

Muted Colors Hamlet Motif

The Barter Theater will present Hamlet in Wilson Auditorium, Saturday, March 19 at 8 p.m. Claudius, King of Denmark, will be played by Frederic Warriner, who is in his third year with Robert Porterfield's company. Gertrude, Queen of Denmark and mother of Hamlet, will be portrayed by Josephine Parker already famous to radio audiences. Hume Cronyn, known to many for his character roles in the movies, will have the title role of Hamlet, Prince of Denmark and nephew of the present king. Ophelia will be portrayed by Gerry Jedd, who has been in subsequent productions of the Barter Theater. Some of the other characters are: Polonius, Leo Chalzel; Laertes, James Andrews; Horatio, Ray Boyle; Rosencrantz, Mell Turner, and Guildenstern, Ernest Borgnine.

This is the Barter Theater's 200th production in its sixteen-year history. The costumes for the play were designed by Jed Mace, of Dallas, nationally known interior decorator and costume director for the Dallas Theatre. He has employed the muted colors of the Renaissance for this lusty Shakespearean masterpiece. Mace carries out the motifs of color for each character; Hamlet appears in varying shades of blue, Claudius and Gertrude in red, and Polonius, Laertes, and Ophelia in purple.

All students who will return to the college next fall will register for their classes during the period April 4 to April 30. Students enrolling in summer school will make out their schedule sheets at the same time.

Details and instructions for the registration will be given in next week's Breeze.

Fensterwald To Feature "Carmen" Aria Tonight

The aria, Sequidilla, from George Bizet's "Carmen" will highlight the Senior Recital of Myra Fensterwald, mezzo soprano, this evening in Wilson Auditorium.

Accompanied by Doris Davis, Myra will open her program with a group of songs by Johannes Brahms:

Sapphic Ode, The Vain Suit, Cradle-Song, and Love Lasts for Aye.

Following the Carmen aria, and as her concluding group, the student artist, a pupil of Miss Edythe Schneider, will sing the following selections: Tally-Ho by Leoni; Black Roses by Sibelius; Time, You Old Gypsy Man, by Besley; The Dreamy Lake by Griffes; Nuffin' Plus Nuffin' by Schroeder, and The Bird of the Wilderness by Horsman.

Assisting with the recital, Mary Lester, pianist, will play an etude, a waltz and an impromptu by Frederic Chopin. Mary and Doris are pupils of Miss Elizabeth Harris.

The program will begin at 8:00 o'clock this evening.

K D P To Present Dr. D. A. Prescott

Kappa Delta Pi will present Dr. Daniel A. Prescott, director of the Institute for Child Study at the University of Maryland as the assembly speaker March 23. Dr. Prescott will speak on "Two Months Behind the Iron Curtain". He will include his experiences in Czechoslovakia and the communist conquest of a country and its educational system.

Last summer Dr. Prescott made two separate trips to Europe; the first was a three month tour of duty in Germany as expert consultant on teacher-education for the Military Government in Berlin, Wuertemberg-Baden, and Hesse. The second trip was for UNESCO and took him to Podesbrady, Czechoslovakia, where he was a staff member on the International Workshop Seminar on Childhood Education.

Accompanying Dr. Prescott will be Mrs. Ann Wagner from Stuttgart, Germany, and Birger Myksvoll, a Norwegian. These two are graduate students at the University of Maryland. Dr. Prescott states that both are extremely interested in how teachers are educated in the United States and "are looking forward very much to seeing your college."

Kiwanis Present Variety Show

The Harrisonburg Kiwanis club will sponsor a fast-moving Variety Show presented by the Men Students of Madison College on Thursday, March 31, in Wilson Auditorium at 8:00 p.m. The public is cordially invited to attend. Admission will be 75 cents plus tax. The Kiwanis proceeds will be placed in the Underprivileged Children's Fund of the club.

Clyde Shorts and Roy Erickson will represent the local Kiwanis Club in the sponsorship of this two-hour, entertaining Variety Show. John Byrd, Treasurer of the Club, is ticket chairman. Tickets may be purchased from Mr. Byrd at The National Bank; at the Business Office at Madison College; or from any member of the Kiwanis Club. Joe Brown is in charge of the quiz show prizes. Dr. S. J. Turille, President of the club, will handle publicity for the show.

COFFMAN'S FATHER DIES

Mrs. F. Wilmer Coffman, a member of the Madison College faculty in the department of business education, has been in Wilmington, California, this week, attending the funeral of her father, Mr. E. B. Lyons.

NOTICE

The administration has announced that there will be no classes the third and fourth periods on Saturday, March 26.

Conradi Will Give Concert On Friday

Austin Conradi, artist pianist and faculty member of the Peabody Conservatory of Music, will give a piano concert in Wilson Auditorium, Madison College, Friday, March 25 at 8 p.m.

Mr. Conradi has given many concerts throughout the United States and has appeared as soloist with a number of the country's leading symphony orchestras including the National Symphony Orchestra.

He is noted for his outstanding artistry as teacher as well as performer of the piano. He has taught at the Curtis Institute of Music in Philadelphia, and for many years at the Chautauqua summer school. He also conducts Master Classes in piano at the Peabody Conservatory and at various colleges during the summer.

The program of the concert will be: "Now Comes the Gentiles' Saviour" by Bach, "Sonata in F minor" by Beethoven, "Forest Scenes" by Schumann, "Sonata in B flat minor" by Chopin.

This program will be the first of events in connection with Homecoming Weekend at Madison. There will be no charge of admission to holders of Lyceum tickets. This concert will be followed by the Madison Modern Dance Concert.

GERMAN DANCE DATE NEARS

We're one week closer to the annual German club dance which is scheduled for April 2. Don't forget to buy your bids as soon as they're put on sale, reminds Jean Tysinger, president.

BREAKFAST FOR 12 PLEDGES

Pi Omega Pi initiated twelve new members in a pledge service held in the Day Students room Tuesday morning March 15 at seven o'clock. The pledge service was followed by a breakfast in the tearoom. Those pledged were: Dorothy Deane, Kathryn Hale, Edna Lee King, Mary Mears, Ruth Banner, Susan Kaylor, Virginia McNulty, Patricia Newton, Wesley L. Caracofe, Raymond Horn, Florence Perkinson, and Miss Grace Herr.

Study The Candidates!

Don't forget to cast your vote at the minor elections on Tuesday!

Each one of these important posts should be filled by the girl who is best qualified for the task. Study the two candidates for each job! Which is the more capable worker....the one on whom the other officers and members of her organization may depend....the one who keeps on a job once begun?

The girls elected to these twelve so-called "minor" offices will be important cogs in the wheels which roll on campus next year, so give your selection some thought.

And don't forget to vote on Tuesday!

Some Nonsense For The Students Or Foolish, Follow These And Fail

by Mary Virginia Warren

We at Madison realize that although the faculty has besieged us with numerous and varied rules, most of them too horrible to mention, they were primarily meant to be broken. Feeling that the student body needs some sort of guidance, I have taken it upon myself to draw up a final and conclusive set of rules.

After due consideration and much hesitance, they are here printed:

1. You shall not roll dice in the presence of any member of the faculty. (They might want to get into the game.)

2. Don't be a piker. Skip two classes instead of one. The teacher will never know.

3. You shall not write notes in class. Whisper... it saves time and paper and does not annoy the teacher as much as the noise of the pencil on the desk. If you happen to have a stage whisper, so much the better.

4. You may linger in the halls as long as you desire. When you enter the classroom late, it breaks the monotony and affords the teacher a chance to glare at someone besides the sleepers.

5. Never, never return library books. Mr. McMullan might think you didn't enjoy it. However, if you find your library overflowing, just tear out the desired pages and burn the rest under your roommates bed.

6. You shall always slam the doors unmercifully behind you and above all, never, never hold the door open for anyone. I mean, what would you think if you opened a door and there was no one squashed in it?

7. When you enter a class room and get into your seat, prop your feet up on a chair or another desk and go to sleep. The teachers like for you to be as comfortable as possible and get as much sleep as you can, so you'll keep that "school-girl" complexion.

8. Make your class rooms your beauty parlors so that you may look as pretty as possible going down the halls between classes.

9. Never hand in your homework until two weeks late. It creates a better impression and brings the paper to the attention of the instructor.

This method also shows the teacher the amount of concentration and effort spent upon the paper.

10. Last but not least, never let the teachers think that they know any more than you do. It might ruin their devastating personalities.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Dear Editor,

This is a reply to last week's letter to the editor which comments on the American way of life—quote: "In today's way of life a person attending a theatre or public lecture has a right to get up and walk out if he does not like what is being done." The writer intimated that we should get up and walk out if an assembly speaker did not please us. This may be the writer's way of life, but we hope it is not the American way, for it smacks of the uncouth, the barbaric and the uncivilized. Modern civilization and modern culture, in my opinion, are responsible freedom with discipline.

Unless one is a hermit, he cannot be completely uninhibited. As long as one lives in a social group he must observe a certain amount of self-discipline and self-restraint. Let us remind the writer of certain rules of ordinary decency practiced by most Americans, such as thoughtfulness of others, respect for others' opinions, and courtesy to guests. Would a host leave his dinner table just because he was displeased or bored by remarks made by a guest? Even though our assembly speakers are sometimes uninteresting, they have been invited to be here and we owe them the courtesy of quiet attention.

On the whole, we think the assembly committee has made wise selections in the Wednesday programs, but this committee is limited in funds and sometimes has to take what is available for the money. Then, too, people who have won fame and renown in certain fields are not always good speakers; the assembly committee often has to make a choice based upon the speaker's reputation and not upon a personal hearing. Furthermore, the type of program which might appeal to one person might not suit another person at all. Audience response does not always indicate the best program either; for, if that were true, the "hats and headress" entertainment which we had some time ago would probably rate higher than any other program we have had this year. We believe there are certain things that we have to do every day which we may not choose to do, but which we do because group living makes them compulsory. We still believe that the American way of life is disciplined democracy.

FUN FOR ALL

When They Come Home

Next week-end is homecoming for Madison's alumnae. Let's make them feel they've really come home.

Sometimes it's rather disturbing to have to give up one's room for a whole week-end, to eat at irregular hours and in a different dining hall, and to be given, shall we say, a second-hand place in campus life for a day. But don't we owe it to them? Someday in the near future each of us will also be an alumna of Madison and we'll want to be appreciated on campus again.

We're proud to show the older Madison students what Madison is like today, so let's let them know we are. In the true Madison spirit we'll welcome our alumnae as again they come home!

Letters To The Editor

Dear Editor,

In reply to last week's letter, I should like to say that we are living in a pretty sorry world if we have reached the place that politeness is inessential in any situation, whether it be in class, on the street, or in assembly.

Mr. Wells states that if the assembly programs were better, then the students would demonstrate "gracious living" in return. Wednesday the Glee club presented an excellent program, and Wednesday a good part of the audience displayed "movie behavior".

Some of us were particularly embarrassed at the manners of the students this week. The seventh grade from the high school had come over to enjoy the program and had been cautioned to be at their best, so that the college students could see that they, too, knew how to behave. Instead of our setting an example for them, they showed us how to act. And this is what they observed the students in the balcony doing... throwing nuts and pencils, talking and laughing outloud, hitting one another over the head, walking around etc. The seventh grade, by the way, remained quiet and attentive throughout the hour.

Our college gives us the best programs that it can afford on its limited budget. These people may not be famous orators, but all of them at least have a message for us. The college offers everything that we should learn if the student has the open mind and the disposition to learn... and let us please distinguish between being entertained and being taught. Are some of us such adolescents that we can enjoy nothing without being entertained? But whether we are interested or not, we should at least be courteous enough not to rob others of the opportunity to learn.

One thing more... What has happened to our monitors and Junior Marshals?

—Roberta Gravely

SHOWGOER

by Frances Connock

Walt Disney's heartwarming "So Dear to My Heart" will be at the Virginia Theater Sunday through Thursday next week. It is a simple, homey story of Indiana rural life a generation ago as seen through the eyes of an adolescent boy, Jeremiah Kincaid, his playmates and adult friends. Featured in the movie are current hits as "So Dear to My Heart" and "Lavender Blue".

Glenn Ford and Terry Moore are co-starred in "The Return of October" appearing at the State Theater Sunday through Wednesday. This is the beguiling tale of a young girl who starts to wonder whether October, a race-horse, resembles her late Uncle Willie. Her "hallucination" so fascinates a handsome professor of psychology that he writes a book about it. The following antics provide a light-hearted entertainment for everyone.

Bud Abbott and Lou Costello yearn to become radio writers in their comedy, "Who Done It?" When they attend the broadcast of a mystery show, murder attends also. Posing as members of the police force, they do all right until the real detective squad puts in its appearance. A typical Abbott-Costello vehicle, "Who Done It?" will provide a full hour plus of hilarity at the Virginia Theater Friday and Saturday.

"The Scar", starring Paul Henreid and Joan Bennett will be at the State Theater Thursday and Friday.

GRIST FOR THE MILL

by E. J. Tubbs

A U. S. delegate to UNESCO pulled a Gromyko the other day at Lake Success when he walked out of the council's meeting in protest against a tirade by Poland attacking the former American military commander of southern Korea, General Hodge.

Someone has suggested that the American air force load up some bomb bays with mail-order catalogs and dump them on some other countries behind the Iron Curtain... seeing what one little Sears catalog did in Bulgaria.

Should a University of Europe be established, under the plans for European unity, the old Flemish town of Brugge has asked to become the seat.

By now you have heard all about the lot of the poor underprivileged creature called the American woman. She has such a hard time under the capitalistic system that she turns to drink. Yes, another Russian picture!

With John Foster Dulles speaking warningly against bringing American military might directly to Russia's border (in Scandinavia), we don't necessarily see a change in his 1946 belief in firmness. It appears that he (and to some extent, Senator Vandenberg) believes more emphasis should now be placed on the non-provocation policy.

Is Russia about to invade Yugoslavia?

Another blow to General Chiang and other ultraconservatives of China! Sun Fo is out of the premiership.

The House lost a good man in Sol Bloom, a man with few enemies and many, many friends.

Americans (some of them) objected to Gieseking's playing here... now, some Americans (are they the same ones?) are quite upset at the thought of Shostakovich's entering the country to attend a cultural parley. We should be glad to let the Soviet composer in... maybe he'll kick over a few more traces when he gets back to Russia.

Whose fault is it that public opinion experts notice arising isolationist sentiment in the United States?

Dr. Harlow Shapley is back in the news again! Those who attended summer school at Madison in 1948 will remember the director of the Harvard Observatory... we called him "The Brain". Right now, he's made the headlines through his blast at U. S. foreign policy. He's head man of the National Council of the Arts, Sciences, and Professions.

Well, the Senate is "gagged" again!

Home Ec Notes

Miss Julia Robertson left on Saturday to attend a Southern Regional Conference in Home Economics Education being held in Washington, D. C.

Mildred Ritchie, president of the Frances Sale home economics club, will represent the home economics department of Madison College on a panel sponsored by Delta Kappa Gamma at the Patrick Henry Hotel, Roanoke, Saturday, April 2. The Roanoke Chapter of Delta Kappa Gamma is having a tea and vocational guidance panel with the emphasis on teaching.

Mrs. Rose Kerr of the Department of Interior, Washington, will give a demonstration for school lunchroom teachers and home economics seniors at the Harrisonburg high school at 4:00 o'clock on Tuesday, March 22. Arrangements for the demonstration will be made by Mrs. Ellie Sands, supervisor of home economics education and cafeteria manager of the Harrisonburg high school.

Fire Drills To Become Glamorized As Girls Discard Curlers And Packs

by Irene Munson

We're not going to be caught 'napping' again in our curlers and cold cream (a passing phase, due to the fourteen day beauty plan out in the current Good Housekeeping, which we just could not resist as it promised to make us a new woman) come 11:30 and another fire drill . . . We appreciate them, but its downright embarrassing to have to play in p.j.'s to a gallery of state inspectors, reporters, policemen, and other assorted officials, who've been hanging around behind the shrubbery to watch . . . There should be a law against it—someone's going to lose faith in American girlhood one of these evenings, about 11:30, when our Madison gals troop out resplendent in their night habiliment. The night we saw the green mud-pack finished us . . . but, make up your mind to it—anytime you decide to try something daring like a green mud-pack, black cold cream, or sleeping sans p.j.'s, by gosh, we'll have a fire drill . . . The reluctant souls kill us—they rouse from sleep, trot downstairs, and stop—not a step further than the hall will they go, when everyone knows that a fire-drill necessitates clearing the building . . . And the timid souls, who forget their room-number, or their name, or something, so that when roll is called, they have to be punched and prompted, while the other hundred stand on the grass and shiver. This always goes over big with the state inspectors, too.

Invariably, in a fire drill, there is the gal on the inside, who always laughingly tells you, that she knew we were going to have a drill, so she dressed in her warmest coat, sat on her bed and waited, and was all ready when the gong sounded . . . Unfortunately, she never reveals her source. But when we get some inside dope, or our pet corn twinges in an intuitive way, and we sit up all night—that's just what happens, we sit up all night. We never have the fire drill, and when dawn breaks, there we still are—ready.

But, the next night, when we put on our jumbo curlers, mud-pack our face, and jump into bed for a good ten-hour night—Gong! Gong! Gong! You can't win. Anyway, from now on, we're going to try to look our glamorous best before retiring—No more poorly groomed fire drills for us!

With all apologies to Mr. Lamb, (and I don't mean Charles), I'm gonna try again this week! Kinda looks like our gals are covering so much territory that it takes a super-sleuth to keep up with them, so I couldn't resist letting you know about 'em all. So, here goes!

A new invasion force was on the move last weekend when Madison girls completely overwhelmed W. and L. In the front lines were Ann Duerson, Juanita William, Barbara Spaulding, Ann Adams, Martha Moore, Sally Goodman, Kat Hamilton, Marilyn Lee, Sarah Seay, Paige Fentress, Retha Shirkey, Carter Harrison, Elizabeth Peters, Polly Walker, etc, etc, ad infinitum. Needless to say—the house parties were conquered!

Back to the ole town of Charlottesville went Connie Georges to spend some time at home.

We mustn't overlook the fact that V. M. I. had three visitors in the form of Gill Temple, Milly Albright and Nancy Fahnestock last weekend. Fun for all!

The Junior Sisterhood was invited last weekend to attend a Hilled affair given by V. P. I. and Roanoke College. Irene Seidman, Maxine Ney, Sue Menache, Myrna Krassner, and Claire Abrams all had a grand time.

Big dances in Washington claimed Jackie Gilbert and "Stick" Rosenbourn last weekend. Wonder what there is about the "big town"—

Don't forget that Peggy Carter and Smoky Hogan attended the Sigma Chi Sweetheart Dances in Roanoke.

At Randolph-Macon this weekend is Grace Armistead who left today to attend the Panhellenic dances tonight and Saturday night—seems she's the date of an S. P. E. fraternity member, George Powers. Both Grace and George are from Portsmouth—have a good ole time!

Students Attend '49 Sports Day

Five colleges will participate in a Sports Day to be held at Mary Baldwin College in Staunton, Virginia, tomorrow. This Sports Day is sponsored by the Virginia Athletic Federation of College Women, which was organized at Madison last March.

Mary Baldwin will play hostess to William and Mary College, Mary Washington College, Bridgewater College, Richmond Professional Institute and Madison College. The other colleges who were unable to send representatives to this meeting are Sweet Briar, Hollins, Randolph Macon, Farmville and Radford.

Basketball will play a major part in the activities of the day. Madison will be represented by eight girls chosen from the intramural program. These girls are Nancy Birch, Claudenia Carmen, Barbara Furr, Virginia Hundley, Mary Ruth Poteat, Judith Ramsey, Elizabeth Wilson and Margaret Chapman.

In the afternoon Mary Washington and William and Mary will present a swimming demonstration.

Safety Courses Are Held Here

Mr. Frank W. Null, Field Representative in Safety Services for the American Red Cross, will be at Madison March 28 through April 8 to give the Instructor's courses in Life Saving and Water Safety and in First Aid.

The courses are open to any student's who have completed the Advanced course in First Aid.

Eighteen students are taking preliminary training for the Water Safety class. The schedule for their final regular classes is; Lesson 9: March 22 at 4:30 and Lesson 10: March 23 at 8 p.m. (practical and written exam).

Any students who are 19 years of age and already have their Instructor's rating may join the Water Safety course for review purposes. The class will meet with Mr. Null, March 28, 29, 31, April 5 and 7 from 7 o'clock to 10 o'clock.

Eight girls are taking work in Advanced First Aid at this time. If there are any students in college who have had the Advanced First Aid course, they may join the Instructor's class, if 20 years of age. The first class will be held Wednesday, March 30 from 7 o'clock to 10 o'clock, beginning a 15 hour course. The other dates for First Aid are April 1, 4, 6, and 8.

Dancers Attend Tournament To Be Held Soon

Once again Madison is well-represented at the Fine Arts Forum in Greensboro, North Carolina. Our Modern Dance Concert Group, accompanied by Mrs. Hewitt, left yesterday to participate in the Dance division of the annual Arts Forum held at Greensboro College. The group is composed of Frances Antrim, Lois Early, Frances Garfinkle, Mary Hodgson, Janet Keyser, Betsy Johnson, Gladys Kemp, Marie Parrotta, Martha Armistead who is the Club accompanist and Jean Shallcross, who will read the "Dirge" from W. H. Auden's "Age of Anxiety" to which the group will dance.

The Fine Arts Forum is a venture whose aim it is to bring together the various phases of fine arts taught and studied in Virginia colleges and to have them judged according to their standing when compared with like arts from other colleges. Those phases represented are Music, Art, Dance, Letters, and Theatre.

Registration was held Thursday, with the Dance Forum being conducted today. Our Madison Dance Club will compete with such familiar colleges as Farmville, Florida State, Greensboro College, Randolph-Macon Woman's College, Westhampton, William and Mary, and Women's College of Duke University. Each college performs its own selection starting at 11:30 p.m., and tonight the Woman's College will give a recital in Modern Dance.

With the Literary Phase being covered on Thursday and the Dance on Friday, it remains for the Music Forum to be presented on Saturday.

Master Classes in composition of the Modern Dance will be conducted by Louis Horst.

Tournament To Be Held Soon

Girls, get yourself a partner and enter the badminton tournament. The partners who sign the lists in Reed and Harrison will be placed in leagues and games will be scheduled on Tuesday and Thursday nights from 7 til 10. A round robin tournament will be played and the winners in each league will be placed in an elimination tournament.

Friday nights will be open for "make-up" games, in cases where one or both couples could not play off their game at its scheduled time.

The posters for signing will be left up until Monday night, March 21.

Wednesday nights are for "mixed" couples' badminton, so get yourself a partner of the "opposite sex"—but come on stag or drag to Reed Gym on Wednesday and you will be placed with a partner for a game.

Attention all table tennis players! Enter the table tennis tournament by signing in Harrison Hall, whether you be man or woman. Two elimination tournaments are being organized—one for the men and one for the women. So sign up by Monday, night, March 21 for fun and good competition.

Notice: All faculty members who want some activity and fun come to Reed Gym on Wednesday's at 5:00 p.m. for badminton, volleyball, or table tennis. This time is reserved for you—so come on and play!

The Spotlight ..

By Margaret Chapman

On the eve of the Sports Day at Mary Baldwin, we remember Last March 5, 1948, and the arrival on campus of 118 representatives from ten Virginia colleges! These fellow students came from all over the state to join us in a Sports Day and in an attempt to organize a Virginia Athletic Federation of College Women. And we had the Sports Day and the V. A. F. C. W. was started on its merry way right here at ole Madison!

. . . . The warm welcome accorded the visitors by Dr. Duke at the opening banquet.

. . . . Jo Hammond making us very proud, as she presided with poise, and caused everything to run off smoothly.

. . . . The square dancing, parties and bull sessions which entertained our guests Friday night. Entertained us, too!

. . . . The basketball teams made up of all girls chosen from the intramural programs, having fun and fellowship as they matched goals!

. . . . The swimmers getting together in the afternoon for a meet which showed the gallery beautiful swimming and diving.

. . . . The tea which concluded our Sports Day, but only marked the beginning of many more wonderful Days! Best of luck, Mary Baldwin—we hope that your Day will mean as much to your campus, as ours did to Madison!
