CIRCULATION OF POLITICAL INFORMATION !

CIRCULATION OF POLITICAL INFORMATION 1 The campaign upon which we are, about to enter is by far the most important and moment-ous in which the people of our country have everbeen called upon to participate. The fife of the nation, the liberties of the people, the rights of persons and property are all in jeopardy. An unscrupulous faction in Congress is striving to usurp all the powers of the government. The peorts alone have the remedy in their hands.— To do this promptly and effectually they need all the information that can be furnished them. To supply this need we have concluded to put the "Weekly Intelligencer" for the Campaign at such a price as will place it within the reach of all. It will be supplied to Clubb of Ten or more to the

THE LADIES' BAZAR!

Removed to North side Public Square, be tween Shacklets and Lewis' Jewelry store,

I have the pleasure of informing the public in general, and the ladies of Harrisonburg in particular, that I have just returned from the Eastern Cities with a choice and well-selected assortment of

LADIES FANCY DRESS GOODS. Consisting in part of COLORED and BLACK SILKS, French and English MORENOS, BOMBA ZINES, MOZAMBIQUES, LAWNS, POPLINS, CLOAKS, MANTILLAS, (latest sensation,) SUMMER SHAWLS, &c., &c. FARM AND HOUSE. Sentember.

"Sure peace is his; a solid life, estranged To disappointment, and fallacious hope; Rich in content, in Nature's bounty rich, In herbs and fruits; whatever greens the Spring, When heaven descends in showers; or bends the boug When Summer reddens and when Autumn beams.," As we pass again to fall work, there is need of all the stir and energy which the cooler temperature now admits. Wheat, to-bacco, corn, and almost all crops, in some stage or other of their advance, present themselves to our notice.

CORN FIELD .- Little is to be done in the corn field, except fodder-saving, where that is allowed, and the clearing of the ground for wheat sowing, if that crop is to follow in rotation. We do not commend the practice of pulling blades and cutting tops; the waste of grain by loss of weight tells heavily against it, and as a mode of getting a supply of long provender, it is more costly than a crop of timothy. If there are many, how-ever, as there will be, who still resort to this practice, on account of scarcity of other provision, and the intrinsic value of the corn fodder well preserved, let them begin in time, save their blades with care, and get them into a well made stack, or what is better, under cover, as soon as sufficiently cured. To have such costly food rotted, as it often is, after the labor of pulling, is worse than folly. The corn ground should be the first sown in wheat, and for this purpose the corn should be cut close at the ground, as soon as the grain becomes firm.

WHEAT .- In some portions of Maryland and Delaware the red wheats are sown early in September, and with such success that the practice has become common. In others, few will sow earlier than October, for fear of fiv. We favor always early sowing, thinking there are great many more chances in its favor than against it, in the average of years. At any rate, let all wheat land be put in or-der with the least loss of time. For any late sowing get it in the finest condition in advance, that the plants may have no impediment to rooting quickly, and making the utmost of so much of the fall season as may be left then. The heaviest corn ground which has been cultivated through the season, will need no ploughing, but may be seeded with the drill, if not too grassy to admit the entering of the teeth.

SEED .- Let the seed be only the cleanest to be had, and however clean, wash it in a brine strong enough to float an egg, and dry with finely powdered lime. In washing, pour the seed slowly into the brine, that Brook. smut or other light stuff may float on the surface to be skimmed off, and then stir up hanced the charms of her golden hair, pearly skin, and eyes like the blue skies thoroughly. Drain well in baskets or otherof summer. At her father's death she wise before applying the lime. would be heiresss of the nice sum of seven-

TOBACCO .- This is a very important month to the tobacco grower. All his efforts must be now directed to finishing up the field work yet needed, as preparatory to lodging it safely in the houses. Worms must be en-tirely exterminated before cutting, unless first are to be used in surface. If excited in fires are to be used in curing. If carried in-to the houses undisturbed, they will carry on their work of ragging and defacing the best leaves. All suckers must be carefully broken out before cutting.

"Very," replied the Squire, drawing his arm over her back.

"Oh, good gracious, Daniel ! don't set quite so nigh to me. I-that is I don't consider it strictly proper. Mercy ! what's that ?"

Both listened actentively. "It was the wind rattling the window,

I guess," said the Squire. "Don't you go to getting so nervous, Peggy." "I thought it was Katie waking up, and if she should, I should never hear the last of it. "Hark ! there is a noise-I-"

"Gracious airth ! it's bells. It's Jake and his wife coming back ! What shall I do ?- We're done ! Oh Squire, 'taint, right for us to be nothing one to 'tother!' Do help me! What shall I do ?"

"Tell me where to go, Peggy ? Say the word, I'll go anywhere for your sake, if it's up the chimney."

"Under the lounge, quick ! It's wide and will hold well. Quick ! don't delay a minute."

The Squire obeyed, but the space was so well filled that it was with difficulty he could squeeze himself into so small a compass. And just as he succeeded, Mr. Blake and his wife entered the room, floundering along in the dark, for Peggy had deemed it best to extinguish the light. Jake made for the fire which still glowed with red coals, stumbled over the cricket, and fell headlong against Peggy, who was standing bolt upright, trying to collect her scattered senses. "The deuce !" cried Jake, "look out there old woman, or you'll be down upon me. It's dark as pitch here, and I've fell over the rocking chair or the churn, I can't tell which. Hallo ! what's that?" reaching out his hand to feel his situation, and coming in contact with the bearded face of the Squire. "By golly! it's gos whiskers; Peg! Peg; where are you ? and where's Kate ? and what is this ?"

The Squire did not relish this assault on his hirsute appendages, and by way of retaliation he gave a series of vigorous-kicks which hit Will Darmouth in the region of the stomach and stirred his bile.

Kate Blake was the only daughter of "Look here, old chap !" exclaimed Jacob Blake, the old miscr of West Will, "I'm perfectly willing to share my She was more than commonly pretty, quarters with you seein' as we're both in for it; but you'd better not undertake toand her frank, engaging manners endo that again."

"Heaving !" ejaculated Peggy , "whose voice is that ?"

"That's what I want to know !" cried-Jake, struggling for an upright position. "Hallo I who's fell over my legs ?"

"I'll let you know who's down and who's up !" said the voice of Mrs. Blake; and the old lady scrambled up, only to go instantly down again over a chair .---'Jake where are you? Get up this instant, or I'll shake your breath out when I get my feet again,"

Jake started to obey, and just them Tige, the watch dog, who, hearing the uproar, managed to break loose from his air, rushed upon the scene, and set up his best bow-wow. The Squire had a mortal horror of dogs, and neither fear nor love was strong enough to keep him quiescent now. He sprung to his feet with a yell ; Will followed. Katie, full of love for her lover, hopped out of bed and appeared with a tallow dip-Peggy flung her arms around the Squire with a cry of terror, and Jake was silent with amazement Mrs. Blake was the only one who possessed her wits. She seised the corn popper, and laid it about her with vigor. Her aim was not always correct, and in consequence, she smashed the looking glass into a thousand fragments and knocked down the clock from its shelf, and demolished two bowls and a pitcher that were reposing on the mantle. The Squire broke from Peggy's embrace and dashed out of the window .---Will followed him and Mrs. Blake would have pursued by the same outlet. but she was a little too large to get through with ease. A dreaded council was held ; Jako stormed; Mrs. Blake threatened; and at last Katie and Peggy confessed. And Jake and his wife were so rejoiced at the prospect of getting rid of Peggy that they forgave their daughter and took Will Dormouth home at the end of the whole crop should be topped. This wil give three weeks of time in which the small top leaves may lengthen out, and the plants ripen before it will be necessary to close up the cutting. Let each day's cutting be no more than can be handled and hung away in the house, without undue haste, by ten o'clock of the following morning. At this hour, the dew being well off, the cutting for the day should begin. See that the cutters lay the plants without doubling and rumpling the leaves; and let them not lie too long to wilt in the sun. But little of such exposure is needful, if moderate care be used in picking up and putting into small turns for the cart. The master should see to it that ample room be allowed in hanging, and that plants be not crowded upon the sticks, nor the sticks jammed together in the house. If so close that every plant has not room to fall entirely clear of every other one, there will be damage done in curing.

RyE.—Sow rye without delay. It is not a favorite grain in wheat growing districts. from the difficulty of preventing its growing as a weed in that crop, and because of the facility of making a crop of wheat on the poorer class of soils by the use of the fertil-izers of the market. Whenever sown let it be sown early, and with a dressing equal in value to a hundred . pounds of Peruvian guano to the acre. Three pecks of seed is sufficient, if grain be the object. When sown chiefly as a forage crop, two bushels of seed is not too much. It must be sown thickly, and manured heavily, to be most profitable for this purpose, and the earlier sown the better.

MANURES .- No crop is so sure to profit by generous manuring as wheat, and none is so unreliable without it, unless it be sown on a good clover or pea fallow. If not all, at least a portion of the manure should be so put on as to be of immediate service in forcing the young plants in their full growth -The application of the equivalent of fifty pounds of guano by the drill in seeding, is the best method of doing this, and this is to be recommended, however the crop is to be manured otherwise. Yard manures should be so applied, either before or after seeding, so as to keep them on or near thesurface.

TIMOTHY .- Timothy should be sown imnediately after wheat sowing, if upon the same ground; otherwise as early this month as practicable. If sown for a full crop the next season, it must be sown without grain. but be manured as you would wheat and sown thick, not less than a peck of best seed to the acre.

THE GARDEN.

BEETS.-Take up early crops by the close of the month. Be careful in storing them in a dry airy place, the external moisture being well dried off before storing.

CABBAGE .- Sow seeds this month of hardy early sorts, to stand over winter, and pro duce early crops. The early York is well known, and other hardy kinds may be tried, which the seedsmen offer. The plants are to be set out on ridges about the 1st of November. Sow seed enough to insure an abundant supply.

CAULIFLOWER .- Seeds of this fine vegetable, for early spring and summer use, should be sown the latter part of the month. There is but little more skill required than in growing the cabbage, and it should be more common in our country gardens than it is.

POTATOES .- When the tops are dead, they should be taken up and put away, care being taken that they have sufficient ventilation, and not stored in too large bodies.

RADISH .- Sow now hardy varieties for winter use, such as black Spanish and winer Chinese rose, for consequences. Fortunately, old Jacob never suspected the partiality of his daughter for Will; he would have put her on bread and wa-ter before he would have consented to the

I Do Not Like to Hear Him Pray

Be pressed to pay for feed and rent.

For grace to spend aright the day, Who knows his neighbor has no flour ;

And buy the luckless brother bread.

I do not like such soulless prayers ;

slightest intimacy with Will Darmouth Jacob Blake was not in favor of marriage. Those who knew his circumstances were not surprised at this, for, to use a phrase more expressive than elegant, Mrs. Blake was a Tartar, with temper enough for two Tartars.

Old Jacob had to "walk Spanish" for the most part, or suffer the consequences which usually descended on his head in the shape of any domestic utensil which happened to be lying around handy.

A maiden sister of Mr. Blake's resided in the family, whose principles business seemed to be to act as a sort of echo to her brother and his wife. Whatever they thought she thought too.

She regarded it as a primary sin for Kate to associate with the young men and this doctrine was perseveringly drilled into her niece, who though she never dissented, had her own idea on the sub ject.

One day Mr. Blake and his wife went to Dedham to attend a fair, and Miss Peggy being absent at a friend's Katie was left alone. Will Darmouth in some way, learned the condition of affairs, and early in the afternoon he came over to keep Kate company.

As her parents were not expected home until the evening, Will felt perfectly recure in stopping awhile after tea; and he and Kate were having a jolly time popping corn in the old fashioned frying pan, over the hugh wood fire, when there was a sound of voices at the door. "Good gracious?" cried Kate, turning white with alarm "there is Aunt Peggy Oh Will! what shall we do? she wil scold me to death ; and father will be furious. Get under the lounge quick !

Oh, Will, do, for my sake !" Will could not withstand the pleadings in Kate's eyes, and he deposited himself in the designated place. Kate put out the light, and darted into an adjacent room, and in a moment was apparently asleep. Peggy's voice was heard in the hall. "Be careful Mr. Pike. There is a loose board there; I don't want to disturb my niece. Softly, it may creak " "Peggy, dear where are you?" re-sponded the squeaking voice of Squire Pike, widower of a year. "I can't tell which way you have gone." "There, Daniel ! be easy. Good Heavens ! Daniel Pike. Well, I never!" and a report burst upon the air like the uncorking of a champaign bottle. "Oh my ?" cried Aunt Peggy, "what would my brother Jacob say ? I declare I haven't been kissed by a man since-" "Let Jake mind his own business!" retorted the Squire. "You and I can take care of ours without his help ;" and there followed a report similar to the first, only a little more so.

"Do be quiet, Daniel, and let me get a light. Set down there afore the fire and make yourself at home." A light was soon procured. Peggy divested herself of her wrappings, and blushing like a girl in her teens, sat down opposite the Squire. "It's a fine evening," said Peggy, by the way of opening the couversation.

We can only approximate, by the most violent conjecture, the cause which fathers the wonderful mutations in the politcal record of Gov. Brown. History informs us, by same mysterious disposition of Providence, of nations of the highest civilization, adorning science and letters with the splendid results of their researches, having gradually decayed in their intellectual and moral status, until they finally relapsed into stupid ignorance and debased barbarism. It may be that Joe Brown has been selected as the avant coureuer, preludious to the decadence of the American people, and set apart as a monument of unadulterated corruption-the grade of depravity to which we are destined to sink. At the initiation of hostilities between the North and South, no one was so fierco in behalf of the South and Southern rights as Covernor Joseph E. Brown, of Georgia. He was the Harry Hotspur of our section. He grabbed Northern steamers lying in Georgia waters, and held them as security for the rendition of arms purch sed by Georgia and held at Northern depots. He "fired the Southern heart" with his nervous appeals and burning invectives, and rushed into the field the flower of the Georgia youth to defend with their blood and consecrate with their lives the cause of the South and his own ideas of Southern rights. Upon this line he fought, or rather uiged and induced others to fight, until the gloom and clouds of defeat hung threatening and ominous over our heads. When the dark days camewhen it required manhood and nerve to face disaster and ruin-with the elasticity of a circus tumbler he vaulted to the other extreme, and did all in his power to cast odium upon the cause he had so warmly sustained in the beginning and in the sunshine of encouraging hope. Instead of the proud, hightoned Southern gentleman, we had been induced to believe he was, scorning the degradation of the pliant mendicant at the footstool of negro and Radical power, we find him, on the first occasion presented, buttonholing with Southern scalawags, carpet-bag-gers and negroes in the Chicago convention, and embracing as a man and brother his equals, socially, morally and politically, fact. the negro whom he had commanded as his slave, and the carpet-bagger, whom he had reckoned as below the native-born negro. He stood foremort in the maintenance of Southern rights and Southern character in the flood-tide of prosperity, and now stands foremost in the column of craven scalawags who would barter the birth-right of their people for a mess of pottage, and rivet the chains of degraded slavery upon the limbs of their own kith and kin. "Look upon this picture and then upon that," and say whether the hiss tory of the world, since the days of Judas, has presented a more loathsome mass of human corruption than is compressed in the character of Joe Brown. To this Corypheus of putridity we would address two p ges of Scripture for his guidance: "J "Judas went and hanged himself"; "Go thou and do likewise."

GODEY'S LADY'S BOOK, for October, has been received. It is enough to say of this

In one State the United States soldiers are wanted, so says the Radical Tennesse Legislature, "to keep the people in subjection;" in another, a memorial is forwarded to the President and Gen. Grant as if in doubt as to who was the proper party to apply to, (addressing their memorial to the General of the army, as well as to the President, and we venture to say a thing never done before radical incompetency snatched the helm,) calling FAMLY FLOUR at Sept. 16. HENRY SHACKLETT'S. attention to the fact "that no one is authorized to issue a proclamation for the LOVE AMONG THE ROSES at Sept. 16. OTT'S Drug Store. election of electors." This state of ROSADALIS, the great blood purifier, at Sept. 16. OTT'S Drug Store, things was brought about by deposing the Governor elected by the people by military power, and Gen. Gillem, the military commander, does not find authority HALL'S HAIR RENEWER at Sept. 16. shape. And for all this, where is there a remedy to be found. Can we go to the President? No, for his hands are tied by unconstitutional congressional enactments. Can we apply to the Supreme Court? No, for it has been made subordinate to the legislative department of the government. Shall we go to Congress? Why they would coolly say, "stand by the reconstruction acts." There is then but one source of power left, i. e., the "Generals of the armies of the United States!" Thus we find the source of power just here-vested in Gen. Grant! And to day, startling as it may seem, especially so as far as the Southern States are concerned, Gen. Grant is, by reason of the power conferred by the Radical acts of reconstruction, (as radically unconstitutional, and in as direct opposition to the American idea of liberty, as radicalism itself) the ruler, no matter how much mongrelism may try to disguise the great From the inception of the mongrel party to this hour, all of its acts have shown its utter incompetency to hold the reins of government. Not one State it has attempted to reconstruct but shows this to be true; and we further assert, that in all its congressional enactments, upon any and all subjects of vital interest or importance to the country, it has not only failed to appreciate that importance, but has shown its incompetency to deal with it. Thus we see these memorials coming up from all parts of the South. and we know these people have suffered enough to have caused them to send up thousands of such documents instead of the few that have been forwarded. It has been said a thousands times before, ROCKINGHAM FEMALE INSTITUE.-The press upon our local columns last week prevented us from calling attention, as we designed, to the claims of this first-class school upon the patronage of the citizens of both town and county. The cession for the fall and winter began on Monday last, and the attendance of pupils was quite gratifying .--Now that efforts are being made, which we believe will be successful, to thoroughly repair and improve the buildings, and beau. tify and adorn the grounds attached, we hope to see all our citizens taking an interest in this noble enterprise, and lend a helping hand, that Rockingham may have, if not the best, at least, one of the best female schools in the State Considering the refined and intelligent community surrounding this Instition, we can see no reason why we cannot have a very superior female school in every respect.

Rev. Mr. Custer, the Principal, is thoroughly qualified for his position, and has had beside many years experience In fact, we do not believe that the Principal and his assistants in this school have their superiors in this State. Again, then, we urge our people not to send their daughters to foreign schools, but to educate them at home, if it can be done as well here as anywhere, of which we have no doubt. Citizens of Rockingham, let your county pride induce you to assist in building up your own county institutions.

"THE WAR BEEWEEN THE STATES ITS CAUSES, CHARACTER, CONDUCT AND RE-SULTS," by Hon, Alexander H. Stephens, is the title of a valuble work just issued by the National Publishing Co., Philadelphia, Pa.

Histories of the late civil war have sprung up like mushroons, and they can now be numbered almost by hundreds, but all who are desirous of arriving at a correct understanding of the causes, and a clear history of the events of the late lame table war, have felt the want of a reliable history of the san e from a Southern s'andpoint, by some is about to be supplied by Alexander H. Stephens.

The bare announcement that this distinguished statesman had det mined to write a book, would, of itself, be sufficient to kindle a lively and wide spread interest in all sections of the country; but when it is known that he has chosen as his theme the one so fruitful as the late American war, the absubing interest of the subject, together with the evident and singular fitness of the author for its treatment, unite in awakening a curiosity entirely unparalleled in the annals of American literature.

It presents a careful political analysis of causes of the late unhappy conflict, and gives those interior lights and shadows of the great war, only known to those high officers, who watched the flood tide of revolution from its fountain springs, and which w.re so accessible to Mr. Stephens from his osition as second officer of the Confedera-

LOCAL BREVITIES. Harrisonburg has a new meat market .--Encourage it. A good institution. Don't forget the Circus next week. Look out for the Elephant. Staunton talks about annexing Lexing

MONEY ORDERS .- The rates of commisrepresentative man of the South. This want have been materially reduced of late. As sion charged for postoffice money orders now arranged, the price paid is as follows : On orders not exceeding $20, ten cents : between $20 and $30, fifteen cents ; between $80 and $40, twenty cents, and between $40 and $50, twenty-five cents.

A cheap and sale mode is thus afforded for the transmission of money by mail. The Harrisonburg postoffice is a money order office, and is a source of great convenience to our people.

OMITTED .- We last week omitted to mention tn our list of improvements, the Vineyard on the "red hill," planted by Messrs, Hockman & Forrer. Also, the room fitted the past, separating real from apparent up in the "Law Building," and used by Dr. S. M. Dold as a drug store. There may have been others omitted, but it was beyond our power to gather all, et such short notice, and all emissions were certainly upintentional.

> AMMERICAN FARMER .- Amongst the agricultural publications of this country, we regard the American Farmer, a monthly magazine of Agriculture and Horticulture, as one of the best. It is, besides, the oldest agricultural monthly in the United States. having been established in 1819. It is published in Baltimore, Md., by Worthington year. A specimen copy can be seen at this off ce.

ACCIDENT .- Ben. Rice, a worthy colored man, of this place, met with a severe accident on yesterday evening. About a week since he raised a leg house for himself, and at the time of the accident he was engaged in putting on the rafters and was standing on the top of the building, when one of the logs in the eastern side of the house gave way, and he was thrown to the ground, a heavy log striking him in the descent, and partially falling upon him. He was insensible for sometime after he fell, but he became conscious as the hands wno were working with him were about carrying him home. Medical assistance was promptly rendered. and it is not thought his injuries are sufficient to cause his death.

A Trip to Luray-What I Saw.

A Trip to Luray-What I Saw. As. Epiron: -Your humble correspondent left the city of Harrisonburg several days since to visit your neighboring village of Luray. It is pleasing to the eyo, and cheering to the soul to mount one of Andrew & Paul's noble steeds, and go, via McGaheysville, Conrad's Store, and the Shenandoah Iron Works, to Luray. The landscape scenery is equal to any on which the sun ever shed its rays; the mountains, bold and to weigh seem to invigorate us, and cause us to meditate upon the Omniporent power that cre-ated them in their indescribable massive bean-ty, with the lovely Shenandoah, the 'daughter of the stars' washing their base further than the system and not to nature alone is all the creditlage, (taking its name from an old resi-dent, Mr. McGaheysville, though an old set-tion of the last six months, two beauting wildings—the former a good dwelling-house and the latter a large and capacious store-house. country is enlivened by the whistle of the steam engine of Messrs. S. P. H. & J. G. H. Miller, two enterprising citizens of the eastern section of this county. These gentlemen are employed in saving and planing lumber, which they ship on their own railto ad to the river, a distance of about two miles, thence down the Shenandoah to Charlestown and Harper's Ferry, from whence it is sent to Martinsburg, Baltimore, and to the interior of Pennsylvania. They saw a superior quality of piae lumber, with which they supply the aloresaid markets. As we proceed down the Page Valley, we reach the Shenandoah Iron Works, owned by Wm. Milnes & Co., which Company we find not only in a prosperous condition itself, but that it has infused into the community at large a spirit of advancement. Within a mile of the Works, there are several fine residences erected within the last year, one by Mr. Make by Mr. Kite, one by Mr. Dovel, and a store house by W. D. C. Covington, Esq., all of which evince the energy and prosperity of that portion of this great Valley of the Shenandoah. Good produc-tive land can be purchased in that section of the county from $30 to $50 per acre. It is proposed to build a turnpike or McAdamized road from the Iron Works across the Massanucten moun-tain to Harriscnburg, a distance of 12 or 13 miles, shorter than the present route by 10 miles, and thereby making, also, abster road; it could not be a worse one, for search creation round, and you will not find aroad in a worse condition, unless it be the Rockingham turnpike.

To a public that has been surfeited with apparently similar productions, it presents a

The great American war has at last found a historian worthy of its importance, & Lewis, at the very low price of $2 per and at whose hands it receives that moderate, candid and impartial treatment which truth and justice so earnestly demand.

This most valuable work is sold only by subscription, and the publishers want an agent in every county.

We are indebted to Mr. Pendleton Bryan, the gentlemanly Clerk of the Common Council, for the following proceeding at the meeting on Friday last :

Present-The Mayor, and Councilmen Hockman, Newman, Messerly, Price, Sprinkel, Yaucey, Loewenbach and Ott. Abrent-Recorder Bradley, and Councilmen Helphenstine and Shacklettt.

Mr. J. A. Loewenbach, the Treasurer of town, presented his official bond, in the penalty of ten thousand dollars, which was accepted.

The Committee on Streets were authorized to substitute a plank walk for the brick pavement heretofore ordered, from Morrison's corner to the old jail, if it should seem advisable to them.

A number of accounts against the town wet weather. were presented, a part of which were allowed and ordered to be paid, and the remainder referred to the proper comm ittees. Adjourned.

BRYAN'S GRAND CARAVAN .--- The Menagerie and Circus, which have been so generally and well spoken of by the newpapers of the Valley, areto visit Harrisonburg on Thursday, the 24th of September. These establishments, incorporated into one "institution," form, we presume, a very respectable "show." One fact is significant, the management know how to advertise, and we incline to the belief, that the men who evince such good taste, and liberal outlay of printers' ink, as Mr. Bryan's directors have done, must have something of such a character that they wish the people to see it. They claim to have a real wild beast show, a caravan of twenty dens, and a circus which can outrank any precedent, either in regard to quantity or quality. The "show" is coming, we reckon everybody is fully aware of and we think it very likely that everybody will come to the "show."

A gentlemon in the mercantile business in Harrisonburg, is anxious to change his business, and will sell the remainder of his stock, composed principally of groceries, queens. ware and notions, upon the most reasonable sterms: also, will rent to his successor; the best store room and best stand in the place. Eurther information can be had from the Editor of this paper.

Those who subscribe now, will receive the whole volume for 1869, and the October, November and December numbers of this year, gratis. This is a very liberal offer. Every number is worth the price of a year.

THE WEATHER .- The weather was exceedingly warm up to Sunday last. On Friday evening we had some rain ; on Sunday some more fell, and at this writing (Monday evening) it is raining quite hard. Though fashionable, it is not frivolous. On the contrary, it is full of sound sense, useful information, and vigorous, high-toned thought. There is more for the money than in any other two Magazines, and the quality is as good as the quantity is generous.
