

Byrd Stresses "Quality Education"

Inspecting the new Dormitory are Senator Harry F. Byrd, Jr. (center) with President G. Tyler Miller, Russell M. Weaver, Rector of the Board of Visitors; Hubert Jones, representative of Wright, Jones, and Wilkerson architectural firm; and Peggy Latham, president of Huffman Dormitory.

The two new dormitories on east campus were officially dedicated during Founder's Day ceremonies last Tuesday. Keys to the buildings, named in honor of Dr. Otto F. Frederikson and Dr. C. Herbert Huffman, retired members of the faculty, were presented to Russell M. Weaver, Rector of the Madison Board of Visitors. Architect Hubert L. Jones, of Wright, Jones and Wilkerson, made the presentation.

Keynoting the Founder's Day assembly was U. S. Senator Harry F. Byrd, Jr. In a five minute eulogy, Dr. Miller told the large gathering of students, faculty and alumni that the senator, though only recently elected to his position, has made a name for himself in Congress by his support of "the fighting men in Vietnam."

In his address, the Virginia newspaper publisher (Harrisonburg Daily News-Record and the Winchester Evening-Star) paid tribute to the men for whom the new dormitories were being named. Then, echoing sentiments expressed here earlier this month in an address by Gov. Mills E. Godwin, Byrd stated his concern for education in Virginia.

Education Explosion Sketched

Briefly, the Senator sketched what has been termed the "education explosion." Senator Byrd said that college enrollment in the state is expected to triple in less than 15 years.

"Our economy and culture face stagnation if we don't meet this challenge to our educational system. If we don't meet the challenge, we face the possibility of losing our young people," the Senator said.

Byrd related education, in addition, to the growth of industry and commerce in the state. He explained that industry likes to move into those areas with good public school systems. The resulting increase in taxes gathered from new industry could be used, then, to continue to improve the quality of education.

Federal Aid Dangerous

The freshman senator, however, intimated that looking to the Federal government for aid can be dangerous. "I believe that the control of schools should remain in the hands of the people," Byrd said. He warned of federal restrictions, controls and red tape.

In concluding his remarks, Byrd explained that the "education explosion" is related to the "knowledge explosion." He noted that in one 24 hour period, there are enough technical papers written to fill seven 24 volume Encyclopaedia Britannicas. In just 10 years (1955-65), the number of books published each year has risen from 12,000 to 28,000.

Specialization Unfortunate

"This knowledge explosion has led to an unfortunate specialization," Byrd said. Though he admitted that specialization is necessary for progress, the senator said that something tends to be lost through specialization. "We tend to lose sight of the whole. This is what has happened in big government, labor and education. Specialization is necessary, but we must prepare ourselves to live as whole men and women. And this is the hardest challenge for our schools," Byrd said.

Following the assembly, a luncheon was held for alumni and special guests in Gibbons Hall. Guided tours of Frederikson and Huffman Halls began at 2 p.m.

A member of the Percy H. Warren Honor Society is shown tapping Mary Ellen Lawler in her class on Tuesday, March 14.

On Founders' Day, fourteen Madison juniors were tapped into the Percy H. Warren Honor Society. All of the second semester juniors, who were tapped, have an accumulative average of 2.75 or better, and were approved by all voting members of the society.

The Percy H. Warren Honor Society was established at Madison to recognize senior women who have established outstanding scholarship, leadership and service. Work on the establishment of the honor society began last spring. Sandy Ritter served as chairman of the Student Government Association Committee which set up the organization. After the approval of the faculty and President Miller, nineteen senior women were tapped as charter members on Senior Class Day last fall. The sponsors of the honor society are Mrs. Billie Finlay, Dr. Bonnie Dessauer, and Mrs. Ogle.

This semester the new members were tapped while attending class. The charter members wore black robes during the tapping. When the new members were given gold tassels, a symbol of their new membership, they were allowed to

EDITORIAL COMMENT

Lack of Attendance Due to Immaturity

Three times a year seniors are asked to don black caps and gowns and attend assemblies. This means only three hours out of 32 weeks.

Certainly this isn't too great a task for a mature, responsible senior to accept, after all, the next year these same students will be expected to hold responsible positions as teachers or businessmen.

What will these "people of the world" do next year when they are asked to attend a teacher's meeting or a board meeting? Will they simply not go as they did Tuesday, March 14, when they were requested to attend the Founder's Day assembly?

Rows, twelve to be exact, were left empty because some seniors couldn't put out enough effort to walk to Wilson and sit for one hour to hear Senator Harry F. Byrd, Jr. speak. In order to avoid embarrassment for the college it was necessary for President Miller to apologize for the 168 empty seats. While it is true many seniors are student teaching, many just failed to show up.

Student government members had to go around the dining halls and Cherry Corner checking for seniors and freshmen. If delinquent students were found, they were asked to go to the assembly or given one week's strict campus.

This checking system appears juvenile—it is. Juvenile action must be taken to keep immature seniors in tow; just as kindergarten children are supervised to make sure they find their classroom or correct school bus.

Do we have students with the maturity and responsibility of a five year-old child graduating from this college and representing Madison wherever they may go?

One may even wonder if these seniors will bother to put on their caps and gowns and walk down the aisle to receive their diplomas!!

Parents' Day Not Planned For Parents!

In the spring of each year, Madison College sponsors a day on which parents are invited to attend class, go to meetings and enjoy student entertainment. The day before Spring Vacation seems to be a logical date. Parents who usually come at this time to pick up their children can no doubt come a day early to take part in the planned activities. But how many students find themselves without a family or sharing their roommates' family on Parents' Day? There are many seniors whose parents, even in for years, have not come to even one such day.

What is the reason for students without families enjoying "luncheons" with their roommates, attending programs by themselves? It may be that many parents work and are unable to take two days leave. Parents' Day should be scheduled so that parents can attend. A Parents' Day in the middle of this week prevents rather than encourages attendance.

College. Luncheon will be served in Gibbons Hall from noon until 2 p.m.

Go To Madam Farrel --- Hear About The Future

The sign said, "Madam Farrel, Palm Reader." Curious, I decided to stop and see what my future would be.

Walking toward the attractive stone house which was to soon reveal my fate, fame and fortune, I noticed two cars parked in the back yard. One was an older model station wagon, beige with her name lettered in dark brown. The other was a highly polished Cadillac in midnight blue. Perhaps there was a chance my life would be as successful.

The door was opened by a slim foreign looking young woman who could have easily passed for a gypsy. She was very attractive, even in the sleeveless cotton house-dress that she wore. Three young children were watching television, while an older woman, possibly the grandmother, sat nearby on a sofa.

"Right this way, dear," said the girl.

She took me into a smaller room elaborately decorated with religious relics and overstuffed chairs. There were two straight-backed chairs facing each other in front of an open Bible. She motioned for me to sit in one of these.

"Make a wish, but don't tell me what it is." After I had done so, she touched my palm twice then proceeded to read my hand as one would a book.

"You're going to have a long happy life," she said with little feeling. "You will not die of accident or disease, but of old age. You will not become extremely rich, but you will be comfortable."

"You will be very happy in marriage, and will have three children. Friday and Saturday are your lucky days." It was beginning to sound memorized.

"You are well-liked by everyone, but only have a few close friends. Don't trust everyone and don't tell all your plans. Keep your thoughts to yourself."

"You will change jobs soon. You will be much happier in your new job."

"At the age of 33 you will come into an inheritance. It will not be much, but it will make you comfortable."

For fifteen minutes I was told all the dark and wonderful things that would happen to me in my life. I was allowed one question and finally I was warned to, "Keep your reading to yourself," and asked to, "Tell all your friends about me."

I was told what I wanted to hear, and even though she saw no tall, dark stranger about to woo me, and no millinaire uncle leaving me his estate, I was promised enough to make me happy. And isn't that in itself worth two dollars?

2 Visiting Scholars To Lecture

Dr. Harold G. Cassidy, a professor of chemistry at Yale University will give a lecture at 8:00 p.m., Tuesday, March 21, in Blackwell Auditorium. The lecture, "Cybernetics, the Unifying Science" is open to the public.

Dr. Cassidy has written three books, among them Adsorption and Chromatography and Fundamentals of Chromatography, and 75 scientific articles. He co-authored two other books, Principles of Organic Chemistry and Laboratory Manual of Organic Chemistry.

In 1956, Dr. Cassidy was one of 15 scientists chosen to participate in a program of Visiting Scientists in Chemistry for the Division of Chemical Education of the American Chemical Society in which the teachers lectured at small colleges throughout the country. He held a three-year grant from the Research Corporation for work in the general polymer area.

Dr. Cassidy received his B.A. and M.A. degrees from Oberlin College and his Ph.D. degree from Yale. He was born in Havana, Cuba, and has been a chemist in private industry.

Dr. Marius B. Jansen will lecture in Blackwell Auditorium, Wednesday, April 5, at 11:00 a.m. His topic will be "Aspects of the Modernization of Japan."

Dr. Jansen, Professor of History at Princeton University, is chairman of the Program of East Asian Studies. The program provides opportunities for students to study the language, history and contemporary problems of the peoples of East Asia, with emphasis on China and Japan.

While a professor at the University of Washington, Dr. Jansen received grants from the Rockefeller and Ford Foundations for travel and study in Japan. In 1960-61, Professor Jansen was enabled by a grant from the Carnegie Corporation to revisit Japan and to visit Taiwan, Hong Kong, India and countries in Southeast Asia with which he was less familiar.

A former member of the board of directors of the Association for Asian Studies, Dr. Jansen has written extensively for such publications as the Journal of Asian Studies, Harvard Journal of Asian Studies, and Foreign Affairs Quarterly. He is the author of The Japanese and Sun Yat-Sen and Sakamoto Ryoma and the Meiji Restoration. Professor Jansen also edited Japan's Changing Attitude Toward Modernization published in 1965 by Princeton University Press.

A member of the Executive Committee of the Conference on Modern Japan of the Association for Asian Studies, Dr. Jansen directed in January 1962 the first of a series of five international conferences devoted to the recent history of Japan.

Dr. Jansen received his A.B. degree from Princeton University and his M.A. and Ph.D. from Harvard. He was born in the Netherlands.

Small Reporter At Large

Question: What rule at Madison do you consider the most archaic?

B. Chapman V. Crockett

Bonnie Chapman, Senior, English: "To tell you the truth, none of them bother me. There are some rules on campus that I don't agree with but I feel that the administration knows what they're doing. The only rule I can think of at the moment is the one where when you stay at your date's home you have to have a letter from your date as well as your hostess."

Virginia Crockett, Senior, Mathematics: "The weekend sign our procedures are the most archaic, especially when you are going to men's colleges."

S. Stepp B. Snyder

Suzie Stepp, Freshman, Home Economics: "I think there should be more information about rules. For example when to turn yourself in to Student Government and to whom."

Bobbie Snyder, Junior, Elementary Education: "Letters from dates for weekends! It causes a lot of confusion and wasted time. I think we are old enough and responsible enough to stay in respectable places."

S. Styker M. A. Walsh

Sam Styker, Freshman, Music: "The alcoholic beverage control rule. The state should regulate this, not the school. You should be allowed to drink in the city if you are 21. I also think you should be able to have a car when you are 21."

Mary Ann Walsh, Freshman, Home Economics: "I think the worst rule is having to have a letter from your weekend date. A lot of times there is not enough time to get it there. You're often unsure of your plans. It's a burden."

B. Simpson J. Anglin

Barbee Simpson, Junior, English: "The rule that you can't walk on the grass is ridiculous. It's not so much the fact that you can't walk on the grass, it's that the sidewalks are laid out in such an unordered fashion. You have to walk so far out of your way to get where you want to go."

John Anglin, Junior, Speech and Drama: "When a student comes here he is considered automatically 5n A.P. or below par according to the privileges he is given."

An alumnus of Madison's chapter, William F. Wright, class of 1960, was named to the 1967 edition of "Outstanding Young Men of America." The men named to this honor have distinguished themselves in one or more fields of endeavor to the point of being considered outstanding according to Don Blankenship, past United States Jaycee president and Chairman of the National Board of Editors, who made the selection.

Mrs. Joanne Lackey Dautre of the art department had two paintings, "Procession" and "Liz"—both of mixed media—accepted by the School of Public Health in Chapel Hill, N. C. The show will be on display until February, 1968.

1967-68 Calendar In Planning Stage

A committee of members of the Student Personnel Staff, student officers, and other administrative persons are in the process of preparing a social calendar for next year. For the first time, it is planned that a calendar of events will be printed and distributed at the beginning of the year. Additional activities may, of course, be planned during the year, but as many major social events as possible will be given specific dates and facilities on the calendar to avoid conflicts and improve the scheduling.

The next meeting of the committee will be April 27. The committee would like requests for dates as soon as possible in order to begin preparing the calendar. A form for requesting dates is being prepared and will be sent to all organizations in the near future.

Any suggestions will be appreciated. They should be given to one of the Student Personnel Deans in Alumnae Hall, to Connie Bass, or Linwood Gilman.
