UGANDAN WOMEN SHARE THEIR STORIES IN HOPE OF AWARENESS

BY KATE TICHELL

In an unprecedented move, the Office of the President, as part of an effort to promote awareness and understanding of Ugandan culture, has invited ugandan women to speak about their experiences of war and violence. The aim is to raise awareness of the struggles of women in war-torn regions and to promote greater understanding and empathy among the JMU community.

The stories are being shared on the JMU campus through a series of events, including performances, discussions, and a film screening. The events are part of a larger initiative by the African Student Organization (ASO) to promote knowledge of African life and culture and to dispense with negative stereotypes.

The events are scheduled to take place on Thursday, October 23, and are open to the JMU community. More information can be found on the ASO website or by contacting them directly.

JMU catches e-mail hoax Friday

JMU Information Technology sent out an e-mail alert on Friday regarding a scam that targets students and staff. The message appears to be sent from unknown sources and is designed to trick recipients into providing their personal information.

The message, which is similar to others that have been circulating on campus, is self-destructing and is not traceable. It is designed to look like a legitimate message from JMU, but the information it requests is not legitimate.

The message states that the recipient's account has been locked and that they must provide their personal information in order to resolve the issue. It also requests the recipient to forward the message to other JMU students.

According to IT, the message is being sent by unknown sources and is not traceable. They recommend that recipients do not respond to the message and that they contact IT if they have any concerns.

The message is being sent to all JMU students and staff and is designed to look legitimate. It is not traceable and is not traceable. It is designed to look legitimate and to trick recipients into providing their personal information.

Asthma Study

Do you have Asthma?

Volunteers (ages 18 to 40 years old) are needed for a study about asthma and the common cold. The goal is to improve asthma care. You must have asthma and not smoke. Screening will involve 2 visits ($40 per visit). Based on the results, those who qualify can enroll in a 7-week study with payment up to $1,500. A 4-day stay in a hotel is an important part of this study. All study-related testing, medications and the hotel stay with room services are provided at no charge. Screening will be ongoing through February. Screening near JMU, along with reimbursement for travel costs, will be available.

Catholic group takes on poverty

BY KATE THODEL

Living in a box and standing are not typical college experiences, but the Catholic Campus Ministry wants to change that. They are planning on recognizing those and other social justice issues through four events, including Gov. Tim Kaine’s speech on "Politics on Monday" and a hunger banquet and a Bon A Bit. Then discussion on Tuesday. The activities will conclude with the refugee awareness evening on Wednesday.

The week coincides with JMU’s Catholic Week. So far, other coordinating parties are hoping for campus-wide involvement. Catholic Campus Ministry is the student campus ministry, which is a group that is important to teach others about those issues.

"We’re hoping with how low A Disposable Society is prepared, people will learn how to give back to their own campuses and help others this spring. We want to help others,” said the former D.C. resident. "We’ll help a little on social justice and help others, too. It’ll be a big issue for us. We’ll have about how to find it out for those who wish to do a little research and find out more about that.”

From many in the community, there are tons of food pantries throughout Harrisonburg. For some of the students, there’s the option of getting free food “all the time. I know it’s not life but for life, I prefer it.”

During the hunger banquet, students could choose from a variety of different food served. Though maybe two people in the group, one major aspect of the event is to raise money for the homeless. There will also be a guest speaker from New College.

"At the hunger banquet, everyone receives different ratios of food based on the proportions in the world," Hoyt said. "This is all tied to some reason and the reason comes if you are satisfied differently. One reason comes if you are satisfied and can afford to help others. That is the reason for this country."

Following the banquet, the bus-Asleep will be held in Godwin Hall. Each quarter will receive a box, or a piece of a box, and each box is donated to the D.C. agency.

"Groups will perform short pieces related to the issue of homelessness, and the other will be other information thinkers. They will not just go out to those who,” Hoyt said. "The activity is about social justice, including video, a short documentary, and a panel discussion. There will be three guests from the Refugee Resettlement Center.

One speaker is a refugee from Rajasthan, who will talk about the work of the U.S. with refugees and the U.S. work with refugees.

White said, "There is a significant number of refugees here. From Eastern Europe, the Middle East, especially Africa, and Asia."

New publication to bring disciplines together

James Madison Undergraduate Research Journal to be published 2009

"When I came up with the idea, I just thought that JMU has so much research and undergraduate knowledge that is better emphasized. "I thought that the research community is so fragmented between departments. I think once there are no competition to exchange ideas." Hoyt said. "So then they have the idea of founding the James Madison Undergraduate Research Journal. The first issue will be published in the spring of 2009. Student contributions, including research articles, research reports, review articles and feature articles will be published.

"The journal will cover all areas of study and explore the impact of research on undergraduate education and provide a forum for early career researchers, graduate students, or advanced undergraduates to share their work that goes out to the entire JMU community, and in some cases, even the entire world."

"The journal will serve as a vehicle to connect students with other students and faculty members. We are about the dissemination of intellectual ideas. "Journals are creating a community that is different than the traditional one. This is Kriste University student

Letter to the Editor

John Swenson, Va.

I wanted to congratulate the university on the move CHOSID Open House for early admission students. The entire day was well-planned, smooth and on time, and everyone was friendly. Much of the entertainment was helpful and happy—many who were not wearing purple costumes were still on the dance floor. It was a great day. Job well done.

Vivian Cheatham

My daughter went to the Open House to have questions answered and left JMU feeling good about the students and facilities we met. You can be proud of your school and how you present yourself.
