Scholar To Visit Madison College

Dr. E. Digby Baltzell will speak October 15 in Blackwell Auditorium. Dr. Baltzell is a professor of sociology in the University of Pennsylvania's Wharton School of Finance and Commerce.

The author of the widely-acclaimed Philadelphia Gentlemen, he will further explain this past year for his latest book, The Protestant Establishment: Ambiguity and Conflict in America.

Dr. Baltzell, a graduate of St. Paul's School, received his Bachelor's degree from Pennsylvania in 1940 and his doctoral degree from Columbia University in 1947. He joined the University faculty in 1947 and from 1954 to 1958 served as Director of Foreign Students. He was a Naval aviator in the South Pacific during World War II. A member of Delta Phi fraternity, he is also affianced with Philadelphia's International House and the American Sociological Association.

Breeze Staff Appeals • • • Remember Us

Attention, Madison College! This is YOUR Breeze. This being the only campus newspaper, represents Madison.

When The Breeze staff began making up the paper Thursday night, we were faced with a dilemma. We had practically no copy. The question was, "How do we print a four-page paper with barely enough copy for one page?"

Where was the copy? Upon checking a list of the staff, we found that every member, except one person, had been present either Tuesday or Thursday nights. The articles which had been assigned had been turned in. The news editor had checked the calendar in Alumnae and assigned reporters to all events. Reporters had also gone to various departments for stories on the visiting scholar and the art exhibit. However, this was not sufficient. The Breeze staff has neither the time nor resources to go to every club, organization, department, or office and beg for news.

We have contacted the officers of major organizations, some department heads, and members of the administration. We have asked that at any time they have news, that they contact a member of the staff and a reporter will cover the event or announcement. We have repeatedly appealed to the student body for any news, ideas, or suggestions. Some have cooperated. Many have not.

The Breeze is sent to approximately 20 other colleges, to parents, to alumni, and to advertisers. Is this the picture of Madison that YOU want projected?

This is a reminder and an appeal to the student body. The staff does not enjoy printing a paper such as this, but the lack of support from the student body has forced us to do so. If this responsibility is to truly represent the student body of Madison, each student must do his share.

We appeal again to each of you. We need your help to prevent a repetition of this issue.

Modern Art Created and Exhibited

by Don Willard

An exhibit of Madison students, containing a broad range of styles from naturalistic rendering to abstract construction, is now being displayed on third floor Wilson.

A framed composition sculpted by Betty Hart, a recent graduate of Madison, is characteristic of a promising trend in contemporary sculpture. Using the medium of sidewalk chalk, Miss Hart has created a free standing work of art which exemplifies the turmoil that is representative of our age.

Miss Hart has acquired numerous awards as a result of various public art exhibits and contests, and shows great promise of being one of Virginia's leading sculptors.

The exhibit in Wilson is simply the work of students rather than professionals. However, due to Madison's highly rated art department, we can expect to see equally or even superior results from Madison art majors in the future.

The students who work that is now on exhibit may well be the key to the development of a characteristic art contribution that will truly be representative of a significant American expression.
Correction!

We would like to rectify the omission of three names in the sorority story in last week's issue of The Breeze. They are: Carolyn Carr, Sigma Sigma Sigma; Sandra Romankowski, Alpha Sigma Tau; and Juan Rosen, Alpha Gamma Delta.
