"Show Us The Beauty Of Our Friendships Rare; Teach Us The Worthiness Of Such To Share"

Madison's Namesake Was Educator, Statesman, Father Of Constitution

Engraved on the main gates of the campus are two words — Madison College. The second is self-explanatory, but the first could well deserve a moment of ponder and awe, for that name is not only the name of our college but the name of Virginia's greatest statesman.

Senior Counselors Acquaint Freshmen

The Senior Counselors at Madison College will assist entering freshmen through their first days of college life. This will be the tenth year this highly successful counseling plan has been in effect. Seniors and freshmen alike have shown great enthusiasm for this program of assistance. To quote a graduated Senior Counselor from last year's class, "It not only helps the incoming freshmen to become acquainted with the standards and rules of their college, but also helps them to become better acquainted and more at ease with the upper-classmen."

The Dean of Freshmen, Mrs. Dorothy Smith, originated the plan. Mrs. Garber selects seniors who have high standards of citizenship, as well as patience, understanding, stability, tact, personal integrity, emotional stability, and a mature judgment. The major responsibility and duty of the Senior Counselors is to interpret the spirit and ideals of Madison to the freshmen and to help them in every way to become accustomed to school away from home.

This Senior Counseling work is an addition to that of the Y.W.C.A. and Student Government organizations. Counselors selected for the years 1959-60 are: Diane Lester, Andrea F. Ham, Joan Bennett, Sara Ross, Jane Brooks, Fern Carbell, Cynthia Caudle, Barbara Davenport, Carole Drenovay, Janet A. Fast, Nina Gawen, Betsy Justice, Janet Life, Sally Snodgrass, Joy Wainwright, Edith Witcher, and Ruby E. Wray.

Notice

The post office requests that all people who plan to sign up for the mail boxes until all freshmen have been assigned to a box. This will be on Wednesday, September 23.

James Madison

Madison was not always visible on the wall however, for at one time this campus was known as the State Teachers College at Harrisonburg. It was not until June 13, 1918 that Governor J. H. Price redesignated the college as Madison College. Madison College was named in honor of this man not only because Madison was one of Virginia's greatest statesmen, father of our constitution and fourth president of the United States, but because he was an early champion of both public schools and higher education.

The name of Madison College was deemed appropriate by President Duke because of its dignity, practicability and economy. As we, the students, matriculate at Madison College the qualities and aspirations of the people who served our college so well should always be with us, and we should serve as well.

Catherine Philippe, chosen by Madison to spend a year abroad, is now a student at a university in France.

"Tink" Philippe To Attend Junior Year On Riviera

Today a Madison student is absent from our campus, for her absence is one of which Madison College is proud. This student, Catherine "Tink" Philippe, was awarded a scholarship to represent Madison as a foreign student in her own choice. She is now studying abroad on the French Riviera.

"Tink" is the second Madison student to be given this opportunity to attend a foreign institution of learning. The opportunity was given to her as a result of the Foreign Student Fund, with which contributions were made by both student and faculty organizations on campus. This was a comprehensive scholarship open to all sophomores with a 2.5 average, specific goals to study abroad, fluent one of the languages of the country and capability to supplement the scholarship with sufficient funds for living and miscellaneous expenses. All applicants were interviewed by a faculty committee consisting of Miss Wiles, chairman; Miss Curtis; Mrs. Harris; Mrs. Hervey; Mrs. Podalski; Miss Warbur, Miss Woolley, Mr. Rice, Mr. Houston, Mr. Watkins, and Mr. Sturk.

Today a Madison student is absent from our campus, for her absence is one of which Madison College is proud.
Why College?

A learned man once said, “It’s education that shapes the common mind, just as the twig is bent, the tree is inclined.”

Why college? Why four more years of hard work at the books after a tedious twelve years of preparation to meet the next four years, as you need a faith fit to serve. This leadership is that of those prepared to make us ready and able to meet with a clear conscience the night watchman takes over.)

When do we do what we should do when we should do it, we must profit from the mistakes made today and learn from those mistakes. We’ll never make us cut out our lights by 11:00. The system seems nice, and we love it all, and you really would love it if you were not us.

Thoughts On Returning

Upperclassmen

You’ll never make me go to bed at eleven O’clock.

Hard boiled eggs again? I’ve never used to climbing those steps. Call downs? What are call downs? Those in the men’s dorms... we are freshmen once again. No. Life is better. We can sleep till ten, when class is at eleven.

Which way to the men’s dorms? Do you have any beer parties here tonight?

D. Long Welcomes New Fall Entrants

Dear New Students;

Now that you have chosen Madison for your college, you have been admitted gracefully by the selection committee which has made your entrance possible. As a member of the Madison Family, you have taken your place on the campus, and we warmly welcome you to the Class of 1965.

We have enjoyed our pre-college "C" association with you, namely, Counseling, Corresponding, and Collecting your pre-registration data, and we are now eagerly looking forward to the broadening of the many pleasant relationships which have previously been established with you. However, those of us who are concerned with admissions must now entrust you to the faculty and administrators of your College for worthwhile guidance and we must begin the circle again under your guidance in the prospective Class of 1964.

As a parting reminder, we would like to ask that you develop early good study habits and learn the campus rules. Regularly check the Breeze and Schoolma' am, the Madison College Pictorial, and have your bursar accounts paid on time. The services of the Office of Admissions are still available to you but we shall have had justifications for contacting you as frequently as now we did in the past. In fact, perhaps you may find our contact so necessary that you may feel inclined to write us at any time, even after you have left Madison. (Register for this X-ray at the Information.)
