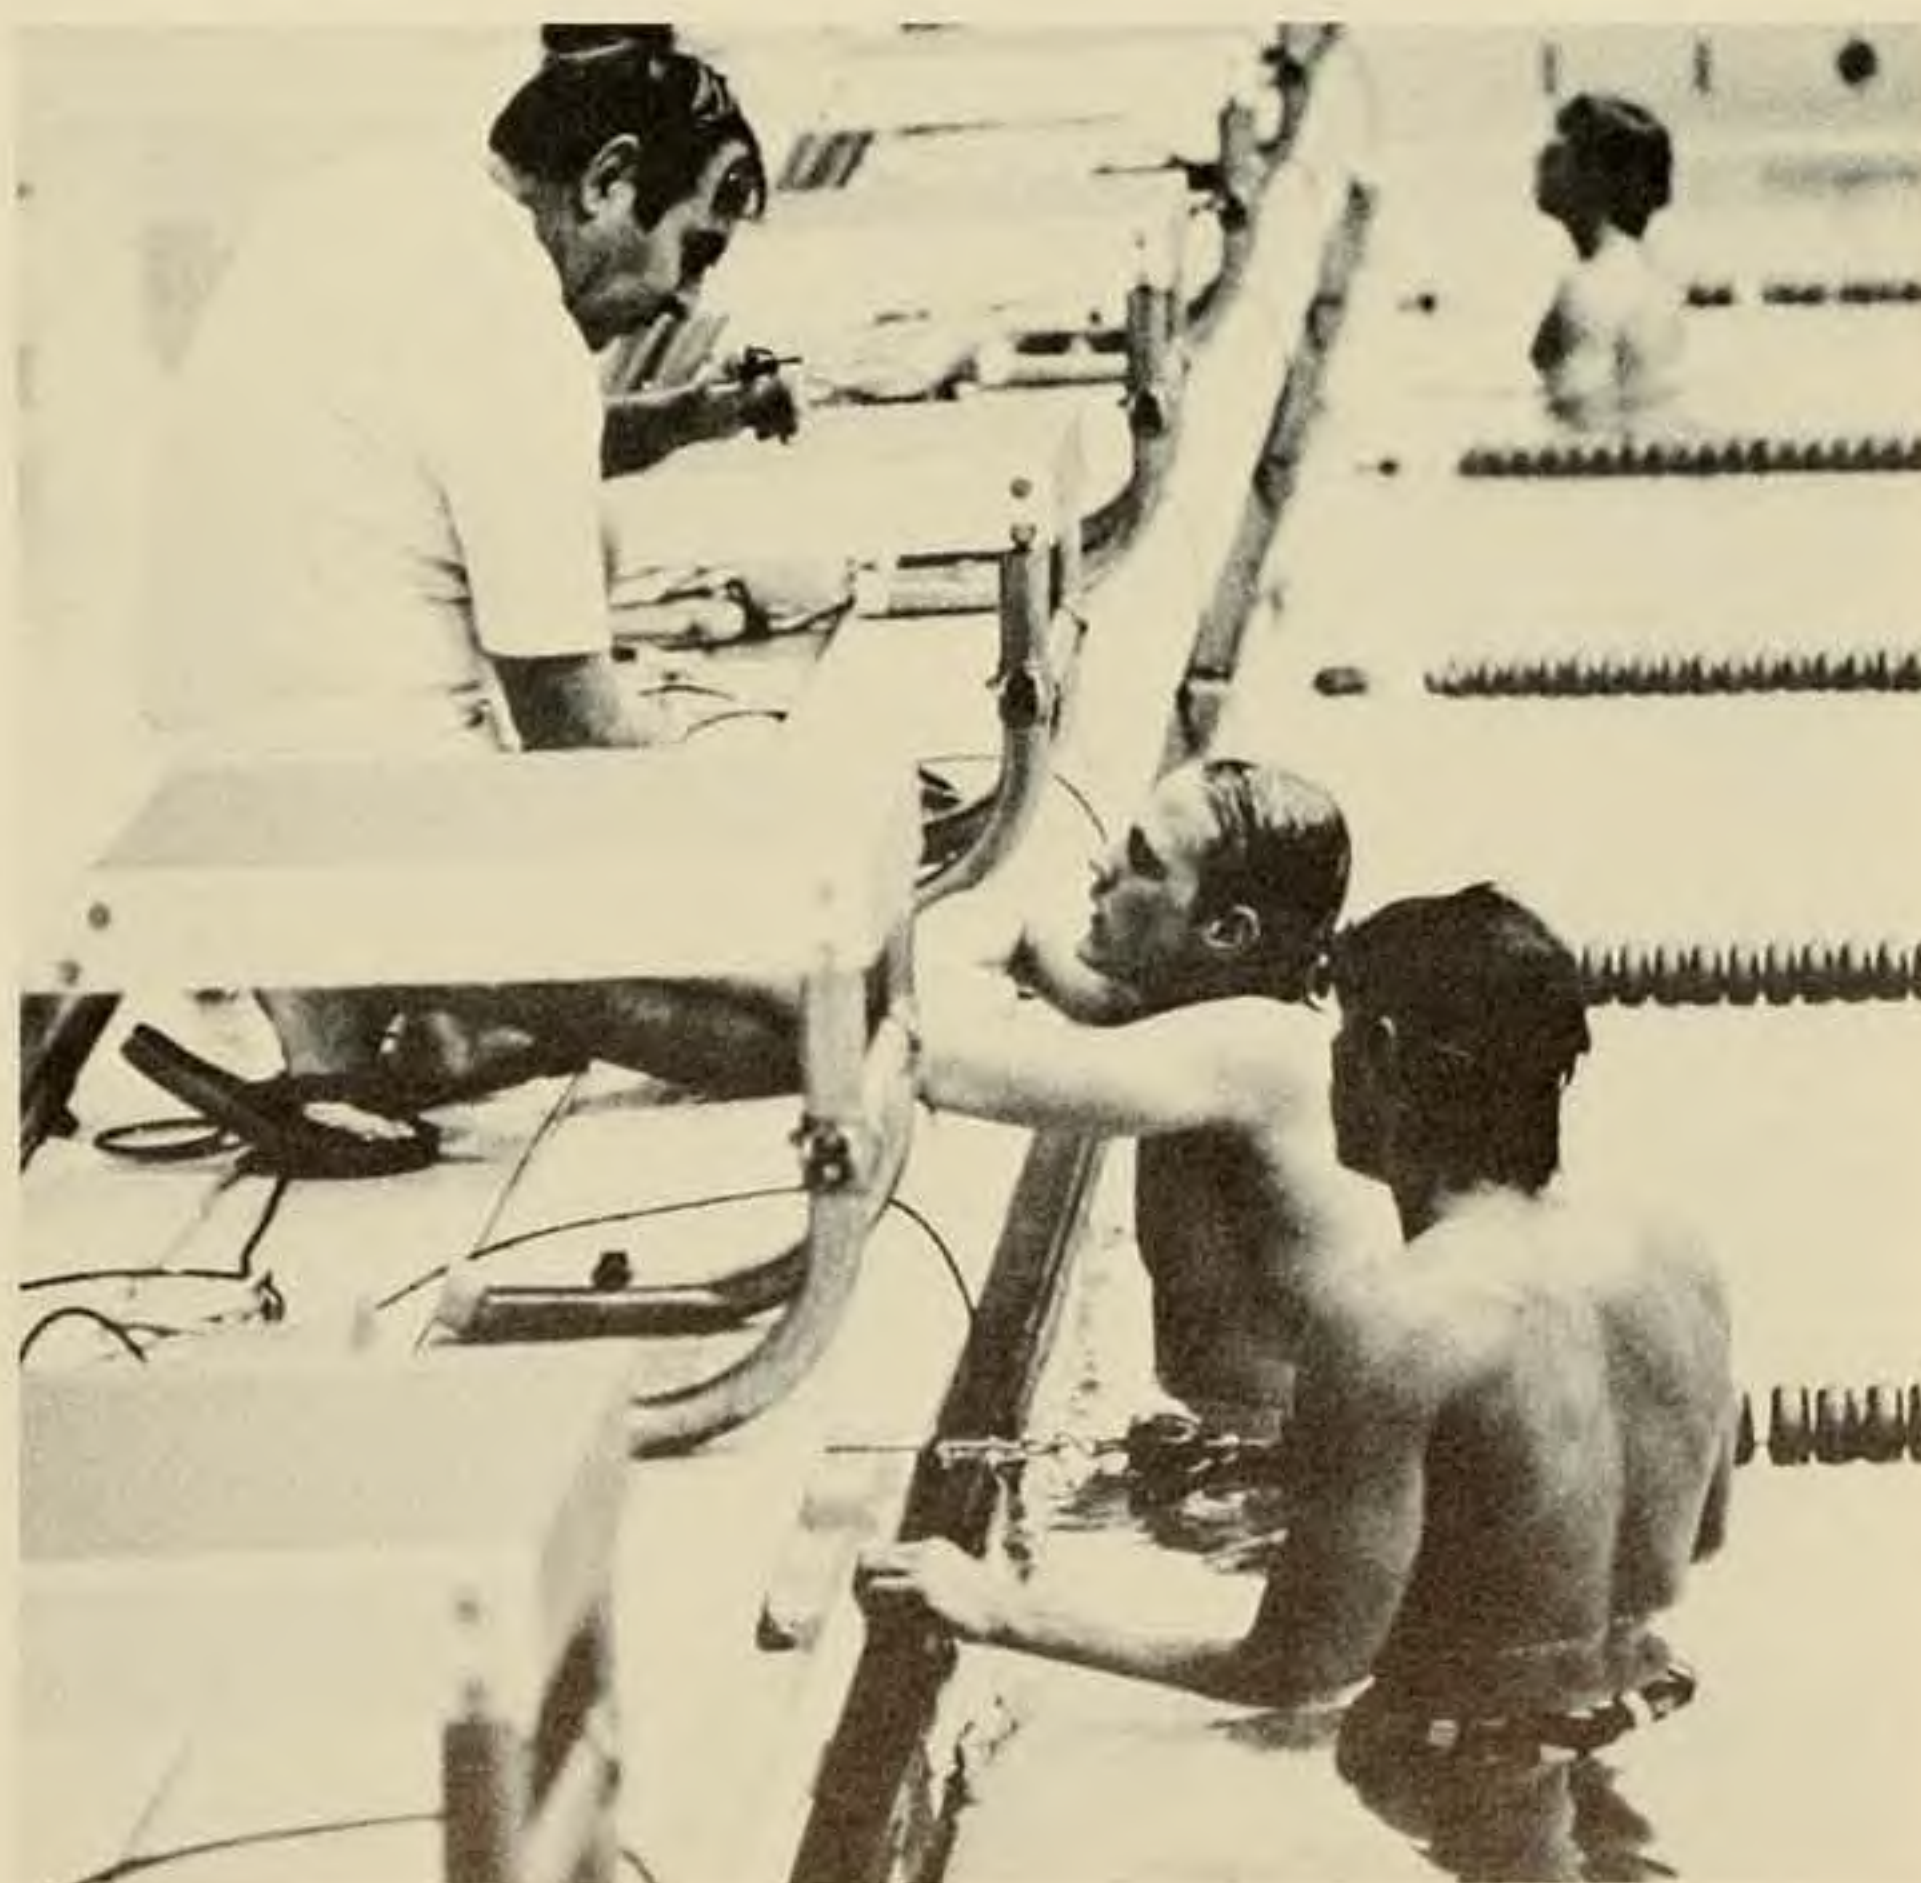

A victory weekend preceded the finals. The men defeated George Washington, Towson, and Georgetown.

The team broke a majority of the schools records and placed fifth in states. Jack Brooks took JMU's premiere state meet first with a time of 16:45.8, in the mile race. Mike West took first on the three meter board. Brooks and Pete Laiti qualified for the ECAC meet in Boston.

A problem arose because of the heavy scheduled weekends. Fewer meets would have allowed more essential workout time, instead of extended weekends of missed practices.

"There's a lot of support and psych from the team," captain Kris Weimerskirch said, "but a lot of the success comes from the motivation inside the individual swimmer."

"Improving our team record was the most gratifying thing that happened this year." Co-captain Anita Callahan said. "Everyone is going into states with a good attitude." The JMU women's swimming and diving team won only two meets last season, but this season they ended with a 9-4 record.

A major change was made in the team's practice. The girls swam an average of 5000 yards (200 lengths) each practice, which was an increase from last year of about 1000 yards. Practice started in September.

A swimmer can swim in four events each meet with a maximum of three individual events. This keeps a team from relying on a few very strong swimmers and makes it easier on the individual.

The JMU team broke nine records in the seasonal meets. Captains Anita Callahan and Francis Kelley were the only seniors. Kelley broke several records, and Callahan broke records in the relay teams.

Defeating William and Mary was a goal that had eluded the team for several years. This season the team had a very big win over William and Mary in which five teams records were broken.

As Coach Skippy Courtet said, "All the team records broken by vets this season means we're doing something right someplace."

"Sharing one coach with the women's team puts a lot of responsibility on each of us," co-captain David Carter said. "We have to help each other." This circumstance made development difficult for the JMU men's gymnastics team, but overall they performed much better this year.

Coach Kruger encouraged them to become as knowledgeable as they could about their events. Time limited him to only making suggestions from his observations and teaching them to make their own evaluations. They are operating on a minor league effort in a major league (Division I), Kruger said.

There are six events in men's competition: floor exercise, pommel horse, rings, vault, parallel bars, and high bar. At the higher levels of proficiency, the gymnast works on an average of two skills within an event a year. During seasonal meets the men compete in optional exercises, which means the routine is created by the individual gymnast.

Six to four team members participate in each meet. Four compete in all of the events and a maximum of two compete as specialists participating in only one event. The best four scores are tabulated for the team's total points. Judging is based on difficulty, combination, execution, risk, originality and venturousity (dramatics).

David Carter broke two school records this season. In floor exercises he set a new record at 8.55, and on the pommel horse a record of 7.45.

Training Responsibilities Rest On Team Members

Problems Prompt Adjustment

The women's gymnastic team faced several problems this year. Physical difficulties, national changes in scoring, a dramatic increase in the skill level of William and Mary and Radford, and limited facilities, all required major adjustments.

Intense conditioning for the women and men began the night after fall registration. The women's team dropped from 29 members, thirteen of which were college caliber gymnasts, to seven during the course of the season. Six of the thirteen members dropped due to injuries and time conflicts.

A national change in the scoring system from 8 point scores to low 7 point scores caused problems in the essential mental psych. This change was due to the addition of risk, originality and venturousity to the judging.

This made scoring comparable from a collegiate to an Olympic level.

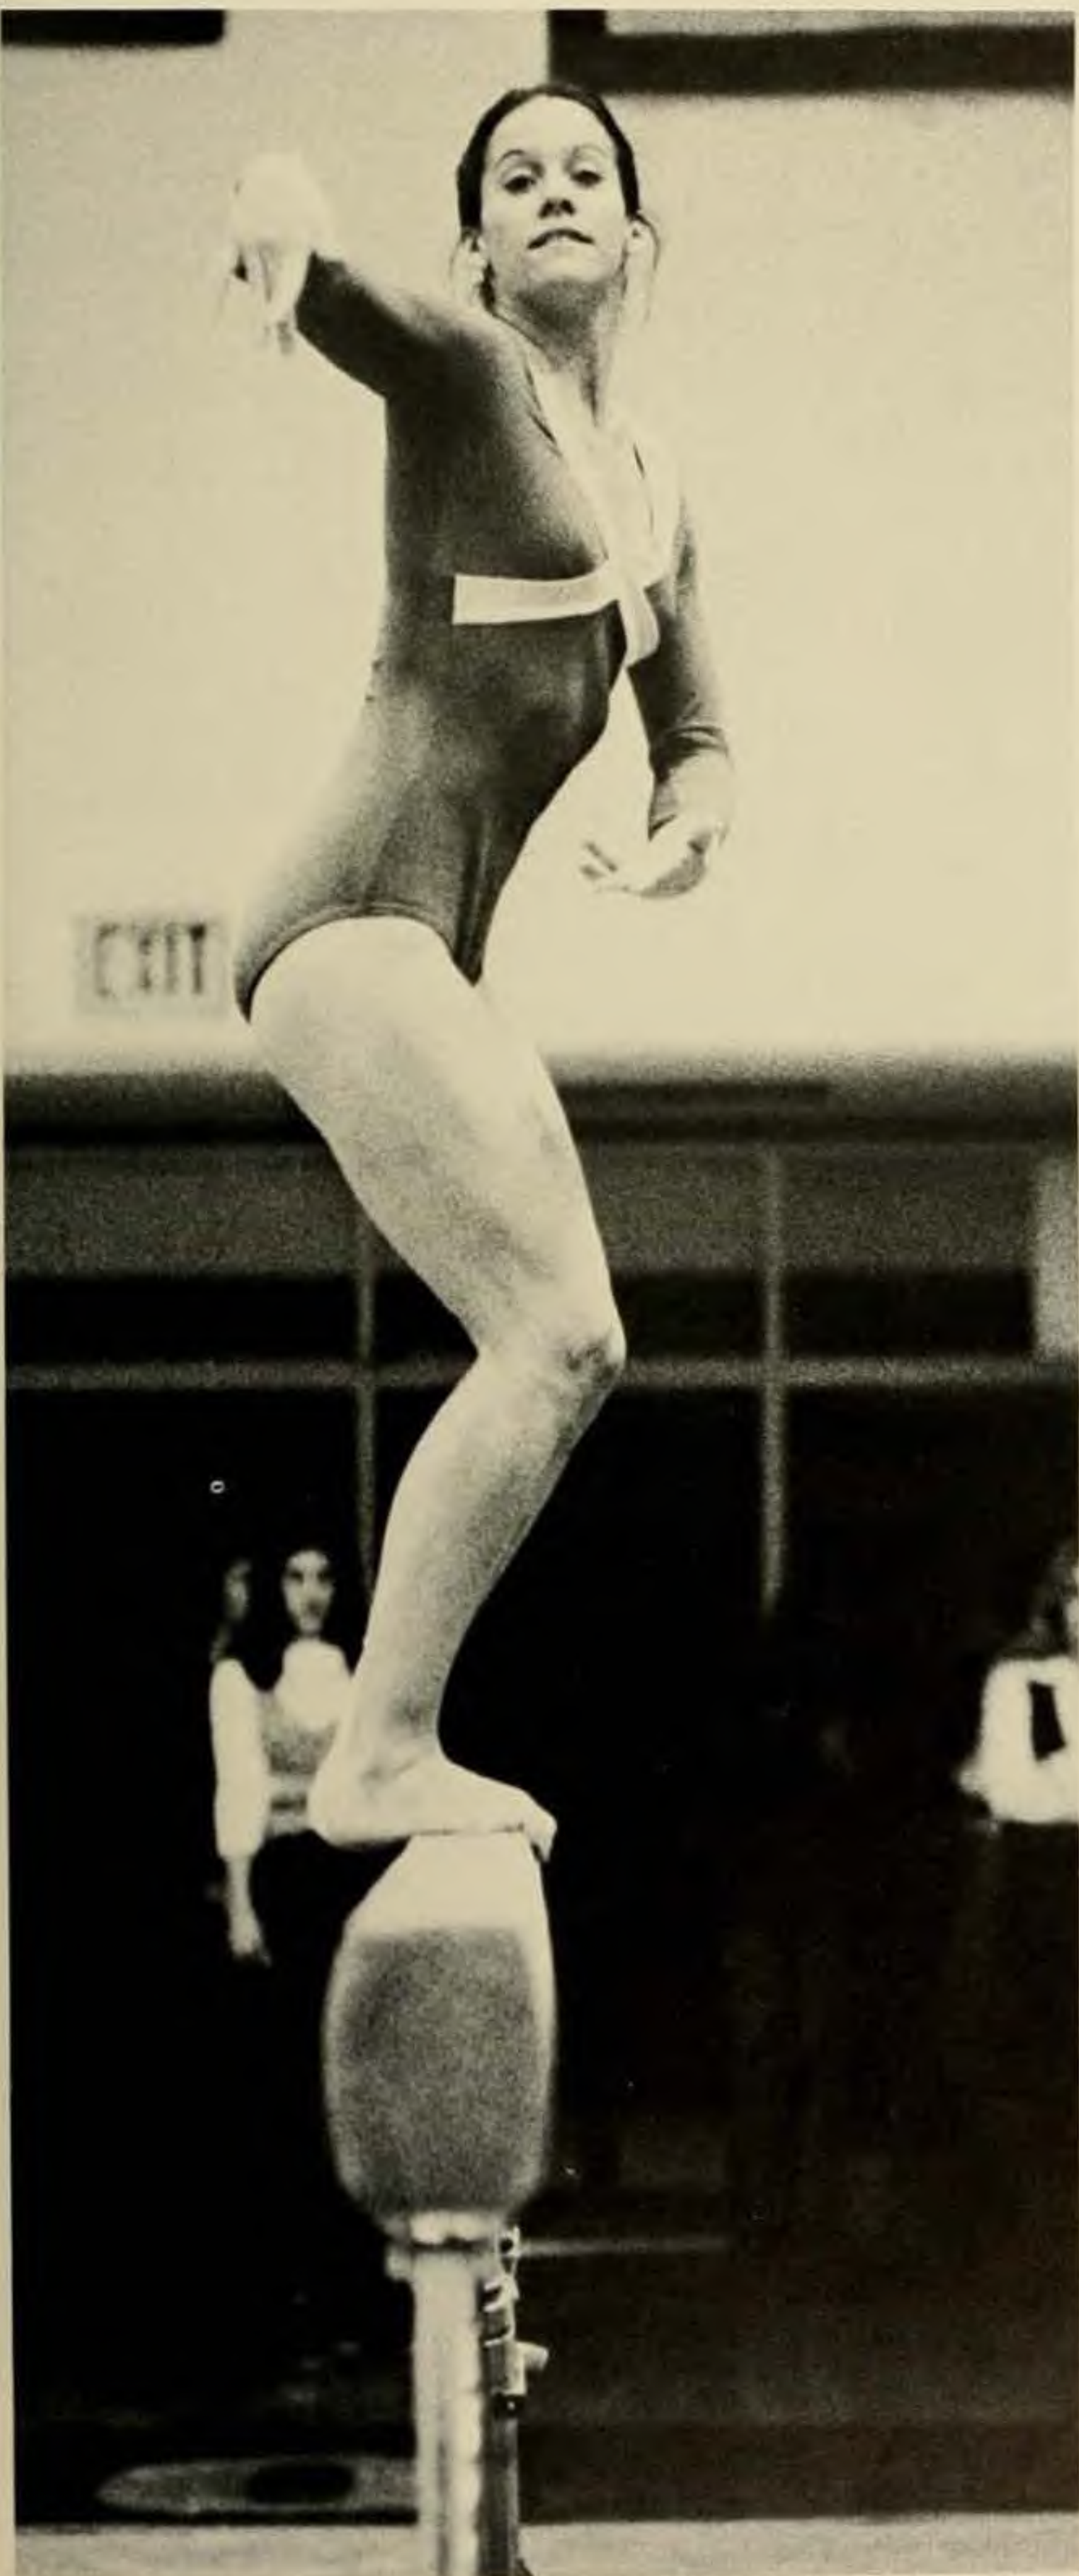

A gymnast needs to be aware of the mechanical forces involved in movement and must have good kinetic sense, Kruger said. The determination to succeed despite fear is essential. The psychological state of the gymnast plays a major role in success.

The women compete in the Large School Division. There are four events: vault, uneven bars, balance beam, and floor exercise. All competition are in optional exercises. Like the men, four allarounds and two specialists compete in each meet.

The uneven bars continued traditionally to be the women's strongest event. The women's weaker event, floor exercise, saw tremendous improvement.

A young team represented JMU on the mat this season under the guidance of a new coach. Dick Besnier and Bill Harwick (asst.) were the first two coaches with wrestling backgrounds to run the program.

Young Team – New Coaches

Three major goals were set by the team. One goal was to win sixteen matches. They won ten. The second was to win two tournaments. They won the JMU Takedown Tournament and the Washington and Lee Tournament. The W & L Tournament highlighted the year. They placed fourth in the Virginia State Intercollegiate Division I Tournament.

A tremendous number of injuries hindered the season. The ten best wrestlers were never able to all wrestle in the same match after the second one of the season.

Only Brian Langlinais wrestled in every match. He set a record of 23 matches won. He placed third in the state, and third in the Eastern Region at 126 lbs. Scott Utegaard had the best overall individual record of 21-3, and the highest number of team points made of 53 with only three scored against him. Utegaard also placed third in state at 167 lbs. The men wrestle in ten weight classes ranging from 118 lbs. to heavy weight.

Over one half of the student body participated in JMU intramurals this year. The program has grown tremendously. The best received addition was women's soccer. Two on two basketall (co-recreational), bowling, golf, and mixed doubles racketball were also added. The racketball and basketball events drew the most participation.

Each sport is divided into two divisions. The championship division consists of sororities, fraternities, and dorms. Points are totaled from all the sports each group participates in to determine the over-all champion. The other division is the Independent division. These teams are formed by interested students who aren't necessarily involved in an organized group.

The intramural program's purpose is to provide recreation, as opposed to competition, said director George Toliver. There are also some long range goals. Paid Student officials are trained not only for intramurals, but in preparation for professional work in officiating.

Toliver said the JMU facilities are being used to their maximum extent. Hopefully this well received program will be able to continue its growth.

CHEERLEADERS

Spirited Pyramids

"The pyramids get higher and the stunts get scarier," said cheerleader sponsor Casey Showalter. The JMU Cheerleading squad took the step toward gymnastic styled cheering a few years ago. The stunts have gotten progressively harder as the cheerleaders try to increase the enthusiasm of the crowd.

Coverage was extended this year to include women's basketball games and some wrestling matches. These added to football games and men's basketball games kept the cheering schedule full. Game-filled weeks necessitated alternating the games at which partners cheered.

Stunts and cheers are worked on for a couple of hours twice a week. Partners were expected to have additional individual practices. Their dedication was not unobserved. Several times an opposing team's cheering squad asked JMU's cheerleaders to help them improve their skills.

Ten cheerleaders traveled with the team on a rotating basis. This enabled the cheering squad to attend all of the away football games, and the majority of away basketball games.

The sixteen Greek Organizations at James Madison University offer a variety of activities and services to their members and the surrounding community. The Interfraternity Council and the Panhellenic Council act as governing boards for their organizations. Their responsibilities include power of judicial review and daily administration of fraternity and sorority affairs.

A new addition to fraternity and sorority life at Madison was the construction of the Greek Housing Complex. Housing thirteen of the organizations, the houses added an additional degree of unity to Greek life.

Disco and formal dances, theme parties, keg parties, and picnics are only a few of the social functions offered. The biggest social event of the year is "Greek Week." During this week, the fraternities and sororities compete in events such as a chariot race, a softball tournament, Greek sing, egg tosses, a track meet, and a pie-eating contest.

The fraternities and sororities stress high standards of academic achievement. Some give awards annually to the member with the highest cumulative average and the one showing the greatest academic improvement during the year.

JMU's fraternities and sororities offer valuable services to the school and the community. A blood drive for the Red Cross, participation in the March of Dimes Walk-a-thon, a Bike-a-thon, and Christmas parties for underprivileged children are among the activities of the Greek organizations.

It is the closeness of a unique community of diversified individuals meeting, working and socializing that separates fraternity and sorority groups from any other organizations.

Interfraternity Council

The eight national social fraternities at Madison are united in the Interfraternity Council. Each fraternity is represented on the council by three members. The IFC coordinates and guides fraternity activities such as Greek Week and numerous service projects. Each fall and spring the IFC organizes a "rush" where students are exposed to the fraternities and invited to join them.

The Panhellenic Council serves as the governing and coordinating body for the seven social sororities on JMU's campus and seeks to express the high ideals for which each sorority stands. Three representatives from each sorority serve on the Council. This group develops plans for good scholarship, cooperation among the sororities and helps to strengthen friendships and sisterhood.

The Panhellenic Council does many community projects. These include an annual Blood Drive, Thanksgiving food drive and Bike-A-Thon. The Blood Drive and Bike-A-Thon are done in conjunction with the IFC.

Delta Sigma Theta

Delta Sigma Theta Sorority, Inc. is a national public service organization. Since its founding in 1913 with twenty-two members, this sorority has grown to become an international, incorporated organization. The Iota Alpha Chapter of Delta Sigma Theta, Inc., which was chartered at James Madison University in 1971, continues to uphold the ideals and goals of Delta's founders: scholarship, fellowship, and service. Iota Alpha sponsors many service projects throughout the acaademic year on campus and in the community. In keeping with this year's overall theme of Mental Health Awareness, members presented programs at DeJarnett's Hospital on a monthly basis. A major contribution the chapter made was the donation of $500 to the National Negro College Fund. In addition to sponsoring many projects of its own, the group works with other public service organizations on campus and in the community.

Accounting Honor Society

The Accounting Honor Society is composed of accounting majors who have achieved at least a 3.25 G.P.A. in accounting courses and a 3.1 overall average. The purposes of the society are to instill in its members the desire for self-improvement; to foster high moral and ethical standards in the members; to encourage and give recognition to scholastic and professional excellence; to cultivate a sense of responsibility and service in its members; to promote the collegiate study of accounting; and to provide the opportunity for association among its members and practicing accountants.

Alpha Beta Alpha

Alpha Beta Alpha, a national undergraduate library science fraternity, serves to promote interest in the library profession and to stimulate the career goals of its members. One of the projects of the year was a workshop in reading motivation and peer-produced materials. In addition, the organization sponsored a puppetry workshop, a book sale, and an annual Christmas party.

The National Honorary Broadcasting Society, Alpha Epsilon Rho, is the oldest and largest organization of broadcasting students and professionals in the U.S. It emphasizes superior scholarship and creative participation in broadcast production and related activities, and all members are actively involved in the areas of radio, TV, and film. The NHBS promotes the exchange of ideas between students and professional broadcasters, and explores directions in which significant contributions may be made in the field of mass communications.

The Biological Interest Organization worked to promote and maintain interest in Biology and related fields among students, as well as to provide social experiences for members. A camping trip to Dolly Sods, a Biology department open house, monthly programs, and a field trip to Washington D.C. were among the group's activities. The organization also worked towards approval of permanent park area on the back campus (across Interstate 81). Members are not required to be Biology majors, simply students united by a common interest in the biological sciences.

Black Student Alliance Assistance to Minority Students

The Black Student Alliance is an organization with activities designed to establish communications with the JMU campus, aid the community, and assist minority students. The highlight of the year for the BSA was the coordination of events for a Negro History Month in February. Activities included visits to the Lynville Correctional Center, and participation in the Saturday Adoption Program. The organization also sponsored candy sales and raffles in an effort to raise money for the March of Dimes and the Cancer Fund.

When the Harrisonburg City Council was considering zoning requirements aimed at students, the city planner called The Breeze asking for copies of the latest issue for each councilman, because it was The Breeze, rather than the local press, which provided the most up-to-date reports.

The planner's request was just another indication of The Breeze's professional reputation. It is ranked by many as the best in the country. The Breeze's coverage during the year included interviews with the state's lieutenant governor and attorney general, Pulitzer Prize winner Jeff MacNelly and syndicated columnist James J. Kilpatrick.

The Breeze also expanded, publishing more pages than ever before, plus several supplements, added a student comic page as well as making changes in design.

Contrary to popular belief the year-book is not put together by a group of elves in the campus center late at night. Besides, when was the last time you met a 6'7" elf complete with camera?

There are times, however, when we have wished for a few to stop by. But instead we rely a lot on the hard work and time devoted by volunteers. And we do mean devoted, because who else do you know would give up sleep three nights in a row for the chance to label 1,915 underclassmen pictures, or listen to a club president tell you for the third time in two days that he will have the write-up for his organization to you in the next half hour?

It is more enjoyable than we tend to make it sound, though. Things become progressively like "Saturday Night Live" in the early hours of the morning on nights before deadlines. And everyone who stays to help finish the last layouts finds they have just made some very good friends.

A great deal more goes into a year-book than people realize. Planning begins in January, an entire year before the book comes out. By the time the following fall semester ends, ninety percent of the book has gone to the publisher.

Creating the impression of a full academic year becomes difficult in this order. For this reason, things are seldom dull in the office because something is always in progress.

And you thought elves only made cookies.

Catholic Campus Ministry (CCM) exists as a community who believes in Jesus Christ and who responds to His Gospel Message. This message is exemplified by the wide variety of people served by CCM's social ministry program which includes prisoners, elderly folks, mentally and physically handicapped, "shut-ins," children, and others.

A secondary purpose of CCM is to provide service to the campus community, Harrisonburg, and the surrounding communities. In November, Thanksgiving Food Baskets are received by two needy families in the area. In December, CCM participates in the Salvation Army Ring-a-Bell and the Bishop's Hunger Fund.

Chemical Society

Formed to unite students with a common interest in the various fields of chemistry, the Chemical Society sponsors a variety of activities. Club meetings feature student talks on chemical topics and members attend the regional and national functions of the American Chemical Society. The organization created a Christmas "Chemistree" exhibit which was displayed in Miller Hall.

Council for Exceptional Children

Working with both handicapped and gifted children is the primary purpose of the Council for Exceptional Children. The organization sponsors activities such as Ice Cream Socials, Halloween and Christmas parties, Train-a-champ, Special Olympics, Exceptional Child's Week, and Service projects for the community and institutions in the area. CEC also provides the chance to work with exceptional children on a one to one basis throughout the year.

Service is the purpose of the Circle K Club, and the members were involved in a variety of projects. A dance marathon for Multiple Sclerosis, a blood pressure clinic, a blood drive and a recycling project were among the organization's activities. Projects were planned to benefit both the campus and the community, and the club's current international theme was "Embrace Humanity." Emphasis was placed on health, safety, natural resources, alienation and loneliness, and recognition of volunteer services.

Commuter Student Committee

The Commuter Student Committee is a representative organization which serves the commuter students who compose fifty percent of the JMU population. The committee publishes the "Scooter's Nooze" to inform the students of activities. Serving as a lobbying group, the Commuter Student Committee worked against local zoning policies, and promoted the Inclement Weather Policy. The major activities of the year also included the Utility Deposit Corporation, Operation Identification, and Career Planning. The CSC, respected by students, faculty, and administration, is a vital part of JMU student government.

The Madison Women's Concert Choir is a selected group of forty-eight women. The group performs a variety of literature, sacred and secular, from the Renaissance to the present. Performances are on and off the campus, including an annual Spring Tour. The Concert Choir is the original performing group of the school.

Delta Sigma Rho — Tau Kappa Alpha

Delta Sigma Rho-Tau Kappa Alpha is the intercollegiate forensics honorary fraternity. The Madison Debate and Forensics Teams compete in over 30 intercollegiate tournaments, against over 100 colleges and universities, each season. Madison's team is rapidly developing a reputation as a strong, highly competitive contender for national honors.

The Frances Sale Home Economics Club provides home economics majors and minors the opportunity to develop professionally and to participate in programs of the Virginia Home Economics Association and the American Home Economics Association. Fund-raising projects such as a basement sale and a popcorn ball sale help to finance professional trips. Monthly programs feature speakers in such areas as education, dietetics, consumerism and legislation, health care, insurance and finance, and merchandising. An annual spring banquet highlights the year for the club.

Developing interest in selected dance forms and technical dance is the work of the Dance Theatre. Also, the group serves as an extension of the classroom for the training of dance majors and minors. The folk group performed at the Page County Festival, an on-campus studio concert, a spring folk concert, and an Israeli folk dance festival. The Modern dance group gave a progress concert in November and a spring concert in March. The group number about 60 people.

The Distributive Education Clubs of America work to promote social intelligence, civic consciousness, leadership development, and vocational understanding among its members. The JMU chapter sponsored officer training conferences at several state high schools. Aid with the Career Day Activities and a Christmas Food Drive were among the activities of the organization. One of the highlights of the year was the State Leadership Conference where the four state universities with DECA programs shared their yearly activities and present workshops.

The Hotel-Restaurant Management Club, consisting of approximately 50 HRM majors and other interested individuals has had an interesting and busy year.

Activities ranged from "Dining Out at Gibbons Hall" to having a Christmas party for Camelot Nursing Home. Club members also engaged and enjoyed social outings to prominent restaurants like "That Seafood Place" in Charlottesville.

The club worked towards recognition by the "International Food Service Executives Association" and the "Hotel Sales Management Association." The club will very much prosper with having student branches affiliated with these two organizations that are so important in the hospitality industry.

The Honor Council is composed of 18 student representatives from various disciplines, 18 faculty members, 2 student coordinators, a president, and a vice president. This group acts collectively as a hearing body for all Honor Council violations, works to develop and implement new programs to increase student awareness, and strives to instill in all students high ideals of honesty and integrity which are the mainstay of James Madison University. The Honor Council sponsored an orientation for freshmen and transfer students and worked with other universities to strengthen our honor code. One of the most important activities of the council was the achievement of the policy which requires the pledging of examinations.

As an honorary educational fraternity, Kappa Delta Pi encourages high professional, intellectual, and personal standards. Leading educators aid the advancement of the organization and education through their contributions to the Educational Forum, the Society's official magazine. The organization involves itself in community service. Pledges to the organization perform services for numerous civic groups. Financial support is given to Logan's Run and an annual "Saturday in the Park" is held in April, which provides a fun-filled day for local children.

The Social Work Organization, (SWO), is open to undergraduates interested in social work and other related helping professions. SWO's purpose is to expose students to the "professional field" through various guest speakers, volunteer programs, and state and national conventions as well as involvement with the faculty and programs of the Social Work Department.

Projects of SWO for the 1978-79 year included guest speakers dealing with Juvenile Corrections, Child Abuse, Care for the Terminally Ill, the Elderly, and Child Adoption, among others. Volunteer programs SWO is involved in include Friendly Visitors with Community Senior Citizens, and working with the children at Rockingham Memorial Hospital's Pediatric Ward. The organization worked continually to provide RMH with a continuous blood supply through Madison donors.

Student involvement with the Social Work Department includes an Advisory Board for the national accreditation of JMU's Social Work educational curriculum. Conventions on the state level included the Virginia Council of Social Work, and on the national level, the National Federation of Student Social Workers which was held in New Haven, Connecticut this spring.

Stratford Players, established in 1916 as a theatre literary society, is the oldest organization on campus. As well as producing the four main stage plays each year, Stratford is responsible for the funding of a children's show and numerous student-directed plays in the JMU Experimental Theatre. It also helps in the funding of the summer Dinner Theatre, which presented Something's Afoot and Scapino! in the summer of '78. The popularity of the Dinner Theatre continues to grow each year; the first Dinner Theatre troupe toured Germany as a USO tour in January and February of 1978. This year's main stage season included Fancies (Oct. 10-15), A Man for All Seasons (Nov. 14-19), Oklahoma! (Feb. 20-25), and Tartuffe (Apr. 17-22). Last summer, Latimer-Shaeffer Theatre presented Bus Stop as it's summer show; this year's summer play will be Of Mice and Men. The Experimental Theatre has presented Babies, Bear, La Ronde, and Down the Line. This year's children's show, Good Grief a Griffin, played in Anthony-Seeger Campus School Auditorium in early November.

Fancies

Leah (Clelia Amari), the new waitress prepared to take the Heartless Texan's (Rick Chapman) order at Beau's Donut Shop.

Roger Hall's production of Fancies was an important step for JMU Theatre because it presented the world premiere of an original play by a recent JMU graduate. Fancies was written by Andrea Fisher, who graduated from JMU in 1978. She appeared in the Wampler productions of Hair and The Hot L Baltimore, as well as the main stage production of Twelfth Night. Her somewhat autobiographical play deals with the love and dreams of several regular customers in Beau's Donut Shop. The script, praised for both its humor and strong emotion, has been entered in both national and international playwrighting contests.

Ceecee (Holly MacFarland) bites into a "fly-pie" which Emmet (Phoef Sutton) has just baked for her.

The More Family: Sir Thomas More (Thomas King) flanked by wife Lady Alice (Mary Ruberry), Son-in-law William Roper (Sam Smith), and daughter Margaret (Helen Stoltzfus).

A Man for All Seasons

The clash between Sir Thomas More and King Henry VIII provides the core for one of the most stirring and eloquent dramatic plays of modern theatre, as More must pit his conscience and love of God against the King and his angry henchmen. JMU Theatre faculty member Thomas L. King appeared as this season's Guest Actor in the role of Sir Thomas More. Directed by Thomas H. Arthur, the play, like Francies was entered in the ACTF. A Man for All Seasons was an extremely appropriate selection for this season: it helps to commemorate the birth of Sir Thomas More, which is celebrating its 500th anniversary this year.

Bus Stop

Presented in Latimer-Shaeffer July 27-30, 1978. Bus Stop deals with the relationships of a group of people in a snowbound Midwest bus stop. Written in the mid-Fifties by William Inge, the play is a study of minor characters, with no one character dominating. However, this is effective because of the interaction and confrontation between these people. The main plot involves Bo Decker's plight to get Cherie, the night club "chan-toosie" he has abducted, to return with him to his Montana ranch.

Dr. Gerald Lyman (Robert Hickman) plays Romeo to Erma Duckworth's (Pam Amos, right) Juliet, as Cherie (Mary Ruberry, left) watches.

Comprised of over one hundred students, the Student Government Association strives to represent the majority of our undergraduates and to actively participate in the governance of our University. The SGA is composed of three branches: the executive branch (the five officers), the legislative branch (senators from each residence hall as well as 16 senators elected by commuter students), and the judicial branch (the Student Judicial Coordinator and the Student Advocate Corp). The SGA is also composed of the Inter-Hall Council, the Commuter Student Committee, and each class committee. Harrisonburg zoning, the publication of student's evaluations of professors, the adequacy of Health Center care, the adoption of an Institutional Loan Program, the introduction of the National "Operation Identification" program, fund raising for the Chapel, and on-campus banking policies were a few of the topics investigated.

The third year of the Women's Rugby Club proved to be a rebuilding season. With 15 rookies and seven returners the club had a winless record. The team teaches girls how to play rugby and so members are inexperienced, while the clubs they play are not. The schedule included the Norfolk Breakers Club, William & Mary, U. Va., Richmond and the Molly McGuires Club.

The University Program Board is a student organization which arranges a variety of entertainment and cultural events for JMU. The UPB jointly sponsors special weekends throughout the year, including Spring Fever, Homecoming, Beginnings and Parent's Weekend. The UPB is composed of several committees. The Concert Committee works to provide concert entertainment in Godwin Hall, Wilson Hall, and afternoon concerts on the WUU patio. In addition, the UPB Movie Committee brings to Madison the latest box-office attractions available on the University circuit. The Coffeehouse Committee coordinates activities for the WUU "Center Attic" which houses a variety of entertainment including student performers and other artists. Through the Travel Committee students and faculty are offered trips to places such as Hawaii, New York and The Charles Town Races. The UPB also has a House Committee, a Ticket Committee and an Advertising & Promotion Committee. The 300 students that serve on the UPB are overseen by an Executive Committee.

Volleyball Club

This is the fourth year the men's Volleyball Club has been organized. During these years they have played matches in Pennsylvania, Maryland, Virginia, Washington, D.C., and North Carolina. They participate against varsity teams and club teams such as themselves. Last year Madison came in fifth place in the state championship and in third place at the University of Maryland Tournament.

Young Americans for Freedom

Young Americans for Freedom is a national, non-partisan, conservative political youth organization. The organization endeavors to educate students across the country into holding a sound and conservative philosophical position by sponsoring various programs and taking partial actions in governmental political processes. The club firmly believes in and supports individual civil rights and the free enterprise system without government interference in the economy.

Y.A.R.C.

The Youth Association for Retarded Citizens is a service organization which provides the retarded citizens in the surrounding area with an opportunity to act socially through a variety of activities, including dances, parties, and games. Projects such as Tape-A-Coin, selling Booster hats, and selling Christmas Cards provided funds for the Special Olympics.

BLUE HOLE

is a popular hot day retreat located off of Route 33. Students come with friends and six packs of their favorite beverages to relax and enjoy the sun. Getting to the rocky shore opposite the highway is a major feat. The choice must be made whether to walk across the water on the slippery rocks or defy the inevitable goose bump and swim across. The more daring climb the largest rock and dive or jump into the icy water. Eventually evening comes, belongings are gathered together, and everyone heads for home.

LETTUCE PLUS

soup du jour, homemade breads, and fresh fruits — this was the bill of fare at the Chandler Shenandoah Room.

Implemented to lessen the crowd at the D-hall, this lunch alternative pleased palates but resulted in lines as long as Gibbons. Classical background music, tablecloths, glasses instead of paper riddle cups, and a view of Newman Lake, all combined to produce a sophisticated air.

The one aspect that students hesitated to accept though, was the European style of beverages-no ice.

ROLL CALL

begins at 2:30 P.M. when player hopefuls line up for courts. Although sign-ups don't start until 3:00 P.M., by 3:15 all hope of getting a squash or handball court disappears like Michelob on Thursday night in Duke's Grill. From the $9 Nichols special player to the $30 Ektelon yielder — the craze is taking off. Noviciates con raquets from friends, dorms, and even enemies, if they capture a court.

And as the digital clock flips to 2:28 P.M., another player grabs his raquet and heads towards Godwin . . . . .

BLEEP!

Welcome to the world of automation. With the addition of RDID's students could transfer meals to Salads Plus, Duke's Grill, or as usual — eat at Gibbon's Dining Hall. Intended to speed up lines in d-hall, the ID's fell short of their goal. Students waited 15 minutes instead of five. A thin magnetic strip across the back activated the ID's. That strip, plus the inevitable mug shot entitled students to meals, library books, and magazines. We'll bet you can still remember your number from last year but how many times have you forgotten your ID?

MUSHROOMING GROWTH

brought cement trucks thundering through the old Harrison parking lot, bulldozers grinding up the Main Street entrance and steamrollers crushing gravel into asphalt bases. The building binge ran the gamut from new sidewalks, to tennis courts, and a $3.2 million education building. Construction also continued with the Warren University Union theater addition.

Along with the expansion came headaches for students and professors. The constant clamor of machinery and workmen disrupted classes and made many students arise earlier than planned. Logan residents complained cranes made too much noise at seven o'clock in the morning.

ORIENTEERING

took on new meaning after Security changed the parking policy, enlarged and upgraded lots, and built new car havens. The least favorite hiking course — Z-lot — won the title because of gravel paths, zero night visibility, and treacherous caves with Pintos, Cobras, and Cougars, jockeying for position.

Following close behind Z comes X-lot. No particular perils in X, only the fact that walking anywhere proved more exciting than touring around square, concreted landscapes.

IF THE SUN

is shining, the sun worshippers can be found beside the lake, behind Wayland, in front of Dingledine, and any other place the tanning rays beam down. It begins with the fall semester, when many girls try to keep their golden tans as long as possible. Cold weather comes, the tans fade, but as soon as the temperature rises above 55° the faithful begin lying in the sun to condition their skin for that Madison tradition — spring break in Florida.

SYMPTOMS

include tired, weepy eyes, sluggish movements, and a listless zombie like appearance. Unruly hair shows up in the severest of cases. The disease — 8 A.M.-itis. The cause — 8 A.M. classes.

Forced to arise while the rest of nature is asleep puts the afflicted at a disadvantage. They are the first to find out that there is no hot water in Rockingham County. The temperature dropped and is hovering at 28°, and the chipped beef is awful even with frozen taste buds. Neither the blue pills, nor the gargle from the Health Center can cure the disease.

Not to worry though, it usually clear itself up after freshmen and sophomore years.

BAR TIME

in Harrisonburg is not exactly a hot night in the city. More like lukewarm in the town. Student top spots include Gatsby's and the Elbow Room. Gatsby's grabbed interest with college night, while the "Bow Room" held customer appreciation and ladies' nights. Both places kept inflation down these nights with drafts at 25¢ a shot.

Quarter beers more than anything else kept students coming back. Atmosphere at the "Bow" consisted of smoke and loud music, with a certifiable group of townies. Gatsby's came a little closer with nostalgia plastered over the walls.

For a cheap buzz they couldn't be beat.

PLAYING THE SLOTS

became a necessity when Laundry Services cancelled their weekly sheet and towel cleaning. Students anted up quarters for washers, and dime, after dime, after dime for dryers. Odds against students mulitplied as Maytags died in mid-rinse and forced would be launderers and laundresses into other dorms and finally into off-campus laundry casinos. As usual, the one-rinse bandits struck it rich.

OVER THE HILL

gangs dissipated when Security began enforcing the Virginia state "no public drinking" law. Students occasioned to sipping a few brews while the Dukes carried on their pigskin conquests below, suddenly found other ways to spend Saturday afternoons.

More adventurous drinkers tried smuggling drinks through security dragnets in blankets, purses, or coats. More often than not, the smugglers were caught and forced to dispose of their private contraband.

THEY'RE EVERYWHERE

tromping through the bluestones, bopping across the hills, and even jogging around the track. Whether they're health nuts or just plain nuts, nobody knows. But the loyal jogger sticks with it.

The runners are out at all hours. They pound the pavement from morning to midnight in everything from $5.98 A&N sweats to $80 Adidas warm-ups.

Jogging is the best cure for the excess poundage gained from too many starchy snacks and meals to pre-test anxieties.

So run they say, "Run for the health of it."

ONCE UPON A TIME

there was a college student who didn't know how to play backgammon. When his friends invited him to play, he tried to hide the fact by pleading too much homework, a headache, or a date. One day the truth came out. "You mean you don't know how to play backgammon?" his sneeringly incredulous roommate said.

Needless to say, the poor student became a social outcast. Everywhere he turned, he saw the rolling dice, the flash of moving markers and the horrifying colored spears. He was forced to retreat to his room, where he sat alone playing his cello.

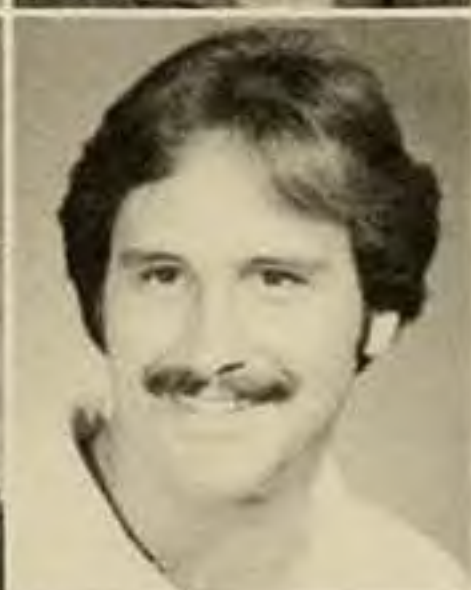

After several humiliating years, he finally learned how to play backgammon, and his life was finally complete. He became an acceptable member of the college community. He was initiated into a fraternity — "Gammon, Gammon, Gammon," found a lifetime backgammon partner, and lived happily ever after.

FOOD FIGHTS,

sudden increases in the sale of white bedsheets, and "road trips" were the results of a mere movie. Animal House swept campuses across the nation off their feet and had administrations up in arms. Toga parties were up 100 per cent and "gatoring" reached an all-time high. John Belushi became the instant hero of fraternity brothers everywhere, and mass chaos was the result. The animals waged a war against the rules and the rules lost.

ZONING

in the Harrisonburg area was a major disappointment to the commuter students at James Madison University. This fall the city council approved new zoning changes which reduced the number of unrelated people who could live in the same dwelling. This change adversely affected many students in the form of rent increases, competition for housing, and the decision as to who moves out. The limitations will go into effect in June 1979, so the students and the city have yet to realize the full impact of the change. The Commuter Student Committee led a strenuous three week campaign which included person to person lobbying among businessmen, city residents, students, and council members. A petition to stop the changes was signed by more than 2000 people. A constant media campaign including television, radio and press coverage was also employed by the CSC. News of the proposed changes and the student protest was printed by The Breeze and picked up by the Associated Press wire service. Stories about the changes appeared in The Roanoke Times and The Daily News Record. The CSC attempted to increase student awareness of the zoning changes by a mail-in-letter campaign and a press for students to register to vote within the city.

The central issue which came out of the zoning controversy was the attitude of city residents towards students.

BEFORE

the loft is built the room resembles Atlanta after Sherman. Three beds, three desks, and three dressers allow movement only for the stealthiest cockroaches. Multiply all this furniture times clothes for three into two closets and the cramped quarters really become apparent. Throw in three chairs and three mirrors and the room looks like Ethan Allan galleries is suffering from terminal triplets. For most roommates, (before they pitch furniture out the windows), the idea now comes to BUILD A LOFT.

DURING

the planning stages, guys worry about the chance to try the loft out, while girls worry about the guys wanting to try it out too. The majority of the construction takes all day, with guys doing most of the labor on their own and then offering girls brawn for beer. During the loftfest, men saw, nail, and drink, while the women watch, "help," and drink. The "sawdust bust" ends weeks later when proud loft owners finally get rid of the last wood chips. Now the loft is finished and the room is ready for REDECORATING.

AFTER

the heavy construction is over the easy work begins. Proud "lofties" paint, stain, and carpet their new lumber havens. Plants, goldfish bowls, and lights swing gently on support beams while Stroh's is pumped to the beat of Pablo Cruise. Bed frames are packed off into the basement abyss known as storage. Boxsprings are piled up to make couches and the room are ready for social life. Lofts do have drawbacks though. Have you ever tried to climb up those stairs after a PARTY?

WHO LEAVES

the dorm at 7:30 for a 10:00 class? Who stands helplessly by a door, waiting for someone to open it? Who suddenly invests in a backpack? Who receives personal waiter service in D-hall? Those pitiful creatures on crutches.

As many of those crips have found out, the Madison campus is not conducive to wooden transportation. The numerous hills and stairs are major obstacles, especially for those late for class. The expert crutchers have developed ingenious ways of getting around, but the amateurs find it tricky. A new class has been added for them — naturally it's a "crip course." (Funny as a crutch!)

"GIVE US A SHOW!"

The chant begins harmlessly and ends in full-scale warfare. As the crowds gather beneath windows hooting and clapping, the inside forces prepare guerilla tactics. A bucket brigade is lining up and balloons are being filled with water. The general gives the final signal and the troops disperse. As faces leave the windows, the crowds below begins to catch on and gather defensive units.

Some members of the inside team remain behind to generate spirit for the fighters. Others act as reinforcements in case the battle becomes one-sided. Several of the fortress guerillas man the pumps and attempt to ward off charges on the ammunition supply. The enemy is sometimes able to sabotage the fort by stealing buckets or kidnapping recruits. At times the opposition works by buying off an inside trooper with beer to enable them to get first-hand knowledge of any plans.

Soon the streets and bushes are filled with laughing soaking wet troops. The tactics range from sneaky behind-the-back attacks to direct face-to-face confrontations. The clash between troops begins to wane as units pull out or retreat. The wounded return to the fort to receive treatment (a shower and dry clothes).

A truce is finally called, but of course, only lasts until the next time the chanting begins — "Give us a show!"

FAMILY REUNION

The only time a student participates in this event after leaving for college is on the day he moves in and the day he moves out. On this occasion mothers, fathers, brothers, sisters, cousins, grandmothers, grandfathers and even elderly aunts in wheelchairs are recruited to haul everything the student possesses. The family (alias, the crew) returns home after an exhausting day, while the student (alias, the supervisor) is ready for a night of partying.

"I'M A GIRL WATCHER."

"I'm a guy watcher. There goes one now." Many students have discovered that the quad is a perfect place for "scoping." During the morning and early afternoon, students sit and watch people hurrying to make it before roll call, or sauntering leisurely along to make a late entrance. Others are studying, soaking up some rays, or just watching the world go by.

During the late afternoons, the girls come out to watch the guys play frisbee, soccer, or football; and the guys come out to watch the girls who are watching.

WHAT SOUND

does every college student hear at least once a day? It's the howling of the "whirrwoles." These creatures stalk dorm hallways, wake sleeping people, and are essential to life at Madison. The noisy animals also go by the name of blowdryers.

These fiends are so popular, in fact, that the Admissions Office is considering adding them to the list of requirements for entrance. If someone offers you a nickle for every blowdryer on campus, take the money and run!

IT'S ABOUT 8:00

on a Thursday night. Lights are on, music is blaring and people are getting ready to go. By 10:00, almost every light is out in the dorms and there is a constant stream of people surging towards the University Union. An innocent bystander, wondering what all the commotion is about follows along.

The elevator doors open to expose a line wandering down the hall and an over-whelming amount of voices, laughter and music. Thinking that he must have stumbled onto something good, he waits in line for a half hour and comes out stunned into Duke's Grill, with a pitcher of Old Milwaukee.

Not finding a place to sit, and having no place to put his beer, he stands bewildered, drinking out of his pitcher. After drinking several pitchers, dancing on a table and leading a rousing chorus of "Madison, oh Madison," he staggers home, realizing that a typical weekend at JMU has begun.

MISS ALICE E. LIGGETT
Secretary

For students at James Madison University, the conclusion of the 1978-79 year is like other years at the University in that it is marked with both sadness and happiness. There is, however, also happiness in the successful completion of another year in one's academic career.

I feel certain that this copy of the Bluestone will serve you as a cherished memento of all that took place at the University in 1978-79. For those of you who graduated in 1979, it will be especially meaningful since it records the activities of the year which saw you leave college life and take your place in society as a whole. For others who will be returning to the University, it is a priceless record of a most important year in your lives.

As you look back on this year, I hope it is with fond memories of another exciting chapter in your life. I wish you well in all your future endeavors.

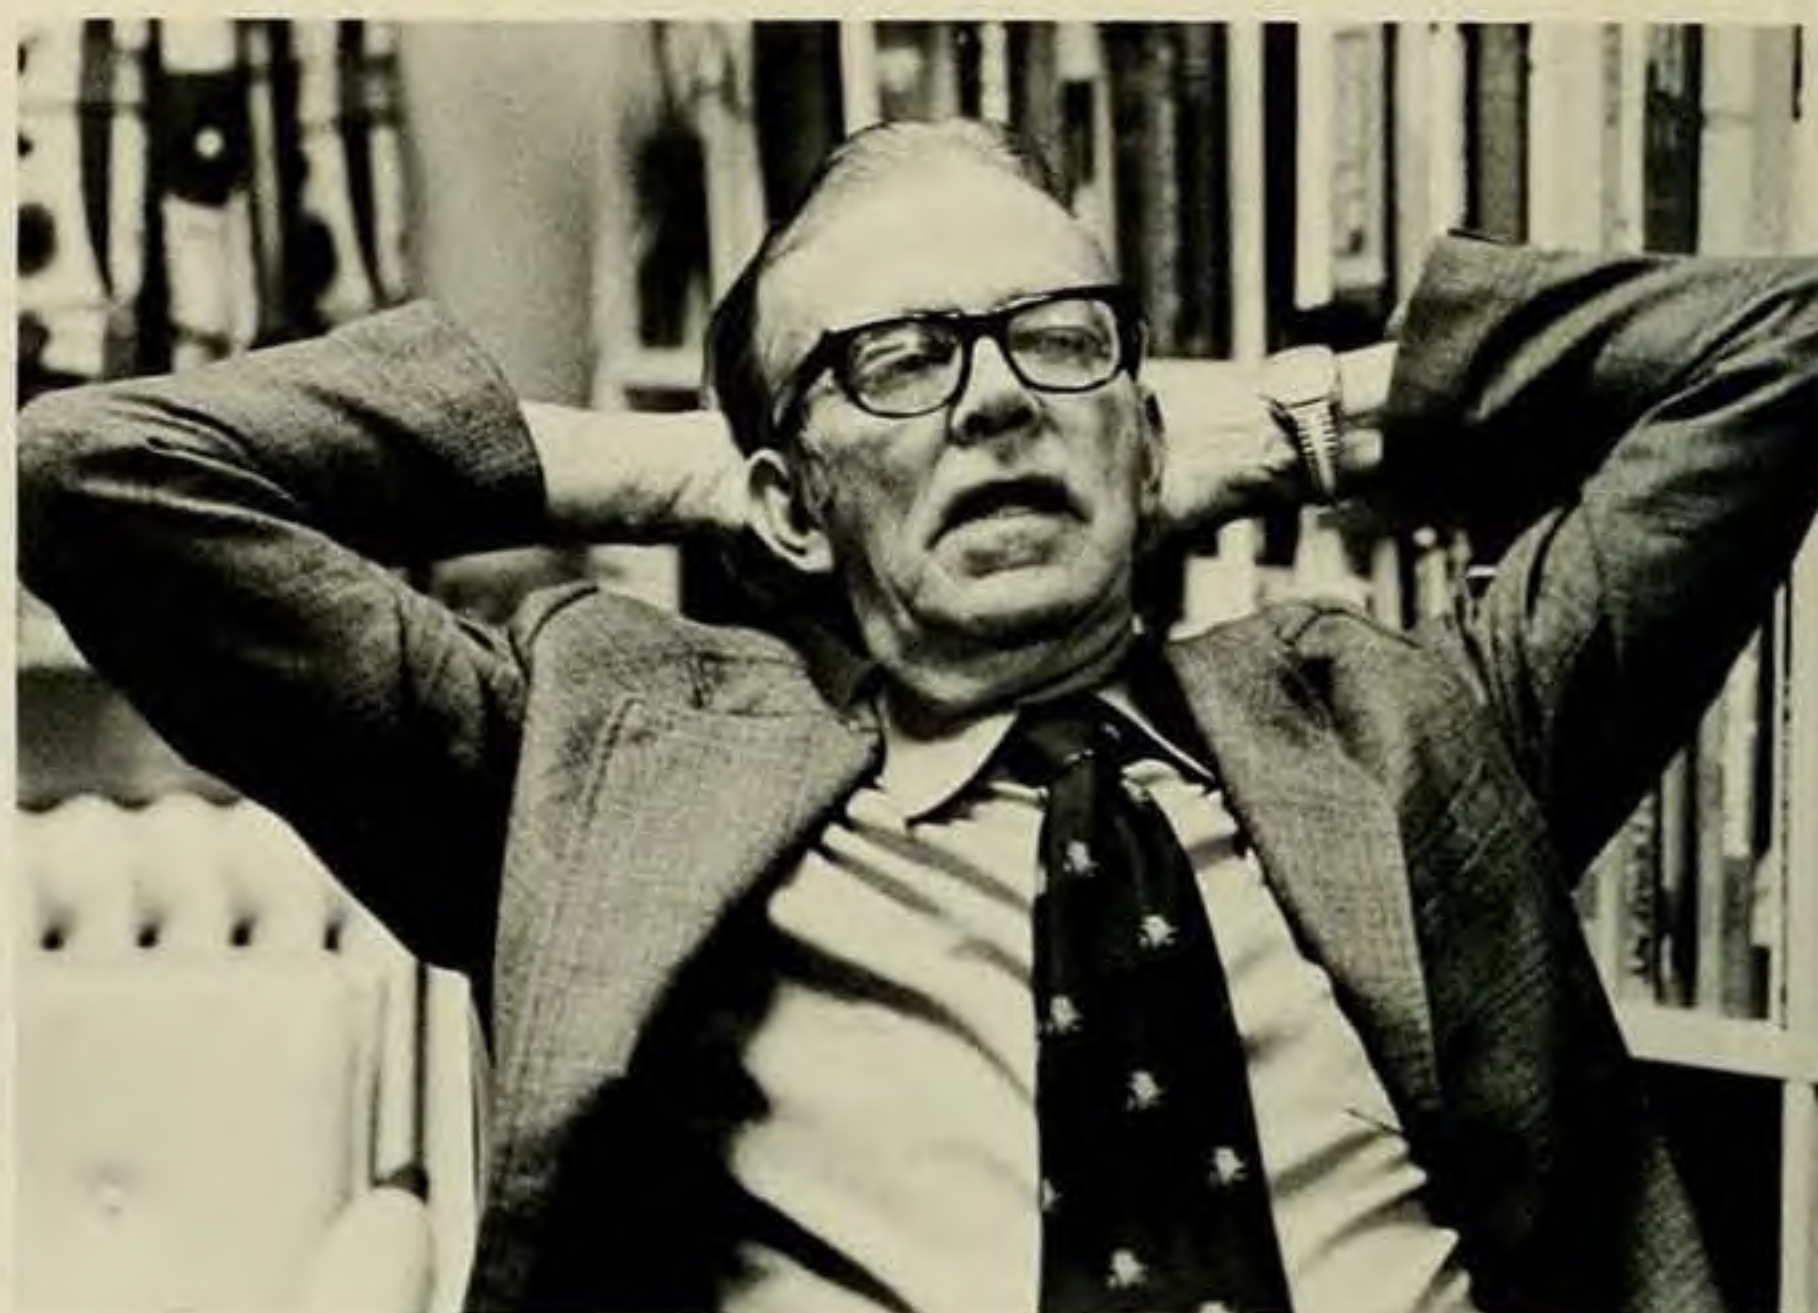

Cordially,
Ronald E. Carrier

Presenting the Shakespeare

Macbeth, Hamlet, Romeo and Juliet . . . these sound like dirty words to most students, but not to those in Dr. Ralph Cohen's Shakespeare class.

When a professor can interest 46 students, whose majors range from Data Processing to Biology to English, it is apparent that he has something unique to offer. Cohen is such a professor, and his quick wit, fascinating lectures, and different approach to the class bring the Elizabethan stage to life.

The course is designed to allow as many people as possible to appreciate William Shakespeare's greatest works. Students not only read and discuss the plays, but also experience them.

Attention is focused on Cohen and his actors, who are usually members of the class, strolling around the room as if they are truly

Semester . . . With Flair

on an Elizabethan stage. The performers not only gather applause, but also loose change as Cohen passes the hat after each student production.

The Spring of 1979 is truly the "Shakespeare Semester." Cohen has taken advantage of the multi-media approach, offering productions by the British Broadcasting Company, and professional films and theatre.

The class is not only an entertaining experience, but also an educational one. Cohen has changed many students' concept of Shakespeare from one of dislike to one of genuine interest. After the laughter dies down, the students realize that they have learned a great deal about William Shakespeare and his works.

Solitude – A Step Away

The Madison community gives students an occasional respite from the usual hectic life on-campus. Students escape to Shenandoah Lake, Reddish Knob, Blue Hole, and anywhere also a little peace and quiet can be found — even if it's only across 81.

. . . the Shenandoah Valley offers a variety of beautiful scenery

Students take off on day trips with bag lunches from D-Hall in search of solitude. Bicyclers pedal off to the college farm, canoeists paddle off down the Shenandoah river, and hikers pack off to the George Washington National Forest.

Weekends offer the chance of longer sojourns. Spelunkers take off on Friday and come back two days later caked with mud while backpackers traipse off looking for the perfect campsite.

Whatever the individual's interest the Shenandoah Valley offers a variety of beautiful scenery and opportunities for the camper to the aesthetic observer.

Each year this campus has changed immensely. This year it seemed time for the book to change as well. The final result is this book which represents no one person's ideas, but a synthesis of many people's inspirations.

Yearbooks don't just happen. The number of times I've seen the sun rise as I walked back to my dorm from the office would alone attest to that. Much credit goes to my editorial staff who pulled together through every deadline and made it all enjoyable too. And then there are the many other staff members and friends (actually synonymous terms) who gave a lot of their own time to help with this publication. Thank you, to everyone involved.
