Resident Adviser Robbed, 'Warned'

By FRANK RATHBUN

A resident advisor of Weaver dorm, who recently reported a keg violation in his dorm, has lately been the victim of theft, vandalism to his car, and threatening notes and phone calls.

Brock Price told The Breeze that items stolen from his room in Weaver dorm included a calculator, a watch, a completed research paper due the next day and about $25.

Price's car has been vandalized three times during the month of November. He reported that the damages consisted of dents and scratches to the body and slashed seats. Repair costs have been estimated at $740.

Numerous threatening notes such as, "you've had it"

Boxes Reserved

All students signing up for a room in one of the M-series dorms this spring will automatically receive a mail box in the Chandler Post Office.

No definite plans have been formulated, but all residents of Eagle, Chandler, or Shorts dormitories next year will be assigned a box in Chandler, according to William Merck, vice president of business affairs.

have been left on his door memo board. He has also received threatening phone calls, which have come at various hours during the day and night. Price said the notes and calls have slackened off during the last two weeks.

When asked who might be responsible for these things, Price said, "I'd rather not say who because I might be wrong. If I did know for sure, I'd tell you."

Price further stated, "I guess you could say I'm just numb about the situation," and added, "there's really nothing left they could do."

The incidents have been reported to the college security police and are currently being investigated, according to Jay Crider, chief of security.

Womens' Commission Asks Rape Statutes Revision

By CYNTHIA CARNEY

"Rape is the unlawful carnal knowledge of a female of the age of 16 or more, forcibly and against her will, or of a female child under that age with or against her will." Definition of Rape Title 18, Code of Virginia

It sounds alright so far, although it doesn't provide for the rape of a male (which does happen you know, there are such things as a male raping a male, and there was a case at the University of Virginia where two females tried to rape a man).

"Rape may be committed as well on a woman unchaste, or a common prostitute, as on any other woman. In matter of evidence, however, want of chastity may, within recognizable limits, be shown as rendering it more probable that she consented."

It's good to know that even though at least 80 per cent of the women on this campus are "unchaste" they can still be raped. But if any of these women were raped, the prosecutor could find evidence to support this unchastity, and use it against the woman in a court of law—thus minimizing the chances of finding the defendant guilty.

"Force adequate to overcome resistance must be used." "A consent induced by fear of bodily harm or personal violence is no consent."

SGA Proposes Booster Club

By BARBARA BURCH

A boosters club is currently being planned by the student government association (SGA), to promote athletic tradition at Madison, according to SGA president John Lounsbury.

According to Lounsbury, Madison athletics have grown too large and too quickly, not allowing for the growth of a sports tradition. Presently, the only kind of enthusiasm shown at basketball games is the banging together of wooden blocks by the crowd, which was picked up from Old Dominion University. "When Old Dominion comes to Madison this year, we don't want to be sitting there using their gimmick," Lounsbury said.

Ideally, the boosters club, for which a name has not yet been chosen, would cost a small fee, such as $1 per semester. The member would receive a membership card which would guarantee him a good reserved seat at the games, and reduced prices on t-shirts and hats.

If membership is high enough, buses could be provided to important away games, and fund-raising dances could be held after games at discount to members.

The goal of a boosters club would be to get all students involved in cheering at athletic events as a large single group, not just as individual small groups.

Lounsbury said that possible pre-game parties could be scheduled at the student union to promote enthusiasm about the games.

The boosters club would be a separate organization, started by the SGA, but with its own constitution, Lounsbury said.

The club would not function only for football and basketball, but for all sports. The SGA hopes that if membership is high enough, that a representative group could attend all men and women's athletic events according to their individual preferences.

Currently, Madison does not have a "home court advantage" because the crowd doesn't show enough enthusiasm to back the team, according to Lounsbury.

It is hoped that the boosters club will establish some tradition, and give Madison a trademark by which it can be

Commission Asks Revision

It seems the 'consent' phrase defines the 'force' phrase, and provides for the circumstances when a victim is terrorized with a knife or physical harm, and chooses not to resist because of fear.

But, as illustrated in a case that is stated in the 'force' stipulation, the second phrase, doesn't protect women who are not wounded in a rape. The case used to illustrate the code said that the woman plaintiff had one bruise on each knee after the alleged assault. She testified that the man had pinned her against the seat of a car. However, the defendant was found not guilty.

And what about a situation in which a woman is so frightened that she can't move, or she goes into shock. Is this consent?

Rape is difficult to define -- each situation has to be taken individually and rape laws must be flexible enough to cover all situations.

The Fairfax County Commission on Women is asking the 1976 Virginia Assembly in January to direct the Virginia State Crime Commission to study rape and sexual assault statutes in Virginia. The women themselves are not going to suggest any changes to the Assembly, according to Pam McCoach, chairwoman of the committee, although they have an idea of what needs to be done.

For instance, McCoach does know that most women who are raped do not even report the crime -- for fear of humiliation from publicity and the authorities. Of the rape cases that do go to court, less than half of the defendants are prosecuted. Of the ones who go to jail, most serve less than one-fourth of their term, according to McCoach.

McCoach also cited a recent case involving a 16-year old deaf and dumb girl who was assaulted at a Rehabilitation Center by a school employee. The employee was acquitted because he thought the girl was consenting, since she did not scream. McCoach cited this example to emphasize that the statutes for handicapped and mentally ill women must be revised.

This year, the Fairfax County Commission on Women hopes to receive enough mail in support of the study to influence the legislators that there is a need for changes in the laws.

Last year, the General Assembly voted down a move to study the rape statutes, because they said there was "insufficient need and interest."

Letters in support of the study can be sent to the Fairfax County Commission on Women, PO Box 786, Springfield, VA 22150 or can be sent through the campus mail to Donna Cox, PO Box 667 by Thursday.

Public Speaker Results

Jeanne Eggleston won first place in the Fall 1975 Public Speaking Contest.

Other winners include: Jamie Ely, second; Michele

Manning and Curtis Wood, third; and Julie Crane, fourth.

The first round involved all 36 sections of the Communication 200 sections, from which one individual was chosen as representative speaker from each section.

This elimination round was followed by a semi-finalist round, from which eight semi-finalists advanced to the finals. Each student delivered the same speech used in the semi-final round.

Judges for the first two rounds included communication arts department faculty members.

Magician To Appear

Mr. Fingers, a self-proclaimed artist in residency who practices a range of feats varying from clairvoyance to sleight of hand, will be appearing at the campus center Thursday-Saturday. Having appeared at Madison a number of times in the past, Mr. Fingers is known for his habit of wandering throughout the campus center, practicing his spare of the moment round-about antics on anyone who happens to fall within his reach.

He will present a free show at 8 p.m. Saturday night in the Campus Center lobby.

"Mr. Fingers" Weiner has entertained audiences in hospitals and hotels, but specializes on college appearances. He is a graduate of Chavez College, the only recognized school of magic in the world, and has been nominated "Man of the Year" by numerous organizations of magic in the past.

Dillard Voted MVP:

Dukes Win Tournament

By WADE STARLING

Plagued by poor shooting and sloppy ball-handling throughout the game, the Madison College basketball team came from behind in the second half to down Christian Brothers College 76-66 Friday night, as Madison won their second straight Madison Invitational Tournament.

The Dukes advanced to the finals Friday night by downing Davis and Elkins College 88-73. In the consolation game, Davis and Elkins downed Susquehanna to take third place in the tournament.

Madison took a quick 8-0 lead, and appeared on their way to an easy victory. But Christian Brothers fought back, and the halftime score was tied 37-37.

Christian Brothers started the second half scoring with a jump shot from center Gary Cowens to take a 39-37 lead. Pat Dosh then hit on two free throws to tie the game and, with 17:05 left, Dosh again scored on a fast break pass from Sherman Dillard to take a 45-39 lead.

But their lead again did not last long. Forward Pat Kaine hit a jumper to tie the game for Christian Brothers and, with 11:58 remaining, John Kuntz hit two foul shots to give Christian Brothers a 49-47 lead.

Madison fought back and, with 8:17 left in the game, center John Cadman scored and was fouled, and his successful free throw gave the Dukes the lead for good at 57-55.

The Dukes were hurt by poor shooting throughout the game. They hit for only 20 of 62 shots for 32.3 per cent.

They also had a hard time handling the ball, as they committed 14 turnovers.

"We played good enough to win," said Madison coach Lou Campanelli afterwards. "And that's the name of the game."

Campanelli admitted the Dukes did not play their best basketball, but added that he didn't feel he had to make excuses.

"It all evens out," he said. "You don't have to be embarrassed when you win."

Controversy arose before the game as guard Leon Baker was suspended indefinitely from the team. The suspension could mean that Baker will play no more this season. Baker was played sparingly in the first half of Friday's game, but was dressed in street clothes during the second half. He was suspended Saturday for disciplinary reasons resulting from an exchange of words between Campanelli, assistant coach John Thurston, and Baker during halftime Friday night.

Sherman Dillard, who was named the tournament's Most Valuable Player for the second year in a row, led the Dukes Saturday with 25 points and 10 rebounds. Strong games were also turned in by forwards David Correll and Pat Dosh, who each had 17 points. In addition, Correll had 12 rebounds to go along with Dosh's 11.

The Dukes shot better Friday night against Davis and Elkins, but were still hurt by careless ball-handling. They shot for 50.7 per cent, but turned the ball over 20 times.

Dillard, who is averaging just under 30 points a game, was again high scorer with 26 points. Correll was next for the Dukes with 18.

Named to the all-tournament team were Dillard, Correll, and Joey Pfahler for Madison. Other members were Henry Haeger, from Christian Brothers, and Kerry Magee and Miles McCollum for Davis and Elkins.

Tonight the Dukes host East Tennessee State at 8:00, in a game which should be a stern test to the Dukes 4-0 record. East Tennessee is a very big and aggressive team, and should play a very physical game.

Women Take Third

The Madison College women's basketball team stayed undefeated Friday night with a 67-63 overtime win over Salisbury State.

Katherine Johnson scored 30 points and pulled down 12 rebounds for the Duchesses, while Mindy Childress and Pat Reynolds scored 12 and 10 points respectively.

Madison had a runaway game with Frostburg Wednesday, as they won 80-38. The Duchesses trailed 8-7 with five minutes gone in the game, but Mindy Childress scored a minute later and the Duchesses were never threatened again. With about five minutes to go in the first half, Madison went on a scoring spree of 14 unanswered points. Katherine Johnson scored eight of her 19 points during this three minute period with three field goals and two free throws. This put Frostburg out of striking range for good.

Leading scorers for the Duchesses were Katherine Johnson, with 19 points and Mindy Childress, with 14. Mindy Childress led the way in rebounds with 12.
