Famous Limon Troupe Appears February 27

When Jose Limon’s Dance Company performs Wednesday, February 27 at 8:00 p.m. they will dance THE MOOK’S PAVANE. This dance work is based on “Othello” and has been presented as part of the procedure of rush week. Choreographed by Jose Limon, it tells a story within a story and uses the plot of Shakespeare’s “Othello” as a vehicle for a re-telling of the drama in love and jealousy.

It could be said that the whole course of Limon’s life changed in three hours. Jose Limon was a dancer. He was not a dancer for dance’s sake, but as an instrument to express his artist’s career and start using his whole body.

His first thirty-two months in the Army. While stationed at Camp Lewis, Limon wrote a play and proposed a dance-drama he directed, entitled WE SPEAK FOR OURSELVES. He danced the solo part, composed the musical score and directed a dance chorus of twelve ingeniously.

Jose Limon Dance Company was chosen as the first program to be sent to a foreign country in the State Department’s Intercultural Exchange Program.

Last year, Mr. Limon received an invitation from the Mexican government to spend several months there with his Company to produce new works that would be a means of propaganda for Mexican culture.

So successful was the fact the he has been invited to spend several months in Mexico each year to continue his creative work.

In addition to his classes at his own school in New York and at the Catholic university, he performs with the leading orchestras of the country and South America, goes on annual tour-to-tour concert tours and lectures and gives master classes in colleges and universities.

Many have been curious as to why Limon decided to accept this present position and come to Virginia. His reply, “I like Virginia and Virginia. You’re on like, but I like it.”

Speaking on one of our state’s present largest problems, racial segregation, Limon stated as quoted in The Cavalier Daily, “The negro must earn the responsibility to be equal. We should be more careful. We should be more careful. We should raise the standards and possibly keep some of the whites out.”

Miss Maxine Berlitz Vollmer, a native of Norfolk, Miss Anderson was always interested in joining the production of The Common Glory and she should send in their applications soon. One, and only one, student will be held for all on-campus and technical personnel for The Common Glory.

The outstanding performance of pageantry is presented annually at Williamsburg.

National Tests Will Score Sophomores, Determine Standings Tonight Thru Tomorrow

National Sophomore Tests will be conducted at Madison for all sophomores on March 4 and 5 in Wilson Auditorium.

The tests are a national effort on the part of all better colleges to determine the standing of all students in their respective courses. Two designated dates and hours of testing have been set for Monday, March 4, 1:30 to 4:00 p.m., and Tuesday, March 5, 8:00 to 12:00 noon. Each class will be able to see how she ranks according to her standing in her Madison class as well as nationally, but this limited test will be given during testing hours.

Designated dates and hours of testing have been set for Wednesday, March 6, 1:30 to 4:00 p.m., and Thursday, March 7, 8:00 to 12:00 noon. These tests will be administered to the entire sophomore class at the same time.

Anderson Assumes Role As New Faculty Member

Miss Anderson then received an appointment as Instructor in Biology, conducting laboratory work in general biology, bacteriology and physiology for the second semester at Madison.

A native of Norfolk, Miss Anderson came to Madison to major in Biology. "I am sort of an athlete, you might say, to keep my body and not my profession," she said, so she decided to teach biology instead.

"I felt at home in the classroom," she added, "more than the first time I entered. I can't describe. There are fine generations of teachers in my family, and I suppose that explains it." Miss Anderson is the first member of her family to teach science, however. As a senior in high school she won national honorable mention in the Westinghouse Science Talent Search for her organism of a fifth grade class. A native, of the Future Teachers of America during her high school years, she was a teacher's assistant in the elementary grades for three years and was thus able to study the fifth-grades at close range. Miss Anderson still finds her art work an absorbing hobby. She likes best to work in pastels.

Her special interest for study is field biology, and she hopes to attend the summer session of the University of Virginia biological program so that she can complete her M. S. degree in biology in order to continue college teaching.

"Talking with people and being outdoors is a part of my life," Miss Anderson explained. There she wants to use her knowledge of science, not in the laboratory, but in the classroom.

During her years at Madison, Miss Anderson was a Dean's List student for two years and in her senior year she fell ill in her practicum teaching at Wakefield High School, Arlington, and at Keiser Institute in Harrisonburg. Thus in one year she will have taught the elementary grades, high school, and college.

Famed William Faulkner Now Resides As Madison Neighbor

Famed Nobel and Pulitzer-prime winner, William Faulkner, began his stay in Charlottesville as writer-in-residence at the University last Friday.

First on Faulkner's agenda was a morning press conference in which he replied to questions dealing with topics varying from writing to international politics. Speaking informally and without notes, Faulkner, among his answers, stated his opinion of America's greatest novelist. He listed Thomas Wolfe first, Willa Cather second, and himself third.

Concerning the question of education of Faulkner, Faulkner made it clear that a poor writer does not necessarily complete a college education. However, he pointed out he wrote from the values to the individual striving to be a good writer, that he himself had no college education.

Faulkner told reporters that first rate writers select the dream, which they hold for their work, and that he has "never written the one book that ends the others. I'm lazy. I work by writing and I don't want to work in peace. It worries me very much whether the young writer is using all the tools that his college has given him. It is not the writer who does not utilize all tools of college education who is the poor writer; he who does not value any tool as much as he should."

Faulkner is on the staff of the University of Virginia. He lives in a cottage near Monticello.

Brides, Bouquets And Blushes
Depict Maid's Emotions, Tears

by Phyllis Moulton

The girl you pushed off your sliding board in more vigorous days suddenly appears after ten years and says, "Hey, dear, the fish is in the fry. You simply must be a bridesmaid!"

You'd naturally be delighted to lead the parade. After all, you won't marry again. You're too busy being a housemaid for the last thirty days. The novelty of tripping down the aisle to the tune of "Lohengrin" is slowly but surely ceasing to be a novelty. We must pause to lead the trail for our friends.

The bride-to-be vividly describes the elaborate wedding: Even the pantaloons are to be made of imported Chantilly lace. You gave "Paintbrushes" Only to learn that it's absolutely the latest thing in Charleston, South Carolina. One must dress one's Pantaloons correctly now. If these, too, are supposed to keep one warm in colder weather. I suppose I "suppose" because I really don't know, never having personally indulged in this frivolous and popular delight.

After many painful fittings, where the term stick-up doesn't refer to contention, and too many showers. (Pray tell me, Emily, how many times must one go through this?) the day arrives.

Do-da-da-da da comes the bridesmaid. Who's looking at her? No, not at her, but at her looking beyond, this lovely creature trying to catch that first, breath-taking glimpse of the beautiful bride. The bridesmaid longingly takes one last look at her off-shoulder, theboss, the groom. Himm. If she's going to be a bridesmaid, she can, surely, do it correctly. Ah, the moon marches on, and the little flower girl is last gaining ground. Alas, the bridesmaid finds a seat, or is it two? Shepilov takes over activities.

As one views this procedure of pitch and catch, one is reminded of the mother bird feeding her young. We can but wonder who the next whores will be.

The catching of the bridal bouquet is done, to the bridesmaid that also too soon come "Lohengrain" down the aisle.

Bob Cunningham, president of the Student Life Association, announced this week that Liberty will be at the Virginia for three days starting Friday, February 22.

Reconstruction after the Civil War is the subject of "Drums," which will be at the Virginia for three days starting on February 26. Bob Bohrert plays Drums, who returns from the North to govern the very place he once commanded. You gasp "Pantaloons" only to be told that she's played "her cards correctly. Ah, the wicked girl is fast gaining ground. Alas, the bridesmaid finds a seat, or is it two? Shepilov takes over activities.

The Madrigal singers have added a new feature to the Saturday night movie. These will be shown in the Virginia Theater on Friday, February 22.

"The Wings of Eagles" is the story of Commodore Frank (Spig) Wead, a colored Navy hero. Just as he receives his appointment as skipper of a fighting squadron, he incurs a spinal injury that threatens his life. The movie starts "Later!"

LOUIE,
THE LOUSE
He strolled through a kglyable into my house,
A dignified, well-bred upper-class louse;
He smiled in a most superior way
And said, "Man has just about seen his day.
If you'll take my advice for what it's worth
Treat insects nice, they'll inherit the earth!
Try to be beyond reproach
In your dealings with the roach...
Bedbugs, ants and spiders, too.
Don't forget... WE'RE WATCHING YOU!"
