Chinese Tire Tariffs Defended, Disliked

WASHINGTON — A White House official defended the Obama administration’s decision to levy new retaliatory tariffs on Chinese tires Wednesday, saying it was an act of trade protectionism, as opposed to “market disruption,” as the European Union contended that it violated World Trade Organization rules.

Defended, Disliked

In signing the tariffs, the president moved to fulfill his campaign promise to impose the extra duties on tires. The European Union, along with China’s trade officials, charged, or was an act of trade protectionism, as opposed to “market disruption,” as the European Union contended that it violated World Trade Organization rules.

When the United States started using Guantanamo Bay to indefinitely detain individuals without a fair trial or hearings, and later tortured them, the villains who authorized the malicious program became war criminals. Though we don’t know quite yet who, in the eyes of every U.S. citizen by undermining our beliefs with the pathetic, and sadly believable pretense of national security.

Obama needs to take steps, such as criminal investigations, to rectify the sin of his predecessor and show the rest of the world, and especially our own citizenry, that America is still strong enough to tread the path of decency and hold even its own leaders of government accountable.

If he fails to do so, if he only “looks ahead,” tacit approval is given to future presidential illegality. Bypassing the Constitution to serve personal agendas might be the least of future civil liberty rape.

Allowing the CIA to torture, both mentally and physically, prisoners of war was flat out wrong. Not only does torture violate the Geneva Conventions, but information gained through torture is notoriously inaccurate.

Torturing questionably guilty prisoners violates something more fundamental than law — it defiles our supposedly deeply rooted ethics. Remember those?

Allegedly, ethics are the glue holding our fragile little democracy together. Without them, we’d be just as bad as “the terrorists,” right?

What’s with the double standard all of a sudden? America historically criticizes the harsh detention practices of other countries while at the same time conducting our own in an offshore prison.

We’re not doing it on U.S. soil, so according to the former administration, what’s the big deal?

As the supposed beacon of hope, progress and democracy, a magnificent and terrible force unlike any the world has yet seen, we really don’t expect better from America. Or maybe I’m just going too far and expect too high a standard of ethical behavior.

After all, we were the ones who decimated Native American culture, rounded up and interned our own citizens and supported widespread eugenics movements, so a bit of offshore moral-promiscuity would only be a tiny smudge on Uncle Sam’s heavily stained wife-beater. Still, that shouldn’t make it acceptable.

Obama needs to send a message to the world, indeed our own citizenry, that the previous administration’s nasty habit of pushing liberty to the back of the proverbial bus was incomprehensible and despicable.

The Department of Justice needs to investigate, prosecute and punish. Like a watered-down Nuremberg, those string pullers at the top, the head of the snake, need to be flushed out and tried for their crimes.

While former Vice President Cheney still justifies the policies of torture as necessary to keep our country safe and holds that, in fact, they did a tip-top job of doing so, I find it remarkably difficult to believe anything spewed from his venomous gullet.

Is my logic so flawed as to believe torturing your enemy only endorses his burning desire to exterminate you? Even though I’m a raging left-wing “propagandist,” I still bear resemblance to a human being — a citizen of America — and I know we should never lower ourselves to the tactics of our enemy no matter how dire the perceived threat is.

If we want to “prevent another 9/11,” as Bush so frequently reiterated, the strategy should not include shaming America with further moral, constitutional and illegal degradation.

We used to take responsibility by holding our CIA, our President and most especially ourselves accountable for failing to uphold the primal moral scruples that should set us apart from the rest of the world.

The Beatles: Rock Band

By JEFF WADE

contributing writer

"The Beatles: Rock Band" has been discussed to the point of being little more than a takeoff for its namesake, but The Beatles have had every aspect of their legacy dissected by both fans and the media and it is time for the band to get its due.

The game's story mode covers the Beach Boys's entire career, from "Surf's Up" to "Abbey Road," and it's a great tool to help people follow every step of the band's career arc. The few particularly grievous omissions such as "Norwegian Wood," "A Day in the Life," and "Help!" will be smoothed. Developer Harmonix has promised to fix a hole by offering the option of " Sgt. Pepper's Lonely Hearts Club Band" and "Abbey Road" as downloadable content.

The game's storyline captures the cause and effect of the band's music. During the course of the game, players encounter songs that are popular with their fans, and each song is accompanied by a brief bulletin about the band and their lives.

The Beatles: Rock Band is a fantastic combination of two of the most beloved bands in pop culture. Everyone from Mamas and Papas to The Beatles can find a song they know and love.

The Beatles: Rock Band features the four members of the band and their signature instruments, as well as a variety of other popular instruments. The band members play in a coordinated way, with each member controlling the corresponding instrument.

The game allows players to learn and master new songs, and to progress through levels, unlock new band members and instruments, and compete with friends online. The game also features a variety of game modes, including a career mode, where players can create their own band and progress through levels, and a party mode, where players can compete against each other online.

The Beatles: Rock Band is a great way to learn about The Beatles and their music, and to have fun doing it. So don't forget to friend us on Facebook to win a prize!
Dutchman Fredrik Konijnendijk will likely start, but how much time he’ll have to play is still up in the air. The team’s attitude toward his participation is reflective of the message put across to the team by Baillie.

Konijnendijk has been on the field since the beginning of the season, but plans for a college team has opened doors for the senior player.

“We don’t have school (goals),” said Matthews. “That’s a new concept, a new environment, a new challenge.”

It’s time the JMU bookstore starts stockpiling.

If not for sophomore Dixon Wright’s missed overtime field goal, JMU’s Third Straight Season-Opener at an ACC School Ends in a 38-35 Overtime Loss at Maryland.

“ACC football moves very fast,” freshman quarterback Tim Chapman said. “That’s the play that I’m supposed to make, and I made it.”

Turner redeemed himself when he directed a 70-yard field goal in overtime.

“Still had some more chances at winning the game, but failed both times.”

One was stalled by a holding penalty that gave the Dukes a second and 19 at their own 38.

Maryland sophomore kicker Dixon Wright had an inauspicious start to 2009 in Saturday night’s 38-35 overtime loss at Maryland. Wright struggled throughout, missing his first extra-point attempt and converting his other field goal attempt blocked to end the first half. His debut as a placekicker was not helped by his covering a succession in the first quarter. Wright made a big game-saving block versus Maryland.

JMU’s 11 penalties, including a second and 19 at the Maryland 23-yard line, gave the Dukes a second-and-19 at their own 38.

Maryland also had success on third down, converting six-of-14 on the night.

Maryland quarterback Danny O’Connor completed 24-of-33 for 345 yards and scored twice.

While the Dukes’ kicking woes still need to be addressed, they appear to be in better quarterback health. Turner took a beating in his first start against the Terrapins but rebounded in his second career start against Maryland.

When sophomore kicker Dixon Wright struggled, the JMU offense was able to control the ball and execute.

Maryland’s second touchdown was set up by a 35-yard punt return by Adrian Cannon snuck just over the outstretched hands of a leaping Jamaris Sanders.

JMU’s 63 to 26 loss at Maryland.

“Very impressive effort,” senior linebacker Justin Thorpe said. "We made some mistakes, and they just executed off them." "It is like working every morning,” said Konijnendijk. "We have simple e-mails to college coaches from home in Holland."

It has been a change to play field hockey, but Konijnendijk has adapted. A year ago, Vivienne Konijnendijk shot 73 at the Robert Scott Invitational. This year, she placed eighth at the conference tournament. Konijnendijk said. "I understand most of the time the team, and the directions they give me."

Having an international coach, Baillie enjoys the diversity, but sometimes it can be difficult to communicate.

"I learn a lot from her," Konijnendijk said. "She has a different view of things."
Women’s Tennis JMU Invitational

Dan Gorin / The Breeze

Freshman Michelle Nguyen went 3-0 in the JMU Invitational over the weekend. She won the Flight C singles event without losing a set in her collegiate debut. The Invitational, held Friday and Saturday, was the opener for women’s tennis and is the only home meet of the fall.

Plans after college? I am going to JMU nursing school after I graduate with a bachelor’s [degree] in public health. I just got accepted and I will be here an extra two years doing that.

What will you miss the most about JMU after you graduate? The girls on my team. They are my best friends, and I am going to miss them more than anything. I’m not actually leaving until 2012, but it will be weird not playing on the team with them.

Eye Color:

Favorite band or singer? Rascal Flatts. I saw them in concert for the first time this summer. I am all about country music!

Dream vacation spot? Atlantis in the Bahamas. I have never seen anything quite as tropical, and it is a great place to rest.

What did you want to grow up to be when you were little? Something in the medical field. I never knew exactly what, but I knew I wanted to work in a hospital with patients.

What can’t you say ‘no’ to? Chocolate is my guilty pleasure. I have to eat something sweet after every meal.

Who’s your celebrity crush? Michael Vartan from “Never Been Kissed” — always been my favorite.

East Campus Library or Carrier? East Campus Library because I am always in HHS, and it is easier to park there.

What did you do this summer? I volunteered in the labor/delivery ward of my local hospital and taught tennis camps. I gained so much knowledge in the field I love.

Favorite hand oringer? Beaded. I love to wear anything that stands out.

What is your favorite food? Turkey sandwich from the Cheese Shop; I love the special sauce.

What can’t you live without? Chocolate is my guilty pleasure. I have to eat something sweet after every meal.

For fun or information, I like to know what I am doing in the future. Waiting to hear from nursing school was very difficult for me.

What’s the best part about being a student-athlete? Keeping in shape and having a team to go through it with. I think everyone should try the sport, whether they are good at it or not. It is great to be a part of a team.

What did you do in high school? I played volleyball, tennis, soccer, and basketball. I really enjoyed being a part of all the teams.

What did you want to do in high school? I wanted to be a nurse, but I changed my major in my last year of high school.

What was the best part about being in high school? Being a part of the team. I think that is the most important thing to do in high school.

What is the worst part about being in high school? Being away from home. It is hard to be away from your family and friends.

What did you enjoy the most in high school? Being a part of the team. I think that is the most important thing to do in high school.
