"The Rivals" and "Stop the World"

Stratford Presents Two Plays At Once

Stratford Players of the Department of Speech and Drama will hold a first for Madison College this week and next as they present two plays at once. And adding to the uniqueness of the situation is the fact that the style of the two plays is entirely different from each other.

As part of the Founders Day Program, "The Rivals" will be performed first on Friday, March 12, with two other shows scheduled for March 25 and 26. Curtain time for all three performances is 7:30 p.m., and there is no admission charge for any of the performances.

"The Rivals" was first performed in 1775, and with "She Stoops to Conquer" and "School for Scandal" makes up the classic trilogy of Restoration Drama. We find hidden within its convoluted plot no vast philosophical musings, nor are its characters any more than the simple, one-dimensional creatures they appear to be.

Through these characters, though, author R. B. Sheridan has struck a universal note: who, at one time or another, has not met a blustering Sir Anthony, a blundering Acres, a mis-educated Mrs. Malaprop, or a starry-eyed Lydia? The lasting appeal of this play lies in its broad comedy and the fact that we find a little bit of ourselves in each of the mad-cap characters.

The second presentation of Stratford Players is "Stop the World — I Want to Get Off."

It may be seen March 15-20 at 8:00 p.m. each evening.

"Stop the World" is an adventurously new concept in the field of musical comedy. With only a small cast and a relatively simple setting, "Stop the World" seems to be the antithesis of the standard musical comedy.

In writing the book, lyrics, and score for the musical, Leslie Bricusse and Anthony Newley intended to create a refreshingly new and different theatrical form. They believed that "the imaginations of your audience can match the atmosphere created by the actors with far more effective mind's-eye backdrops than the average designer could hope to create on stage."

The concept of the chorus in this performance is not that of the old-fashioned musical — the ones with villagers prancing on stage in mythical gingerbread kingdoms. The chorus is of the type once used in Greek drama: it observes, participates in and reacts to the stage action.

The style of "Stop the World" is similar to that suggested by Bertolt Brecht. The audience response will alternate from sympathy with to alienation from the action. The Brechtian style should present the audience with an intellectual as well as an emotional response to the musical.

Performances for "The Rivals" are scheduled in Wilson Hall auditorium while "Stop the World — I Want to Get Off" will be performed in Duke Fine Arts Theatre.

Phi Mu Celebrates 119th President Carrier To Speak Monday; Names Committee

Members of the Madison College Chapter of Phi Mu joined over 300 collegiate and alumnae chapters from coast to coast in celebrating the 119th anniversary of the founding of their national sorority.

Locally the day was observed with a formal ceremony and banquet held at the Belle Mead in Harrisonburg.

Individual contributions—in pennies equal to the sorority's age—are made each Founders'

Day to Phi Mu's Alpha Memorial Fund, from which during the past year over $23,000 was awarded in scholarships and loans to assist members in completing their college educations.

In 1957, the sorority established the Phi Mu Foundation to further its educational and philanthropic objectives. Through it, Project HOPE is supported by collegiate and alumnae chapters; in the past biennium contributions totaled more than $30,000. During the past fourteen years, the Foundation has awarded an additional $35,000 in scholarships and grants. Other projects have included student counseling programs, Eskimo and Indian educational grants, and an International Study Grant program.

Phi Mu was one of the first national sororities to include collegiate members on national committees, and was the first national sorority to replace weekly business meetings with a modern chapter development program which presents speakers, informal seminars, and discussion groups, many open to the campus public. Undergraduate members have served this past year on the national committee which plans these program ideas for chapters.

President Ronald E. Carrier will speak at 9 A.M. Monday, in Room 205, Harrison Hall, to two classes of students and business administration and economics faculty.

President Carrier will speak on business condition, past and future and on the recent conference with the heads of the Council of Economic Advisors and the Federal Reserve Board.

President Ronald E. Carrier has appointed a nine-member committee of students and faculty to study possible college calendar revisions.

One of the purposes of the group will be to examine the possibility of beginning the school year at an earlier date so that the semester will end before the Christmas break.

Dr. David E. Fox, assistant provost, will chair the committee. Faculty members are: Dean Charles G. Caldwell, Dr. Barbara N. Stone; Dr. Gilbert S. Trelawny, Mr. William J. DeLong and Mr. Robert H. Horn.

Student members are: Miss Ruth Dale Payne, Miss Linda J. Hern and Miss Teresa D. Meador.

Letters To The Editor

Grading Questioned

In reference to this controversial issue, I hope to make an objective evaluation, without my remarks being derogatory to any of the faculty members, or the departments. Obviously, the grading scale depicts a high standard academically required by not all but many members of the administration; however, the question raised is how justified the system is in not only the eyes of the instructor, but also that of the students.

Having attended two previous institutions, this is the only college I have confronted with this type of scale. It seems unfair to me that a student who has earned an 84 or 85 average in a particular course should be rewarded with a "C" or "fair" grade.

An 84 in my opinion constitutes a great deal of effort and considerable work, undoubtedly, a "better than average" mark.

Many students must find their ambitions inhibited by such far reaching goals, due to underestimating their desired academic achievements when faced with such expectancies. Conceivably, a more equitable grading scale in relation to effort produced, could encourage students to strive for higher marks.

Although freshmen are subject to a weeding out process through grade requirements, I strongly believe the number of students that "flunk out" could be substantially reduced, especially when students are admitted according to lower standards than those that are expected.

All acknowledgements from the faculty and the student body would be greatly appreciated. Thank you.

Sincerely yours,
Jamie Fredrick Mac Vicar

Let's Do Something!

Again student apathy has reared its ugly head about our campus and has shown that either the students don't give a damn about their student government and the work it's trying to do, or are too lazy to vote, or both.

The excuse that an I-D was forgotten in the dorm can perhaps be understood. The logic behind this requirement is questionable due to the fact that names are checked off as you vote. To say that one did not vote because the post office is too great a distance to walk is unexcusable.

Calling upon one of the dormitory rooms and asking if anyone had voted, the reply came back that none of the three residents had.

Of the 4,000 or so students that attend this school, 496 made their way to the polls to vote. On a campus of this size, it is a disgrace that only about 12% of the students voted. These same students then turn around and want more say in the running of their school, liquor in the dorms, open visitation, and unlimited hours for female students.

If a student wants these things and then doesn't even vote in an election for his government to achieve them, then Madison College should return to the rules of 1958 when students didn't have the courage to stand up for their rights at a state supported school. Those who do like this situation should leave because these are the people who are working for change and by this election those students who didn't vote have shown again, as they have in the past, that they themselves are too immature to work for a common goal instead of having everything handed to them on a silver platter.

Those who are content to go to U.Va. on the weekends, smoke their dope, stay drunk, or shack up with their boy or girlfriends indeed don't have the right to be called mature college students.

Many people are content to just get an education or their Mrs., which ever comes first, and leave the job of bettering the school for themselves and those to follow to someone else, they're too busy to bother. In this case it is these people who should leave and make room for people who care, not only about their education but also about their school. It is these people who will make the quality of education available at Madison of a much higher standard not only as far as being able to recite facts, but also being able to know people to get a crack at the world.

If you can't stand up for your rights and for what you believe then you have no right to ask for or complain about anything. At Madison College today, 496 people have that right.

At this time I would like to publicly challenge the validity of an election in which 18% of the registered students voted with a type of ballot which the title "secret" is a farce.

For the SGA to call a numbered ballot to which you sign your name "secret," is an insult to one's intelligence and in direct conflict with the American system of voting for government officials.

In my view this election is a mockery of the democratic, electoral system of our country. I challenge anyone to say that this election shows the true feelings, except those of apathy, of this campus and also at this time call for new elections to be held for a two day period in the near future between the hours of 9:00 A.M. and 9:00 P.M. This election will be well publicized and a new form of ballot used.

In this, I renounce Patrick McLaughlin as the newly elected president of the SGA and call for new elections with the aim of more student participation. The results of this first election can not be held valid and new, democratic elections must be held if the SGA wishes to maintain its claim of representative government.

Buildings Blasted

It is about time for the official building policy here at Madison to change. Too often, the needs and wants of the student are given but scant or glancing notice. I'm talking in particular about the way buildings, Eagle Dorm, specifically, and every building on campus, generally, have been constructed.

Eagle Dorm is a prime example of this basic, though possibly not entirely intentional, disregard. First of all, and most important, there is no soundproofing in the individual rooms. In a dormitory as new and large as Eagle is, this situation is terrible, to say the least. Not only can stereos, radios, and other appliances be heard between rooms and floors, despite closed doors and attempts to lower the volumes, but voices and running water from the showers up the hall can be distinguished. Inside the room, the effect is somewhat like a badly distorted echo chamber, softened only by whatever books and personal objects the occupants might have. Noise from outside forms a constant distraction to study. The so-called "study lounges" are pitifully inadequate and uncomfortable, and are nearly useless for writing or typing.

Typical of most buildings on campus is the atmosphere best called "ticky-tacky". There is nothing basically wrong with the architecture of any one building, but they "all look the same". Classrooms are almost completely sterile, very much like a laboratory or hospital room. No attempt is made for individuality or variety. Many times, the older classrooms are better liked than the newer ones, despite the newer ones' indisputably better facilities. The older classrooms, at least, look as if they have been used by human beings.

Even the place where we eat is bleak. At the beginning of the year, there was an attempt to help provide a more personal atmosphere through the playing of music during the eating hours, but even that was stopped a long time ago. Sterility is tolerable where it is necessary, but it is neither necessary, nor desirable in a place of learning. Why, then, is it present at Madison?

I ask the SGA and the student body to consider my charges. Certainly, it is important to strive towards rule changes in regards to dorm visitation and the like, but first, how about making the dorms more livable (sic)? After all, it is we students who have to live in them, not the faculty or the administration.

DiPeppe Declares For Legis. V. P.

It has gotten to the point where a candidate will promise anything to get elected. We have heard too many promises and have seen no action. I promise nothing. I do not want your vote badly enough to lie for it. I am a student, and I want the same reforms that you want. I am sick of the SGA being an honorary position. We cannot fight for liberal reforms such as open dorms, and no curfews, unless we have effective leadership. We will never obtain effective leadership, as long as the SGA election is a popularity contest with only ten percent of the student body voting.

I am pretty much of a dark horse in this election, but consider what we have now. What have you got to lose?

EDITORIAL COMMENTS

Apathetic students are a perennial problem at many college campuses, and Madison College is no exception. One has a difficult time justifying demands of generally apathetic student bodies against their rampant lack of action.

The recent student government elections are just another example of this curse currently gripping our campus. While many students vocalize their dissatisfaction with the "status quo," where are these same students when they finally have a chance to do something about it?

College should be an enriching experience for all concerned. To reap full benefits, one should not confine his or her activities to going to class and partying all other times. There are many campus organizations that could use more people and different ideas to achieve workable solutions to our myriad of problems.

Have we forgotten the old, but appropriate, quote which went something like, "When duty whispers low, 'You must,' the youth replies, 'I can.'" In the jargon of our times, a more appropriate slogan might be, "I'll do it if the mood strikes."

Every year, students feel a certain need for professor evaluations. It would give them a chance to have their say on the classroom performances of the individual profs, and hopefully these evaluations would be given proper consideration by the department heads and the appropriate administrators.

With this in mind, the following is just one recommendation for a possible set of criteria by which students could evaluate their professors. It is here reprinted from another source with the permission of that source:

PERFORMANCE DEGREES

Performance Factors	FAR EXCEEDS JOB REQUIREMENTS	EXCEEDS JOB REQUIREMENTS	MEETS JOB REQUIREMENTS	NEEDS SOME IMPROVEMENT	DOES NOT MEET MINIMUM REQUIREMENTS
Quality	Leaps tall buildings with a single bound	Must take running start to leap over tall buildings	Can only leap over a short building or a medium with no spires	Crashes into buildings when attempting to jump over them	Cannot recognize buildings at all much less jump

Here is an interesting thought advanced by one member of the student body after the recent election for SGA president: since only 12 percent of the student body chose to vote, the SGA is not a representative body. It therefore should not be allowed to continue with its present powers and responsibilities. It should become on paper and in practice what it is in reality: merely a lobby to the administration.

One possible variation to this undesirable position, however, would be that more students could start participating in their own government and it then could become a viable organization.

This reporter is fed up with hearing that "it is just that way" that the few do the work for the many. The many choose to bitch on various occasions while taking no active part in that about which they are bitching. Either put up some constructive suggestions and actions, with the necessary followup, or seriously consider cutting off the flow of babble.

VA Needs Graduates

Madison seniors and graduate students willing to use their college training to help America's veterans are invited to consider going to work for the Veterans Administration.

While the VA offers a wide variety of job opportunities, it has a special need for those trained in dietetics, nursing, pharmacy, medicine, medical technology, dentistry, occupational and physical therapy, medical records, library science, and social work (where a master's degree is preferred).

Ph.D. psychologists are also needed—in both the clinical and counseling specialties.

The VA pointed out that work in a VA hospital is rewarding from both a career standpoint and in satisfaction resulting from assisting those who were called upon to serve their country in uniform.

According to a spokesman, the VA has 166 hospitals scattered throughout the 48 contiguous states and Puerto Rico, giving job applicants a wide choice of location.

Many VA hospitals also provide the setting for clinical training in various paramedical fields.

Ninety-three VA hospitals are affiliated with 79 of the nation's fully approved medical schools. Some 2,000 VA doctors hold faculty appointments in these schools.

VA hospitals range in size from about 100 to more than 2,000 beds. Most have general medical, surgical and psychiatric units. Many have specialized treatment units, research programs, outpatient clinics, and domiciliaries.

Interested Madison seniors and graduate students can get additional information by writing the Personnel Officer at any VA hospital or the VA Central Office (code 054) in Washington, D. C. 20420.

SGA Vote Significant, But...

Intervisitation Issue Still Unresolved

In an article in the February 26th edition of Genesis II, an error was made in the report on the SGA referendum concerning interdorm visitation. The second question "I am in favor of intervisitation on weekends within a 4-8 hour period determined by a dormitory vote" had a student response of 261 instead of the reported 2611. However, the figures still remain significant in that out of the 1632 students who cast ballots, 1588 voted in favor of at least a 4-8 hour open house period on weekends and 544 voted in favor of living under conditions where intervisitation would be possible 24 hours a day for 7 days a week.

In an open meeting of the Committee on Intervisitation last Monday it was reported that interdorm visitation has been approved for the maximum hours of 12-1 AM on Friday and Saturday and 12-6 PM on Sunday for the following weekends: March 12, March 26, April 16, April 30, and May 14. Intervisitation has been approved for these weekends on a trial basis and each dorm has the power to limit the hours of intervisitation within the maximum hours. An evaluation of each weekend will be made by the Committee and presented to the administration and general public.

Philosophy Forum To Cover Subjects Of Varied Nature

by Peter Powell

Are you getting tired of discussions in which the subject changes so often nothing is accomplished? Have you ever run across a mode of thought that just didn't seem right to you? Have you ever tried to test this thought in a highly kinetic group discussion? Are you getting tired of sitting in class not saying a word while you seethe with thoughts? Have you noticed that your best perceptions come when you feel obligated to justify or disprove an issue? If you have noted any of the above experiences, come to Philosophy Forum.

The Philosophy Forum is a moderated group discussion that deals with particular topics chosen by the group. Topics in the past have ranged from "The Concept of Love" to "Education." Dr. J. W. Sweigart, Assistant Provost, Dean of Graduate Studies, Professor of Philosophy, guides the discussion. Meetings usually last about two hours. Members choose the next topic of discussion in light of current events or with a particular point raised during discussion in mind. In this way continuity is maintained from one week to the next.

Philosophy Forum meets every Thursday night at 7:30 P.M. in Harrison B-205. Students, and particularly faculty, are invited to attend.

Field Rep To Visit ASA

Miss Paula Cyrus, Field Representative of Alpha Sigma Alpha Sorority, will visit Beta Epsilon Chapter at Madison College late this month.

Miss Cyrus, a resident of St. Albans, West Virginia, received her A.B. in Early Childhood Education from Marshall University in Huntington, West Virginia in May, 1970. As a member of Rho, Rho Chapter on that campus, she served her chapter as membership director, rush chairman, Panhellenic delegate, and standards chairman. This past year, Miss Cyrus received the nomination of her chapter for the Elizabeth Bird Small Award. On campus she was active in student government as Student Senate Secretary and Election Coordinator. On the yearbook staff, she served for two years as Greek Editor and Class Editor.

Alpha Sigma Alpha, a National Social Sorority and a member of the National Panhellenic Conference was founded in 1901 at Longwood College, Farmville, Virginia, and at present has more than one hundred fifty collegiate and alumnae chapters established throughout the country. The National Headquarters of the sorority is located in Springfield, Missouri, the state of its incorporation.

The National Philanthropic Project of the sorority is aid to the mentally retarded. Contributions from members and profits from designated projects are used to furnish various types of services to or for the mentally retarded, including not only direct aid to institutions for the retarded, but also scholarships and fellowships for persons enrolled for study in the field of retardation. In addition, the sorority also furnished loans and/or scholarships for selected collegiate and alumnae members of the organization.

Beta Epsilon Chapter at Madison College was chartered in May, 1939. Miss Judy M. Garnette is currently serving as president of the Beta Epsilon Chapter.

FENCING

by Terri Brewster

Nine fencers traveled to Penn State last week where they met teams from Lehman College, Brooklyn College and the host team.

The first team defeated Lehman but lost to Penn State and Brooklyn while the second team defeated Penn State twice, Lehman, and was downed by Brooklyn. New York City College was also entered but neither Madison team competed against them.

This weekend, the teams travel to Longwood where they will meet teams representing Virginia colleges as well as Clemson, Penn State, and other out-of-state teams.

Trophies will be awarded for individual excellence, overall wins at the tournament with all colleges considered, and overall wins considering only Virginia colleges.

Volleyballers Win Season's Openers

by Terri Brewster

The 1971 women's intercollegiate volleyball team opened its season last week by defeating Shenandoah and Shepherd in a tri-meet at Shenandoah.

Madison's experienced first team defeated Shenandoah, 15-1 and 15-0, and beat Shepherd, 15-7 and 15-2. Team members include Seniors Ann Bollinger, Bonnie Brehant, Pat Fitzgerald, Joanne Hughes and Nancy Taylor and Linda Thompson, a junior. The seniors are all fourth-year players having been members of Madison's first competitive team.

The team's goal is an unbeaten season and Coach Margaret Horn is "confident that they will go all the way."

The second team, consisting of seven freshmen, two sophomores, and one junior, all of whom are new to intercollegiate competition, lost to both Shepherd and Shenandoah. The unit shows potential, however, and should develop through practice and additional competition.

Duchesses Post Final Victories

The women's intercollegiate basketball team ended its season by winning the consolation round of the state tournament at Lynchburg College last weekend by defeating Sweetbriar, Old Dominion, and Hollins.

In their opening game last Friday afternoon, the Duchesses fell to a fine Bridgewater team which reached the finals, 46-34, despite Bev Burnett's 12 points. The loss put them into the consolation event.

A strong second half performance enabled the Duchesses to defeat Sweetbriar, 57-41, Friday evening as Brenda Dutterer went all out to score 20 points while Juanita Etheridge came through with 16.

Old Dominion was a 65-44 victim Saturday as Miss Burnett tallied 25 points. The game was costly, however, as Miss Etheridge suffered a foot injury in the third quarter after scoring 13 points and had to leave the game.

The Duchesses then defeated Hollins, 49-36, for the consolation title with Miss Dutterer leading the way with 14 points. Nancy Clarke and Pam Wiegardt had nine and eight respectively.

Coach Betty Jaynes, who piloted the first and second teams to 7-5 and 6-1 season records respectively, praised her players for their fine showing. "Every player who attended the tournament should be commended on her contribution to the playing. Without each player's sincere effort and desire, our success during the tournament would not have occurred. It was truly a team accomplishment," she said.

Representing Madison were Sue Redfield, Brenda Dutterer, and Nancy Clarke, all freshmen, Susie Abbott, Arva Barnes and Juanita Etheridge, sophomores, juniors Linda Horn and Peggy Aderton, and Pam Wiegardt and Bev Burnett, the only seniors on the squad.

The championship game was won by Westhampton which edged Bridgewater.

Sex Seminar Sponsored by BSU

The Baptist Student Union, under the direction of Mr. Archie Turner, will sponsor a Sexuality Seminar open to all students beginning next Wednesday. The exact time and place of the event will be announced by posters on campus.

Last year's seminar, which proved highly successful, included such topics as Sexual Polarity, How to Build a Relationship, Promiscuous Virginity, and Playboy's Concept of Men and Women.

At the onset of the program, the 40 participants took a standardized test which helped each person to examine his own attitudes to see if his attitudes were healthy or less than healthy. Each also attended meetings on consecutive Wednesdays.

As the program continued, students expressed an interest in discussing other related topics such as contraception, sexual deviation, marriage, divorce, and sexual vocabulary both vernacular and clinical.

In addition to incorporating last year's materials, next week's seminar will be greatly expanded and updated to meet current questions and needs.

- The Grandstander - Babcock Signs To Manage Turks In Shenandoah Valley League

by John Hulver

The Harrisonburg Turks will have a new man at the helm for the 1971 season, Madison's Brad Babcock. Last week, Coach Babcock signed a contract to manage the Turks, a member of the Valley Baseball League.

A 1963 graduate of Lynchburg College, Babcock is in his first year on the Madison staff. He coached baseball at Fountain View Prep School in Colorado Springs, Colorado for four years and two years in a New Hampshire prep school.

Harrisonburg is one of seven teams that make up the Valley League. Staunton, New Market, Shenandoah, Waynesboro, Charlottesville and Madison County all support teams in the Loop. This league is one of six scattered throughout the United States to give college baseball players an opportunity to play in the summer against rugged competition.

Teams are made up of college stars from all over the east coast. A good number of the boys in the Valley League come from North Carolina. Only two players from one college can play on a certain team which prevents a full college team from playing together all summer. This class of baseball is approved by the NCAA to protect the player's college eligibility.

Beginning Memorial Day each team plays a 42-game schedule. At the end of the season, the top four teams in the standings make the playoffs. Harrisonburg has won the championship the past two years. Eight of 19 players return from last year's Turks squad.

"It is a challenge to me to coach this caliber of baseball," stated Coach Babcock. This is his first crack at coaching in a post-college type league.

Two outstanding players from the University of South Carolina have signed Turk contracts for the upcoming season. They were coached by Bobby Richardson, the former New York Yankee great, who is the Gamecock's pilot.

Pro scouts watch the league very closely and sign some players into the majors during the season. This type of baseball helps a player make the transition from college to the pros where all the players are good, not just one or two on a team.

The only player on the Turks from a Virginia college last year was relief pitcher Art Mullett, head baseball coach at EMC. Mullett will be chief pitching coach under Babcock.

Babcock defined his term "aggressive baseball," with emphasis on the offense—hit and run style of play and trying for the steal whenever the opening is there. This should make for an exciting season for the Harrisonburg fans who strongly support the Turks.

The "battle of the century" is history and for the first time in more than three years, the country has a single heavyweight boxing champ. As forecast in this space last week, Clay's sole chance lay in getting to Frazier early which he tried in vain. Granted, Frazier looked like a loser at the end due to numerous bruises but the late Rocky Marciano, a notorious bleeder, often resembled freshly ground meat at the finish of his fights yet retired unbeaten.

Pairings for the NCAA basketball tournament are all but complete with only the Far West representative to be decided. If UCLA can repeat its victory of last month over USC on Saturday, the Bruins will be in the thick of it once more. If USC avenges that single loss, the two teams will meet in a playoff to determine which goes.

There were few surprises in the qualifying tournaments. Only Furman astounded the experts by whipping Davidson for the SEC crown. The Paladins' moment of glory should be a brief one, however, since they are pitted against the surprising Fordham Rams in the first round. Fordham, rated No. 10 in the country, is 21-2 on the year and will be a heavy favorite to oust the Carolinians.

The National Invitational Tourney will feature a number of the year's better teams in its event this year. Among the invitees is the University of Hawaii whose sparkling record surprised even its most rabid fans.

The Rainbows come to the Big City with a 21-3 mark which includes wins over powerful Michigan, the Big Ten's No. 2 team, and NCAA-bound Brigham Young University. They will undoubtedly reign as the sentimental favorite to win the title.

U Va's collapse after a brilliant start shocked their followers who had begun to believe that the Cavaliers were all but invincible. It seems that the Wahoos cannot win anywhere but in the Coliseum. Six straight losses on the road confirmed that belief.

Duke's upset of North Carolina last Saturday would indicate that, perhaps, the Tarheels have already peaked. If so, the ACC crown should see the Blue Devils and John Roche and Co. of South Carolina battling for the crown.

Although Cleve Branscum will not be the Dukes' basketball coach next season, he is still responsible for setting up the 1971-72 schedule for the incoming coach—whatever he may be.

Branscum confessed this morning that he is having difficulty finding teams who are willing to meet Madison next season. Hampden-Sydney, with whom the Dukes split this year, has turned him down as has Roanoke which will begin a rebuilding program next year.

Randolph-Macon and VMI have also turned Branscum down. Old Dominion, though, has signed to meet the Dukes in a single game and Federal City College and St. Andrews have agreed to a game. Christopher-Newport will be met twice.

The Dukes also will probably play in the annual Bridge-water tournament in January 1972, Branscum indicated.
