Students From China, Iran, Hawaii And Denmark
Now Learning And Living At Madison College

by Barbara Gentry

There are numerous new personalities on campus this year and among the new faces are five foreign students. They are Daisy Lam and her married sister Stella Lam Chan from China, Nahid Bejan from Iran, Sandee Kurihara from Hawaii, and Grete Mehr from Denmark. The primary purpose of their trip to America was to study.

Daisy and Stella were born in Hong Kong, China and both desire that their feel to come to America was strengthened by the fact that their sister and brother are living here now. Their father also influenced their decision to come to the United States to study as he is a graduate of an American University and now hold a prominent position with a company trading in Hong Kong.

The younger of the two sisters is Daisy, who is 20 years old, a sophomore, majoring in Art. And she her brother learned to speak English in the primary grades but never had much opportunity to speak it outside of the classroom. However, they have an excellent command of the English language. Daisy arrived in San Francisco about 14 months ago and attended Santa Monica City College before coming to Madison. When asked what first impressed her here, Daisy said that the modern home and buildings were a source of amazement to her. Daisy likes Rock 'n' Roll and Elvis Presley but prefers classical music. She thinks Americans are tall and handsome. -American food is a little too rich for her and she misses the Chinese food. When Daisy graduates, she hopes to return to Art School in California and take some special training in modern design. She also plans to return to Hong Kong and take up a career in interior decorating.

Stella is 21, a second semester junior, majoring in home economics. Her husband is an instructor at VMI and in a few years he hopes to get his Ph.D. degree. Stella has been here almost two years longer than her sister, since this makes her third year in the States. She has a genuine love for home economics and a deep-rooted desire to become an expert homemaker. She particularly enjoys sewing, cooking and candle making and loves to sing. Stella and her husband plan to return to China for a summer visit after her graduation. Nahid Bejan from Iran, Sandee Kurihara from Hawaii, and Crete Mehr from Denmark. Budding literary giants, sharpen those pencils to a fine dangerous point, because next week is National Letter Writing Week. Now you have a national excuse for avoiding the books in order to write to that special man. And who knows, you may get a letter in return.

Remember, a letter a day keeps the "A's" away, but your man happy.

Sport's Flash

With Ash

If you should happen to see some exhausted, bewildered, sore, tired, frustrated, fatigued girls walking, or rather seemingly crawling, around campus, don't worry. They are not victims of the Asian Flu, but simply sophomore physical education majors who are in the process of conditioning their bodies as well as their minds.

The intramural hockey team opens its season on October 12 with a game with Westminster, the site being the opponent's field. The team seems to be shaping up in good order. Hope to see each and every one of you out cheering the team on at all the home games.

The intramural season has officially opened. We want to see more of you playing the sport of your choice. Remember, tennis, hockey, and archery are now being offered.

As you know by this time, Madison's teams are once again going to have the support of cheerleaders. May we congratulate those seven freshmen girls chosen. It is indeed an honor and privilege.

Well kids, because of the lack of news or the lack of this reporter's ability to find any.

Till then ..........
