TKE likely to lose national charter

By Gwen Fariss
assistant news editor

Tau Kappa Epsilon probably will lose its national charter.

Mark Fite, national TKE director of chapter services, said official action will be taken Dec. 27 by the Grand Council at their national convention.

TKE will remain an active chapter until then. But the policy of the national chapter has been to remove the charter of a group not receiving university recognition. "We do not go against the wishes of a university," Fite said.

The fraternity here was notified Nov. 21 that it had lost university support. The decision was made after a hazing incident that occurred during the Nov. 11-12 weekend as part of Rush.

Fite said a national TKE representative on Monday asked JMU to reconsider its decision.

"The university chose not to reconsider. They will not grant an appeal. It's not open for discussion," he said.

Five TKE pledges were driven somewhere off Interstate 81 and picked up by police while walking back to JMU. The police returned the students to the campus security office. Later, the names of those students matched names on a TKE pledge list.

Dr. Lacy Daniel, dean of students, said the incident was the "final straw."

In making the decision, the administration looked "at the overall picture ... the history of the chapter," he said.

But Daniel said a group with a clean record might have been disciplined the same way.

"It's an unfortunate thing to have to come to this," he said. He said the situation is "sad. They had been a strong group on campus for a number of years."

Frank Graviano, TKE president, said, "The people in our fraternity are extremely sad about what happened."

But the group will continue to be active. "We are all going to stick together as a group. We all feel that the fraternity is not in the name, but the people in the organization," he said.

Carrier to visit Arkansas next week for interview

By Tammy Scarton
news editor

President Ronald Carrier will be interviewed at the University of Arkansas-Fayetteville Monday for the position of chancellor.

Carrier is one of three final candidates for the position.

Carrier must decide if he wants to work at the university while Arkansas administrators decide if he is the best applicant for the job, said Dr. John Meriwether, search committee chairman.

On Tuesday, University of Arkansas President James Martin said, "There will be no job offers next week — at least I don't anticipate any."

Martin, who presides over the chancellors at all four main Arkansas campuses, will choose the chancellor.

Martin said he is not working under a deadline, "but I hope it will be filled soon."

Carrier will meet with the 25-member search committee during his visit, Meriwether said. Carrier also will meet deans, faculty members, alumni, non-academic staff members and students.

"We want to expose him to the complete entity," Meriwether said. "We're looking for someone with experience and sensitivity. We need somebody who can lead and bring together all the diverse elements."

"He's (Carrier) a man of experience and obviously some achievement. I've been led to believe he's done a fine job at James Madison," Meriwether said. "He seems to have an excellent idea of where he is and where he wants to go."

The other two finalists are Dr. James Halligan, interim chancellor and vice chancellor for academic affairs at Fayetteville, and Carl Whillock, president of Arkansas Electric Cooperative Corp. and former president of Arkansas State University.

"All candidates are being equally considered," he said. "Nobody has the inside track."

If Carrier gets the job and accepts it, he will receive about $65,000 a year, Martin said. He would be given a house or housing supplement and a car for official business.

Carrier earns $64,444 at JMU, which includes a $8,406 supplement from the JMU Foundation. He receives a house and car.

Former Fayetteville Chancellor B.A. Nugent resigned July 27. The search committee was appointed the next week.

It considered 71 applications before submitting the top three to Martin.

The University of Arkansas-Fayetteville is a state-supported, land-grant college with an enrollment of about 14,500. It is located in the Ozark Mountains, about 200 miles northwest of Little Rock.

It is the largest of the four main branches of the university. The others are Little Rock, Monticello and Pine Bluff.

The university system's engineering and agricultural schools, doctoral programs, research centers and one of its two law schools are at Fayetteville. Its budget this year is $110 million. JMU's budget is about $50 million.

Pavilion to cost about $40,000

By Bill Goodykoontz
staff writer

Building a pavilion across Interstate 81 will cost about $40,000.

The pavilion "will be as close as possible to being exactly like the university farm," said Dr. Al Menard, associate dean of students. "It will be located northeast of the lower practice field across 81."

The SGA must "decide if they wish to fund one half, the university the other half," Menard said. No commitment has been made by the SGA or the university yet.

Bob George, SGA administrative vice president, said the senate will discuss whether it will pay for half of the cost of the building of the shelter.

George said the idea for the pavilion was brought up at the last SGA meeting last spring. Because it was the last meeting, it was voted on as a bill of opinion, which "says the senate endorses this idea," but doesn't have time to look into it more fully, he said. "It was passed last year for $15,000."

The approval was made before the estimate was obtained. Since the estimate is $20,000, the SGA will have to reapprove the bill.

"There is money in the general reserve account for it (the pavilion). I wouldn't consider it any problem passing it," he said.

"I think it's something students could use," George said. "You want something semi-secluded, but you don't have to drive to."

If the SGA passes the bill, it will be forwarded to Planning and Development Commission and then the University Council. It must also be approved by President Ronald Carrier and the Board of Visitors.

If the project is approved, bids will be accepted for the construction, said George Marcum, physical plant director.

But approval must come first. "We have to have the money before bidding begins," he said.

"We could have it (the shelter) constructed in about 90 days" after receiving the bid, Marcum said. "Bidding will probably take about three or four weeks."

TKE

The group will make new plans and choose different policies to "build for TKE's future," he said. The group will become more of a service organization, he said.

"We're going to get on it right away," he said. Monday, the group will participate in a service project to help raise money for WVPT-TV. About 10 TKE members will answer phones to take donations, he said.

Three halls lose power

Three dormitories temporarily lost electric power Monday.

"We found a loose lug where the switch equipment attaches to the cable," said Philip Deane, buildings and grounds supervisor. "It only affected Chandler (Hall), but we had to check and be sure we didn't have problems with the switching gear."

Power had to be turned off at Shorts and Eagle halls, because all three dorms are on the same circuit, Deane said.

This is the second power loss at Chandler in the past few weeks, he said. Both were caused by the loose lug. "Last time we just replaced the fuse, but the second time we had to check," he said.

Five SGA senators resign

By David Olds
SGA reporter

Five SGA senators announced their resignations Tuesday.

Hanson Senator Mike Zigarelli resigned because he is transferring. Dingledine Senator Mary Ann Dodd resigned because she is moving from her dormitory.

Greek Senator Sarah Howarth was named associate Greek coordinator. She cannot be both a Greek senator and coordinator.

Commuter Senator Judi Watterson and Cleveland Senator Leslie Davis resigned because they will graduate this month.

The SGA will hold elections for the vacant positions in mid-January, said Bob George, administrative vice president. The next SGA Senate meeting will be on Jan. 17.

In other SGA action:

► A SGA bill of opinion asking the administration to reconsider the ban on throwing toilet paper at basketball games was voted down.

Greek Senator Sarah Howarth said, "It (throwing toilet paper) shows a bunch of uncouth college students and it would not improve the reputation of JMU."

George responded, "There are a million ways to show enthusiasm at a basketball game. Banning the throwing of toilet paper will not affect students' enthusiasm."

The bill was raised by White Hall Senator Bobby Houston.

► Houston proposed the SGA co-sponsor the Catch a Ride Safely program. It should help pay for initial expenses such as insurance, communication equipment and other supplies.

The CARS program was started by the Catholic Campus Ministry for students needing rides on Friday and Saturday nights until 3 a.m. It is provided mainly for students who have been drinking alcohol. The proposal was sent to the Finance Committee.

► Greek Senator Mark Douglas proposed a microwave oven be placed in the dining hall for students' use. The proposal was sent to the Food Services Committee.

► Commuter Senator Veronica Bindrim proposed the SGA allocate $975 to the National Student Speech Language and Hearing Association so they can attend a national convention in Cincinnati, Ohio. The proposal was sent to the Finance Committee.

► Ashby Senator Ken Beuley proposed a pay phone be installed in the lobby of Ashby Hall. The proposal was sent to the Building and Grounds Committee.

► Shenandoah Senator Ken Harrell proposed one additional washing machine be placed at Shenandoah Hall, Foreign Language and Patterson houses. The proposal was sent to B & G committee.

► Three Executive Council members and four senators have been selected to for Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges.

President Isabel Cumming, Administrative Vice President Bob George, Legislative Vice President Dave Harvey, Commuter Senators Mike Condyles, Tim Craighead and Judi Watterson and Converse Senator Janie Sherman were selected.

Study calls graduate programs 'acceptable,' but could improve

By Karen Brown
staff writer

Faculty of graduate programs for teachers at JMU are "acceptable," according to a study by the State Council of Higher Education for Virginia.

The study, conducted by a 14-member task force on graduate education, examined the graduate programs for teachers at state-supported universities across the state.

The study, released in November, stated that JMU was not selective enough last year, admitting 90 percent of its applicants for graduate educational programs.

The study criticized all the state universities' graduate education programs for not meeting certification requirements, for their lack of women and minority faculty members, and lack of current research publications and resources.

According to the report, the administration and supervision program here has declined in size "to the point that the task force does not think it is sufficiently vigorous to provide quality." The task force recommended that small programs enter into cooperative programs with nearby universities.

Dr. James Couch, head of the department of psychology, said applicants of the counseling program are selected on the basis of their transcripts, letters of recommendation and interviews.

Couch said that although the program does not require a minimum score on the Graduate Record Exams, the GRE scores of those accepted are "competitive on a national basis."

"We (the program administrators) don't agree with admission based on an arbitrary number," he said. Couch said 80 percent of the applicants were accepted last year.

Couch said faculty of the counseling program, which is 45 percent women and 18 percent minority, are "nationally visible" and "highly involved in professional and scholarly activity."

He rated equipment and library resources here as "superb," although he said there is a need for a group counseling room.

Couch also said the counseling program is approved by the state and has been accepted on a provisional basis by the Council for Accreditation of Counseling and Related Educational Programs.

Dr. William Smith, head of the department of educational resources, said that those seeking admission into the school administration program must submit letters of recommendation from school administrators, have an undergraduate quality point average of 3.0 and a score of 800 on the GRE.

In response to the task force's claim that the faculty is only "acceptable," Smith said, "We have good faculty but we don't have many of them." The faculty of the school administration program is made up of four white males.

Also he said the faculty only devote about 60 percent of their time to the program due to their general studies program demands. Smith said the faculty is involved in scholarly activity, but he said, "Some are more productive than others in publication and research." Smith rated the equipment and library resources as "excellent."

Smith said, "The report's main criticism of our program is that it's too small." But the program graduates 10 to 12 students per year, which Smith said, "is not bad with respect to other graduate programs at JMU."

The program, which was reviewed in October, has met all requirements for state certification, he said.

Students may receive two degrees

JMU students might be able to graduate with two degrees starting fall semester.

Now, students completing requirements for two majors receive only one degree at graduation.

A student's transcript indicates that requirements for the second degree have been fulfilled. But students must return to JMU after graduation and complete an additional 32 hours before they receive the second degree.

The SGA Curriculum and Instruction Committee is trying to change that policy.

Veronica Bindrim, committee chairperson, said the committee introduced a bill of opinion to the SGA Nov. 1 to find out "why students can't graduate with both degrees even after the required work is fulfilled."

Bindrim said the university requires 32 additional hours to make a student "well rounded."

But she disagrees with that policy. "Students should be able to make up their own minds (with regards to) what they should do with their education."

The committee will submit the bill to the senate floor for approval. If approved, it is sent to the SGA Executive Council, the Commission on Undergraduate Studies and to the University Council for final approval.

The committee has no deadline.

— Charlie Hannon

Commuter student positions filled

Two Commuter Student Committee positions were filled Monday.

Co-chairwoman Judi Watterson resigned because she will graduate in December.

Dale Potts was elected publicity coordinator and Michele Puletz was named co-chairwoman.

Potts ran unopposed. She has been coordinator since Bill Younger resigned earlier this semester because of health and academic difficulties.

Puletz was task manpower coordinator. She defeated Intramural Coordinator Christie Qualls.

Elections for task manpower coordinator and for at least one SGA senator will be held early next semester, CSC chairman Mike Ells said.

— Donna Sawyers

Three societies may be recognized

Three new student organizations will be recommended for formal recognition at today's University Council meeting.

The Commission on Student Services voted Tuesday to recommend to the council that the JMU Anthropology Society, Honors Scholars Society and the Society for Human Resource Management be adopted. It will also support recognition of the Mercury Club's affiliation with the national physical education organization, Phi Epsilon Kappa.

These organizations had completed the first step in the recognition process by presenting and defending their constitutions before the Sub-Committee on Student Clubs and Organizations.

Michael Way, associate director of student activities, said to be recognized a group should be a genuine student organization with 10 or more members and not dominated by the community or faculty.

The other criteria for recognition, listed in the Student Organization Handbook are the following: a need on campus for such an organization, the positive effects of the organization's proposed programs and activities to the university community, the support and approval of any appropriate academic departments, communications with any appropriate national organizations necessary for affiliation and a committed faculty adviser.

— Mark Miller

Food committee makes changes

The SGA Food Services Committee has suggested new improvements this year.

Denise Mumley, committee chairman, said the committee has been "doing a lot of brainstorming lately and making some suggestions" to Robert Griffin, food services director and Rick Arnold, food production manager.

Some of those suggestions have become realities. One of the group's projects included a food preference survey.

Other suggestions made by the committee include having Sweet and Low sugar substitute and frozen yogurt available in D-Hall; and lowering the price of Duke's Grill sandwiches at 9 p.m. when they usually are thrown away.

The Food Services Committee is composed of 10 members.

The committee meets each

Wednesday at 6 p.m. in room C of the Warren Campus Center mezzanine. The meetings are open to all students.

— Becky Sandridge

Debate team receives awards

A JMU debate team placed second at the Washington and Lee University Debates held Friday and Saturday in Lexington.

The team of Eileen Drotleff and Tara Riley advanced into the final round of the tournament before losing to a George Mason University team.

Riley won the fourth place speaker's award.

Students received individual and team awards in the third annual Yellow Jacket Debating Tournament held at Randolph Macon College Nov. 18-20.

Beth Butswinkas and Robert Yocum advanced to the quarter-final rounds before being defeated by a George Washington University team.

Two JMU debaters won top individual speaker awards. Brian James won fourth place and Beth Butswinkas won fifth place.

At the Fall Forensics Tournament, two individuals received awards. The tournament was held at Shippensburg State College Nov. 18 and 19.

Theresa Simmons won first place in the Impromptu Speaking competition. Marinette Urquhart won fourth place in After Dinner Speaking.

Forensics team receives awards

Two JMU forensics team members placed at the 14th Annual H.L. Mencken Forensics Tournament held Saturday and Sunday at Towson State University in Towson, Md.

Missy Mayers won third place in both after-dinner and persuasive speaking.

Christa Arnold placed fifth in the prose interpretation category.

Drinks can be taken out of D-hall

Students can carry out drinks from Gibbons Dining Hall next semester.

After receiving a request from the Food Services Advisory Committee, Davis Griffin, food services director, decided to allow each student to take out one drink per meal.

"This is the trial. If this works we will extend it to fruits, cookies" and other items, he said.

Two assaults reported

By Sandy Stone
police reporter

Two unrelated assaults occurred on campus Sunday, campus police reported.

A female JMU student was assaulted early Sunday in back of Logan Hall.

The woman, who was not identified, had left Logan and was walking toward her car about 2:30 a.m. when a man approached her from behind, police said.

The man made obscene remarks to her and followed the woman to her car. When the woman reached the car and opened the car door, the man made more obscene remarks and pushed her, knocking her to the ground.

The man then fled across the parking lot toward the back of Converse Hall, police said.

The woman sustained abrasions to her knees and chin.

The woman could not give a specific description of the man because she never faced him, and said she was trying to ignore him. But she said he was tall with dark hair.

The case was under investigation Wednesday, police said.

This is the third reported assault of a woman here this semester. The other two incidents occurred in Duke Fine Arts Center and Godwin Hall.

A local delivery man was assaulted early Sunday outside of Hanson Hall.

The Four-Star Pizza delivery man was making a delivery to Hanson Hall about 12:55 a.m. when he was approached and attacked by a man, police said.

The man threw the delivery man to the ground, stole a pizza and fled, police said.

The delivery man, who is not a student here, sustained a cut on the back of his head.

The delivery man described the man as white, about 5 feet 8 to 5 feet 10 inches tall and 155 to 170 pounds.

Police said they have suspects in the case, which they were investigating Wednesday.

This is the second reported assault of a delivery man here this semester.

courtfile

Here is a summary of recent action taken in Rockingham County District Court.

► Student Laurie Sanderson, 21, of Cartersville, Va., was found guilty Nov. 18 of public drunkenness.

Sanderson was ordered to perform 20 hours of community service work.

Sanderson was arrested by Harrisonburg police Oct. 13 on Bruce Street.

► Student Jason W. Tate Jr. of Ringgold, Va., had been arrested Nov. 5 and charged with loud noise, but it was decided Nov. 18 that the case will not proceed. A nolle prosequi was placed on the case.

This is not the same as dismissing the case because the prosecutor has the right to reinstate the case within one year.

But the case has been discontinued. It could be reinstated if more evidence is found or a witness comes forward.

Tate was charged because of a party he held at his Harrisonburg residence.

Opus

New band seaches for a sound to call its own

By Brenda Blondo
staff writer

Nothing makes a new undertaking more potentially successful than having the skill to meet a demand. And when the demand is for live, danceable music, and the skill stems from years of experience, the band taking on the challenge should have good odds for success.

The band putting this theory into practice is Opus.

Its five members, including three JMU students, share a total of 32 years experience in various bands, playing music ranging from country to progressive rock.

But when Opus formed in the summer of 1983, the emphasis shifted to a top-40 sound. "To be danceable was our biggest criteria," said 28-year-old vocalist Terry Harmon. "And I think we've succeeded in that, judging from (audience) reaction so far."

Although response has been generally positive when they've played at JM's and Scruples, the band is still too new on the scene to be well known by many students. Yet the band members are satisfied with Opus' progress.

"We've been very lucky for a beginning band," drummer J.T. Fauber, 22, said. "Most bar owners have been pretty good about giving us a chance."

Fauber, a music management major, attributes part of that success to the type of music they play. Although it is not as challenging as less commercial cuts from artists' albums, top-40 material (new and classic rock, as the band prefers to describe it) "is fun to play because of the positive crowd reaction," Fauber said. Songs such as Michael Jackson's "Billie Jean," Genesis' "Abacab," and Beatles and Rolling Stones medleys are almost guaranteed to get the audience up and dancing.

The self-imposed restriction to this genre of music is only temporary, however. Diversification is on the horizon; the band is "on the brink of originals," according to Harmon. Once the band is better established, these new compositions will be heard.

With three band members — Harmon, Cliff Fortney, 31, and lead guitarist Brad Clatterbuck, 28 — already composing original songs, the problem is not lack of material, but rather the absence of a cohesive sound, Clatterbuck said.

The problem may well be a result of the members' dissimilar musical backgrounds. For example, while bass guitarist Jay Schumacher, 26, spent a few years playing folk music, Fortney — currently a psychology major — performed with Happy the Man, a well-known progressive rock band.

The arrival of a distinct "Opus" sound will be a slow process, Harmon said. "We're just taking one baby step at a time."

In the meantime, the band hopes to get more input from audiences about the music they would like to hear, Fauber said.

Opus is also working to improve its stage presence. Because much of

A Closer Look

Phone book

By Charles Taylor
features editor

The one on the left is Vay Saur, an August 1983 communication arts graduate. Beside her is Vicki Barnard, a sophomore art major. Their story is neither dramatic nor spine-tingling. But it never hurts to know these things.

And after all, it's not everyone who gets their picture on the James Madison University phone directory. Vay and Vicki did.

The cover of the 1983-84 telephone directory features the two seated casually in the grass, with Hillcrest looming softly in the background. Above the photo, a diamond anniversary medallion is superimposed with "diamond chips" raining down the cover.

The tale begins in July when Vay was having a mug shot taken for summer dinner theater promotional material. Tommy Thompson, supervisor of photography for JMU, saw her and said that "he liked the way I photographed," Vay recalls. "Then he said he needed a photo for the 75th anniversary phone book." She agreed to pose.

Thompson wanted his subject in something colorful, so she at first dressed in a bright sun dress for the photo session. But fearing the scenario might be a bit too provocative for its purpose, he decided to shoot some more frames with her in a different outfit.

At the same time Vay dashed to change, Vicki was leaving her job in Hillcrest.

"Tommy had been a neighbor of ours (in Port Republic)," Vicki says, "and he saw me walking and said, 'Hey, let me get your picture too.' He thought having two in the picture would be more like campus life. So I just came right over and sat down."

About that time, Vay reappeared. "I came down from changing clothes and there she was." The two didn't know one another.

Thompson says, "The whole thing was basically working through spontaneity. I'm pleased. I've had right many good comments about it."

Thompson also photographically composed the medallion and diamond chips at the top of the cover. The chips were actually pieces of glitter sprinkled on a black background. The sparkle effect was achieved with a cross screen filter over the camera lens.

Months later, after several administrative analyses, the cover was approved by JMU's publications office and sent to the printer.

In mid-November, between 5,000 and 7,000 copies of the book rolled off the presses and into the hands of JMU students and some local businesses. Reactions?

"I haven't seen the book yet," says Vay, now living in Richmond. "I have a copy of the photograph here in my scrapbook."

When she does get a copy, Vay says she won't frame it. "I'll leave it on the coffee table instead. That's more fun."

Vicki "got a bunch of them (phone books). I gave one to my grandparents and I got one to keep for myself to show my kids." She giggles.

Of course the pair admits that their presence could also have influences in the immediate future.

"You never know. Somebody might see that and make me a star or something silly like that. It certainly couldn't hurt," says Vay.

Vicki wonders about some friends' comments. "A lot of people said, 'Do you realize how many people are gonna be drawing on your face?' I hadn't thought about that."

'Big Chill' warms the heart

By States Edwards
staff writer

How rare is the movie that allows its audience to think and enjoy its popcorn too. A movie that doesn't drain one's brain, but gives it a little exercise. A movie that makes us laugh, but doesn't put a problem and its solution on a silver platter and hand it to us. "The Big Chill" is such a movie.

A big chill is what greets the eight college students as they enter the cold real world of the 1960s. They were once special friends, but over the years, their friendships have faded, as have their non-conformist views and "change the world" attitudes. They have drifted apart and, one by one, gently fallen into the establishment.

The movie begins with their reunion 15 years after those rebellious college days. The death of one of their college friends reunites them for a memorable weekend, in which they try once again to find themselves.

The assembled cast is one of the most remarkable in recent years. It's too bad there is no Academy Award category for "best performance by a group," because they would win hands down.

The Ready-For-The-Big-Time Players are: Tom Berenger, Glenn Close, Jeff Goldblum, William Hurt, Kevin Kline, Mary Kay Place, Meg Tilly and Jobeth Williams.

To single out one performance as being better than another would be difficult. All of the actors have impressive credentials and portrayed their characters believably.

One of the most breathtaking scenes is the funeral procession. On a beautiful autumn day, the procession glides through the countryside to Mick Jagger's "You Can't Always Get What You Want."

Yes, the musical score just about steals the show. It plays those songs that every generation has — the ones that everyone knows the words to by compulsion.

How's this for a Who's Who of the 60's: The Rolling Stones, The Rascals, The Beach Boys, Credence Clearwater Revival, Three Dog Night, The Temptations, Smokey Robinson. It's a difficult task not to hum at least one of the tunes after the movie.

Writer/director Lawrence Kasdan has helped create some of the most popular and successful screen entertainment in recent years. His writing abilities are displayed in "Raiders of the Lost Ark," "The Empire Strikes Back," "Return of the Jedi" and "Body Heat," which also served as Kasdan's directorial debut.

The group's conversations are often funny and always contain insight. The characters are so fully developed that the audience actually becomes a member of the group. The talk becomes more candid and open — and thus more intense — as the weekend progresses, but the tension is broken by laughter.

The movie doesn't end with tearful goodbyes and departures. Instead, it ends with the group still together and still enjoying themselves. Their friendships live on, and won't end when they reenter the cold world the next day.

"The Big Chill," with its picturesque scenery, scene-stealing music and down-to-earth characters, will leave you with a warm feeling inside.

Opus

the material is relatively new for the band, Fauber said they "still have to think to play the music, so we're not able to have fun with it." He expects the problem to work itself out during the next several weeks.

The attitude for the future is one of wait and see. "I don't think anyone has delusions of grandeur," Harmon said. "We just want to play music. I think we'll stay together because we're older and more settled down."

Clatterbuck said, "If the band could ever find one direction — if we get into original music everyone agrees on — I'd like to pursue it. Otherwise, everything will run its course."

For the moment, however, the town has one more band to entice students onto the dance floor.

Charles Dickens dinner planned for dining hall

By Tina Beaumont
staff writer

Thanks to a Gibbons Hall cooks' assistant, JMU students may feast on more than traditional exam munchies during that chaotic week.

Food Service will host an additional treat — a "Charles Dickens Dinner" — next Thursday in dining hall one.

The theme originated with cooks' assistant Dan Latta. He approached Food Service dietician Jean Copper with his idea.

"When she read me the menu, it really didn't coincide with the ideas I had for the Charles Dickens dinner," Latta said. The dining hall will serve shish kabobs and stuffed crab Thursday night.

Latta's menu — available to only 250 students in one dining hall — includes roast turkey with apple raisin nut dressing, steamship round of beef in red wine sauce, hot fruit compote, spiced sweet potato pudding and hot mulled cider.

Latta worked in the college library, researching original old English recipes.

Assisted by the dining hall's production manager, Rick Arnold, Latta changed the Old English menu slightly for financial reasons, but the decorations and mood will be similar. He described lavish garlands, greenery, wreaths, candlelit tables and a live tree with Old English decorations.

Jack Hamrick, dining hall service manager, said entertainment from the music department was planned, but arrangements had not been finalized.

The highlight of the preparation for Latta will be constructing an authentic German gingerbread house. The base will be gingerbread cookie, decorated with gum drop and sugar-mold candies.

"We want to do something a little different — a little out of the ordinary for students," Latta said.

He is excited about the dinner, and his enthusiasm will not stop with this one. His other suggestions will include a Mardi Gras dinner and a "Winter Wonderland" theme.

"I have a whole lot of ideas," he said. "I don't know how many will be used, but I plan on submitting as many as I can come up with."

Reservations will be taken in the clerk's office at dining hall entrance two and three. Students with a steakhouse reservation remaining on their contract may use their ID for this dinner. Cost for guests is $5.

Reservations are not yet being accepted, but information regarding them will soon be published in the dining hall Digest.

JMU Invitational

Dukes bring 3-2 record into tournament

By Steve Lockard
sports editor

After escaping from Greenville, S.C. Tuesday night with a 53-45 victory over Furman University, the JMU basketball team will return to the friendly confines of the Convocation Center this weekend to host the JMU Invitational Tournament.

Joining the Dukes, now 3-2, are Campbell University, Fairleigh Dickinson University and Northern Illinois University.

JMU will play the tournament's first game when the Dukes take on Campbell at 7 p.m. Friday. Fairleigh Dickinson and Northern Illinois will meet at 9 p.m. The consolation game will start at 7 p.m. Saturday and the finals are scheduled for 9 p.m.

The weekend's action should be a good opportunity for the Dukes to put some breathing room between themselves and the .500 mark. JMU was able to get past that mark Tuesday night with their victory over Furman, but that didn't come easily.

After jumping out to a 18-9 lead against the Paladins, JMU failed to score in the final 5:40 of the first half and trailed 21-18 at the intermission.

The lead changed hands eight times in the first 12 minutes of the second half. Furman took its biggest lead, 38-35, with about seven minutes left in the game, but an 8-0 JMU spurt gave the Dukes a 43-38 lead and they never trailed again.

But Furman got close. Furman took advantage of a couple of JMU turnovers to tie the game at 43-43, but Derek Steele hit two free throws with 2:46 left to put JMU up for good, 45-43.

JMU hit eight of 10 free throws down the stretch to secure the win — the Dukes' first road victory of the season.

"We're learning how to win on the road, how to handle a crowd," said JMU coach Lou Campanelli. "We showed good composure at University Hall (in JMU's 53-50 loss at Virginia Saturday night) the other night, and I think it carried over to this game."

What didn't carry over from the Virginia game was the performance of Steele. After a 3-for-10 shooting performance against the Cavaliers, the senior captain rebounded with 11 points to lead JMU at Furman. Steele also had three assists and three rebounds for the Dukes who committed just eight turnovers.

Joining Steele in double figures was junior forward Jimmy Masloff. Masloff was four for six from the field and two for three from the foul line for 10 points. He also pulled down a career-high eight rebounds.

Also turning in strong performances for JMU were senior center Keith Bradley and sophomore forward Todd Banks.

Bradley came off the bench to contribute nine points — seven in the second half — and grab three rebounds in 25 minutes of action. Banks, playing a career-high 17 minutes, scored six second-half points and finished the contest with five rebounds.

The play of Bradley and Banks helped make up for the loss of star-

Gentile leads wrestlers as dual matches begin

Sophomore Tony Gentile leads a balanced, young JMU wrestling team into its first dual match of the season this weekend.

Mason University, Howard University and Salisbury State College in a quadrangular meet Saturday.

JMU competed last weekend in the Sheridan Wrestling Tournament at Lehigh University in Bethlehem, Pa. The squad finished eighth among eight teams in what head coach Dick Besnier called one of the two top tournaments on the East Coast.

The eight-team field consisted of six teams ranked among the top 25 nationally by "Amateur Wrestling News." North Carolina State took the tournament's team honors.

Besnier praised his team for a good performance in a tough tournament.

The highlight of the tournament for JMU was the performance of Gentile. Gentile, a freshman All-American last season, defeated two nationally-ranked opponents in route to winning the 150-pound weight class championship.

Gentile (11-2) defeated Wade

Potter of Lock Haven, who was ranked seventh nationally by "National Mat News". The 5-4 semifinal victory avenged an earlier loss to Potter. In the final, Gentile beat Bloomsburg's Tom Fiorvanti, 6-4. Fiorvanti was ranked 14th by "Amateur Wrestling News".

Gentile became the first JMU wrestler to win a title at the Lehigh tournament.

"He (Gentile) is a very gifted athlete," Besnier said. "He's hard-nosed, has the tenacity and the physical skills. Gentile is in a class all by himself."

Besnier said Gentile is doing all the right things on the mat. He added that although he is doing well right now, Gentile will wrestle better.

In addition to the JMU Takedown Tournament, the Dukes have competed in three tournaments so far this season, and Besnier said each tournament has been increasingly tougher.

"We have tried to wrestle in a better tournament every time we wrestle," Besnier said. "It helps to make you better when you wrestle better people."

Besnier will be taking a squad into this weekend's quad meet that he said is a balanced one, with no gaping holes and more depth.

The Dukes will actually be competing in three dual matches as they wrestle each of the schools individually.

Besnier expects to do well in the tournament and said that the Dukes should finish 3-0.

Besnier commented that the George Mason and Howard matches are important ones because both are regional opponents.

He added that George Mason should be the team for the Dukes to watch out for. "They've never beaten us and I'm sure they'd like to."

"What we are doing this semester is to try to get ready for next semester," Besnier said. "In January, there's all the dual meets and that's where all the marbles are."

ting forward Greg Mosten, who spent most of the game on the bench with foul trouble. Mosten eventually fouled out with two points and two rebounds in 18 minutes.

But even without the 6-foot-7 Mosten, JMU was still able to out-rebound Furman 36-31 and contain the Paladins' 6-foot-9 George Singleton to four points — 15 below his season average.

"Overall, our defense did a good job," said Campanelli, whose team held Furman to 33 percent (17 of 51) shooting for the game. "Singleton was a concern for us. I'm pleased with the way we contained him."

Against Campbell (2-1) Friday, JMU will have to contain 6-foot-7 freshman forward Clarence Grier, who scores 17.3 points per game. Senior forward Larry Canady and Andrea McGee also average in double figures for the Camels.

In the other first round game, Fairleigh Dickinson (3-2) — a 65-62 winner over JMU last season — puts a two-game win streak on the line against Northern Illinois.

FDU senior guard Marcus Gaither needs just 14 points to become the Knights' all-time leading scorer. The 6-foot-5 Gaither is averaging 15.8 points, 5.4 rebounds and 5.0 assists per game this season.

Forward Larry Hampton leads the Knights in scoring with a 18.0 average and Mike Payne's seven rebounds per game is best on the team.

Northern Illinois is 0-1 going into last night's game with Wisconsin. The Huskies, who lost their season-opener to DePaul 73-58, is led by All-America candidate Tim Dillion. The 6-foot-9 Dillion scored 19 points and had seven rebounds against DePaul.

JMU Notes — Through five games, Derek Steele leads the Dukes is scoring with an 11.0 average. Eric Esch is averaging a team-high 7.2 rebounds.

JMU plans for American's fast breaking style

Dukes' offense looking to quicken pace

By Paul Bergeron
staff writer

JMU women's basketball team plans to have its up-tempo offense in high gear tonight against American University at 7:30 p.m. here.

Two defeats at the George Washington Invitational last weekend evened the Dukes record at 2-2.

While a fast-paced offense was the key to the two season-opening victories, the Dukes offense sputtered at GWU.

"Against Howard and George Mason we played a half-court offense for 40 minutes and that's not the type of game I want us to play," said JMU coach Shelia Moorman. "We'll need to pick up our offense against American."

"Our players were not making the proper outlet passes, and that slowed our attack we might have had."

But an up-tempo offense shouldn't be too difficult to generate tonight according to Moorman as she expects the Eagles to be running a similar attack.

"American doesn't have a dominating center," she said. "Their line up is made of players 5-8 to 6-0 who love to play a full court game. They'll spread out on defense and apply full court pressure. There will be a lot of action in the game."

American is led by 5-foot-10 Darci Smith and 5-foot-11 Kathy Hughes — both guards.

"They have an advantage at height in the guard position, but overall we have a taller team," Moorman said.

According to Moorman, the starting five for JMU is not yet set.

"We are still looking for five players who can play consistently for the whole game," she said. "Our players worked well together for most of the game, but we still don't have the right combination for those do or die situations."

The do or die situations Moorman spoke of came at the end of both losses. "We had leads in both games, but couldn't hold them. Ineffectiveness at the end of the game is a sign of a young team, which we are. With some experience, we hope to become a team able to come from behind, instead of one that loses leads."

'We still don't have the right combination.'

Sue Manelski, Michelle James and freshman Julie Franken have been particularly impressive so far according to Moorman. Malenski is leading the team in scoring with 16.8 points per game. James leads the team in rebounding with 13.3. Franken, 15.5 points and 10 rebounds per game, is second in both categories.

Franken has helped out a lot at low post, filling in for the injured Deana Meadows.

"We'd like to get Deana Meadows back so Julie can play her natural position, power forward. Right now, she and Erin Mahony have filled in very well," Moorman said.

Meadows, who re-injured her foot in a scrimmage before the season, is scheduled to see action again on Dec. 17 against Davis & Elkins.

American holds a 4-1 edge in the series against JMU, including a 68-66 win last year. The Dukes next game is Saturday at East Carolina.

Skins will be better in battle of the best

By Rhett Butler
staff columnist

There are three big games in the NFL this weekend, the biggest of which is Washington at Dallas.

But the Pittsburgh-N.Y. Jets and San Francisco-Buffalo games also will have bearing on the playoffs.

Pittsburgh (plus 2) at New York

Pittsburgh will have Terry Bradshaw at quarterback for the first time this year, and it's just in time. The Steelers have looked pathetic in the last three weeks, averaging under 10 points per game.

The Jets have been unpredictable all year, but they've won three in a row. If the Jets can score 20 points, they should win. $50 on the Jets.

San Francisco (minus 1) at Buffalo

The Bills has the third best defense in the league. They could also have the Buffalo weather on their side.

Still, San Francisco is the better team. If the weather's good the 49ers could win big. $50 on San Francisco.

Washington (plus 2½) at Dallas

This is the game of the year. The Redskins are deep at every position and they're playing their best football of the year. The Cowboys are well coached and play great at home.

But the Skins are the best team on the road in football, and they are the winningest team against the spread in the last 30 games. The Redskins incredible turnover ratio (plus 40) gives them an edge in any game. Every time I've bet against them this year I've been wrong . . . $300 on Washington.

The college bowl games are played over Christmas and there are two undefeated teams — top-ranked Nebraska and second-ranked Texas — who think they should be national champions.

Orange Bowl: Nebraska (minus 12½) vs. Miami

The Huskers have looked unstoppable this year. Tailback Mike Rozier hasn't just looked that way, he has been unstoppable. They may win this game and become national champs, but I don't think they'll beat a Howard Schnellenberger team by 12 points. $150 on Miami.

Cotton Bowl: Texas (minus 6) vs. Georgia

Texas proved it can do a lot of different things when it inserted a third-string quarterback to liven up the passing game in a 45-13 win over Texas A&M earlier this year.

Georgia has played only two of the nation's top teams. The Bulldogs tied Clemson and lost to Auburn. $150 on Texas.

Sugar Bowl: Auburn (minus 3) vs. Michigan

This should be a good game. Michigan has a rushing attack nearly as potent as Auburn's. In addition, Michigan has one of the best defenses in the country.

Nevertheless, teams better than the Wolverines couldn't beat Auburn. Tiger running back Bo Jackson averages about eight yards every time he carries the ball. The Tigers still think they've got a shot at number one. $50 on Auburn.

Rose Bowl: Illinois (minus 4½) vs. UCLA

Jack Trudeau's passing and one of the toughest defensive lines in college give the Illini the edge. Illinois beat Michigan, Ohio State and Iowa this season.

UCLA started the season 0-3-1. The Bruins won six of seven after that, but the teams they beat had a combined record of 28-36-3. UCLA didn't look much like a bowl team. $75 on Illinois.

Sun Bowl: SMU (minus 5½) vs. Alabama

Southern Methodist really should be in a bigger bowl game. They lost one game all year — 15-12 to Texas. Alabama has a high-powered offense, but SMU's defense is great.

The Mustangs will be mad they aren't in a big game. Look for them to take it out on the Crimson Tide. $50 on SMU.

Season's record	40-28
Last week's results	minus $100
Season's total	plus $260
Money on hand	$760

20/20 hindsight A semester review

Here's the highlights of the almost-gone semester:

► Carrier leaving? — University President Ronald Carrier is one of the top three candidates for the position of chancellor at the University of Arkansas-Fayetteville.

Carrier has said he will decide this week whether to take the job if it is offered to him, but he will be going to Fayetteville Monday for an interview . . .

► Merit pay conflict unresolved

— The names of merit pay recipients were published within each department this year, but the Faculty Senate voted to have the names of merit pay recipients published in the JMU News. However, Fred Hilton, assistant to the vice president for university relations, rejected that proposal, calling merit pay a personnel matter.

The Faculty Senate then voted to publish the names in their meeting minutes, but a state assistant attorney general said that might also violate the Virginia Privacy and Protection Act. President Carrier said the university would follow that opinion.

► Budget crisis — Governor Robb ordered all state agencies to cut their budgets an additional 1.5 percent, but prohibited universities from making up the difference by raising tuition.

Carrier says the governor's actions threaten the quality of a JMU education.

► Greek housing plan approved

— The JMU Board of Visitors passed a scaled-down plan for a Greek housing complex to be built across Interstate 81.

The original plan called for a $9 million complex with 20 units housing 40 people each. The approved plan contains 22 units housing 30 people each.

► Graduation changes? — After last spring's fiasco, the administration has been studying a satellite format in which each of the five schools would hold its own ceremony.

Even if the format isn't changed, some traditions may. An ad hoc committee studying changes might eliminate the time-consuming tradition of shaking President Carrier's hand. But the SGA has supported keeping the tradition, as well as the addition of a guest speaker.

The Faculty Senate has requested that alcohol be prohibited from the ceremony.

World stability would cure 'epidemic'

I have found this semester to be one of the most politically controversial times of my life. As I proceeded through the past months I found myself increasingly aware that world stability seemed to be, and still seems to be, at an all time low.

Cubans are in South America, Afghanists are trying to wrest the heavy Russian hand from their country. We have armed forces fighting and dying in Lebanon and Grenada. And the threat of a nuclear holocaust hangs over our heads, promising to end the world in a few short hours.

Many times I found myself trying to interpret and rationalize these events. Could the present instability escalate to wars as terrifying as World Wars I and II? As brutal as Vietnam or as relentless as the Thirty Years' War in the Holy Land?

Many prophesize the next war will be the end of the human race as we know it. How can we prevent this from happening?

The most feasible answer is simply the promotion and preservation of world stability. The more stable our world becomes, the greater the chance for peace.

Is this hope for peace and stability a realistic one with more than 40 wars raging around our world? I believe so, but we must look at war with a different attitude. In his book Why Nations Go to War, John G. Stoessinger compares war to a sickness or epidemic. He says the eradication of this epidemic will be no easy task: "No murderous epidemic has ever been conquered without exposure, pain, and danger, or by ignoring the bacilli."

If we truly want world peace we must be willing to commit ourselves to stopping those who are promoting instability. Russia and her close allies are bent on promoting revolution world-wide. This is part of their policy. This is fact.

We must do all we can to discourage them from carrying out this policy which threatens to destroy us. Sadly, what this really means is that at times we must use force equal to that which opposes us. More specifically men must die for peace.

The fact that good men must die so that others may live in peace is the most gross injustice of war, and a horror hard to rationalize.

The present stand the United States takes promotes world stability. We have committed ourselves to stability in the Middle East and South America and we have had men die in these areas.

Let us not let them die for nothing. We must stand fast and continue to work for peace in these and all parts of the world so that one day we can live in peace. As many have stated, there is no road to peace: peace is the road. We must build this road at all costs; our future and the future of generations to come depends upon it.

Mike Page is a junior majoring in political science and public administration.

Enough is enough!

Columnist a 'leech'

To the editor:

Enough is enough! I've been reading Pat Plummer's articles since the beginning of this semester. Not one article has been printed in which Plummer didn't have his hand out begging the government for something else to be given to him on a silver platter and in the Dec. 1 issue of The Breeze, it's financial aid.

Admittedly, a valid case was offered for those who are religiously bound, but, I fear, that is not the case with Plummer. If your government gives you a loan, surely, you should put up a little collateral as you would for any other loan.

Our government asks you to sign a paper which states you will fight for the freedom of our country. If you don't want to fight, you have no right to live in the United States nor should his family.

I know if I were to go to war I surely wouldn't want to protect the likes of Plummer and company. He is a festering coward and leech who has directly made a mockery of everyone who has died for our country.

As far as I am concerned, I would deny him any funds on the grounds of his previous public statements. Why should our government support anyone if they aren't willing to support it in return?

Breeze called irresponsible

To the editor:

I am amazed at the irresponsibility reflected in The Breeze's Dec. 1 editorial.

I admit I love the spectacle of hundreds of rolls of toilet paper flying through the air simultaneously just as much if not more than the next person and I was disappointed when I read that the practice was discouraged due to the alleged health hazard it imposed on spectators at the games.

However, I think the fact that the majority of students at JMU complied with the request that toilet paper not be thrown at future games, instead of selfishly doing it anyway, has a lot to say about the maturity of the student body...

...Attitudes such as those espoused by the editors of The Breeze are hardly the kind that should be condoned by law-abiding citizens...

Frank M. Higgins
sophomore
communication arts

...When students have at last responded to administrative wishes in a responsible way, it is disappointing to see The Breeze supporting irresponsible behavior...

The article's implication was that throwing toilet paper, despite the wishes of the administration, is a proper avenue of contestation. This is an unfortunate error in judgment.

Letters to the editor are a proper avenue. Complaints to the Sports Information Office are a proper avenue...

...While it is uncertain why the student body did not exhibit its usual rebellious spirit, it is refreshing, for whatever reasons, to see students responding responsibly to the administration.

Throwing toilet paper may reflect the "awesome" JMU spirit, but that spirit may be communicated just as well in safer, more responsible ways. I commend my peers for their quasi-boycott of white tissue.

Registration not hassle-free

To the editor

This letter is a verbal response to the post-registration editorial cartoon in the Nov. 21 issue of The Breeze.

I believe the "syndrome" depicted is a fair representation of the conditions of some students after the infamous registration period. I can certainly empathize with post-registration blues!

As history indicates, registration isn't a hassle-free process. However, the solution to this problem isn't a remedy for the "post-registration syndrome" but rather an alteration in the actual process to alleviate some of the causes that lead to the frustration.

As a result of some research done for my small group project, I have discovered a fairly simplistic solution suggested by Dr. Reubush, Director of Admissions and Records. It consists of a two-day add-drop period at the end of registration that would allow for schedule adjustments, course openings, and shorter lines during add-drop in January.

Other colleges and universities such as William and Mary and Virginia Tech use additional days after the initial registration period to adjust schedules. The adoption of an extra add-drop period would help improve registration in several ways.

First, it would benefit students by giving them more time and opportunity to finalize a schedule that adequately suits their needs.

Secondly, classes would be more settled during the first two weeks of the new semester since fewer students would have to wait in the second add-drop line.

Third and most importantly, it could lessen or eliminate the increasingly more common "post-registration syndrome."

Marines attacked again; four killed by PLO bomb

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Militia gunners poured heavy machine-gun fire at the U.S. Marine base at Beirut airport Tuesday while a PLO bomb killed four and wounded 46 in Jerusalem.

No U.S. casualties were reported in the machine-gun attack, the first on the American contingent of the multinational peacekeeping force since an artillery barrage killed eight Marines and wounded two Sunday.

The Marines at the airport responded to the machine-gun bursts with fire from tank guns and anti-tank weapons. The fire came from an area controlled by Druse and Shiite militias.

The PLO bomb blew apart a bus stopped at a traffic light in the Jewish section of Jerusalem.

It was the bloodiest attack on civilians in Israel since Israeli forces invaded Lebanon 18 months ago in an attempt to smash the Palestinian Liberation Organization.

It was also the worst terrorist attack in Jerusalem in more than five years.

The PLO in Tripoli claimed responsibility, saying, "This operation comes to escalate the actions of the Palestinian revolution against the Israeli occupiers."

In Tripoli, PLO loyalists were reported ready to evacuate the Lebanese port city in several days.

Czech students protest missiles

VIENNA, Austria — Czechoslovakian students have started a petition campaign against the stationing of new Soviet nuclear missiles in their country, an emigre source said Tuesday.

Petitions are being circulated in Brno, about 124 miles southeast of Prague, and other cities. The text of the petition and the number of signatures were not known.

Czechoslovakia and East Germany are members of the Soviet-led, seven-nation Warsaw Pact military alliance. The two countries have agreed to the placing of the new missiles on their soil in response to NATO's deployment of Pershing 2 and cruise missiles in Western Europe.

Kremlin officials hold news conference

MOSCOW — Top Kremlin officials Monday rejected Western "wishful thinking" that the Soviets might return to intermediate-range missile talks and hinted that strategic arms talks are headed toward a similar stalemate.

The Soviets, at a rare news conference for foreign and Soviet reporters, also reaffirmed Moscow's intention to match the new U.S. medium-range missiles in Europe with Soviet submarine missiles off the American coast.

The Soviets also denounced the U.S. air strikes on Syrian positions in Lebanon, saying Moscow will support those fighting "Israeli and American aggression."

Death row inmate dies of heart attack

RICHMOND — Manuel Quintana, a Virginia death row inmate who refused a $735,000 heart operation at state expense, died Tuesday from a heart-related illness, according to a state Department of Corrections spokesman.

Quintana, 30, had been convicted in Arlington County in 1981 of beating a 72-year-old woman to death with a hammer during a robbery.

Quintana, a native of Cuba, suffered two heart attacks earlier this year but refused a triple-bypass operation that might have prolonged his life.

His scheduled Aug. 18 execution date had been postponed pending appeals.

"To my knowledge, not certainly in recent time, has there been a death row inmate who died before his execution date," said Department of Corrections spokesman Wayne Farrar.

Robb endorses Glenn

ALEXANDRIA — Gov. Charles Robb endorsed Sen. John Glenn for president Monday, but conceded his nomination and election "will be a bit of an uphill battle."

Robb endorsed Glenn at a news conference, declaring the Ohio Democrat is "clearly the right man for a very important period in our history."

Public opinion will not set rates, says chairman

RICHMOND — The law — not public opinion — will determine whether Virginia consumers bear the expense of a $650 million utility construction writeoff, the chairman of the State Corporation Commission said Tuesday.

Bear killed in Charlottesville

CHARLOTTESVILLE — Police shot and killed a 200-pound black bear after failing to herd the animal outside the city and back to the foothills of the Blue Ridge Mountains.

Bowen said attempts to steer the bear out of Charlottesville had almost succeeded when the animal was distracted by some dogs. The bear was shot as it wandered near the University of Virginia.

A bear was also spotted last week on the campus of James Madison University.

Bikers help deliver toys for needy kids

LOS ANGELES — These "Santa Clauses" wore black leather jackets and rode motorcycles, but they still helped deliver more than 20,000 toys for needy children.

Hundreds of members of an association of Southern California biker clubs made their 11th annual Toy Run to the Los Angeles Sports Arena on Sunday, covering its floor with a mountain of toys.

Reagan names four to civil rights commission

WASHINGTON — President Reagan named four people to the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights Tuesday.

But Reagan dropped one member of the commission, Mary Louise Smith. Smith is a moderate Republican whose reappointment Democrats said was supposed to be part of a compromise that allowed the panel to remain in existence.

Under legislation signed Nov. 30, the president appoints four commission members and Congress names the other four. That legislation revived the commission, which had expired under an earlier law.

Tornadoes, floods strike Deep South

One person was killed, houses were torn from foundations, sleeping people were tossed into the streets and barns were reduced to matchsticks as tornadoes and floods hit the Deep South Tuesday.

Sections of Selma, Ala., were leveled. A housing project and college dormitory were smashed.

In La Place, La., 100 people were left homeless.

Mondale favored for NOW support

WASHINGTON — Former Vice President Walter Mondale is favored to win the formal presidential endorsement from the National Organization for Women this weekend.

But California Sen. Alan Cranston is putting up an effective fight for the nomination, NOW officials said.

Ohio Sen. John Glenn's chances for NOW's backing in the Democratic presidential race evaporated with his refusal to back federal homosexual rights legislation.

Winning the endorsement of the 250,000-member organization could mean the votes of millions of women in the 1984 elections.

Giant panda seriously ill

WASHINGTON — Ling-Ling, a giant panda at the National Zoo, is seriously ill with kidney problems and her prognosis for recovery is poor, a zoo official said Tuesday.

Robert Hoag, special assistant to the zoo director, said Ling-Ling is suffering from kidney dysfunction and severe anemia.

Accidental bombing blamed on computer

SANTA ANA, Calif. — The accidental bombing of a 40-member Marine platoon during a summer exercise was caused by a miscoded computer, officials said Tuesday.
