Founders' Day Ceremonies Initiated

Beginning Of The Golden Anniversary

Madison College celebrated its fiftieth birthday today, Monday, March 14, when the entire student body and faculty of the school participated in Founders' Day activities.

Activities included five of the first elaborate events to mark Madison's Golden Anniversary.

The announcement was made by Lt. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, Director of the Selective Service, who emphasized the importance of the Selective Service to the nation.

The event was sponsored by the Institute on Public Education, established by an act of the General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, and is connected with Madison since its establishment.

The event will be followed by a Fine Arts Festival to be held May 2-3, and a Devotional Fair next fall, for the founding of Madison and its location in Harrisonburg.

The Anthony-Steepley Training School, now being constructed on campus, will be named after two prominent Madisonians.

The wife of the late Dean of the College. The other, under consideration, is the need for more successful than the previous German-College w ed ens.

The German and Bluestone-Cotillion Dance Clubs, respectively.

Recruitment Council Work On Project

The recruitment council is now working on another special "for the students.

The possibility of opening new dormitories for the 1958-59 academic year will be discussed.

The council will meet on Monday evenings at 8:00 p.m., in the Alumni House for the faculty members.

German And Cotillion Weekend To Sponsor "Southern Serafome"

Din lights, Spanish moss, and couples dancing to the flowing music of the dance orchestra will mark the German and Cotillion Weekend, March 14-15. The theme for the weekend is "Southern Serafome.

Making last-minute plans for "Southern Serafome" are Betty Johnson, president of the German Club, and Sadie Mandy, president of Cotillion Dance Clubs, respectively.

Included in the weekend activities will be a Friday night formal, a Saturday afternoon concert, and the highlight of the weekend will be the final dance on Saturday afternoon.

The formal dance will be held at 8:00 p.m., Friday night; the jazz concert Saturday at 4:00 p.m.; and the formal dance will start at 8:00 p.m., Saturday night.

Providing the music for the events will be the VMI Commanders. Composed of VMI staff and students, the band will appear on Madison's campus before the formal has been proved so successful that such clubs have voted to have them play Friday night. Although chap- ter presidents will be present there will not be a receiving line. Cokes will be served during intermissions.

Saturday's Highlights

Conducting the jazz concert Saturday afternoon will be Dean Hudson, the "Moon Over Miami" show. Mr. Hudson showed early aptitudes for playing the drums and trumpet, and while in college has been a member of various orchestras and bands. Since that time he has been associated with Madison, first as chairman of the German Col- lumbus, and now is enjoying a growing popularity throughout the country.

Next comes the highlight of the weekend: what you've all been waiting for—the formal dance. During the hours eight to twelve Saturday night the "Southern Serafome" will transform Reed gym into a beautiful southern ballroom. Pink, white, and green will provide the color scheme. Spanish moss will be raised from Florida especially for the dance decorations. White roses will be most effective in creating a true southern atmosphere.

"'Will be a receiving line at this dance. During intermis- sion, refreshments will be served in Alumni for the faculty mem-

What Is An Editorial?

Each week the Breeze devotes space to editorials. In view of current situations, it may be a good idea to remind ourselves what editorials are for and certain good journalistic methods connected with them.

An editorial, according to Webster, is, "an article written by an editor expressing the editor's opinion." It is neither a command nor a demand.

Editorials are printed to present an idea. Often the interest created by an editorial is so great that the paper receives letters to the editor concerning it. By this means the editor expresses his view-point concerning the issues involved. These letters are welcome in every paper in interest as well as allowing the paper to print different sides of an issue which may be of concern to its readers.

Concerning journalistic practices in relation to editorials, it may be interesting to remind ourselves that to sign an editorial written by a staff editor with a full name. Initials are always used and it is not to mock up to look at the list of staff editorials and forget which editorials are. Editorials that are not signed in any way are always written by the editor-in-chief of the paper. Only those editorials written by these people not on the paper staff are signed in full. All editorials appearing in a paper are printed to represent the views and policies of the paper and not center of the fact that it does not mean that it is law. It does mean that it is an issue worthy of thought and debate.

It is hoped that the editorials appearing in the Breeze from now on will be seen in this light. It is also to express the fact that interest in editorial issues will continue and will be expressed through Letters.

An editorial's main function is to cause the reader to think of a particular issue. By so doing, it editorially debunks and debunks it is sincerely hoped that proper action may be taken to improve our school, our paper, and ourselves.

Make Way For Improvement

READERS OF THE BREEZE:

We have seen two new dormitories being constructed in the vicinity of Long and we would like to commend the students of Madison next year and help to relieve the crowded conditions existing at Madison College which now necessitates the situation of three students sharing a dormitory room. In order to recognize this problem, it is proposed that the living conditions in American colleges in the very near future, 3 help to accommodate the increase in upperclass student enrollment which has occurred in the past three years that Madison freshmen are returning to become upperclassmen at a steadily increasing rate.

We are growing in physical plant as well as in student population. We are no longer a small State Teachers College, but are in class student enrollment which has occurred in the past three years. This is the big dance weekend, so let's dance, eat, and be merry. Don't forget to show our appreciation to those who have straddled away from the college campus and to those who have gathered and headed back to get all with the rest. Madison is a beautiful place. It is both a city and a college. It is hoped that the editorials appearing in The Breeze from now on will be seen in this light. It is also to express the fact that interest in editorial issues will continue and will be expressed through Letters.

VERSATILE CHEMISE PROMISES A YEAR OF APPEALING AND CHARMING FASHIONS

Booby Gentry

This year will be known as the "Year of the Chemise" and fashion designers have taken it, in all of its many and talented variations, and adapted it to show how completely and femininely wearable it can be. After seeing the renditions of this new and wonderful theme there should be no doubt, even among the most stubborn who thought they would never wear this completely new fad, will fit nicely into your wardrobe. For the present purposes we might suggest a few directions which allow you to choose a pure silk chemise, created with feminine flattery and charm. The versatile chemise will take a prominent position in the trousseau of every female student, for it is not only within the budget and presents little or no problem when packing the suit-case.

Your Choice

Take your choice—two piece; one piece, simply blouse and skirt; chemise, petticoat, and slip. Have yours in silk, in wool, in cotton or silk, in simple or fitted, in short or long, in thin or thick. For early morning until late at night ... whichever you desire in your chemise has been prepared especially for your figure.

We note a new swing of fashion is taking place, a spirited, young and wearable, and the kind of good fashion that becomes the distortion—''not the way of the old lady."" But in your new costume, you must look your best.

New Literary Club Holds Play Reading

Madison's Criticism Club held a play reading after their business meeting on Wednesday evening at the Library of Congress. The play selected was "The Case of the Continental Parrot," a hilarious fantasy with four characters, written by Twain, Fiske, and G. C. Parker. The play was performed by a group of students, including Elizabeth Williams and Paul Tol. The reading was well received by the audience, and the play was well received by the director. After the performance, the club reconvened, and a lively discussion ensued about the play and its themes.

Sport's Flash

With Ash

A belated congratulations to the Sophomores for a job well done on their class night. Because of lack of space this was omitted last week.

The volleyball intramural season was officially brought to a close Tuesday with a contest between Shadyside I and the faculty. Sheldon I won the tournament but was unable to top the faculty team.

Four intramural sports come into season on March 17. These are softball, tennis, archery and golf. Pick your favorite sport and come out and join the fun.

LaCrose is also going to be offered as an intramural sport. It will not be organized on the same manner as the other intramural sports, but will rather be on a teaching basis. The team will be organized later on. They will be composed of all the girls who are interested in learning more about the sport and who participated in the instruction program.

The fencing team and coach Dr. Sinclair travelled to Mary Washington for a match. The first team won their contest and Sheldon I won the tournament but was unable to top the faculty team and acted as director of the meet.

The first team won eight out of nine bouts, while the second team won two. The teams of both schools showed a great deal of active interest and they put forth tremendous effort.

On Friday, March 14, a match will be played with William and Mary College. Let's everyone support our team!
