Jane Dudley, a freshman from Middleburg, Virginia, who was bride in the traditional Old Style Virginia wedding ceremony performed here Thursday at 4:45 p.m. in Wilson Auditorium.

Drama Productions

Latimer Discusses

To better prepare the Madison College student body for the forthcoming Virginia Barter Theatre productions, Dr. Mary E. Latimer, speech professor at the college, spoke Wednesday evening concerning the art of dramatic production.

In opening her speech, Dr. Latimer emphasized that there are several variations of the drama.

Four Members of Faculty Attend Supervisor's Meeting

Four members of the Madison faculty attended the supervisors conference at the University of Virginia, on Wednesday. Those attending were Miss Katherine Anthony, Miss Mary Slaughter, Dr. Ellis Rogers and Dr. Glenn F. Gilderstaff.

The conference covered a talk on the characteristics of a good elementary school.

Another speaker at the meeting was Miss Mildred B. Watters, Supervisor of Special Education and Assistant Supervisor of Elementary Education who explained purposes of the conference as (1) What are the characteristics of a good elementary school? (2) How are these characteristics to be improved upon and (3) How can we grow professionally and personally by working together.

Jane Dudley Is Bride In Traditional Ceremony Uniting Old and New Girl

Jane Dudley, freshman from Middleburg, was the bride in the traditional Old Style Virginia wedding ceremony performed here Thursday at 4:45 p.m. in Wilson Auditorium.

To Select Queen

Members of the Frances Sales Home Economics club have chosen posture improvement as one of their projects for the year. The group will encourage all students to stand up straight, while postures will remind us to sit tall, stand tall, and walk tall. At the end of the school year, posture queen of Madison will be selected.

Senior Class Day To Be Held Here Wednesday, November 6

Senior Class Day To Be Held Here Wednesday, November 6

Jane Dudley, a freshman from Middleburg, Virginia, who was bride in the traditional Old Style Virginia wedding ceremony performed here Thursday at 4:45 p.m. in Wilson Auditorium.

ALICE AGNEW NAMED FOR CLASS DAY COMMITTEES

The following committees for Senior Class Day, November 6, have been named by Alice Agnew: Harrison Hall decorations, Aylien Kelly and Emma Bailey; Jane Newman; breakfast and bouquet, Geneva Hughes, invitations, Carol Woodfield; place cards, Jean Smith, chairman, Nancy Fath, vice-chairman, Phyllis Comper; class night program, Shirley Wilkins, chairman, Margaret Kasch, Rosella Stone, June Sterrett, Linda Kavanaugh, and June Person; and flowers, Becky Bennett and Helen Sculanore.

Senior Class Day To Be Held here Wednesday, November 6

Pictured above is Alice Agnew, Senior class president, at right in White Virginia Moore, class day speaker.

Alice Agnew Names Girls For Class Day Committees

The following committees for Senior Class Day, November 6, have been named by Alice Agnew: Harrison Hall decorations, Aylien Kelly and Emma Bailey; Jane Newman; breakfast and bouquet, Geneva Hughes, invitations, Carol Woodfield; place cards, Jean Smith, chairman, Nancy Fath, vice-chairman, Phyllis Comper; class night program, Shirley Wilkins, chairman, Margaret Kasch, Rosella Stone, June Sterrett, Linda Kavanaugh, and June Person; and flowers, Becky Bennett and Helen Sculanore.

The marriage was performed by Hilda Davis, president of SGA; while Barbara Wren, chairman of the Homecoming Court, acted as groom.}

The flower girls were Barbara Alex-
To Be Or Not To Be?

Sunday Vespers, the result of many hours' hard work, thought and study, was postponed from the previous Sunday because of a fire alarm. It was not until Saturday night that the Armstrong organ was repaired and preluded for an extra thirty minutes' cat nap on Sunday afternoon.

Last year members of the student body voted in favor of this short service. This year, however, there is an affectation among those who do not go to church to worship, the Y readily consented to arrange these programs. Now it's up to us, as students, to support their efforts.

If we do not think vespers are worthwhile, then it is for us to voice our opinions in the coming revise. Perhaps they are not worthy of the effort given them. Perhaps those of us who would attend the worship service, and who do feel we have been deprived of our day of worship. The dining hall girls have only limited opportunities to attend church services, but the vespers are held too early for them to participate in them. Thus it is that we hardly think vespers worthwhile.

When we remember, however, that Sunday is the day to be dedicated to worship, it seems only fit that we, who own our own churches, take the initiative and ask for the services. We certainly do not mean that the day students' friends, our friends or the faculty's friends should not be invited, but it is only fair that the student body should be involved.

We pay enough in the long run for a reserved seat too—but do we get the same value? We have run to and stand in line for an hour, grab a seat wherever we can and like the others, find the service a bore. It is only in the last minutes before curtain time.

I hope we are not so selfish, but why must we break our necks to get a seat in our auditorium for our weary? They certainly are needed in the front seats of the auditorium while others, not of the higher culture, can be seated well in the back of the auditorium. The thrilling, long-awaited technicolor "The Best Years of Our Lives" was shown to the front seats of the auditorium. Many students who arrived as early as 6:45 and 7 p.m. were 'brought to Madison should be mainly for the benefit of no one. They would not be interested in our 1946 wedding are symbolic of Madison's traditions.

This is not the only time when the upperclassman and the Freshman will work and play together. This play illustrates the close cooperation that is possible between each of the classes—the cooperation that is so necessary for the progress and welfare of the college and its students.

Keep it A Symbol

Thursday the Student Government's traditional Oldgirl-Newgirl wedding was held, symbolizing the union of the new students with the old students in the bonds of love and loyalty to each other and to the college. So often a thing like this can be turned into a farce. The people who arranged this wedding could be congratulated for remembering that this is a serious thing. The dignity and beauty which characterize an oldclass wedding could be utilized.

What Makes A Breeze?

What makes a Breeze? The majority of the students on this campus can make no answer to this question. But, from those of us who spend many hours each week in the Breeze room the answer is WORK! Many students are unaware of the fact that this publication is not printed in Harrisonburg, but must be sent by mail to Staunton, nearly 30 miles from here. Because of this arrangement, most of the work done on the paper must be accomplished on Tuesdays and Thursdays. Engravings of our pictures must also be made elsewhere.

Sometimes, as you have noticed, the Breeze does not make its appearance on succeeding Sundays as you come from dinner. Remember this on succeeding Sundays as you come from dinner. When we remember, however, that Sunday is the day to be dedicated to worship, also attend church, and thus feel we have given enough of worship, it seems only fair that the many outstanding lyceum programs which are 'brought to Madison should be mainly for the benefit of its students.

To Be Or Not To Be

To tell more would be to tell too much. Would you? If we do not think vespers are worthwhile, then it is for us to voice our opinions in the coming revise. Perhaps they are not worthy of the effort given them. Perhaps those of us who would attend the worship service, and who do feel we have been deprived of our day of worship. The dining hall girls have only limited opportunities to attend church services, but the vespers are held too early for them to participate in them. Thus it is that we hardly think vespers worthwhile.

When we remember, however, that Sunday is the day to be dedicated to worship, it seems only fit that we, who own our own churches, take the initiative and ask for the services. We certainly do not mean that the day students' friends, our friends or the faculty's friends should not be invited, but it is only fair that the student body should be involved.

We pay enough in the long run for a reserved seat too—but do we get the same value? We have run to and stand in line for an hour, grab a seat wherever we can and like the others, find the service a bore. It is only in the last minutes before curtain time.

I hope we are not so selfish, but why must we break our necks to get a seat in our auditorium for our weary? They certainly are needed in the front seats of the auditorium while others, not of the higher culture, can be seated well in the back of the auditorium. The thrilling, long-awaited technicolor "The Best Years of Our Lives" was shown to the front seats of the auditorium. Many students who arrived as early as 6:45 and 7 p.m. were 'brought to Madison should be mainly for the benefit of no one. They would not be interested in our 1946 wedding are symbolic of Madison's traditions.

This is not the only time when the upperclassman and the Freshman will work and play together. This play illustrates the close cooperation that is possible between each of the classes—the cooperation that is so necessary for the progress and welfare of the college and its students.

AMONG NEW BOOKS

By JOYCE CRAMER

Blood in the Streets

This book is an expose of the Dominican Republic's溃疡 of the streets, and its methods of dealing with the problem of unemployment and crime. The author, a former war correspondent, spent six months in the Republic, and her account is based on interviews with a wide range of people, from government officials to street vendors.

The book provides a detailed and often harrowing account of the daily life of the average Dominican, and the challenges he faces in trying to make a living in a country where corruption and violence are rife. The author's reporting is vivid and moving, and she succeeds in bringing the reader into the chaotic and dangerous world of the streets of Santo Domingo.

The book is a must-read for anyone interested in the history of Latin America, or in the ongoing struggle for justice and social change in the Caribbean.

One of the interesting aspects of the book is its portrayal of the role of the Catholic Church in the country. The author describes how the Church has been instrumental in providing a moral and spiritual framework for the people, and how it has helped to sustain them during times of hardship.

The book is also a testament to the resilience of the Dominican people, who continue to struggle against all odds to build a better future for themselves and their children.

One of the key themes of the book is the role of the United States in the country's history. The author provides a detailed account of the interventions of the US government, and the impact they have had on the country's development.

Blood in the Streets is a must-read for anyone interested in the history of Latin America, or in the ongoing struggle for justice and social change in the Caribbean.
Miss Margaret Slattery, lecturer and author, will be the guest of the YWCA on campuses for Religious Emphasis week, November 9-12.

Slattery is an earnest student of foreign affairs especially as they concern social and economic conditions affecting youth. The speaker has been studied at the League of Nations in Geneva and Educational Institutions in England, Germany, France, the Netherlands, Turkey, Russia, and the Balkans. Miss Slattery has frequently acted as delegate to important international conferences in religion, such as the Bournemouth Conference 1930.

She has studied youth problems around the world visiting Japan, China, the Straits Settlements, Ceylon, India, Egypt and Palestine. Among her latest books are The Kingdom Come, But Not Now, Our coming, and discussion groups will be held.

If You Ask THEM . . .

BY NANCY JANE WARREN

Are you in favor of continuing Sunday Vespers, which are sponsored by YWCA?

Peggy Wood—Yes, although most girls who do not go to church do not go to vespers either, some of the girls who do not go to church enjoy worshipping at vespers.

Mary Dunlevy—Yes; vespers help girls very much. It gives them something to do in the afternoon. Those unable to attend church can go to vespers.

Bobby Hammond—I do not go because I usually go to church and I feel that Sunday afternoon is a free thing to do in the afternoon. Those who do not go to church do not.

Second Barter Play Stars Miss Wilson

Playing the part of Mary Matthews in the play "State of the Union," Elizabeth Wilson brought to Madison last Saturday night an interesting acting performance which was the highlight of the Barter Theater's second annual of four productions to be presented here this season.

There were scenes for the Barter Theater's second annual are the result of the efforts of Miss Wilson and the Barter Theater's staff. The play, "State of the Union," is a comedy by Robert Sherwood, and was produced by the Barter Theater's staff.

Elizabeth Wilson

Speaker Discusses Situation In Orient At Rotary Lecture

Charles Tobin, noted author and student of world economic problems, was the second of the weekly Rotary speakers who appeared Monday night in the Wilson Auditorium.

Speaking on "Getting Together in the Orient," Mr. Tobin emphasized the importance of America and the United States as the two keys to international peace and the peace of China. Since the death of Roosevelt and displacement of Churchill, our policy has unfortunately been "get tough with Russia." Contrary to a world war is not inevitable, Mr. Tobin insists that we must devise from such a policy.

Upon first going to China, Mr. Tobin noted that the Chinese people were subdued, cowardly and extremely cruel. These points were later disproved by the actions of many of his class friends, including Dr. C. T. Hodgson and Madam Ching-Kai-Shek. These latter personages were, in his opinion, immoral, cruel, backward, and potentialities of a great China.

Many countries besides our own became interested in the welfare of China. They were interested, not so much in the welfare of China, but rather in carving China into smaller countries which would be distributed among several other world powers. This division to carve up China caused Secretary of State Hay's steps to initiate the "Open Door Policy." Mr. Tobin stressed the need for clear thinking in China now during this time of chaos. China now has the greatest national sovereignty she ever had, and as one of the leading world powers will need the friendship of China maintain this sovereignty.

It does not fall within the range of our duty to appear upon Russia, it must be our purpose to establish a better understanding with this world power.
The Sportlight

By BERTY SNELLING

The tennis tournament is just about over. The finals are set to begin tomorrow. Here is a rundown on the courts, and by the time you read this you should know the winner of the finals whether it be Henrietta Lanier or Dot Lewis. If any of you saw the first part of the finals played Friday, you saw that Lanier had the power behind her shots that could drive a hole through a brick wall, it seems. And her serve is a powerhouse all of its own.

Lewis is a good tennis player, and a well deserving one at that. Seldom can you find a woman tennis player who is five feet tall or less. And with the famous female to play a good game of tennis, and she had a thrill, and all around playing led her to the finals. She defeated Jane Grant, last year’s champion, in the second set and went ahead to win over all opposition. But Lewis now is trailing behind in the finals. She lost the first set by a score of 6-4, and was losing in the second set when the match was abandoned due to darkness.

MADISON VS. SWEET BRIAR: Amiable cloudy weather Friday, October 25, Sweet Briar played Madison in hockey competition. We lost the game by a score of 3-1. Sweet Briar lived up to her reputation of being the best hockey team in the east. The contest had only been on three minutes when the first goal was made and it was the result of a series of brilliant passes. The green and white were found out twice in the two first periods, and it was none of the factors which detracted her win over us.

Lewis played a good game and credit is due for that showing, but she was outclassed, outdistanced and outplayed by Sweet Briar, five times we fought down into Sweet Briar’s territory right to their goal. As the game was enabled her to fire five times. There was another outstanding player who should have full recognition. It was Coon, one of the girls from Sweet Briar. She sparked the attack against us, with a display of brilliant playing, and it was enabled her to fire five times.

The star of the game was Coon, one of the girls from Sweet Briar. She sparked the attack against us, with a display of brilliant playing, and it was enabled her to fire five times.

The tryouts are open to all girls wishing to be a member of Madison’s hockey team. Hockey is a clean game which has more of a friendly atmosphere to it than the feeling of, “We’re out to prevent, time and again, what seemed to be a sure point for Sweet Briar. Jeannette Pickrel, Sweet Briar’s center half, and Lora Goettling, right half, played a noteworthy defensive game.

Students To Perrey’s

All business students who plan to join Perrey’s on Tuesday, November 7, are requested to report on time. The purpose of determining the place of students to Perrey’s on Tuesday, November 7, are requested to report on time. The purpose of determining the place of students to Perrey’s is to take advantage of the opportunity to have a meal at the small cost of twenty-five cents. Plaid wool shirts will be available to students this year at a cost of seventy-five cents per student, announce Dr. Monger. All those interested in this treatment are requested to see Dr. Monger as soon as possible.

The two tennis finalists, Dot Lewis and Henrietta Lanier, met for the championship play tomorrow at 4:30 on the tennis courts back campus.

Henrietta Lanier, of Petersburg, is now a pre-med student but will change her major to physical education next year. Last summer, as a junior counselor at Miss Hoffman’s camp, Stroudsburg, she instructed classes in tennis. As the wayman has progressed, Lanier’s service has become increasingly accurate and fast to handle. “Hockey...” is also the member of Madison’s varsity hockey team and has not found much time for tennis back campus.

Dorothy Lewis is a business student at Daniels. At age 13 Dot was instructed in tennis by her brother and she conscientiously practices her strokes. She plays a steady game and determined game and is not easily rattled when playing a close game. She participates seriously in no other sport.

The two finalists have encountered keen competition in working up to the final game which decides the winner. The tennis club is also the match worth watching.