Aaron Breaks Record

Henry "Hank" Aaron of the Atlanta Braves broke Babe Ruth's all time career home run record Monday night before a sell-out home crowd. Aaron slammed number 715 on his second turn at bat, facing pitcher Al Downing of the Los Angeles Dodgers. Aaron walked his first time at the plate.

The game was halted for the presentation of an award and a jeweled watch from commissioner Bowie Kuhn. Kuhn cited the superstar as a fine baseball player and a "gentleman," referring, no doubt, to the recent conflict between the Atlanta club and Kuhn over Aaron's playing status.

Atlanta went on to win the game.

Nixon Tapes

President Nixon agreed Tuesday night to turn over "additional" tapes to the House Judiciary Committee in about two weeks. The tapes are reportedly concerned with the Watergate affair and the impeachment proceedings in the House.

Committee spokesmen have declined to say if this offer meets their requirements as on April 4.

Hill Goes WFL

Dallas Cowboys running back Calvin Hill has signed a long term contract with WFL expansion club the Honolulu Hawaiians. He, like WFL signees Larry Csonka, Paul Warfield, Jim Klink, and others, will play out his 1974 option in the NFL.

Hill was Rookie of the Year in 1969, and was the third highest ground gainer in the League last season with over 1,500 yards gained. He signed for an unspecified amount.

Filibuster Ends

Supporters of public financing for federal election campaigns won by a one vote margin a motion to end the 15 day old filibuster against the bill.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield said that the final vote on the measure, supported by a majority of Democrats, will come sometime this week, and definitely before the Senate takes its Easter recess.

Boyle Takes Stand

Looking well despite his poor health, former United Mines Worker President Tony Boyle took the stand Tuesday to deny that he ordered the contract murder of Joseph A. (Jock) Yablonski and family several years ago. When asked if he had anything to do with the killing, Boyle replied, "Absolutely not."

The testimony is in direct contradiction with that of several other high union officials who have stated that Boyle was directly responsible for making the contract to kill Yablonski, Boyle's rival for UAW leadership.

Gas Supplies Up

The American Automobile Association has announced that national gas supplies are up considerably this week, although prices are also up.

Steady Increase In MC Enrollment Foreseen During Next Four Years

By CYNTHIA CARNEY and ROGER GROOMS

Madison College student enrollment appears to be headed toward a gradual but steady increase during the next four years. According to William Jackameit, Director of Institutional Research, the college's present enrollment of 6100 students will continue to increase to approximately 7200 students by year 1978.

Statistics in the Chronicle of Higher Education indicate that one-third of the growth of total enrollment at Virginia's state-supported schools is attributed to Madison College alone. The increase of 858 students at Madison College from 1972 to 1973 represent 28.8% of the total statewide increase of 2,982 at public 4-year colleges.

Francis Turner, Director of Admissions and Financial Aid, confirms that the number of applicants at Madison has increased tremendously over the past few years. Two months ago at this time, the admissions office had already exceeded its number of applications. In emphasizing his point, Turner stated that the office has received approximately 6200 applications.

The admissions policy at Madison College is known as "rolling admissions." This policy constitutes a gradual process until capacity is reached—a "first-come first-serve" program.

However, these students must meet basic qualifications for admissions. High school students must have at least 800 on College Entrance Boards and must rank in the upper half of their high school class. The College Board scores of 800 do not signify automatic acceptance, however. All aspects of the student's academic record is taken into account and each individual application is read.

Madison's current enrollment includes the highest percentage of males present at the ratio of 37.2%. This figure is expected to increase and level off at approximately a 50% to 50% ratio.

In response to the manner in which the male ration is being increased to achieve a 50-50 ratio, Turner replied that the standards are equal for both sexes. He added that the quota for women is usually filled quickly since many more female applications are received than male applications. At the present, there are approximately 700 female applications on reserve. Turner further feels that Madison College's male ratio will never surpass its female ratio.

The number of freshman

Pet Causes Disturbance:

Complaint Given College Council

Madison students who own dogs should familiarize themselves with local regulations pertaining to their pets. A complaint was recently made to the College Council by a faculty member concerning disturbance caused by a barking dog tied near Burruss Hall.

In response to the complaint Dr. William Hall, Dean of Student Services, said that the college abides by the ordinances of the City of Harrisonburg. One of these is the city's leash ordinance which makes owners responsible for their dogs. Dr. Hall added that there is a standing college policy that pets are not allowed in the D-Hall, the Student Union, or academic buildings.

Section 3-4 of the Harrisonburg City Code states in part: "No person shall have or keep any animal or fowl which, by making or causing frequent or long continued and unreasonable noise, shall disturb the comfort and repose of any person in the vicinity."

Concerning leash requirements Section 3-9 states: "It shall be unlawful for the owner of any dog to allow the same to go at large upon any public street, alley or square, or to go upon the private property of another person, unless accompanied and held in leash by a responsible person."

The Madison Student Handbook simply reads: "Pets of any kind, except fish, are prohibited in college operated residence halls and apartments."

BSinHotelandRestau rantmanagement

It has come to my attention that Madison College is on the verge of taking yet another giant stumble forward. It was recently announced that among other new courses offered next fall will be several courses in the field of Hotel and Restaurant management. To add insult to injury, Mad is preparing to offer a BS degree in the subject. How appropriate.

At first I thought it was some awful mistake and that I had time warped back to NoVa-CoCo, where Hotel management is a big deal. Then I thought it must be some leftover copy from the April Fool's issue or else the Administration was getting even with us for that particular issue. No such luck. It was, and is, for real.

I imagine that one of the most unpleasant tasks of a college or university vice-president is the job of informing the Board of Visitors and other concerned friends of the institution as to the latest and greatest innovations on campus. What must Dr. Nelson have gone through making this momentous announcement?

"Uh...next I want to tell you about some new degrees we'll be offering next fall. First of all we're offering a BS in Hotel and Restaurant management and the like. Next, we have some really interesting degrees..."

One trustee, "What did he say? Hotel and who???"

Another, "I knew that bourbon was a little strong. Something about management?"

The first, "No, it couldn't have been. Gotta light?"

The other, "Sure. (to Nelson) What was that about Hotel something?"

Nelson, "Hotel and restaurant management. Now for psychology..."

Both, "Just a minute..."

And so on.

It must be awful standing in front of a bunch of trustees with sweat and worry pouring down your collar into a puddle on the floor.

Even more frightening are the plans to turn Mad into the Eastern Coast franchise of Di-

Response To Lockard's Article

Dear Editor:

Chuck Lockard's article of April 9 is not entirely accurate. First, as Director of the WRA program, I have written numerous articles--typed them and sent them to the Breeze--then waited. As you recall I also made numerous trips to the Breeze office to ascertain the difficulty. Your response was consistent. Each visit you pointed out that you are understaffed, you donate your time, and you do the best you can. So do the 35 people on the WRA staff. It's interesting that your staff has time to cover all the men's sports on campus and off, but not the women's sports. May I sum up with an example:

Dear Editor:

I really enjoyed your April 1, 1974 edition of the "Breeze." Man, that paper ever kept my attention! My high school did a similar project--in fact, I edited that paper in my high school myself. Well, I am really glad to have made my views known.. P.S. I sent copies of the paper to all my friends...Richard Nixon, Martha Mitchell and Mom.

Editor's Note: In regards to the quote attributed to a BREEZE reporter by Ms. Naomi Mills, THE BREEZE has learned that a staff photographer who had been in Godwin for nearly three hours waiting for the men's game to start made the comment. Also, no one on THE BREEZE staff has any recollection of Ms. Mills ever visiting THE BREEZE office, although she has sent numerous WRA schedules and announcements which were reprinted when possible.

Senior Seminar Successful

Dear Editor:

The Student Alumni Association of Madison College would like to thank the Seniors who attended the "Senior Seminars" on April 1, 2, and 4. We hope that those who participated found the sessions on travel, insurance, leases, weddings, job interviews, and car buying helpful in preparing them for their post-graduate endeavors.

Due to the success of the program, the S.A.A. hopes to offer the Seminars again next spring to the graduating seniors.

The S.A.A. is a group of interested Madison students working solely towards the betterment of the college community.

Movie Review

By Dr Ralph Alan Cohen

The Big Sleep: There's A Cop

Cops and robbers just aren't what they used to be. Consider the cops. They've gotten short (Columbo), they've gotten fat (Cannon), they've gotten bald (Kojak), they've gotten cripple (Ironside), they've gotten old (Barnaby Jones), they've gotten rich (Banacek), they've gotten married (Macmillan and wife), and they've gotten pretty (Macmillan and wife).

Consider the robbers. The bad guys aren't always guys anymore, much less bad. It used to be that five big bills or a little blackmail was motive for murder. Not anymore. Nowadays you can't tell the motive without a masters degree in psychology. It's the criminal, not Columbo that we watch, and we get to know the crook so well that we wish Columbo would choke on his cigar or trip over his raincoat so our beloved villain could get away with the perfect crime that took so much thought and hard work. And usually the crook is only some poor schnook trying to rid him/herself of a worthless wife/husband, save his child from drugs or pornography, or make the world safe for capitalism. It's enough to make you watch "The Brady Bunch."

For a better remedy, go to the Sunday night movie in Wilson Auditorium and see THE BIG SLEEP. This classic gangster film stars Humphrey Bogart as Philip Marlowe, the leathery private eye with a tongue of acid and a heart of gold, and Lauren Bacall as Vivian Rutledge, the spoiled heiress with a tongue of acid and very little heart at all. Add to this team (it worked so well in the movies they got married in real life) a script at least partially by William Faulkner and direction by one of the great American directors, Howard Hawks, and THE BIG SLEEP is really something dreams are made of.

Or nightmares. I think that there is something particularly frightening about the world of THE BIG SLEEP. To begin with this is a dark film. Almost the entire movie takes place at night. Of the two exceptions that come to mind, one scene is shot in the hellishly hot greenhouse of Bogart's aging client, and the other takes place in a downpour. Bogart and Bacall seem to live in a never-ending night, trapped by a worsening nightmare. I am reminded of Macbeth's wearied words: "I am in blood/ Stepped in so far that, should I wade no more,/ Returning were as tedious as go o'er."

Perhaps the most frightening aspect of this film is its view of human nature. Moral values have no meaning in the world of THE BIG SLEEP. Everybody is bad. The crippled old man who hires Marlowe is a cynical recluse, one of his daughters is a dope fiend and a nymphomaniac, and the other is a liar and a chronic gambler. Even such a minor character as the saleslady in a bookstore has no qualms about closing the store early and pulling the blinds for a casual tryst with a man she's never met, presumably between the bookshelves. Every suspect in the movie is guilty of something. The only characters who enlist our sympathy are a two-bit punk named Harry Jones, who dies rather than tell where his two-faced girlfriend is (Bogey's epitaph for Jones: "I kind of liked Harry."), and the emotionless butler Norris, perhaps because we don't know anything bad about him.

Marlowe himself seems more offended by bad taste and stupidity than by immorality. What valor he has is frequently overcome by his discretion. For example, he makes no effort to save the Harry Jones he "kind of liked," quite simply because the murderer had a gun while he was unarmed. (Ernesta Snoop would at least have hit him with a pocketbook.) When Bacall and Bogey finally wade through the blood into one another's arms, we feel that at best they are more sinned against than sinning.

One word of warning: if you expect to keep up with the incredible plot, you had best be awake. If Faulkner's touch shows at all, it shows in the convoluted plotting of the story. Only Howard Hawks' crisp, purposeful direction keeps us from losing our way in this labyrinthian mystery.

To call this film nightmarish, however, is not to call it dreary or even serious. THE BIG SLEEP, if it is not a conscious parody of the tough gangster film, is at least self-consciously amused with itself. And it would probably be a bit smug of us to assume that the 1946 audience didn't laugh as hard at the clichés and at Bogey's tough guy lines. When Vivian asks Marlowe, "How did you get into this slimy business?" he answers, "Because people like you pay good money to have the slime cleaned up." Now there was a cop.

sneyland, Mickey Madison and all. For instance, if you don't already know it, a new building is to be built on the quad to house the new Hotel and Restaurant Management Department. The thing is designed to be a monstrosity. A four sided building, one side is to be built along the lines of a Holiday Inn, one a towering Hilton edifice, one similar to the Hotel Kavanaugh, and the other looking like the typical No-Tell Mo-Tel, with which most of you are very familiar.

The first year of study is devoted to busboy and kitchen help studies, specializing in luggage handling and cleaning potatoes. Sophomore year the student moves up to doorman, taking courses in cab-hailing and tip grubbing. Juniors spend their time as night clerks graduate to full status as desk and head waiters, and seniors clerk and head chef. A graduate program is in the planning stages, with advanced training in linen ordering and ta-

The building is to be opened by Dr. Carrier himself who will handle the desk until the students are advanced enough to take it over for themselves. A major requires 33 hours in addition to basic studies and a required weeks stay in Belle Meade. A minor requires 20 hours to include Charming Personality for Managers I, and Ash Tray Maintenance (two semesters).

No wonder college v-ps sweat.

Defeat Oneonta, 11-9

Dukes Win 10th Straight

By WADE STARLING

The Madison baseball team ran its winning streak to ten games Wednesday by defeating Oneonta State of New York by the score of 11-9. The Dukes now have an overall record of 12-6.

The Dukes scored what turned out to be the two winning runs in the bottom of the eighth inning. With the score 9-8 in favor of Madison, the Dukes' Joe DeCrose singled and was replaced by pinch-runner Roger Overby. Centerfielder Tom Keener then sacrificed Overby to second. Al DeWitt, playing first base after Chris Baker hurt his ankle, doubled to drive in Overby. Pete Jones followed with a single to score De Witt, and the score was 11-8.

In the top of the ninth inning, Roger Weaver led off with a home run over the centerfield fence for Oneonta State, which made the score 11-9. However, winning pitcher

Jim Barbe, 3-0, set down the next three batters in order.

Jeff Moore started the game for the Dukes, but was lifted in the third inning after injuring his arm. Barbe then came in from his shortstop position to win the game.

De Croce led the Dukes with two singles and a triple, and two runs batted in. Mike La-casse also had three hits and knocked in two runs. Billy Sample had a single and a double and scored three runs. Pete Jones went two for four on the day, and had one RBI. Catcher Fred Milbert and first baseman Chris Baker each had two singles.

Yesterday the Dukes played Bridgewater College at home, but the scores were not in in time for this issue. Before the game was the dedication for the Duke's new baseball field, Long Field. Today they are at William and Mary for a doubleheader and the next home game will be tomorrow against Onion College. Game time will be 2:00.

Fencing Championship

Madison College finished 15th out of 25 colleges and universities in the National Intercollegiate Women's Fencing Association Championships held April 4-7 at Cornell University in Ithaca, N.Y.

Fencing for the first time in this type of competition for Madison were Judy Ferrier, Barb Lester, Ginny Kirsh, and Jill English. Coach Jean Dalton was very pleased with their performance saying afterwards, "The team fenced very well throughout the competition. Experience played an important part in the final scores. None of our fencers had experience fencing on the national level and were competing against fencers with much more experience than Madison."

The competition was won by California State University-Fullerton with Cornell University placing second and William Patterson College third. In individual standings, Jill English from Madison placed 10th out of the 25 "D" group fencers there.

Lacrosse Team Loses

The women's lacrosse team dropped its record to 1-2 with a narrow 7-6 loss to Bridgewater College here last Tuesday. Bridgewater scored first in the contest and Madison was never able to catch up. Debby Wright led the Duchesses' attack with three goals. Lynn Craun, at cover point led the Madison defense.

A player for the Duchesses attributed the loss to a solid Bridgewater defense and injuries to several key Madison players.

The junior varsity squad remained undefeated at 2-0 by crushing the Bridgewater J.V. team 11-6. Cindy Krugar, playing right attack, scored five goals for the Duchesses.

Psi Chi Lectures Via Telecommunications

By NED LEONARD

The Psi Chi psychology fraternity is involved in a telecommunications project that has nothing to do with reading minds or foreseeing futures. Basically, the project was started last semester as a way to inform students in the department on psychologically related subjects in which they expressed interest. Instead of inviting an authority on the subject to visit our campus as a guest speaker, the lecture is taped at Madison while the speaker sits in the comfort of his own home in New York or anywhere on the East Coast.

How is it done without telepathy? The speaker is first asked for permission to tape his lecture. He is then sent a list of general questions on which to base his speech. After a period of time, he calls the Telecommunication line to give his interview. The fraternity has set up an amplifier-microphone assembly so that any number of students may listen in and ask questions when the call comes in.

The interview is tape recorded over the phone. The tapes are stored in the psychology department so that they can be used for classroom or by anyone interested in a topic on tape.

The AAA also stated that they anticipate no severe shortages over the summer months if conservation continues as it has in the past.

Hearst Kidnap

Attorney General William Saxbe announced that the FBI has made a break in the Hearst kidnap case, following the disclosure that Patricia Hearst has chosen to stay and "fight on" with the Symbionese Liberation Army.

"Now that the lid is off, I think we're going to see some results," the Attorney General said. The FBI believes that since the Hearst's are no longer expecting a quick return, they are more willing to let the FBI handle the case as it should be handled.

The FBI now believes that they will apprehend the kidnapers "if they are still in the country."

This method of telecommunicating lectures is obviously easier on the speaker and has the additional advantage of providing a permanent record of the interview.

So far, the questions considered by the group in selecting speakers have been compiled within the fraternity. However, in the near future, forms will be distributed so that any student interested in a current psychology related topic can put in his request. If there is a substantial number of people interested in a topic, the group will track down an authority and Telecommunicate him to Madison.

space in residence halls since freshman cannot live off-campus. Out of the approximately 7-800 transfer students, who are not required to reside in dormitories, approximately 400-450 are accepted each year.

Several additional types of applicants are accepted each year. Among these are special undergraduate students from other colleges, post baccalaureate who may return to renew certification, the adult special status and the high school special student who may be taking selected courses at Madison.

Jazz Concert Upcoming

The Campus Program Board presents the St. Louis Jazz Quartet in concert on Tuesday, April 16 at 8 p.m. in Wilson Auditorium.

The quartet which has been receiving rave reviews and standing ovations as it hits the nation's campuses from New York to Alaska, features Terry Kippenberger, bass and bass guitar; Dave Schraze, piano and electric piano; Charles Payne, percussionist; and the multi-talented Jeanne Frenor, vocalist who uniquely uses her voice as an instrument.

"We're interested in all forms of music as long as it's good, and that includes blues, ballads, gospel, pop and rock as well as the most sophisticated sounds of Eastern and classical music," says Kippenberger, "but our main interest lies in the jazz field and all the other sounds we explore have a jazz flavor to them."

Reviewers across the nation have said, "The program runs the gamut from jazz to blues to ballads...thrilling performance...one of the finest jazz quartets in the nation...fresh exciting and clearly imaginative."

The concert is free to students with an I.D. and $1.00 for the general public.

Debaters Complete Season

Madison's novice debaters concluded the 1973-74 tournament season with their participation in the Bellarmine College National Novice Debate Tournament held in Louisville, Kentucky on April 4-6.

Freshmen Renee Wenger and H.T. Vaught finished the event with a record of 5 wins and 3 losses. They defeated teams from Macalester College, Iowa University, Ball State, Valdosta State, and St. Joseph's College. Mr. Vaught received an award for the 6th best individual debater.

Madison's second entry of freshman Linda Jones and sophomore Pat Fitzgerald won three of their debates. They recorded victories over Alderson-Broadbush College, Marietta College, and Villanova University. A total of 68 teams from 48 colleges and universities representing 24 states attended this national event.
