Godwin Outlines Promises
In Campaign For Governor

( Editor's Note: Virginia has three main candidates for governor. Each emphatically states he is the best qualified for the office. On November 2, it will be the privilege of the adult residents of Virginia to choose the candidate who will be governor for the next four years. The "Norfolk Virginian-Pilot" on Sunday, Oct. 17, ran articles from each candidate to tell him what Virginia needs. The following statements were condensed from these articles.)

Godwin States Needs

Lt. Gov. Mills E. Godwin, Jr., Democratic nominee for Governor,

Virginia stands now at the threshold of an era of unprecedented opportunities.

"We are living in an age in which tremendous population growth is creating new markets for products and services, and great advances in science and technology are making it possible to supply these needs abundantly and efficiently.

"Virginia is in an enviable position to take advantage of these opportunities. In the first place, our geographical location is ideal. We have a reputation for sound government and a stable economy that is not equalled by any other state. This makes us an attractive place to live and work to all people.

"As our population expands and as State services necessarily become more complex, it is absolutely necessary that we not only provide for our dedi-

Seated Meals Pace Problems
With More Modern Facilities

According to the report by Carolyn Larkins on Student Government activities in last week's BREEZE, the dining hall situation is being investigated. Apparently neither Student Government nor the administration feels that the present procedures concerning seated meals are satisfactory.

Many seniors and juniors are questioning themselves and others these days: how come the food was hotter, service quicker, and not so much chatter in the hall? The waitresses were worked half to death, the equipment far from up to date but dinners were enjoyable—then.

So what's the problem now? Millions of dollars went into the construction and equipment of the cafeteria. Conditions for the waitresses have improved considerably. The food is of better quality and more attractive to appearance.

The main idea is that the capacity of the cafeteria is enormous compared to the old dining halls, yet students are so crowded that waitresses often cannot move adequately between the tables they are serving. The food is locked in to the cafeteria by means of modern, costly equipment, but it is often cold. Many students consider the food tastier but frequently there is not enough at the six v'colleges.

These are unpleasant characteristics of a college dining system which prides itself on its "up-to-dateness." However, if the problems continue, otherwise one might end up eating in silence. If students find themselves favoring eating with those one knows is that otherwise one will move from the classroom, compile, and have the entire test distributed, and after you slide the answers during the class discussion if the professor asks you to retest your test so not to have them to study by future use of this assistance.

For specific examples, it is an Honor Council offense for a person to copy questions and answers, even often from the classroom, compile, and have the entire test distributed, and after you slide the answers during the class discussion if the professor asks you to retest your test so not to have them to study by future use of this assistance.

As stated in the requirements of the Honor System, the quizzes and the examinations are administered under the Honor System. Students shall not discuss, either the questions of a quiz, or an examination with any students until after the completion of the assignments by all sections of the course. Failure to comply with these regulations will result in suspension of the student and for the examinations at any- is an Honor Council offense for a person to copy questions from the quizzes and/or examinations at any time, and to have them available for their own use, or their use by others, constitutes a violation of the Honor System.

Also, it is a general accepted test that no biology departmental tests are to be removed from Burn. I have brought out these specific situations for the purpose only and if there are questions, please consult your professor. Honor Council asks that if you are aware any violation of Honor System policies, to report it to the Honor Council for further investigation.

Honor Is . . .

Students are often urged to "adjust." With the collapse last year of the educational philosophy that the worlds are going to have a few adjustment problems to their own. Higher education has changed. It is no longer a savored luxury of the elite, as it may have been 25 years ago. Nor is it the protracted guidebook for technocrats encouraged in the numerous popular attention training workbooks: you succeeded sufficiently that even students are beginning to value liberal arts in the classroom and open discussion outside of it. This has come as a shock to the processes of leadership can be developed — one which guarantees the existence of the "ivory tower intellectual," for whom a university was little more than a lab, a library, and a bunk. It's time they recovered.

So often the question arises, "Can I study from old tests?" In answer, this will hold true, of course, that if a professor hands you your test back to you, without any stipulations, it's your property to do with as you choose. However, if the pro- fessor requires you to return all tests, or only allows you to see your grade, it is an Honor Coun- cilmoff to copy questions and answers with the intention of mak- ing future use of this assistance.

Lacrosse Clinic At Frostburg State

A lacrosse clinic was attended by three students and a faculty member at Frostburg State College Friday, October 15.

Louise Schrader and Terry Pflum from Madison, along with Susan Crain from Bridgeport, accompanied Miss Tergesen to Frostburg.

The clinic began that night in the gym with a showing of slides and an informal discussion, which was followed by a most entertaining bowtime.

After Saturday breakfast in the cafeteria, the girls were drilled for three hours. Following lunch, teams were organized and a lacrosse game was played for an hour and a half.

Fairmont College (W. Va.), Wilson College, Bridgewater, and Madison were among the schools represented.

A most enjoyable time was had by all, new friends were made, and all felt that much was accomplished toward understanding that "score game" of lacrosse.

Two coaches supervised and drilled. One was June Belli, who is with the New Jersey Lacrosse Association and has been playing lacrosse for 12 years. She has been a member of the reserve teams of the United States Women's Lacrosse Association for three years and in 1964 served on both the first and second teams.

The other coach, James Albright and his wife, Kay Ellington, are also from New Jersey and are Vice-President of the USWLA and editor of "Checks", the official publication of the organization.

The coach, James Albright, plans to play the position for the New Jersey Lacrosse Association as a guest this summer and will serve on both the United States reserve and touring teams of USWLA.

The clinic was another factor in the growth of the sport of women's lacrosse. Very little is known about the sport of lacrosse today in the United States. With the clinic, the girls were drilled, and they left the gym with the hope that this sport will grow in popularity.

The clinic took place on the campus of Frostburg State College, and the girls were drilled for three hours. Following lunch, they were divided into teams and began playing a game of lacrosse. The game was played for an hour and a half.

Saturday night, the girls were drilled again and then played another game of lacrosse. After the game, the girls had dinner at a local restaurant and then returned to Frostburg for the night.

The girls' reactions to the clinic were very positive. They enjoyed meeting new people and learning more about the sport of lacrosse. They also felt that much was accomplished during the clinic, and they left with the hope that this sport will continue to grow in popularity.

Four Gubernatorial Candidates Outline Virginia's Needs

person must recognize that we face, on a large scale, the dangers of continuing domination by one political party. "Two party, or at least bipartisan, competition is what Virginia needs—desperately needs, and now! And this situation needs Virginia—in a role of proud awakening, that will make her ideals of political democracy and human freedom again throughout the land!"

William J. Sturgis, Conservative, announces for Governor: "The American concept of liberty born in Virginia 200 years ago is a very simple concept. It is based on the idea that man could, and ought, to govern himself. All power has to be derived from the people of the several states; not by kings, barons,ocrats, Federal judges, the Nazi Party, or the Communist Party, or the Conservative Party, or the Democratic Party. The thesis of the Democratic Party was that the Federal government was not to tax unless those that pay."

Fitzgerald began by outlining the concept of government as it was devised. We want to conserve this basic idea of the right of the people of the state, deliberately surrendered to state power to the Federal government. This they did when they went into our own State Supreme Court of Appeals with a plea which in effect stated that U.S. Supreme Court decisions were the law of the land. When this was done in our State Supreme Court, where no discussion was presented, the Democratic Party ceased to exist. It certainly was no longer the party of Jefferson. It is no longer had any purpose except that of perpetuating certain people in office. I believe subsequent events proved that to be true."

TYPICAL DIARY OF A TYPICAL COLLEGE GIRL

Diary

Monday
Studied . . . Called Famous Restaurant 434-7253 for Pizza and spaghetti (I save 10% on any delivery).

Tuesday
Studied . . . Weather was so good I took a walk to the Famous Restaurant for supper (I lost the 10% but the food was hotter).

Wednesday
Studied . . . Tonight I went to the movies and then loaded up on the delicious food at the Famous Restaurant. I started a date with Dashing Jack Saturday. Start my diet tomorrow.

Thursday
Studied . . . Forget dieting — Handsome Jack thinks skinny girls aren't attractive. My roommate is so skinny she rattles. She doesn't like Pizza. Went shopping, but saved $1.10 for the famous Famous Pizza and a coke.

Friday
Studied . . . Swinging Jack called, but I was foundering at the Famous Restaurant. My skinny friend talked with him. Last night I dream of FAMOUS PIZZAS — Famous Pizzas, of course — Millions and millions of those round rascals.

Saturday
Studied . . . Ugly Jack and my skinny roommate went dancing. I hope she falls through a crack! Anyway, I've got my Famous Pizzas to keep me warm. . . . . . . . . . . I LOVE you, FAMOUS RESTAURANT.
