Housing Students favor coed additions

By Mike Wilson
staff writer

Students here favor additional coed dorms, according to a committee chairman of the Interhall Council.

"I agreed with over 50 percent of the school that it was a good idea," said sophomore Jon Burr, of the current issues committee.

In an annual survey conducted by the office of residence life, 69 percent of the responding students asked for dormitories that are coed by hall, and 43 percent asked for dormitories that are coed by suite.

In response to the survey, Gifford and Wayland will be the first dormitories at JMU to be coed by suite. Males and females will live next door to each other but will not share bathrooms.

Many students see the new option as an incentive to move into one of the two dorms.

"I was planning to move off campus, but now I think I'll stay," said sophomore Kevin Schneider, a resident of Hanson Hall. "I'd like the opportunity to live in a coed hall for a year."

"Almost all the other schools I know of have mostly coed dorms and I think it's about time we did too."

Although many residents of Gifford and Wayland halls are juniors and will move off campus next year, most still seem to favor the change.

Visitation hours might be extended

By Maria Osborn
assistant news editor

The Interhall Council voted Wednesday to extend visitation hours next year in Ikenberry Hall, to cut back visitation in Converse Hall and to leave visitation unchanged in other dormitories.

Under the bill, Ikenberry would have seven-day visitation next year; it now has three-day visitation.

IHC originally proposed four-day visitation for Ikenberry, but Ikenberry representative Eric Schmidt amended the bill to give Ikenberry full visitation and the bill passed with the amendment.

At the meeting, IHC also approved giving Con-

Coed

"If I were going to stay on campus I would like it," said junior Amy McNicholas, a Wayland resident. "It's something different, it would be fun, it's . . . progressive."

Junior Mark Davis, who lives in Gifford, said, "If I move off campus it won't be because they are going coed." The main factors in his decision will be the loft situation and how many people are housed in each room, he said.

While many students strongly favor the change, others don't see a need for more coed housing.

"I think it's irrelevant in Gifford," said junior Kevin Leisure, also a Hanson resident. "I think Gifford's as coed as it can get right now. I don't see any reason (for the change). If guys want to have girls over, they can."

The decision to make the halls coed by suite instead of halls also has been well received by most students.

"There will be more interaction that way," Davis said. "You really don't see anyone from the other floors anyway."

Bob Schreiner, a sophomore living in Hanson, said, "If I were going to live in Gifford or Wayland, I would prefer coed by suite. It would be less strict."

Though most students favor more coed housing, some students worry about getting "the short end of the stick," he said.

"People don't want to get kicked out of their rooms," Burr said.

No official policy for in-hall sign up has been formed. Whatever the policy, in-hall residents will be given preference over other students, he said.

verse Hall four-day visitation next year. This fall it had five-day visitation; it now has seven-day visitation.

Under the proposal, seven-day visitation would be continued in White and Logan halls.

For the changes to be implemented, the office of residence life and the Board of Visitors also will have to approve the bill.

The office of residence life has proposed having four- and seven-day visitation policies next year instead of three-, five-, and seven-day options, said Brett Chaney, IHC president.

It proposes four-day visitation in Converse, Garber, Wine-Price, White and Frederikson halls.

There were few requests from students for three-day visitation, Chaney said. "That need wasn't there, except in the eyes of some parents."

IHC vice president Paige Powell said she does not think the Board of Visitors will approve having more halls with seven-day visitation.

"The Board of Visitors is very conservative," she said. "We're changing a lot this year with Wayland and Gifford going coed. That's going to be hard enough for them to swallow."

"If we start proposing all these seven-day visitation policies, it's not going to go over. I'm sure it will happen in the future," she said, "but not all at once."

Chaney said housing officials probably will change the time of year when residents can vote on visitation changes. Residents now can vote for changes in December and they can vote again in January.

If housing officials approve the change, residents can vote on visitation eight weeks into the fall semester, Chaney said.

In other business, IHC voted on a system for residents in Gifford and Wayland to sign up for housing next year. Since both halls will be coed, each suite will be designated to females or males.

IHC approved a plan to make the first night of sign-ups in Gifford and Wayland open to current residents. They will have the option to keep the room they have or to move to the corresponding room in the other coed hall. Residents must move to the corresponding room if their present room is designated for the opposite sex.

The first night, residents also would be able to sign up for a different room within their own hall. They would not be able to sign up for a room in the other coed hall unless it corresponds to their present room.

To change halls, residents would have to go through the regular sign-up process with priority numbers. This bill also will have to be approved by the Board of Visitors.

Residents in Wayland and Gifford, as well as Hillside, will be given priority during sign-ups because of housing changes. Wayland and Gifford will have a chance to sign up for other single-sex bluestone halls because of the lifestyle change.

Hillside residents will be given priority because students will not be housed in the trailers next year.

Sign-up changes next year might include residents being asked to submit their housing preferences through the mail, then head residents would place people in rooms according to priority numbers, Chaney said.

This proposal was made to eliminate the "pulling in" that occurs in the bluestone halls, he said.

Futurist: Life-long education needed

Dr. Marvin Cetron stressed the importance of liberal arts and vocational education in his lecture at Grafton-Stovall Theatre Tuesday.

By Scott Denoon
staff writer

"The educational system is terrible and we're not doing much about it," a noted futurist said here Tuesday.

Dr. Marvin Cetron, addressed about 300 people in Grafton-Stovall Theatre. His lecture was the first in a newly established program called "Forums on the Future."

Cetron stressed the need for life-long education with an emphasis on the liberal arts, especially English. "You need to know how to communicate. You need the ability to think," he said.

"The worst problem we've got is the people who certify colleges," Cetron said. "They're qualifying students for jobs that don't exist."

To correct this problem, he said, colleges should place more emphasis on high technology vocational education.

Cetron outlined a program that would require prospective teachers to maintain at least a 3.2 grade point average and score at least 850 on the Scholastic Achievement Tests to be eligible for admission into any school of education.

"The SAT scores of people in the military are higher than those of our teachers," he said. "Our cannon fodder is worth more than a teacher."

Businesses of the future will be "smaller and quicker" due to the implementation of robots, Cetron said. "When you go robotic you are working with automated systems, and automated systems require fewer people."

He estimated that by 1990, one-third of America's secretaries, stenographers and typists will be unemployed because of computers. "You're not going to make it without computer literacy in the future. It is going to be crucial to anyone."

Cetron also addressed foreign trade, saying that in order to be successful the United States must first balance its budget. His proposal for a balanced budget consists of three steps: an 80 percent increase in the cost of living, a higher retirement age and a cut-back on military forces.

Cetron predicted that Vice President George Bush will

"You're not going to make it without computer literacy in the future."

— Dr. Marvin Cetron

receive the Republican nomination for president in 1988 and will choose Supreme Court Justice Sandra Day O'Connor as his running mate. "She's bright as hell," he said.

Cetron has been recognized in magazines such as People and U.S. News & World Report. He also has appeared on every major television network and has written several books.

He has a bachelor's degree from Penn State University, a master's degree from Columbia University and a doctorate from American University.

He has served as a consultant for 76 firms, including IBM, Xerox and General Motors.

Forums on future announced by JMU, Rocco

A series of forums intended to help business, industry, education and government make the most effective decisions for future success was announced Tuesday.

The program, called the Rocco Forums on the Future, is being made possible by a gift from Rocco Enterprises Inc. to JMU.

The forums will provide information on making decisions to plan the future, a JMU spokesman said.

The gift was announced in conjunction with an address at Grafton-Stovall Theatre by Dr. Marvin Cetron, one of America's best-known futurists.

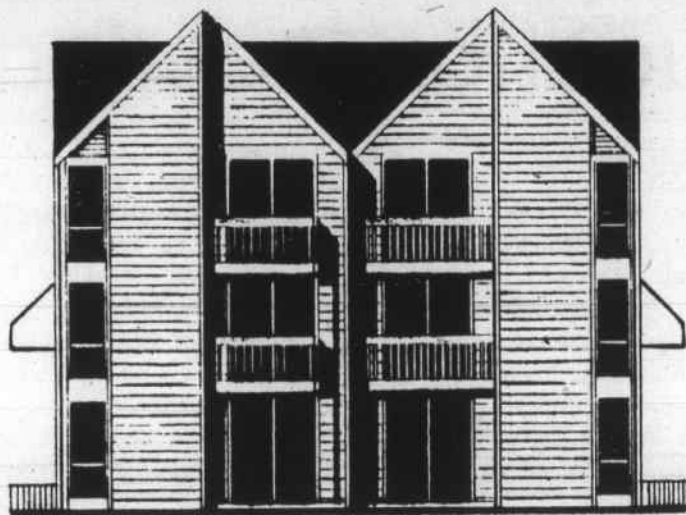

The gift was announced by JMU President Ronald Carrier and Rocco's two chief officials, President Charles "Chip" Strickler and Chairman Robert "Twig" Strickler.

"We must plan effectively for the 21st century," Carrier said. "I believe the establishment of the Rocco Forums on the Future at JMU will be a giant step toward accommodating the type of planning we want for the future."

The forums will provide a variety of different programs, the JMU spokesman said. These will include programs to allow the open exchange of ideas through courses, forums, workshops, conferences and publications.

Speakers will be brought to JMU and the Harrisonburg-Rockingham County area to discuss the future, the lessons learned from the past and the ways of understanding the process of change.

SGA allocates funds to orienteering club

By Mike Wilson
SGA reporter

The Student Government Association allocated $1,110 to the JMU Orienteering Club on Tuesday.

The money will be used to help send the club to St. Louis to compete in a national inter-collegiate competition, said Greg Benham, finance committee chairman.

The club members think they can win the overall team title, said Cpt. Christopher Kentch, the club's adviser. "Any national championship will help any school," Kentch said.

The club had requested $2,497. The finance committee cut money for the club to fly to St. Louis because it will be less expensive to use university vans, Benham said. Money to pay for Kentch's hotel room was also cut because the SGA cannot fund faculty activities.

The SGA also allocated $483.87 of a $2,493.87 request to the Madison Marketing Association to help the group host its annual Career Day Symposium this spring.

The finance committee cut $1,210 from the request because it was to be used to lodge the speakers who would be featured at the symposium, Benham said. The other $800 was cut because the group will make that amount from their own revenues.

Lodging for most of the speakers can be paid for by the companies they represent, Benham said. The MMA wanted to pay for it as courtesy to the speakers.

The SGA allocated $750 of a $1,683.60 request to the JMU College Republicans to help the group send a delegation of students to the College Republican's state convention later this month.

The $750 is to be used to pay for registration for the convention, Benham said.

The SGA passed an amended version of a bill to allocate $436.98 to help fund the Catch A Ride Safely (C.A.R.S.) program.

The amendment, proposed by Bell senator Bryan Little, called for two members of the finance committee to be charged with finding regular financing for the program.

They need regular financing "so they won't have to continually come back to the contingency account," Benham said.

The senate also allocated $270 to the Interhall Council from the IHC's reserve account to cover service charges for an incorrectly deposited vending revenue-sharing check.

IHC accidentally deposited a vending revenue-sharing check in the wrong bank account, leaving another account without enough money in it, said SGA Treasurer Michelle Schaffer. As a result, they incurred service charges.

The SGA allocated $112.65 of a $500.65 request to the Sophomore Class Organization.

The group lost money on a dance last semester and the Student Activities Commission helped them pay their debts. The $112.65 is to be used to pay back the commission, Benham said.

"They started in the hole this year by that amount," he said. "We're just going to get them out of that hole."

The money that was cut was to be used to sponsor a speaker from the FBI and other campus-related programs, said Melanie Knight, president of the SCO.

The senate also allocated $248.92 of a $1,005.84 request to Phi Epsilon Kappa, the national physical education honor society.

The money is to help send members of the group to the southern district and national conferences of the American Alliance for Health, Physical Education, Recreation and Dance.

The finance committee cut funds for one motel room at the southern district conference because only one person was to stay in that room, Benham said. The committee also cut funds because the group already has enough money to cover registration fees and motel rooms at the national convention.

The finance committee killed a proposal to allocate $800 to the Association of College Entrepreneurs to help send members to the ACE national convention in Los Angeles.

"They have funds to send eight and a half people and they want to send 10," Benham said. "Can eight people not bring back as much information to JMU as 10 people?"

The committee also killed a proposal to allocate $3,024 to JMU's chapter of the National Collegiate Association for Secretaries. The money was to help send 12 members of the group to the NCAS national convention in New Orleans.

The organization has enough money to send three or four members without help from the SGA, Benham said. Those members should be able bring information back for the entire group.

The contingency account stood at $10,018.65 before the meeting.

In other business, Director of Residence Life Bill Bolding outlined some of the changes that will take place in housing policy next year. He asked the SGA to set up an advisory committee to give him student feedback and help develop changes that will benefit the student body.

The SGA tabled a proposal to support Shenandoah Hall's efforts to maintain its residence hall status. The bill was proposed by Shenandoah senator Craig Moore.

Shenandoah Hall currently is being considered as a place to relocate Delta Gamma sorority when the Hillside trailers are removed.

The SGA passed a proposal to initiate action to secure payment of a partial housing refund to the tripled residents of Howard Johnson's.

In new business, the following bills were proposed and referred to the appropriate standing committees:

- Wayland senator Cindy Twining proposed allocating $1,498 to Eta Sigma Delta, the Hotel Restaurant Management honor society, to send its officers to the group's national convention.

- Commuter senator Karl Lindley reintroduced the proposal to allocate $800 to the JMU Association of Collegiate Entrepreneurs to help the club offset the cost of the ACE national convention in Los Angeles.

- Commuter senator Jeff Hollar proposed allocating $282 to Beta Beta Beta, the biology honor society, to send two representatives to the group's southeastern regional conference.

- Logan senator Anne-Marie Johnson proposed allocating $175 to the Junior Class Organization to implement an incentive program to get other student organizations to help raise money for the Cancer Society.

- Little proposed allocating $552 to the Young Democrats to help send members to the state convention.

- Chappelle senator Kelly Kirkpatrick proposed allocating $235 to the Circle K club to help send five members to the district convention.

- Kirkpatrick also proposed the SGA support the improvement of Carrier Library since many people find it inadequate and are forced to do research in other libraries.

- Converse senator Nanci Campbell proposed placing tables and chairs outside PC Dukes because the facility was intended for take-out service and outside tables would encourage this.

- Shorts senator Greg Gromada proposed establishing an advisory committee to assist the office of residence life.

Graphic arts presentation held here

More than 80 people from the communications, art and business departments attended a presentation on Jan. 30 by Don Sparkman, of Sparkman and Bartholomew Associates, Inc., on the graphic design process.

Sparkman presented a slide show followed by an open question-answer discussion in Anthony-Seeger Hall. He discussed the areas of public relations, advertising and marketing.

Sparkman and Bartholomew Associates, Inc. is a consulting graphic arts agency in Washington D.C. The company designs logos, pamphlets and brochures for contracting organizations.

The International Association of Business Communicators/JMU sponsored the presentation. IABC/JMU is a non-profit organization for students interested in the areas of speech communication and public relations.

Graduate takes position at WHSV

A JMU graduate has been named director of creative services at WHSV-TV, the ABC-TV affiliate in Harrisonburg.

Janice Dove, who graduated in 1979 and majored in communication arts, had served as director of continuity at WHSV.

She lives in Bridgewater with her husband, Ronald, and daughter Amy.

In addition, Katrina Grundy and Mary Birmingham have been named as creative services assistants. Grundy, formerly receptionist at TV3, is a native of Grand Rapids, Michigan. Birmingham, a recent graduate of Radford University, is from Shenandoah, Virginia.

UVa students charged with theft

By Alex Dapolito
police reporter

Two University of Virginia students were arrested and charged with the theft of two composite photographs from the Alpha Sigma Tau sorority house about 2 a.m. Saturday, police said.

John C. Keville, 18, of Charlottesville and William Ratcuffe, 18, of Front Royal were arrested on Greek Row and charged with theft, police said.

Police also made the following arrests:

Larceny

- Ski equipment valued at $300 was reported stolen from the back of a pickup truck behind Anthony-Seeger Hall between 9 a.m. Jan. 29 and 1 a.m. Jan. 30.

The items included one pair of Hart downhill-type skis (model 180), valued at $150, one pair of blue ski boots, valued at $150, and one pair of ski poles, value unknown. Damage to the truck was reported at $25, police said.

- A black and green Gerry ski jacket was reported stolen from the Sigma Nu fraternity house between 3:45 a.m. and 4:45 a.m. Sunday. A brown billfold inside the jacket contained a JMU ID and a telephone credit card. Value of the missing items was reported at $175, police said.

- Two computer disks (serial number 7014983), valued at $150, were reported stolen from Harrison Hall between Friday and Monday, police said.

- A ski rack valued at $65 was reported stolen from a car parked in the Frederickson service drive between 12 a.m. and 2 a.m. Sunday, police said. The rack was described as a black, four pair, Barr Crafter brand with no distinguishing marks.

- A car parked in X-Lot, North end, was reported damaged between Jan. 23 and Jan. 31. Damage was reported at $40 for the bent antenna, police said.

- A Harrison Hall office was reported ransacked between Friday and Sunday, police said. A 3x5 blue and white rug, valued at $30, was reported missing.

- A wallet was reported stolen from the men's locker room in Godwin Hall between 2:30 p.m. and 5:15 p.m. Saturday. The wallet was later recovered with $4 missing, police said.

- Two doors were reported stolen from a jeep behind White Hall between 10 p.m. Saturday and 2 a.m. Sunday. Both doors were later recovered, police said.

Vandalism and Larceny

- A vending machine in Ikenberry Hall was reported broken into and damaged between Friday and Monday, police said. Value of the stolen items totaled less than $4.

Larceny and Falsification of Information

- Four students were judicially charged with stealing beer from a Dod Distributor parked behind the Campus Center about 12 a.m. Saturday. The students were also charged with presenting false identification, police said.

Falsification of Information

- Three students were judicially charged with falsification of information to gain favorable vehicle registration. The cars were registered between Sept. 9 and Oct. 15, and were discovered around Jan. 28, police said.

- Two students were judicially charged with falsification of information Jan. 28, police said. The students were using altered ID cards which were confiscated in D-Hall.

- One student, of Squire Hill Apartments, was judicially charged with falsification of information to help a freshman register his car on campus. The car was registered about Sept. 3 and was discovered Jan. 28, police said.

Tampering with Fire Equipment

- A fire alarm was reported set off in the Hoffman Hall kitchen about 10:30 p.m. Saturday, police said. Two non-students found in the area were suspected and were given trespass notices requesting they not return to campus.

Dangerous Practices

- A Garber Hall resident was judicially charged with shooting B.B. s at Ikenberry Hall windows about 10:15 p.m. Monday, police said.

Assault

- A female student was reported assaulted by two female non-students between Eagle Hall and the stadium about 1:30 a.m. Sunday, police said. The student was treated for scratches at the health center.

City Police reported the following incidents:

Providing ID to under age persons

- Student Keith D. Robertson, 21, of Fairfax Station, was arrested and charged with providing ID to a minor to facilitate the purchase of alcohol about 5:15 p.m. Saturday at the Harrisonburg Police Department, police said.

Concealment of Merchandise

- Student Melanie A. Guarini, 20, of Clifton, was arrested and charged with the concealment of merchandise about 8 p.m. Friday, police said.

No notes

Professor stresses thinking, not memorizing

By Eric Gorton
staff writer

He does not believe students should take a lot of notes. Nor does he believe students should have to memorize a lot of terms.

What he does believe is students should be able to choose whether they like a subject from the experience he passes on to them.

"The main advantage a teacher has over students is experience," says Jon Staib, associate professor of physics. "I give them something to hang their heads on, to think about."

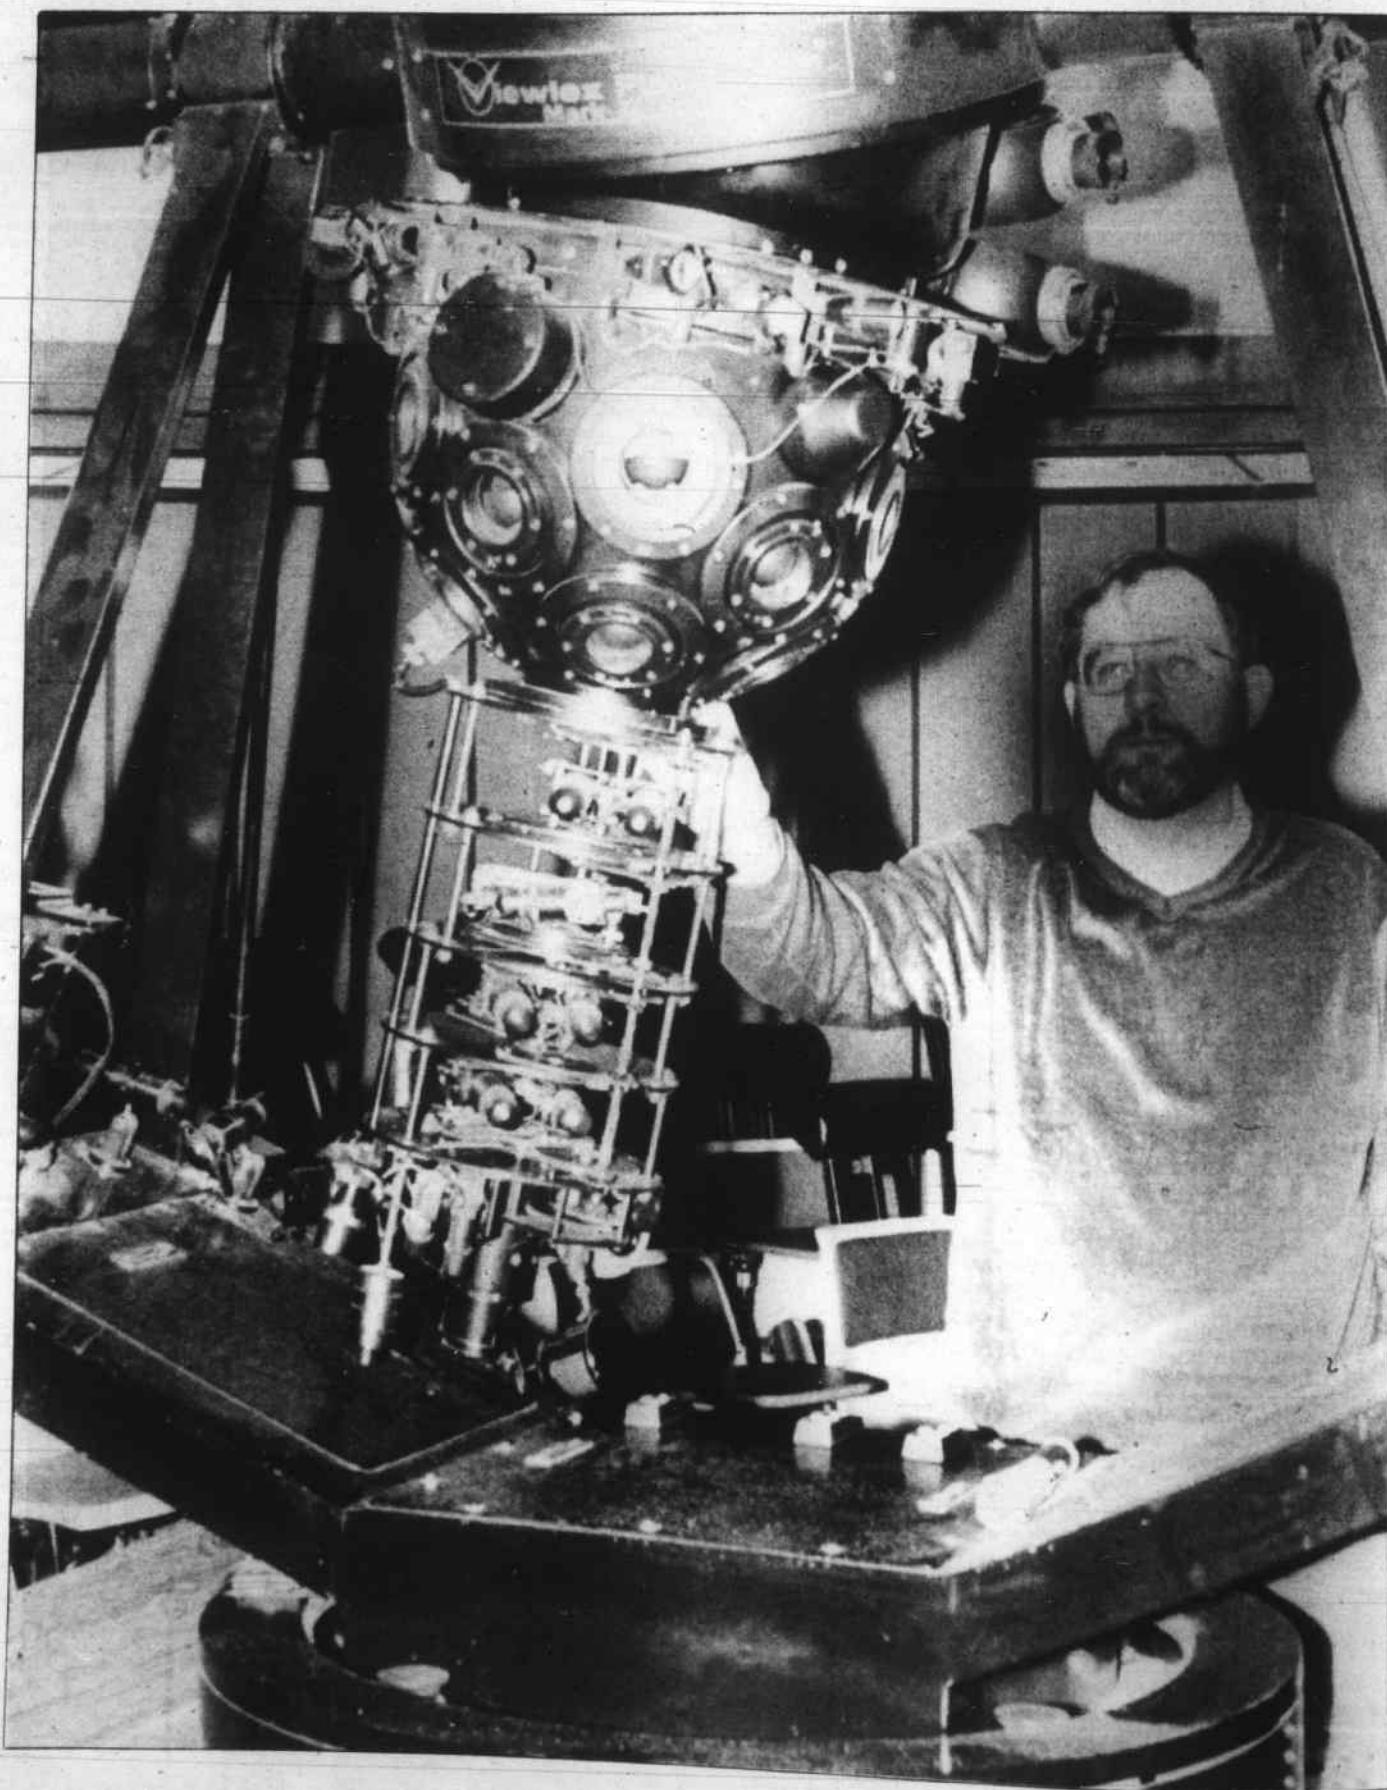

The way Staib accomplishes this goal might be considered unorthodox. With hands flying in the air and his large body moving in more directions than a dance instructor, he acts out examples during a lecture to his Physics 220 class, an introduction to astronomy.

When discussing the shuddering effect of gravitational waves, he makes his body shudder. While talking about atoms colliding, he drives the fist of his right hand into the open palm of his left. And if going through the motions is not enough, he adds his own sound effects. For 50 minutes his body twists and his voice fluctuates to help illustrate the concepts he wants his students to understand.

"The louder I talk, the greater the amplitude," he tells the students while raising his voice and stressing the word "louder."

But not all of his examples are as easy to understand. Sometimes he will try and explain something that he is not sure about himself. "I admit, some things known I don't know. I call it magic."

Explaining how light waves affect sight, he tells the class, "We have a whole chain of them coming to our eyes. Bing. There's a picture. If we don't understand it, it's magic." Throughout the lecture that sometimes resembles a stage show peppered with light humor, Staib uses numerous visuals as his supporting cast. While explaining light waves, he uses an elastic cord, a slide projector and an overhead projector. But in every example, Staib makes sure he is not outdone by the cast, even when he is not clear on the concept himself.

Staib, whose beard, glasses and thinning brown hair give him the look of a made-for-the-movies scientist, says he thinks some students get upset with him because of the difficulty they have taking notes. Occasionally he will throw out a term and explain it. If a student asks him to define the word, he explains it in a different way.

Other times he will mention a word and tell students not to worry about the meaning, "I'm just letting you know that I know some big words."

Physics

A veteran of 17 years here, Staib says he tries to "strike a compromise between a completely organized course" and one in which he can anticipate students questions.

"I don't want students to come and take a lot of notes. I don't want them to write down a definition and memorize it. I go into class with three or four ideas. I want to pass on experience. Give the students an appreciation so they can make a decision whether they like it or not," he says.

Senior Lisa Jones says, "It's wonderful how animated he is (but) it's not the easiest thing to understand." Although the subject is not always easy, talking to the instructor is. "He's very approachable."

In his office, Staib takes on an entirely different disposition — more relaxed and less animated.

His office reveals the passion he has for the subject. Pictures of the moon's surface, the cloud tops of Jupiter and a large telescope hang over the desk.

Bumper stickers that read "Legalize Physics," "Join the Physics generation" and "Physics makes the world go round," are pasted on another wall beside the desk.

"I like to talk Physics. I could talk about it all day," he says, leaning back in his chair with hands clasped behind his head and feet resting on the desk. "I try to talk about it as if I just discovered it. I try to pass on the excitement."

In class Staib occasionally mentions a word and tells students not to worry about its meaning. "I'm just letting you know that I know some big words," he says.

Newman 'can't accept losing'

By Kerry Coffelt
staff writer

JMU men's basketball captain John Newman expects nothing but the best from himself and his teammates. He also hates to lose.

After last season's first-round loss to William and Mary in the ECAC South (now the Colonial Athletic Association), in which Newman scored a career-high 23 points, he let his teammates know how he felt.

"I told everybody that if they weren't going to give their best, then don't come back," Newman said. "I can't accept losing."

Dukes' coach John Thurston thought enough of Newman's attitude and leadership to name the junior captain for this season.

"We think that John has exhibited outstanding leadership characteristics in his first two seasons at JMU, and we think enough of him and his performance on and off the court to select him as our team captain," Thurston said.

The selection made Newman the first underclassman captain at JMU since Pat Dosh in 1976-77.

"It was really a shock to me," said the 6-foot-5, 218-pound Newman. "It's a great honor. I'm proud the coaches had enough faith in me."

Though Newman has a new role this season, he, along with the team (4-16 heading into tonight's contest with American) have struggled. And that is something Newman loathes.

"(Losing) is killing me," Newman said. "It's been frustrating. Every game we go through a spurt where we don't score. I can't pinpoint why."

Newman leads the team in rebounds with 5.2 a game and is third in scoring with 9.8 points a game. He is also third on the team in assists and steals while leading the club in free throw percentage at over 80 percent. But Newman said he is not satisfied with his play, especially his shooting from the floor where he makes under 42 percent of his attempts.

"In scoring and rebounding, I don't think I've done as well as I should," he said. "I also haven't had a great shooting season from the floor."

This season has been particularly hard on Newman because losing is something he hasn't had a history of doing.

As a senior at Page Senior High School in Greensboro, N.C., Newman started on a team that finished 26-0, won the state AAAA title and finished second nationally in the final USA Today basketball poll.

The other four starters on that team have also gone on to bigger things. The most notable is Danny Manning, who is the star performer for Kansas' 5th-ranked basketball team.

"Danny was like the kid on the team," Newman said. "We all looked out for him. I knew he had the potential to be one of the best players in the nation."

Mike Foster, who is the starting point guard for South Carolina, was also in the starting line-up for Page. The other starters were Haywood Jeffries, who is a split-end for North Carolina State's football team, and Walker Poole, who received a prestigious academic scholarship to attend North Carolina.

"Our team in high school was real close, like a family," Newman said. "I'm proud to be associated with those guys."

Newman said he has that same attitude about this year's JMU squad even though the on-court results don't compare with his Page days.

"I still have confidence in this team," Newman said. "This team has enough talent to beat any team in the country when we're playing together. To be honest, if we play like we practice, I don't see any goal we can't accomplish."

"It's so frustrating when you know you can do better. I'm still proud of this team, proud of this university and proud of our fans."

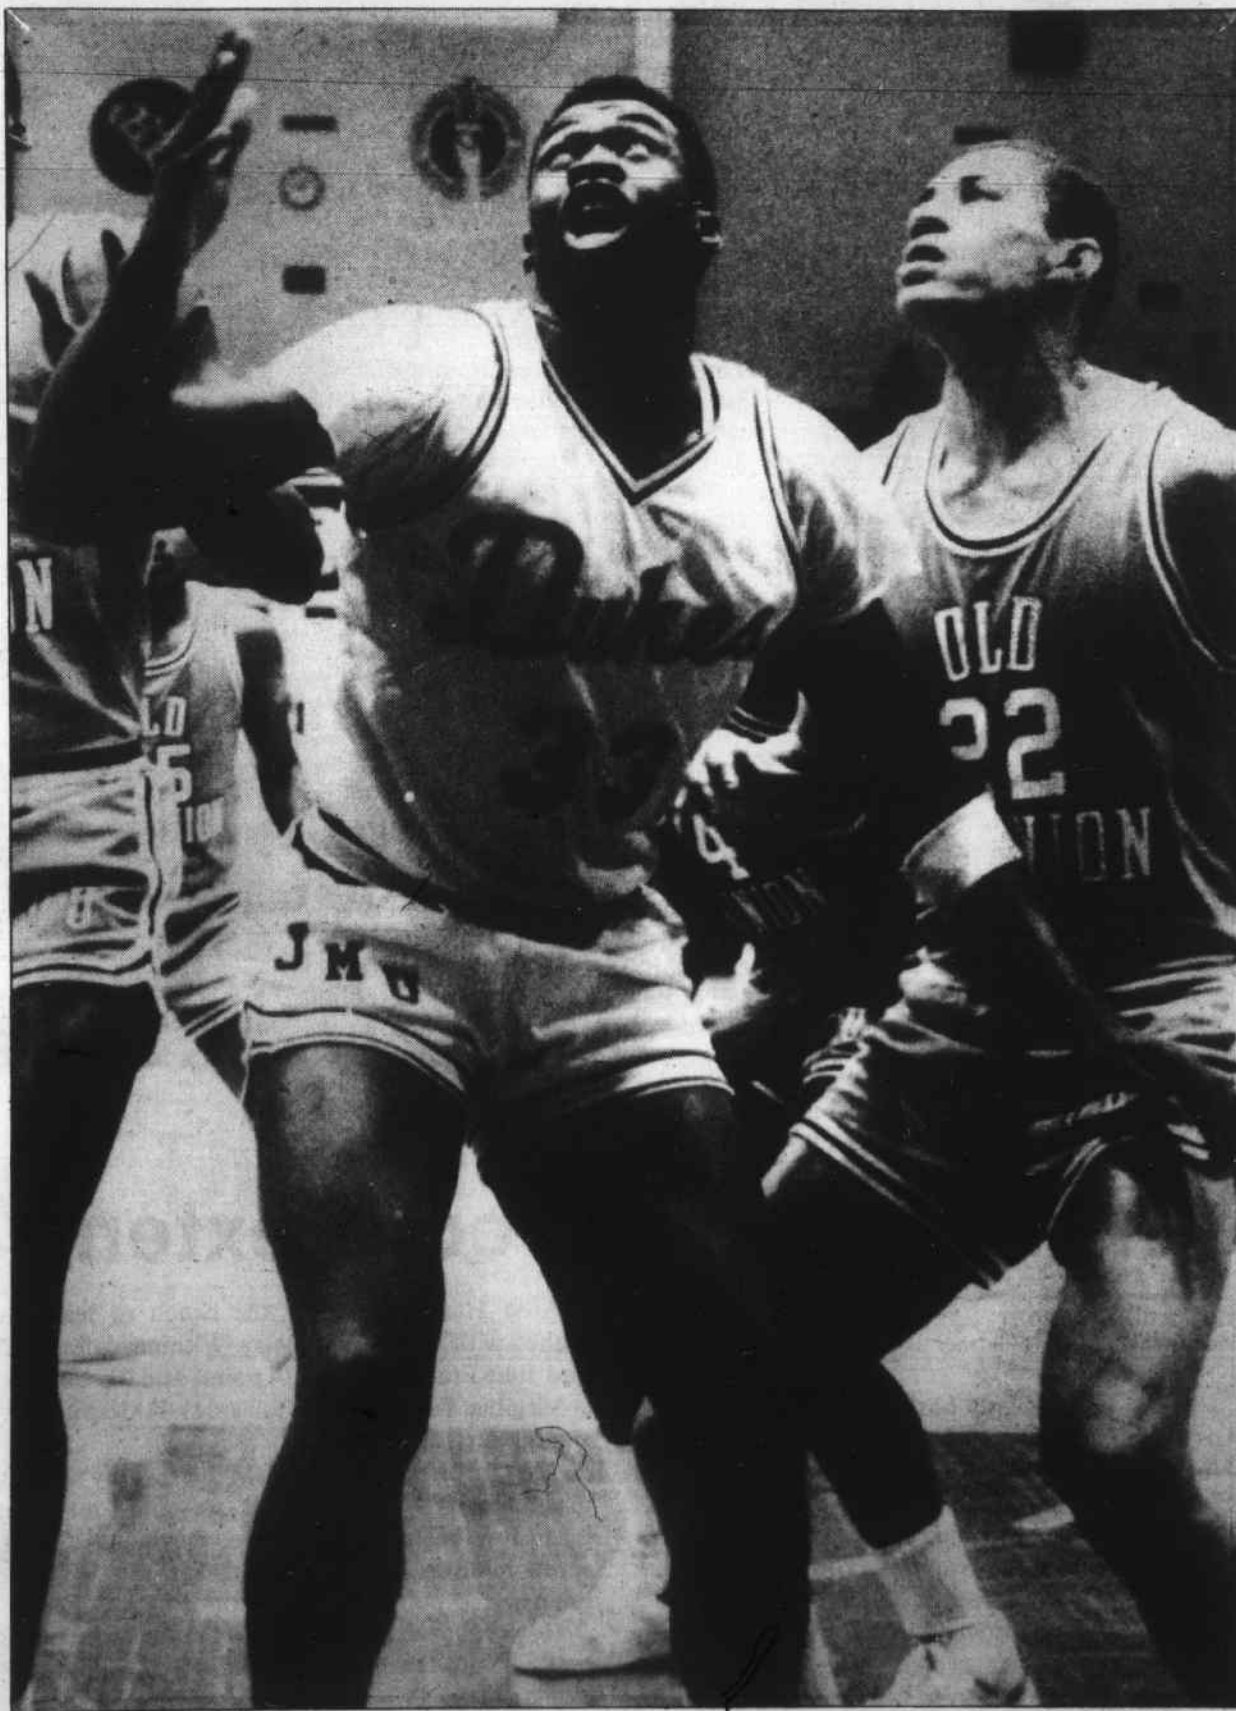

There haven't been many bright spots for Newman this season, but one of his biggest thrills happened when he walked on the floor of New York's Madison Square Garden, where the Dukes were playing in the Holiday Festival over Christmas.

"It was a great feeling," he said. "When I walked on the court, I felt like I was on top of the world. That is a dream playing in Madison Square Garden. What bigger place to play?"

Newman hopes more thrills will come for JMU on the basketball floor this season, and if it's up to Newman, they will.

"I play as hard as I can, and I'm going to do as much as I can to make this team win," he said.

Dukes' captain John Newman (33) has had a hard time dealing with JMU's losing campaign thus far. It is a far cry from his undefeated high school team in North Carolina.

Second half blues plague Dukes again

By Rob Washburn
staff writer

The JMU men's basketball team continued to play to a familiar tune in Monday's 59-53 loss to Old Dominion — call it the second half blues.

Though it's not as predictable as the singing of the national anthem before every game, the loss was the fourth consecutive time the Dukes blew a halftime lead and the ninth time this season JMU led at halftime before losing the contest in the final 20 minutes.

"A Top 25 team finds a way to win on the road, and that's what they did," JMU head basketball coach John Thurston said. "When you're four and whatever we are (4-16) you find a way not to, and that's what we did."

Part of the Dukes' problems stemmed from the Monarch's match-up zone defense. JMU was never quite able to figure out the defense, resulting in 17 Dukes' turnovers and a 26-14 rebounding edge for ODU. The 14 rebounds is a JMU record for fewest caroms in a game.

"The defense they played we have not yet seen this year," Thurston said. "It caused us some problems, but we turned the ball over too many times on the press."

The game began as if it was going to be a long night for JMU. The Dukes turned the ball over on seven of their first 11 possessions, and trailed 12-4 after the first seven minutes. But JMU went on a 10-2 run over the game's next four minutes, tying the contest at 14.

The Dukes stayed close for the remainder of the half, and a Eric "Boo Boo" Brent jumper with :26 left gave JMU a 25-23 lead at halftime. Brent hit six of seven shots in the first half to lead the Dukes with 12 points, but scored only two over the final 20 minutes.

At the start of the second half, JMU didn't slip into its doldrums right away. Junior guard Kevin Sutton and senior forward Todd Banks put on a two-man show for the Dukes in the half's first five minutes to increase the JMU lead to six at one point.

For the second consecutive game, Sutton got extensive playing time for the Dukes. He did an effective job of running the JMU attack, while playing a career-high 35 minutes. He also set Banks up for a number of easy shots.

"When Todd gets the ball inside it's either two points, or a free throw or hopefully a three-point play," Sutton said. "I love throwing the ball to Todd."

Thurston said, "I thought Kevin Sutton did a good job coming off the bench and giving us some composure when we really lost it out there."

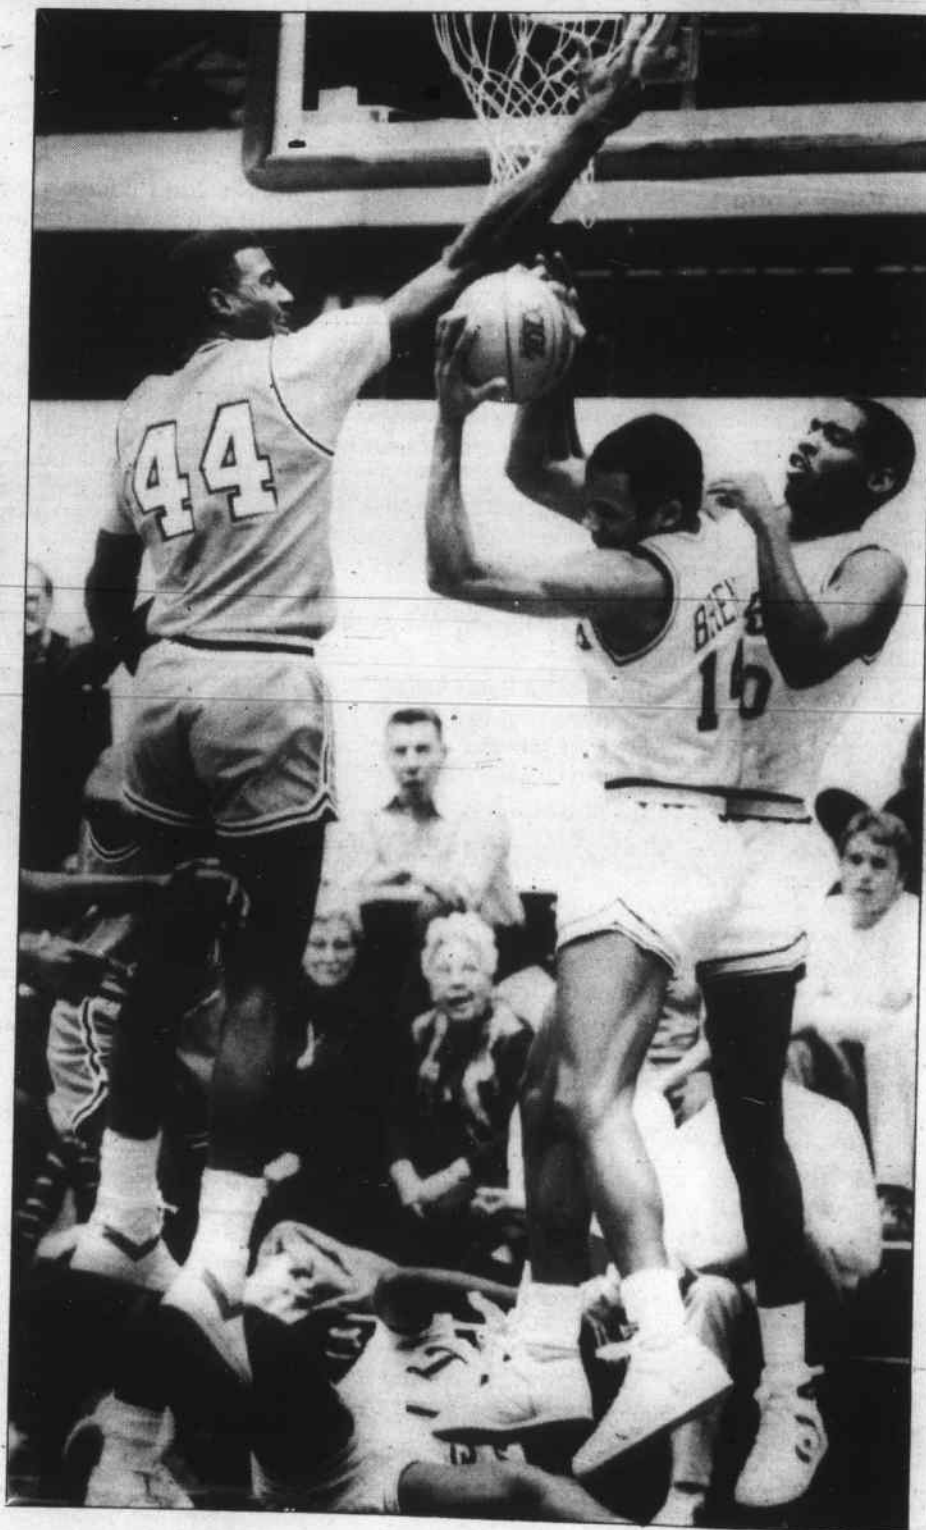

Banks, coming off a career-high 32-point game against George Mason, took control at the start of the second half, scoring JMU's first 10 points. He finished the game with a team-high 21 points and four rebounds.

"Todd is not doing anything that he's not capable of doing," Thurston said. "The motion that we put in the other day helps him a lot. He's not going to do that every night out, but he's capable of having those nights and having 16 or 17-point nights."

While Banks was leading the JMU second-half scoring, the guard duo of Frank Smith and Keith Thomas took over for the Monarchs. The two combined for just eight points in the first meeting between the two teams this season, and only had a basket apiece in the first half. In the second half, however, they combined for 24 of the 36 ODU points.

"We took away the inside game... but Frankie Smith did a heck of a job," Thurston said. "We worked hard on not letting (Kenny) Gattison beat us, and I don't think he did. We got hurt by a point guard."

Move to 19th in AP poll

Women defeat Tech, extend win streak to 10

By Paul Bergeron
staff writer

The JMU women's basketball team responded to the challenge of Metro Conference member Virginia Tech Wednesday night as they posted a convincing 81-59 win at the Convocation Center.

The win upped the Dukes record to 18-2 and was their tenth straight victory. The team's home record remains perfect at 10-0.

JMU also improved its positions in both newspaper polls this week. The Philadelphia Inquirer-Associated Press poll placed JMU 19th (up from 20th), and USA Today entered JMU 24th in their Top 25. It was the first week JMU appeared in the USA Today poll.

Alisa Harris came off the bench to lead the Dukes with 16 points. Betsy Witman canned 15 and Julie Franken added 14 points and 9 rebounds.

Virginia Tech's record fell to 11-9, despite putting up a strong fight.

Tech surprised a spirited JMU crowd by moving ahead early. The Hokies held two- and four-point leads for the first 12 minutes. Down 22-20 with seven minutes to play, the Dukes ran off nine unanswered points to go in front to stay.

However several Tech baskets at the close of the half cut into the lead. JMU led 37-30 at intermission.

Opening the second half with a man-to-man defense enabled JMU to shut down the Hokies. Tech was shut out for the first four minutes of the second half while JMU maintained a double-digit lead.

The win revenged a 73-62 loss at Blacksburg last year. Tech erased a five-point JMU halftime lead in that game.

Head coach Shelia Moorman welcomed the Virginia Tech strong effort.

"That was the hardest we've been pressured," Moorman said.

Moorman also enjoyed the break away from the conference schedule. "It's good to get out of the conference. I think we can relax and play a looser game."

JMU continues to play out of conference as they compete at the Marshall University Invitational Tournament this weekend.

JMU and ODU exchanged leads throughout the second half. The game was tied seven times, with the last one coming with 4:36 remaining and the two tied at 46. However, the Monarchs ran off the next six points to take a 52-46 lead with 2:38 left.

The Dukes cut the lead to 57-53 on a Banks' jumper with 46 seconds to play, and then forced an ODU turnover with 16 seconds remaining. But Banks missed a jumper with 10 seconds remaining, allowing the Monarchs to escape with the win.

One positive note defensively for the Dukes was the play of center Chad Keller. The 6-foot-8 freshman made his second start of the season and effectively stopped ODU's All-America candidate Kenny Gattison. Gattison scored 30 points against JMU in the teams' first meeting in Norfolk, but was held to just 13 Monday night.

"Chad leans on you," Thurston said. "He makes us stronger in the middle of the zone because he takes up a lot of space. He did a good job the other night (George Mason) and I hope I can see that for the next four years."

JMU (4-16, 2-6) travels to George Mason today to play American University before returning home Saturday to play Navy.

TV replays necessary to keep public informed

To the editor:

Any death is a tragedy. When the nation can witness such disasters, it becomes more personal to each of us. I was quite offended by Erik Hargreaves' distasteful cartoon on the issue of news media replays of the shuttle disaster.

No one forces you to watch television. If Mr. Hargreaves was that distraught over the many replays, he could have turned off his set.

Our country has witnessed replays of presidential shootings, hostage releases and countless other events just as tragic as the shuttle disaster. I don't particularly want to be kept in the dark about major issues and I believe other citizens are equally as interested. Since everyone watches the news at different times, replays are necessary to insure everyone will get to see these important events.

Mr. Hargreaves has yet to disappoint me by creating a cartoon that is amusing, clever or tasteful. In the future, I suggest to The Breeze staff and Mr. Hargreaves that they choose their topics more carefully.

Satellite format no better than long graduation

To the editor:

I am writing in response to The Breeze's recent editorials supporting a satellite graduation format. This particular graduation option will not work.

I graduated in May 1984 so I feel I can speak from experience. The long graduation is not that bad. Yes, all of us graduated as a class but then those who did not wish to stay for the reading of the names left. Those of us who stayed had a good time watching our friends in other schools graduate.

There are three disadvantages to the satellite format. First, what about those parents who have two children graduating from separate schools? They then have to decide who will see which son or daughter graduate.

Secondly, those students graduating may wish to see students in other schools graduating. Many of us have friends, relatives, boyfriends and girlfriends who will be graduating at the same time in different schools. How are we supposed to decide between our own graduation and the graduation of our friends and/or relatives?

The third disadvantage to the satellite graduation regards those alumni returning to graduation. Many people come back not to see one or two people graduate but several people in different schools. The satellite graduation may not only discourage alumni from returning but may also discourage many graduates from participating in their own graduation.

Graduation is for the students, not for the convenience of others. Let's keep at least one tradition going strong at JMU.

Female athletes earn limelight

To the editor:

I want to compliment the sports staff of The Breeze for their coverage of women's sports in the Jan. 27 issue. While I have been at JMU, women's athletics has been denied such reporting. This causes JMU's outstanding female athletes to be overlooked. I hope you can keep up the good coverage. With the support of The Breeze, perhaps JMU's sports fans will capitalize on the excitement that women's sports teams can provide.
