The study involved an interview and survey of college students and was directed by Dr. Howard Wilson of the Department of Physical Education at Loyola University. The study was conducted to determine the qualities of a good college professor according to the students' perceptions.

The study revealed that the students highly value the ability of the professor to communicate complex ideas in an understandable manner. They also appreciate the professor's willingness to engage in discussions and answer questions. The students also cited the professor's knowledge of the subject matter and their ability to inspire and challenge the students.

The chorus and the orchestra were well rehearsed and the performance was very successful. The fashion show included two charming designs, one of which was the winning entry in the William and Mary design contest and the other a charcoal brocade bolero, which accompanied a gay pail taffeta petticoat and a chiffon blouse. One of the other designs was a gray sharkskin jersey jacket made of canvas, a capitol building, and also a painted in C Sharp Minor, and a beautiful flamingo, by Balakirev, which was played by Miss Lohr. The encore was "The Lark" by Balakirev, which was played by Miss Lohr.

Why Madison Needs A Magazine

Many college and university editors have said—"Why Madison? We are in dire need of a monthly publication containing fiction, poetry, and other creative work of a high caliber rating in magazine form.

One of the editors' primary purposes is that journalism—ening, is unable, therefore, to create creative productions by gifted students who are capable of turning out works which include illustrated stories, the excellence of which it is difficult to duplicate. This magazine, with a student editor, would work hand-in-hand with a few members of the English department who would be writing the content material. The latter should certainly not be hard to procure, since in Madison's courses alone, several types of desirable literary efforts are turned in each year by students. A publication of this sort would act as a definite incentive for the promotion of more and better creative work by students. Such a publication through circulation would create a more interesting Madison College magazine and would be a definite step toward introducing Madisonism to prospective students.

Let Us Rest In Peace

Quiet! We have known those signs on the doors if you live in junior, but it seems that it takes more signs to make people notice. After this was done, a few lucky ones are fortunate enough not to have 8 o'clock classes. Although you may have been up for hours and be just bubbling over with joy, happiness, or just plain animal spirits, others don't share your enthusiasm so early in the morning. Some few obnoxious persons can't even take a hint when a door jerks open, and tousled, heavily-lidded apparition yells "shut up" at the top of its lungs.

The answer to this great conflict, and enthralling romance.

Los Angeles is a city of old timers. Everyone you meet has been there for a year, more or less, to accomplish something of importance they thought was going to be done. And then there is the Madison play in the atmosphere. Most of the year when varsity games are held we see no more than 200 people present, at the most, out of Madison's 1200. We couldn't call that much spirit, and the same, even to a greater extent, goes for music programs and such by students and faculty. When people work for a year, more or less, to accomplish something of importance they thought was going to be done. And then there is the Madison play in the Breeze.

After all, a little consideration never hurt anyone. Just try it and see.

After waiting about half an hour for her "friend," this stranger picked up her bag and left. Previously she had visited Junior, but evidently the atmosphere was not as friendly or else the spoils were not as lucrative.

Dr. O. W. Junek Speaks To Students In Assembly

Dr. O. W. Junek, professor of anthropology at New York University, and widely known authority on cultural traditions and superstitions, spoke on the topic "Behavior Depends Upon Woman," last Wednesday in assembly, Freshman Class Day. He bases his discussion on the results of extensive research which in many cases has taken him into remote corners of the globe.

According to Dr. Junek, there are three types of family groups: our traditional family, the family whose name descended the family tree by the maternal side of the group, and the family in which the mother's elder brother assumed the care of her family. In his review of the historical development of the social organization, he pointed out that woman was the absolute matriarchate and has always strongly influenced government. The speaker contended that "things that matter" involved in conservative though in things which do not matter, such as fashion, she may be called progressive.

Dr. Junek's suggestion that women should "take over" since men have made such a bloody mess of things, met with genuine applause, and aptly, and widely known authority on the globe.

Among the speakers who also recommented that women be given wider opportunity to make their portion towards the strength and progress of a larger numbers in all branches of government.

In closing, the speaker stated that he reviewed the definition of progress given by his Oxford professor who held that "true progress consists of increased love and continuous practice.

Dr. O. W. Junek element of which is most needed in the world today, if peace is to be realized.

Born in Czechoslovakia, Dr. Junek attended the University of Chicago, the University of Paris, and Oxford University. He speaks twenty different languages and dialects, this faculty made him invaluable during the war when he worked in close contact with Imperial vital branches of the Government. Domestic Chewing Gum

Come on, Johnny, mother promised us Dentyne Chewing Gum if we only sat through it once!

"Not even Frankie Swoonatra could make me miss Dentyne Chewing Gum! That nifty flavor really means me — I mean it really does. And the way Johnny keeps his teeth white, I want to keep the old smile all the time."

Three Freshmen Ph. Ed. Majors Boast Of Their Liberal Education

(The following was written by three very enthusiastic physical education majors (among the freshmen.) All "phys. ed. girls" will love it and the rest of us a season. We think it's good! The Editors.)

Have you noticed the happy-go-lucky attitude of the Physical Education majors here on campus? Whether you have or have not we shall endeavor to enlighten you upon the whys of the subject.

A Physical Education major has learned through defeat, as well as victory, the ups and downs of life and has learned to take them in her stride. She knows that maybe someone will ask us to take a trip. Why not take in one of these games. It's a grand old American custom!
