Elimination Of All Displays, Editors' Speeches Considered

Changes in the present electoral system are being considered by Student Government announced Barbara Slate, president of Student Government.

Elimination of the speeches made by candidates who are running for the offices of the editorship of the Breeze and the Bluestone is one of the suggestions under consideration. "We hope," stated Miss Slate, "that this will eliminate the personality contest for these two positions and will emphasize the importance of their other qualifications."

The campaign displays which have previously been a requirement for each candidate running for a major office may be eliminated. Also, the number and placement of the campaign posters may be regulated.

Another suggestion under consideration is to hold "buzz sessions" during the election period. This will give the students the opportunity to question the candidates on their programs, ideas, and qualifications.

MAA Receives Faculty Approval

The Men's Athletic Association was unanimously approved as a major organization by the faculty at its December meeting.

The approval was the final step in forming the organization which is to provide recreation on a formal basis for Madison men.

The MAA is headed by Darrell Nygaard with Ralph Crabill as vice president, Bill Purtlebaugh, secretary, and Floyd Freeze, treasurer. These officers, plus class representatives compose the cabinet that directs the organization of which every Madison man is a member.

Representing the freshmen is Marshall Cooke, the sophomores, Cary Clayton, the juniors, Monty Webb, and the seniors, Dennis Golladay.

Ward Long is faculty advisor to the group.

Until this year the men's athletics were directed by a committee of the Men's SGO. It was decided that a separate organization could do more efficient job, and preparations for such a move started early last spring under the direction of SGO President Dan Hooke and MAA President Nygaard.

Even though the group has dropped the intercollegiate basketball team for this year (due to a lack of interest and players), it has presented intramural football and is presently sponsoring a bowling league and a ping-pong tournament. Plans call for an intramural basketball and softball league.

Voting by voting booths, instead of voting in the dormitories, is another suggestion. This, it is hoped, will eliminate "pressure voting" and put more emphasis on intelligent, competent voting.

Any suggestions from the students should be reported to Bonnie Oyler, head of the Electoral Board, or to Barbara Slate, president of Student Government.

Students To Give 'Everyman' on TV

A cast of Madison students will present "Everyman", a morality play, on Viewpoint, Monday night at 7 p.m.

Viewpoint is the weekly program presented by the college on WSVA-TV.

The characters in "Everyman" are allegorical symbols. David Blevins will play Everyman and Dale Sonenshien will read the Prologue.

Other characters in the play are Death, Cary Clayton; Sam Jollyfellow, George Erdman; Father, Carl Beyler; Mother, Reda Rasnick; Aunt, Carol Robey; Cousin, Alice Mead; Sister, Bette Davis; Brother, Floyd Freeze; Riches, Tom Ellison; Virtue, Carol Brockway; and Wisdom, Carol Rose.

Oliver Link and Kyle Stirling, Madison professors, are serving as director and producer.

Males To Celebrate First 'Men's Day' With Annual All-Male Minstrel Show

The Madison males will celebrate its first "Men's Day" Wednesday, Jan. 16. The highlight of the day will be the annual minstrel show presented in Wilson auditorium at 8 p.m.

Described as the equivalent to the familiar class day activities in which the small amount of men participate with the women, "Men's Day" will be 100 per cent male. The entertainment that evening will include many of the main contributors to the acting and musical activities at Madison. Over half of the men students will be participating in the minstrel, plus members of two professional bands, The Top Hats and The Diplomats.

The minstrel is not new to the campus, this being the fifth year of its presentation by the men's organizations. Besides the original sponsors, Sigma Delta Rho and the YMCA, the Men's Student Government Organization, Men's Athletic Association, and Phi Alpha Epsilon will join in on this year's festivities.

The Madison men are extending an

SGA Asks Approval Of New Constitution

Re-evaluation with possible revision and reconstruction of the Student Government structure and the electoral system at Madison College was a top priority project of the Student Government Organization.

With SGA Council's purpose in mind, which was and is to develop a student government system which will result in more efficient and effective campus government, a special committee began its work. It is the belief of the Constitution Revision Committee and the entire Student Council that the proposed plan is a stride in the right direction. Attendance at one regular Wednesday night session of the Student Council will convince one that there must be a better way of doing things.

We have all sat in assemblies where some organization president achieves a sore throat from reading constitutional revisions while the audience obtains the same from coughing. Next Tuesday night the Women's Student Government Association will meet in Wilson Auditorium. At that time the constitution will not be read; it will be explained. Please read over the constitution before you come to assembly. Bring your BREEZE with you for reference. Our current constitution begins on page 66 of the Handbook. Look it over. Compare. Attend the buzz sessions scheduled to follow the assembly Tuesday night. Do all you can to be an informed voter.

Plans are also being made with the hope of improving the campaign and election season. More work is to be done in this area. Students, it is so very important that we give this careful consideration. Your support and constructive criticism have sustained and stimulated the 1962-63 Student Council since last spring. Your support and criticism are more important to us now than ever.

Sincerely,
B. Slate

The Answer Is NOT In Staff Elections

The main complaint against the student election of the editorship of the Bluestone and the Breeze seems to be that the student body is too incompetent to judge the qualifications of the candidates and that the staff is competent. In regards to the Madison College publications and their staffs, this is not correct.

STAFF ELECTIONS

In the first place, you have to consider exactly what is this "competent" staff of the publication.

Through editorials or experience, most students realize that the publication staffs are extremely limited in size. In the case of the Breeze, there are three to five students on the staff who know the qualifications of the students who would be put up for the editorship of the Breeze. This is only in the respect that they have a more qualified knowledge than any other student. Of these few people, two would be running for the office. Consider this carefully. The editor of the Breeze, a paper which reflects student opinion and activity, would be elected by two or three supposedly unprejudiced, informed fellow staff members.

You might inquire why the number of "qualified" voting staff members is so few. The set-up of the Breeze is such that many of the reporters and advertising people have little contact with all the editors of the staff. Then too, many of the reporters have little more journalistic knowledge, in terms of what would be needed to know the qualifications of the candidates for editor, than do most students of the college. THIS PAPER IS NOT THE NEW YORK TIMES. We neither pay our staff members nor do we give them school credit for their work! As it now stands it is not a necessity to have taken journalism or to have ever had any contact with another paper to be a reporter or, for that matter, an editor of the paper. For these reasons, it would be extremely difficult to select members of the Breeze staff who would be any more "qualified" than any other student. Because of these same reasons, it would also be an extremely difficult task to find unprejudiced voters.

In essence, the 1500 students would be giving their supposedly "incompetent" votes to a few individuals who are supposedly competent, unprejudiced, informed, and looking out for the best interests of journalism.

In the second place, in changing the election of the editors to a staff election, you the students are taking away a responsibility and a right which you now possess.

As members of any community, such as the Madison College community, you the "citizens" possess the right and have the responsibility to find out the qualifications of and to vote intelligently for the representatives of your community. The editor, after all, is a representative of the college community. She is directly responsible to the students in that she administers and directs the publication of student activities and student opinion. If the students took away the direct relation of the editor to the student, that of the elected to the electors, the students would be eliminating their control, except nominally, over the student publication. An elected official is always responsible to her electors. The electors are always responsible to find out the qualifications of the candidates for the elected position.

Let us very hastily say that we agree with anyone who says that the present electoral system is a poor, poor system. But may we more quickly add that staff elections are not the solution to the problem! Instead, a system whereby the candidates are more qualified and, even more important in this case, the students can see and comprehend these qualifications has been put into effect.

PROPOSED SYSTEM

According to this system, the candidates for editor must meet certain qualifications which will be explained fully to the student body. Only those people who are qualified will be nominated for the editorship.

Each candidate must have had two years experience on the staff. During that time each candidate must have spent a semester's work in make-up and a semester's work in headline writing. In addition to this, she must keep a file of all work submitted, which would be open to any interested student, and a record will be kept of the type and quality work done by the candidate.

The number, type and quality of articles submitted by a student will be published as part of the candidate's qualifications during election time. The candidate will also publish in the Breeze an article explaining her plans and/or reasons for seeking the editorship of the Breeze.

The election speeches and the displays of the candidates for the editor will be eliminated. In this way, the students will have to pay more attention to the qualifications. Buzz sessions will be held in which candidates can be questioned on their plans, journalistic knowledge, and qualifications. Most important of all, it will be emphasized and re-emphasized that students are responsible to find out the qualifications of the candidates and that they are to vote according to their findings. This is, after all, the duty of all Madison students—in all the elections on campus.

Navy Announces Instructor Needs

The Navy has announced a current need for approximately one-hundred instructors in newly created teaching positions in its nuclear power, missile, and other technical schools.

The general requirements are: Must have a baccalaureate degree or will receive one in 1963 with a major in mathematics, physics, mechanical engineering, electrical engineering, reactor engineering, or chemistry. Age requirements remain the same except that defective color perception and defective visual acuity may be waived in cases of well-qualified applicants.

Selected applicants will attend the Navy's Officer Candidate School at Newport, Rhode Island and will be ordered to a short instructors course prior to reporting to the technical schools.

The Officer in Charge of Navy Recruiting, Richmond, Virginia states that interested persons may contact any Navy Recruiting Station for the initial application form.

Letters To The Editor

Even Pigs Take Over 15 Minutes To Eat Dinner

Dear Editor:

I noticed in the last edition of the BREEZE that there was a letter pertaining to how everybody was so slow in eating their meals. This may or may not be exaggerated, but there is also the other extreme; inhaling your food, the "fifteen minute meal."

It is not exactly the most comfortable feeling to return to your dorm feeling that all the food that you have eaten is still one solid lump in your stomach. When you can't drink your glass of milk because you'll lose time, this situation gets to be pretty ridiculous. However, you are risking the ire of your tablemates as well as the waitress if you dare to speak a sentence or stop to breathe for a moment between bites.

It is ridiculous that the emphasis is on gulping your food in fifteen minutes, then dashing out of the dining hall to nothing except a "solid stomach" for 45 minutes before your next class.

One solution might possibly be to allow students to leave after they have gulped their meals, allowing the "slower" eaters to finish at a semi-leisure. (The dining hall is emptied in a half an hour.) However, this is considered impolite. It is just as impolite, in our opinion, when after ten minutes half-empty plates are passed before your nose and scraped, the waitress whisks them away, and you are left sitting there feeling very piggy and very troublesome... but even pigs take longer than fifteen minutes to eat!

Student Defends Sigma Delta Rho

Dear Editor:

In answer to Dave Blevins' column on Madison's fraternities and in answer to many misconceptions about Sigma Delta Rho, I should like to state briefly some of the reasons I, for one, belong to Sigma Delta Rho rather than to its "more impressive" junior counterpart, Phi Alpha Epsilon.

First of all, I belong to Sigma Delta Rho because it offers me much individual freedom. Our fraternity has some basic factions within it and is much more haphazard than Phi Alpha Epsilon in carrying out its goals simply, because we are not always united in spirit and reason. At the same time, however, we always respect our fellow member's views and never try to present a unified image to Madison College and the surrounding community that will significantly degrade any one of the opposing factions.

I personally tend to consider several of the members in my fraternity as "dead fish" in some respects but nevertheless am very proud to be their fraternal brother. Basically, what I am trying to say is that even though many of the members of my fraternity are not the best party boys in the world, they more than make up for this lack of impressiveness and extroverted joy-making by virtue of their tolerance, healthy philosophies of life, and lack of snobbery. We are not a flashy bunch of men but, rather, are interested in cultivating self-respect and individual expression as well as in having a good time.

Another significant fact about Sigma Delta Rho is that some of our members are interested in setting up some kind of service project, perhaps a scholarship fund for a worthy male student. We feel that only fools (and university fraternities) will separate their social and moral activities and compartmentalize the necessary functions of the human being.

Contrary to popular belief, we do have very good parties and our members are not so socially naive as some would like to think. If Madison students watched our fraternity more closely, they might discover we are not quite the "do-nothing" group we have the reputation for being.

When the time comes that Sigma Delta Rho is more interested in merely cultivating flippant recreation and brash publicity as a substitute for cultivating true men that follow the dictates of their conscience as well as the pleasures of their body, then will I renounce and condemn Sigma Delta Rho as an organization unworthy of my time and energies. However, with men like Danny Hooke, Monty Webb, Eddie Bennett, Ray Davis, John Simmers, Jim Zirk, and others as vital members of our fraternity, I doubt that this fateful state of circumstances will ever come into being.

"Checking Up" With Hostesses Called Unjust

Dear Editor:

I hate to get melodramatic in a discussion, but in this instance I am afraid it is unavoidable. I am very "peevish" about the proposal concerning "checking up" with hostesses when students make overnight visits. I feel that the administration is taking more authority upon itself than has been officially delegated to it. Certain norms for behavior for the students, as well as an organization to enforce these rules, should certainly be established. The issue is how far may the administration go to control the personal lives of Madison students.

I firmly believe that when a student is on his own, neither living on the campus, nor officially representing Madison, she (he) must govern her (his) own actions, and accept the consequences. The parents have the authority, not the school, in this instance.

It is just as unjust to police our actions while we are away from college, as it would be to police the actions of the faculty. Of course, the faculty could complain of "invasion of privacy" but then, they have certain basic rights—we do not. If this proposal were to be enforced, I think it would be a blow to the self-respect (we do have some) of all Madison students.

I urge the administration to consider the existing conditions. How necessary is it that this new proposal be enforced? Do not consider the fact that "other schools have this system." I can think of no weaker or poorer reason for doing something than using the excuse "But they do it."

'61 Editor Backs Staff Elections Of Breeze Editor

Dear Editor:

Although no longer a student at Madison, my interest in school activities and elections is still generated over and over by visits, letters, and news through The Breeze.

Through each of these media I have learned that once again a question has been raised about who should select the editor of the college paper.

On this subject, about which I have a very definite opinion, I can not remain silent.

The students at any college vote as far as their insight allows. They can do no more. When they are pressed to select an editor, for a publication (and this would apply to the Bluestone as well) they and the publication are placed at a decided disadvantage.

Allow me to expound.

1) There is no possible way for each student to view the behind-the-scenes activities of publishing the news.

In no other organization on campus is this as important as it

Skill With Needle and Thread Means Dimes, New Wardrobe

by Betty Edwards

A stitch in time saves nine, according to the old saying.

But according to Marlene Renalds, skill with the needle and thread saves dimes—and can be the means of gaining a whole wardrobe.

Marlene, who is a freshman at Madison, has made 90 per cent of her wardrobe. She has made everything from dresses, skirts, blouses and tailored suits to party dresses, hats and even a bathing suit.

An 18-year-old from Timberville, Rockbridge county, Marlene has been sewing since she was 12.

Just Natural

"My grandmother, my mother and my sister sew," Marlene said. "It was just natural for me to start."

Marlene has never had any classes in sewing in school, but she took sewing in 4-H home economics classes.

She planned and made her college wardrobe during her senior year in high school with hints on styles from her sister Ann who is now a junior at Madison.

"Sewing takes time," Marlene said, "but it saves so much money. It really cuts down on college expenses. I can make a pleated skirt for $5 that sells for $13 or $15," she said.

It's Fun

"And besides," she added, "sewing is fun because it is satisfying to be able to make a suit, just like the Paris original, for so much less money."

Last month Marlene's ability won her a trip to Chicago. She was the state winner in the 4-H dress revue contest and was awarded a trip to the National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago, November 27-December 1.

There she participated in a fashion show with 51 other state and territorial participants. No national winner was selected, but Marlene was one of four selected to represent the dress revue section at a banquet for national winners in all areas of 4-H work.

Winning Outfit

Marlene's winning outfit was a three piece suit of bone-colored rayon which is appropriate for day or evening wear. Without the jacket, the skirt and blouse give the effect of a one-piece dress.

But Marlene's needles never stay idle long. "I spent part of my Christmas holiday making a coat from the material that I won as the district 4-H dress revue winner," she said.

Dean To Conduct Job Survey

Dean E. L. Tolbert will conduct a survey starting on Sunday, January 13, for the Summer Job Information Service.

Students will receive a card and note asking that they give information about any summer jobs that they have held. The information is to be used in helping other students find positions during the summer months.

Volunteers who would be interested in collecting information about summer work and spending an hour or so a week at an information center in Alumnae Hall are asked to contact Dean Tolbert as soon as possible.

Intramurals In Basketball, Bowling To Begin Feb. 5

Intramural basketball and bowling will begin on the Madison campus on February 5.

Starting the second semester also will be an organization for social dancing.

All students are eligible to participate in these activities.

Ten Seniors To Vie For Best-Dressed Title

by Pat Steele

The contest for GLAMOUR Magazine's 1963 "Ten Best Dressed College Girls in America" is about to begin, and GLAMOUR wants to know who's the best-dressed girl on campus.

A list of candidates has been chosen by Student Government and the BREEZE staff, and on Tuesday, January 15, at 6:45 p.m. in Wilson Auditorium, the student body will vote for the best dressed girl at Madison.

Qualifications

GLAMOUR says that the best dressed honors should go to that girl who best complies to these qualifications:

- (1) Good figure, beautiful posture;
- (2) Clean, shining well-kept hair;
- (3) Good grooming—not just neat, but impeccable;
- (4) A deft hand with make-up (enough to look pretty but not overdone);
- (5) A clear understanding of her fashion type;
- (6) Imagination in managing a clothes budget;
- (7) A workable wardrobe plan;
- (8) A suitable campus look (she's in line with local customs);
- (9) Individuality in her use of colors, accessories;
- (10) Appropriate—not rah rah—look for off-campus occasions.

The Madison girl who best meets these qualifications will compete with the best dressed winners from hundreds of colleges in the United States and Canada for a place in the "Top Ten" listing.

If our candidate is picked as one of the "Top Ten" she will win national recognition for Madison in the August issue of GLAMOUR and in newspapers throughout the country; will receive a personal gift from the editors of GLAMOUR; and will win an all-expense paid visit to New York from June 2 to June 14, 1963. During the June visit the winners will be presented at a fashion show to over 1,000 members of the fashion industry; will spend at least two days visiting cultural centers in New York; will be entertained at the theatre, luncheons, receptions and dinners by the editors and by the friends of GLAMOUR; and will receive various gifts from the friends of GLAMOUR.

Finalists

If the judges feel that there are deserving women besides those chosen as the "Top Ten," they will choose up to twenty honorable mention winners who will have a short biography and a picture appear in a Fall issue of the magazine.

"It is our hope to show that being well-dressed and well-groomed is one part of young women's education and not that she should learn early in life. These attributes are not a question of money or an extensive wardrobe but rather the development of good taste and an intelligent interest in one's appearance. Good looks, good grooming and a good mind are all goals for which any young woman can reach," says Kathleen Aston Casey, Editor-in-Chief of GLAMOUR.

President Signs Building Contracts

President G. Tyler Miller signed the contracts Thursday for the construction of a new dormitory and dining hall at Madison.

Madison College received authorization last week from the Governor and the State Director of the Budget to accept low bids and award contracts for construction of a new dining hall building and dormitory which are to cost an estimated million and a half dollars.

The contract was signed with Nielsen Construction Co. of Harrisonburg which submitted the low bids. The dormitory will cost $546,048, the dining hall $892,019, making a total of $1,438,067.

The authorization also allows Madison College to raise up to $410,000 through the sale of revenue bonds to supplement a state appropriation of $280,000 for construction of the dormitory, making a total of $690,000 available for the dormitory project. Up to $600,000 may be raised by the college through revenue bonds to supplement a state appropriation of $650,000 for construction of the dining hall building, making a total of $1,250,000 available for the dining hall project.

Both buildings will be constructed on the southeastern part of the Madison campus. The dining hall, to be a circular building, will mark a transition from the present architectural style of the college.

Those Stars Bother Me

By David R. Blevins

You know, we all get pretty sick of hearing that old tired truism about reading everything with a critical eye. You know . . .

"Don't believe everything you read," . . . "The printed word ain't always Gospel," and like that. At any rate, over the holidays I got real mad at Time Magazine again. Time always seems to come on like — read me daddy and you'll have all the verbal ammunition to explode in clever "intellectual discussions" . . . like, what words to drop and all.

This particular article was about (you guessed it fad lovers) folk music. And of course you all know that if any trend or new direction rates a 3-4 page spread in Time, it's arrived . . . right?

Old Time always seems to have those little stars (asterisks) down at the bottom of the page which so helpfully let you know that Joan Baez's name is pronounced (BIEZ) and not (BAEZ) and such as that. It also explains how a real folkier-than-thou singer of today refers not to "Greensleeves," but to Child 319 or 112. It appears, says Time, that a Mister F. J. Child came out with the "Bible" of the folk world with a voluminous collection of English and Scottish Folk Ballads which we should all take out of our lending libraries.

Time also clues you in on such hip vocabulary as "hoot" or "hoot-nanny" which we should use when referring to a folk sing (you know, like a Panhellenic Sing). We should also drop words like "bluegrass" and "Leadbelly." "Bluegrass" is like unto playing native instruments (no electric guitars)—or . . . it ain't really hillbilly, mother.

We also find out that the Kingston Trio; Peter, Paul, and Mary; The Limelighters, etc. are out of it. They ain't truly folk, cause they've committed the unpardonable sin of making money. In folk . . . that's the wust thing you can do—'cept maybe use a drummer or the Robert Shaw Chorale. We're supposed to dig obscure types . . . the more obscure, the better. We shouldn't like the K. Trio, The Limelighters, etc. cause they're only "folk-oriented"—cosmopolitan types and don't really have their feet in the soil of the American Scene.

Also, friends and neighbors, do write off to the Library of Congress so you can add some original folk recordings (which were made by real folks!) to your Kingston Trio collections.

Well, I guess I'll just trot-off home to listen to my "Leadbelly" Ledbetter album and pray for rain and for the folk fad to end so I can be tastefully obscure. Bye, ya'll.

'Experiment' Ambassadors Speak To Madison Students

Zal K. Contractor from India and Thor Jan Thomassen of Norway, ambassadors of The Experiment In International Living program, spoke to the January 10 assembly on features of the Experiment.

Thor Thomassen, 22, described the Experiment In International Living as an attempt to prove that it is possible for people of different countries and beliefs to live together harmoniously. He said the program was designed "to introduce one people of the world to another through family life."

Thomassen's occupation in his native town of Lodingen, Nordland, Norway is substitute teaching. He has traveled throughout his own country and Sweden. Last summer he hitchhiked through Southern Sweden, Denmark, Germany, Switzerland, and Northern Italy.

While in America Thomassen has been residing with a family in Pennsylvania. Upon his return to Norway, he plans to study at the University of Oslo in preparation for a teaching career on the college level.

Zal Contractor, 33, spoke mainly on his country and the progress it has made since its independence. He said that in the villages of India, the people respect and understand the American people. He also stated that before he was introduced to an "average American" he held the opinion that they were egotistical and rich. His opinion, he said, has changed since he has lived with an average American family.

Born in Karwar, India, Contractor graduated from Bombay University and spent three years on the Dufferni, an Indian Naval Training ship. He is currently employed by the M. S. Breul Company where he is in charge of sales and purchase.

The Experiment is International Living, founded in 1932, is an independent, non-profit organization in the field of international education. It maintains offices in 47 countries on six continents, with the U. S. headquarters in Putney, Vermont. The basis of every Experiment is a family living experience. Since its founding more than 90,000 persons have participated in the Experiment's activities either as Experimenters to other lands or as family members who have played host to incoming visitors.

The ambassadors' responsibilities do not include a study program, but rather a period of getting to know the people of another country by living with families.

For a pamphlet giving detailed information about the Experiment, students should see Dr. Margaret Rauch in Keezell.

Theodore Named To Biography

Dr. Crystal Theodore, head of the art department at Madison College, has been named to the "Dictionary of International Biography," a publication of contemporary achievement.

Dr. Theodore's biography will be included in the May, 1963, printing of the book.

"Dictionary of International Biography" is published by a non-profit organization and is served by a voluntary editorial and advisory board headed by Jean Cocteau, poet, author, and artist.

Dr. Theodore has served as head of the Madison art department since 1957. Before coming to Madison, she taught at Winthrop College, Rock Hill, S. C., at Huntingdon College, Montgomery, Ala., and at East Tennessee State College, Johnson City, Tenn.

She received her A. B. from Winthrop College and her A.M. and Ed.D. from Columbia University.

Letters To Editor

is here. The daily strains of gathering, editing and producing up-to-date, readable material demands the ultimate in leadership, dependability, ability in the field of journalism and ability in getting along with other members of the organization. Only the staff can judge.

2) Those who say a staff appointed editor would lose sight of the primary aim of the paper—to serve the students—are sadly wrong. When a competent staff selects an editor it is because they know he is cognizant of the purpose of the paper and has the means to achieve the ends.

What metropolitan paper serves the public to a greater extent than The New York Times or The Christian Science Monitor? Yet, can you imagine their heads of staff being selected by popular vote among their readers? Absolutely not. It would be laughable.

And the comparison between a college sheet and a metropolitan daily is not far-fetched in the world of journalism—at least it shouldn't be. If it is, it may be because of lack of orientation by the college publishers.

3) By having the staff select the editor, there is a much greater opportunity for immediate building and growing, for they are certain to choose someone with good journalistic foundations. Unfortunately, there have been many instances in the past when all the student body had to really vote on was a three-minute speech, looks and personality. And too often an unqualified editor has been chosen. Surely, we agree that any newspaper employee needs to be outgoing enough to meet the public, but believe me, it takes a lot more than that. You can't bluff your way through those deadlines on that sweet smile. And the staff knows who can handle the job.

4) Now we come to the really testy point. I hear a lot about how the staff-voting policy could lead to block-voting and domination by a particular group. What everyone is trying so delicately to say is that some sorority or fraternity would start pushing its members in and voting them up into number one positions. People who fear this feel they would stand a better chance in the popularity poll in general election.

What many don't realize is that there will always be some group sticking together—and general elections don't change that a bit.

Greek letter organizations can be powerful political tools, yes. But they are generally working toward a good goal. Perhaps one pan-hellenic member does want one of its own in a top position. In the same respect, they don't want to shove some unqualified person into a spot where he or she can make fools of the entire body.

And remember, those of you who fear the Greek lettered ones so, independents can also get behind a candidate and work for his election.

All of this is secondary. The argument for and against block voting takes its place in discussion on election in general. But since it had been mentioned as a drawback to staff voting, I wanted my two-cents worth to say it doesn't matter. An unqualified person on a newspaper staff stands out like a sore thumb. And here is one job that demands not only a desire to be a major officer, but a real love for the work. It just gets too tedious without it.

I could debate this issue to kingdom come and never change my mind. Experience with newspapers before, during and after college has shown me that nothing impedes the progress of a potentially great paper than a mischosen editor. He'll know he doesn't have the wholehearted support of his staff, and even if he gets a paper out every week, it won't be quality work.

Madison College students have made great strides in the last years.

SNOW, SNOW, SNOW! This is how the campus looked after 35 inches of snow fell during the first week in March last year. With below normal temperatures and above normal precipitation forecast for the next month, the worst may be yet to come!

'Button Up Your Overcoat' It's Gonna Snow Some More

by Gail Woodard

Did you hear about the girls who really got "snowed" over the Christmas holidays? More than likely this happened to every Madison coed, because large snow storms blanketed most of the East Coast from North Carolina to Maine.

Yes, it's that snow season once again. Here in the Valley, we can expect the lovely white stuff from mid-November through March. As a matter of fact, last year's March 7 storm managed to topple quite a few weather records.

The Weather Bureau has predicted that from mid-December to mid-January the temperature for the Middle Atlantic States will be below normal and that the precipitation for the South and East Coast will be above normal. The outlook for Virginia appears to be cold and wet.

Since it appears that it will be some time before young men's fancies will be lightly turning, perhaps we'd best prepare for the great white blanket and some coldness to boot.

"To boot," that brings to mind the first necessity, boots. You may be old-fashioned and wear the rubber kind or you may be a young modern and prefer to wear leather boots with wool lining and fur trim. Whichever type you choose you'll be wrong.

What you really need are logger's boots with spikes. These are the best defense against falling on the ice which abounds on this campus during and after (from two to four weeks after) each major snowfall.

Other necessary items are gloves—one for each hand, of course. It is very difficult to walk into a classroom and take notes or a test if one's hands resemble blue pop-sicles.

Prerequisite number three is a nice warm coat. Corduroy coats are considered the twist, but the perennial favorite is the camel boy-coat. During the last period of extreme cold many students buttoned their top buttons and gave quite a military impression. This conjures up an image of Madison Military College for Young Ladies. Couldn't you just picture it?

Some covering for the head is the fourth necessity. College "six footers" are still popular, but hobo hats are gaining in popularity. These felt or corduroy hats have a striking resemblance to dunce hats, but collegians are solving this problem by turning up the brims and pushing in the tops. Ear muffs are also being worn, but offer little protection if one is bald or has short hair.

The final necessity, as far as I'm concerned, is knee socks. Of course, only girls find these necessary, but the boys could certainly take a hint from their female colleagues and wear long socks and garters. Think how much warmer you'd be, fellows!

Any student wishing to enter a manuscript for publication in the forthcoming edition of The Chrysalis should do so immediately.

The deadline for turning in a manuscript is March 1, according to Judy Allen, president of Criterion Club which publishes the magazine.

Students should bring their entries to Dr. Brill's office, Wilson 32.

Detailed information about this subject will appear in next week's Breeze.

National Teacher Examination To Be Held February 16

The National Teacher Examination for this area will be held Saturday, February 16, 1963, at Bridgewater College.

Graduates of the class of 1963 who are planning to teach outside the State of Virginia are advised by the Placement Office to take this exam. Although few states require the beginning teacher to take the National Teacher Examination before being eligible to receive a teacher's certificate, an increasingly large number of individual school systems are insisting upon this practice. The Placement Office will furnish any interested seniors a list of states and school systems requiring beginning teachers to qualify for a regular certificate by taking these examinations.

Candidates for the common examinations will report to the examination center at Bridgewater at 8:30 a.m. The common examinations will be concluded at approximately 12:30 p.m. The optional examinations will begin at 1:45 p.m. and close at approximately 3:15 p.m.

Common examinations are required of all applicants taking the National Teacher Examination and optional examinations are those offered in specific teaching fields. Unless optional examinations constitute a specific requirement for application to teach in a certain school system, beginning teachers are not required to take these optional examinations.

The examination fees for common examinations only are $9.00; common examinations and one optional, $11.00; common examinations and two optionals, $13.00. A check or money order made payable to National Teacher Examination must accompany the application blanks and payment must be mailed in sufficient time to reach Educational Testing Service by January 18, 1963.

Seminar Continues Geography Studies

The Social Science Department will continue to sponsor bi-monthly seminars next semester for students with special interest in geography.

The seminars were started this year under the leadership of Dr. Anthony Sas and Howard Wilhelm. The sessions are primarily for future geography teachers and for students who have an extreme interest in the field of geography and related subjects.

Relating to the seminars are field trips that Sas and Wilhelm conduct. The field trips to such places as manufacturing corporations, the Farm Bureau, and agricultural firms serve a two-fold purpose of acting as a spring board for topics of discussion and as a means of answering questions raised during the seminars.

The purpose of the seminars is to let students discuss topics of special interest which because of limited time they are not able to delve into in class. Whereas text books generalize on subjects the discussions in the seminar go deeper into specific subjects and give students an insight into problems in our own part of the state and country.
