Europe and America Bow In Homage To Fanciful Play: "The Yellow Jacket"

By DOUGLAS RICK

When Hamilton and Bernino first offered "The Yellow Jacket" New York refused it. But now every county in the country of Europe has been delighted by the universal appeal of this play which will be presented for the graduating classes, under the direction of Dr. Argus Tresidder, as a part of the Commencement exercises.

"When the drama, "The Yellow Jacket," was issued into the troubled theatres, ropes, intrigue, interest spread out and lapped foreign shores," declares the New York Times. "March of the Pickets" from Aida furnishes the rhythms for the medieval dances, and "Country Gardens," and the May Pageant will be presented "The May Pole Dance."

The Athletic Association is planning to include a contest next year which students will write themes for the May Day program.

In the last few years that increasing problem, the worthy use of leisure time has been much discussed.

TO HELP USE LEISURE TIME

You needn't remind us that college students have little leisure time. We know that well enough, but we are looking forward to the time when we shall be in the positions in which this time we want to be prepared and the best way to get prepared is on the college campus. There may be a large number going out for extra-curricular activities but there is still a large number not participating.

Perhaps this number needs a little more encouragement. About the best system for inducing people to participate in avocational activities is the one followed by the Athletic Association. At the end of each sport season, students who have done a certain amount of playing and attending all the required practices, are awarded a letter. Not only is this a reward for services but also a public recognition which can induce people to enter the sports actively.

TO DEVELOP

Two other organizations which are sure to prove popular are the Aeolian Music Club and the Student Dramatics Club. Stage or concert experience is one of the most difficult problems man has to face. The shift from the position of student to classroom teacher is a problem; the shift from teacher to student is doubly difficult.

Upon coming back to finish the required work after being away awhile, different teachers and students would have to be continued. The continuity of the work must be lost.

If the required work is completed now, the college days can be looked back on as a unit, and when you step into a position, you will have a greater feeling of security that if you are incompletely prepared.

The student body yesterday gave the Student Council a vote of thanks for an effective piece of work. It paid on time, the Freshman class fee! The Treasurer had to meet with some opposition, but the Chancellor explained that England was to pay for her huge armament budget would she go on the Increase of Inflation.

There may be a large number going out for extra-curricular activities but there is still a large number not participating. The proposed balanced budget can be attained by only strict economy. The budget this year is greater than any previous year while expenditures are decreasing, although still some way to be left.

England's New List

And in England the Chancellor gave his budget plan with the new increased taxes. A tax on corporation profits, personal income tax of 21 per cent and a basic income tax of 10 per cent were among the new ways proposed in England to balance the budget. The budget, of course, met with some opposition, but the Chancellor explained that England was to pay for her huge armament budget which is increased in every year. And the Chancellor was generally regarded as courageous for facing the problem thus.

Italian-German Friendship

Interesting details concern research point to a contrast between Austria and Italy. When Mussolini captured troops in the Austrian border to prevent German aggression into Austria, his attitude was for the utilization of the Overseas and to resist German influences. Mussolini now feels, apparently, that some amount of German influence in Central Europe is essential. He prefers to counter his German friendship —bidding at least in part, his friendship for these scattered countries of Central Europe than to the Austro-Hungarian Empire.

Prof. E. P. Cathcart Illustrates Mind Over Indigestion

London, Eng.—(APT)—Mind over indigestion means more to the doctors in verse form written by Prof. E. P. Cathcart. At the physiologic department at the University of Glasgow:

"Eat all kind nature dotor bowbow; still unlamed, take the costest bowbow. If the mind says so, it shall be so. But, if you once doubt, the gawdy juice will find it out."

Children Get Radio By Own Efforts

By selling magazines children in the sixth grade at the Main Street School were recently able to get a radio for their Assembly room. Graham Price, a pupil, sent the following account in The Breeze for the weekend.

"A few months ago a man came to the Main Street School from the Curtis Company. He told us if we acquired number of subscriptions, he would give us a radio. We were interested in getting the radio because once a week a room of the Main Street School gives a radio program; so each individual tuned in the radio at home in the afternoon after school and tried to do his part in helping to get the required number of subscriptions. On Monday April 3, 1927 we received our Philco 3-band radio, which we put in our assembly room."

Virginia Teacher Discloses Facts About Museums, High Schools, and Colleges

The April issue of The Virginia Teacher, distributed on campuses the first of this month, contains interesting articles by Helen G. McCormack, Dr. Paul Homchell, and Dr. Julian A. Burress. Miss McCormack, a member of the staff of the Virginia Museum in Richmond, discusses Museums in Virginia. Because with the arrival of spring, the urge to abandon classrooms and go on pilgrimages becomes strong, the groups at the one time tours the museums, and collections; science museums, and culture history museums.

The Yellow Jacket was presented in Madrid, where it was lavished with praise. The novel was extended to the hedge at South University and the Senior class of the University of Virginia, Richmond, was presented in the Valley for next week will probably be supplanted by a nappy game of water polo and future physical education classes directed in a study of "The Ancient Mariner." At this rate the graduating class would undoubtedly receive treatment in life saving. But it's an ill wave that splashes nobody good. All the girls who have gone out with everything but the tide in the Valley have a strong group because of a number of Savage girls who are on the team. The Juniors and Sophomores have had several practices together. But under weather conditions, only two practices have been scheduled for beginners and advanced team. The tournament is expected to begin about May 15.

There have been no scheduled practices for golf, but several individual practices have been held. In hopes that since golf clubs are now available in the supply room at a small rental fee, more students will enter. The tournament will be held at the Spotswood Country Club, and the person having the lowest score will win a cup. New equipment is here for archery and paddle tennis. Providing interest continues, many people indicate that they want it, completion will be arranged later.

Spring Sports Under Way

Attention Centers on Golf, Baseball; Tennis; Freshmen Have Strong Ball Team

With attention centering on baseball, tennis, and golf the spring sports are well under way. All classes have organized teams in baseball, the freshmen team being the strongest. Despite the fact that several of last year's Junior participants did not come out this year, the Senior class still has a strong group because of a number of Savage girls who are on the team. The Juniors and Sophomores have had several practices together. Due to weather conditions, only two practices have been scheduled for beginners and advanced team. The tournament is expected to begin about May 15.
