Only a few parts have been "cast." The director is still looking for actors and actresses.

The revue is to be held in the main hall of the college.

Stratford Offers One-Act Plays

A group of three one-act plays will be presented by the Stratford Drama Club, and the program is in production in January 25.

My Lady Davenys, by Eugene Poirot, a delightful fantasy dealing with the question of marriage versus a career, is directed by Patricia Mori. Fran Pius Eaker acts as the Countess, a gracious lady who makes her choices by playing Mary Elizabeth Stewart; her nurse, by Dorothy Reepley; and her dream vision. The Old Lady, by L. E. Eaker, and the Adorable Children, by Mary E. Wardwell, are directed by Letilla Holter, Shirley May, and Jane L. Eaker.

Rehearsal is an amusing skit by Mr. Horace Morgan, in which a group of students are rehearsing for the first time. The director is Mr. W. C. Morgan, and the program is in production in January 25.

JAPAN'S WAR WITH CHINA RAGES ON

BY AGNES BARGH

Perhaps any discussion of the Far Eastern situation should begin with a review of the undeclared war now raging between China and Japan. It seems surprising that this war, which has shocked the world with its disregard of all human rights, was begun as recently as December 7. Only a little over a month old, this war has already brought a main theme in world politics, and in the politics of the United States especially.

The bombing of the U.S. naval base at Pearl Harbor, which aroused and controlled feeling in this country against China, took place on December 11. On December 25, the caprice of Hanhongbo was consummated.

At that date, China's casualties were estimated at over one million; what they are now, the imagination shudders to picture.

Japan Developed Surprisingly

Many reasons have been given to explain how this war came to be so hideous, so utterly without mercy. The consensus of opinion seems to be that Japan has adopted Western weapons without Western ethics. This is not surprising when we remember that not too long ago, Japan was a feudal state, no further advanced that were France and England in the Middle Ages, 400 or more years ago. Since then Japan has made amazing strides in the mechanical side of civilization. Her factories, her schools, communication and transportation have kept pace with the advent of Western developments. But her national consciousness is still undeveloped. Indeed, to the minds of some, it 'must surely have atrophied.'

Japan has read, has seen nations win their desires by force. She has seen how effective are Western weapons of modern civilization. What she has not realized, apparently, is the disapproval accorded the use of these weapons.

Is Japan's Intention?

Those who key in Japan now, are growing tired of the same question, always addressed to foreigners: "Are Japan's motives clearly understood abroad?" The first accurate answer that comes to mind is "FBI abroad are they?" But students of the Oriental mind realize that Japan is quite prone to dodge in this question, and answer accordingly: "Yes, I am sure that Japan's motives are everywhere understood clearly." That Japan should believe herself to be drawing world over the eyes of the world sooner in

CAMP SONG

HENRY VAN DYKE

Cheerful Cherub, by Rebecca McCann
When work seems rather dull to me,
And life is not so sweet—
One thing at least can bring me joy—
I simply love to cat.

"Who seeks for heavens alone to save his soul May keep the path, but will not reach the goal;" The while the one love may wander far, Yet God will bring him where the blessed are. —Henry van Dyck

CAPTAIN POLING,
Peace, I ask of thee, O river,
Peace, peace, peace.
When I learn to live serenely,
Contented, rose, I ask of thee.
From the hills I gather courage,
Vision of the day to be,
Strength to lead and faith to follow—
All is given unto me.
Peace, I ask of thee, O river.
Peace, peace, peace.

TrinklePredicts Success In Education

President of State Board makes Raising Pena For Education a Convocation Topic

Virginia is well on its way to solving the problems of its teachers and threequarters of a million school children. Governor R. E. Trinkle, now president of the State Board of Education, predicted that students and faculty in quarterly convocation exercises January 5, in Wilson Room.

He made the prediction as he was describing the three-point program calling for a minimum of $720 a year for an adequate retirement punch for teachers, and for a three-week session for free teachers. This program, advanced by teachers' organizations throughout the state and endorsed by the State Board of Education, will be presented at the meeting of the General Assembly this month.

In his plans for education, he declared that the development of a child's potentialities by means of schooling is the safest investment which can be made today. "We need schools, "he said, "for physical and cultural as well as for our sacred traditions and natural beauty, and the schools we now have are an average of $569 a session and to its white, $750 in salary. There are a number of schools in this state earning bigger salaries than the men and women who are directing the lives of one thousand and a half boys and girls.

Research Work

With the first varsity game scheduled for February 5, in Reid Gymnasium, the purple and gold squad is putting in a period of vigorous training under the direction of Mrs. Alice Johnstone, coach. Seven new members have been added to the big-time varsity basketball team, and coach Johnstone is working hard to produce a successful season.

The varsity is composed of the following players: Forward—Woman Van Landinham, Margaret Glore, Gertrude Ingersoll, Loretta Fisher, Rachel Crocker, and Leslie Purser. Guards—May Bell, Eleanor Ayres, Martha Fitzgerald, Jane Pridham, and Tommy Anthony, and Dr. Paul Hounchell, from the college, have set up the music scale with glasses of water. Recent experiments at the Main Street Training Schools have proved that children, at a very early age, develop special interests in sports, music, art, and similar fields.

Music seems to be a favorite among girls in the second and fourth grades. A rhythm band composed of instruments made by the children has been organized. Some of them are the drums, tambourines, rattles, and, since very early, the drums, tambourines, rattles, and, since very early, the children are making steam-boats, with the sail-boats and their stores, will be planned. They are also studying pamphlets on the Normandie.

Veda Kohn, college leader of the newly introduced sport, explained the different techniques of the game. The matches were played. Byer defeated Patterson in the first game, Byer, and the team of Byer and Patterson won the doubles game from Powell and Fitzgerald.

After the games, Kohn announced that she would post notices of the organization of the teams and the schedule of practices. Having signed up more than 45 students who wish to learn the game, the sports leader said that different groups would be formed, probably, with more than 30 or 40 in each team according to circumstances. It is uncertain whether or not a class tournament will be conducted, but after about three weeks of practices, individual singles and double tournaments will be held, the winning teams being declared school champions.

Where were you on New Year's Eve? Don't tell us your second-quarter chemistry has already blown out and disposed of those divine nights when there may not have been much earthy earth there but there was plenty of good will-toward men in the atmosphere. Seems ages ago, doesn't it? But what a marvelous away you had, didn't you? And now you turn classy over. Keep plugging away and maybe you've got a new you, too, will return flashing a sparkle from one of your phalanxions. Eleanor certainly isn't taking that home in vain. Too bad R. J. didn't have enough proposals to go around.

And now, let us how our bands is solemn tributes to those gay schoolmates who have closed quarte-end of the holidays. In the way, Main Street School. They go by like young lions and return the burden. They have always been so popular with the money-tending to prove that David E. George was in reality the long-lived captain. The investigation revealed three means of identifying Roosevelt. The soldier had two stars, one on his cap, the other on his shoulder. A girl, who was found to be lying on the floor, was identified as Roosevelt from Lincoln's bow to the stage of Ford's Theatre and was afterward set by the boy Dr. Doctor More. The third distinguishing mark was still foregone on his right hand. His left hand, which had been cut off, had a purse. By a theatre curtain rope and had been improperly set. Armed with these statements, the research department of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer started characters study of the facts surrounding Roosevelt's past-por ted death. It was learned that after killing Roosevelt he fled to the South. He was armed with a special password, issued immediately following the assassination, which allowed him to pass through the Federal cour. In his wild flight, he stopped at the house of Dr. Mudd, the physician who set his broken leg and paid for his medical service years of imprisonment on Robbery Island. The government now pursue Roosevelt. They have discovered in his hair a balm. Surrounded the shiek. After millions of dollars. When he refused, the barn was fired. A charred body, identified as that of the fugitive, was taken from the ashes. The third distinguishing mark was a stiff forefinger on his right hand. It had been foretold by the ill-fated Doctor Mudd. The investigation revealed three means of identifying Roosevelt. The soldier had two stars, one on his cap, the other on his shoulder.
