Tables Turn As Freshmen Elect Girls

Last fall when Julia "Cilly" Gulll, freshman class secretary, was asked how it felt to be one of the boys, she said, "it's gonna be a challenge! Now that the tables are turned and Steve Smith, class parliamentarian, is the only boy, he feels he will "enjoy it; any guy would enjoy working with six girls."

The freshmen class elected five girls as class officers last Monday night.

The new, president is Sandy Sweasey, an elementary education major. Sandy says she thinks the hardest part of her job is "staring in the middle where most plants have already been made for second semester, but still carrying them out well."

Bev Trainham, an English major, is the new vice president. "I only hope that I can help complete the job as well as those who started it," Bev stated.

The new treasurer, Nancy West, an elementary education major, hopes that "if we have the money, maybe we could use some of it to help the school rather than just for ourselves."

The new reporter is Ann Elmore, a political science major, and Donna Farmer, a health and physical education major, is the new sports leader. Judy Ann McKinley is the newly elected representative to the Judicial Council and Suzanne Lukis is the new Honor Council representative.

Forensic Workshop Scheduled

Plans for the First Annual Shenandoah High School Forensic Institute have been announced by the Department of Speech and Drama. This Institute, open to recommended high school students, will meet on the Madison campus July 29 through August 9.

Each student will receive individual training in all phases of speech. The outstanding debaters, speakers, and actors will demonstrate publicly at the culmination of the course. Parents will be encouraged to attend this demonstration.

Class schedule will be as follows:

8:30-9:45 — Oratory, Interpretation 10:00-11:15 — Ext. extemporaneous, Acting 1:00-3:45 — Debate Seminar, Theatre Seminar

Dr. Eugene R. Moulton, Head of the Department of Speech and Drama, will be director of the Institute.

According to Dr. Moulton, "The purpose of such an institute is to train high school students in speech activities so they can better represent their schools. Also, when these students are trained on the Madison campus, there is a good chance many of them will attend Madison for their college education. Such an eventuality will help Madison to develop its own new forensic program to a much higher degree."

Students to Elect May Court Tonite

The annual May Day walk will take place today in Wilson Auditorium. Seniors and Sophomores will attend at 8:30 p.m., and Juniors and Freshmen at 9:15 p.m.

The tapping will be held tomorrow evening at 9:00 p.m. in Wilson Auditorium.

The walk will be competitive, however, tapping is not.

The 26 seniors in the ceremony are: Gayle Aydelotte, Clem Deschetteeck, Susan Davis, Elizabeth Forbes, Mary Forbes, Jane Ford, Laura Frank, Jane Greif, Dawn Hopkins, Shirley Kemp, Sandy Leathers, Jay Newcomb, Suzie Oest, Gail Pennino, Beth Price, Betty Hale, Red Brookie Ruckman, Dot Seymour, Joan Shute, Molly Starr, Barbara Kay Tourgee, Beverly Wells, Ronnie Wells, Sandy Whimer, Nancy Wilcox, and Karen Younkin.

A deep, rich tone ranging in spectral hues from deep purple to light blue — this is the voice of Dionne Warwick, who has been performing gospel, blues, and popular concerts around the world.

Miss Warwick, a talented singer to say the least, has been chosen to perform for Madison's Big Weekend, March 2. She has scheduled two performances at Madison, one at 7 p.m. and the other at 9 p.m. Tickets for the concert will be sold on Feb. 21, 22, 23 across from the bookstore. Price of the performance will be $3 and $4 per person.

Dioino has been described as a singer who gives everything to her performance. Included among her many recordings are: "Walk on By," "A Family Affair," "Who Can Turn To," and "Theme from Valley of the Dolls."

Other entertainment for the weekend will include a mixer in Kehres Gym, Friday, March 1; sponsored by Phi Alpha Ep- phin Fraternity. The dance will be held from 8:00 until 12:00 p.m., with music by The Royal Virginals of Harrisonburg. Admission is $1.00 per person. Bridgewater Hilly Ridge Community College and the University of Virginia have been invited. Sigma Delta Rho Fraternity is also sponsoring a party Friday, March 1, at Melrose Caverns, 6 miles north of Harrisonburg on U. S. Route 11. Music will be provided by the "Townsmen" of Waynesboro. From $8.00 until 12:00 p.m. The cost is $3.00 per couple, not including set-ups.
Students Ready for Changes

Dear Editor:

On February the eighth a meeting was held in which the students met with President Miller to discuss openly, revisions of Madison's present cut policies, and to propose rules changes. At the meeting, several questions were brought up by the students concerning who would receive credit, and, sincere, and concrete answers. Much to their disappointment, these questions were only evaded. President Miller has stated that various rules are being re-examined, and the student body is not told what revisions to expect. There is also the point that the revisions cannot be put into effect sooner, why couldn't these revisions be passed and put into effect sooner, why couldn't these revisions be passed and put into effect sooner, why couldn't these revisions be passed and put into effect sooner, why couldn't these revisions be passed and put into effect sooner, why couldn't these revisions be passed and put into effect sooner, why couldn't these revisions be passed and put into effect sooner, why couldn't these revisions be passed and put into effect sooner, why couldn't these revisions be passed and put into effect sooner, why couldn't these revisions be passed and put into effect sooner? According to the administration, this would not work. Why not?

The Madison College student body has long realized that there is much outdated. Certainly the administration acknowledges the fact that there is a definite difference between the students of today and the students of five years ago. Yet, Madison is making new making revisions that should have been in effect for quite some time. One realizes the fact of this better than the students themselves, who are literally forced to tolerate these archaic rules because the administration demands a powerful hand in controlling the students' academic and social life. There would be no such dissatisfaction among the student body if the rules and their revisions, if there were not such a definite communication gap between the students and the administration. True, things such as the President's Open Meetings are concerned with improving such communication, but what can be accomplished at a meeting where students' questions and suggestions are ignored?

The students on this campus desire to understand the administration's position on making and changing rules. Unfortunately, without help on our part, the students are forced to take a negative view of the administration's feelings toward revisions. Without some understanding on the part of both parties, none of the above revisions will be accomplished to the satisfaction of either. Should the administration recall that there were comparatively few students attending the meeting, then the student body would be forced to believe that the meeting accomplished nothing. Those students who did attend left with nothing to show but anger and frustration. Why, for example, was the name taken and written down of every student who proposed a question? The discourages students from actively participating in an open discussion.

REVERBERATIONS

Parliamentarian Is Defended

Dear Editor:

After attending our Freshman Parliamentarian this meeting on February 12, we have decided that we can no longer sit silently. The second time, violence and attacks have been made on Steve Smith, our class Parliamentarian, for the way in which he discharged his duties. Objections have been previously raised over the nominations for outstanding freshmen. These nominations were made from the floor at a class meeting. Beforehand, the Executive Council had limited the number of nominations to ten. Recognition was given only to those nominations made in an orderly manner. Those who attempted to make nominations without proper recognition were disregarded. Although the merits of this system of nomination are doubtful, no better method was employed in nominations for freshman attended participants. The class made write-in nominations, and the top five were placed on the ballot. Objections were sustained because the five nominees were not formally introduced to the class. A vote was taken to the Executive Council to be acted upon before further elections.

Compulsory Meetings Are Feared Undemocratic

Dear Editor:

I believe college students accept the responsibility of thoroughly investigating the potentials of future officers, however, I also feel that responsibility is an individual matter and should not be compulsory. If the student is interested in elections, he will demonstrate his initiatives by examining the qualifications of all the candidates. If he displays an apathetic attitude, forcing him to attend compulsory speeches may give rise to condemnation of the speakers and the officers for which they are campaigning.

We at Madison are given many opportunities to learn about the candidates' potentials through buzz sessions.

President's Open Meetings Are Called Farces

Dear Editor:

Since September, I have been running for a position on the Madison Student Council. Concerning the President's Open Meetings. For the first time, I attended one of these meetings because I personally had a question. It was, very much, I'm sorry, my satisfaction answered.

Later in the meeting, some very sensible questions were brought to the floor. They were made relevant to the administration. When students ask a question and are "bawl-ed-out" as if they were in the Army and had talked back to an officer, I can only re.

During the first semester, the Honor Council suspended one student for six weeks and placed two students on probation for plagiarism.
Intramural Results Listed

The MAA recently sponsored another "first" in men's athletic activities as Mr. Rader and six men students from Madison traveled to Eastern Mennonite College to participate in an extramural wrestling match. To the surprise of the visitors, the EMC gym was swarmed with some 250 loyal spectators who had turned out to watch the scrimmage. Freshman Mike Peal was the only victorious member of the Madison squad, although his performance was sufficient to display the interest in wrestling and a desire to improve the limited training facilities. Other members of the team were Bob Dubay, Donnie Willoughby, Marvin Barber, Glenn Lake, and George Peace, who worked with the team as a coach.

The MAA will also sponsor an intercollegiate tennis team this spring which will play eight matches against teams from Eastern Mennonite, Millersville, and Penn State College. Anyone interested in trying out for the team should meet with Mr. Rader at 4:00 p.m., February 21 in Kessel 6.

The results of the MIAA's intercollegiate basketball tournament are as follows: Huntzberger (19-25); 2nd—Ronnie Layman (18-25); 3rd—Ed Rish (15-25); 4th—Elwood Whitmore (12-25).

Alumni Announces Publication

The Alumni Association announces publication of the first Alumni Magazine, to be given to Mrs. Sue Deaton and her present students. The magazine is designed to provide a closer tie between Madison and her alumnae, and to quote President G. Tyler Miller, "the opening up of a new vista of the benefit of faculty and students are also given special appreciation and respect of the entire Alumni Association. News items, and topics of general interest to former students are included in the Madisonian. Dr. James W. Fox describes a brief history of the College's growth since establishment in 1858. In changes in administrative posts and Alumni achieve-ments, we are also given special notice.

The publication is of interest to both Madison Alumni and her present students. Copies are in the library for the benefit of faculty and students.

That's Why Unions Always Win

K. Jone

Garbage is everywhere and all the streets did stink. This rather crude expression is the phrase of New York City. Recall the recent sanitation workers' strike, and the unholy and highly unappealing consequences it forced on the people of New York.

First of all, from a purely materialistic viewpoint, it grieves me that a garbage man starts with a salary of $4.64 a week and rises to $7.96 after three years. Also, besides various other fringe benefits too numerous to mention, he is able to retire after 20 years with half pay. This is to be expected, as those who occupy the places of those who were once in jail—obviously a self-sacrificing, altruistic type.

Health considerations were ignored and I seriously believe that even a Manhattan Island would have sunk under a million tons of refuse with violent epidemics of Bubonic plague. Despair not that this union would have given in. Unions seem to feel it is better to starve and destroy themselves, city, or whatever, rather than give up their often unjust demands, particularly when the copper workers strike as an example. Mayor Lindsay said that the union strikes are in vain if he is in jail but Governor Rock-efeller did; he very high-handedly took over the city's man-agement, he said, with his own campaign freeloading union leader temporarily and offered the union a compromise, when he had no legislative backing to do so. No wonder the unions win.
