Yo, freshmen! A few things to watch out for.

Arrivals run smoothly despite construction

By Laurel Wissinger, arts editor

Shirley Stough aimed her video camera at the Chevy van pulling up behind Eagle Hall on Saturday afternoon. "Oh look, honey — here she comes!" she said to her husband as their daughter Michelle eased their overpacked vehicle into a makeshift parking place.

Michelle laughed as she climbed out of the van and saw her mother filming her arrival at JMU. "Mom never goes anywhere without that camera," she said, rolling her eyes. "I have my entire life captured on film."

"Michelle and her sister claim she does that just to get out of carrying things to the room," Michelle's father, Bob Stough, said.

Saturday was moving day for most of JMU's incoming freshmen. And at Eagle Hall, as if parents with video cameras were not enough, the construction of JMU's new College of Business building had taken Eagle's parking lot.

Despite the inconvenience, moving day this year "worked like clockwork," said Eagle Hall Director Mary Grace Schulz.

Traffic was diverted to the back of the building near the service sidewalk. Students were issued a blue card when they checked in, enabling them to park in one of the eight or 10 spaces beside the football stadium. As soon as they parked, volunteers — from the Baptist Student Union, Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship, Sigma Nu fraternity and residence life — unloaded the students' belongings.

In Michelle Stough's case, her mother's help was not missed. Volunteers from one of several campus organizations had Michelle's belongings spread out on a blue tarp in a matter of minutes. Several fraternity brothers stood by ready to carry the boxes, crates and bags up to her 8th floor room.

"People are being unloaded and having all their stuff in their rooms in as little as a half-hour," resident adviser Missy McGowan said.

"They were great," Eagle resident Erik Rahling said. "I think I carried up one thing, and by the time I turned around everything was gone."

Chris Erskine, one of about 1,950 incoming freshmen, decided to forego help and traffic lines and unload his car by himself. He claimed he had to park "kind of far away," but was glad he didn't have to navigate the sidewalk between Shorts and the construction site of Sonner Hall, JMU's new administration building. "There were just too many cars," he said.

Others, like Michelle Mayo, skipped the crowds entirely. "I moved in yesterday," she said. "I wanted to use the elevators."

of getting settled began after they were in their rooms.

"I had to leave the room while my dad put the loft together," Sandy Wordell said as she stood in the hall by her room. "He said I got in the way."

On another floor, two Sigma Nu fraternity brothers helped Wendy Garpow and her parents set up her loft. "I probably would have still been here trying to figure this thing out if it hadn't been for them," Bill Garpow laughed.

Wendy Garpow's roommate, Michelle Gallice, had trouble remembering which box she had packed what in. "It's going to take me at least three days to sort out this mess," she said, gesturing towards a heap of boxes and bags. "And even then I don't know where I'm going to put it all.

Martha Peterson seemed unconcerned about the storage space in her room. "I had prepared myself for a tiny room, and it's actually bigger than I thought," she said. "I think — I hope — everything will fit okay."

Roommates Kit DeSarno and Lisa Bishop struggled with the carpet they bought at the Warren Campus Center patio rug sale. "Getting that thing all the way across campus was a pain," DeSarno said.

While freshmen were rearranging and decorating, would-be entrepreneurs roamed the halls selling assorted JMU clothing and paraphernalia. Sigma Pi fraternity brothers Nick Tasakianakas and Brad McDonald sold all 25 of their "UVa sucks" T-shirts.

Cathy Mays, who bought the last shirt said, "My brother goes to school there. I can send it to him and show him I go to the better school."

FRESHMAN CLASS IS ADVISED TO THINK INDEPENDENTLY

By Wendy Warren
news editor

JMU freshmen received their first college homework assignment Saturday night.

At the 1989 Fall Freshman Convocation, Dr. Scott Stevens, assistant professor of information and decision sciences, asked JMU's newest students, "Is being well-rounded a good thing? Why?"

"Answers are due in four years," he added. The freshmen convocation is an annual event to welcome freshmen to campus.

Stevens examined the impact of a liberal arts education and encouraged students to think for themselves.

"Sharpen your mind to the point of the sharpest pencil and use it to write whatever you want," he said. "Learning is no longer a spectator sport. I don't even like the phrase 'receiving an education.' It sounds like you mail-ordered it.

"You must be an active participant in class even if you don't say a word," he said. "Ask questions. Ask yourself first, and if you don't get a good answer, ask someone else.

"Decide that your professor has decided to slip one boldfaced lie past you. I don't think he will do this, but it will give you the right attitude."

He also told the freshmen to forget the "I teach and you listen" education they might have received in high school.

"No matter how good a memorizer you are, it's not enough. We live in the age of computers now, and there are computers out there that will memorize the pants off you," he said. "Any medium-sized library will contain more pure facts than the most brilliant mind that ever sat on human shoulders."

"Learn to be flexible," he told the freshmen. "JMU can help with that goal, with programs like the liberal studies program."

"When you look at the program, it looks like an obstacle course," he said. "But when you are done, you won't be looking through a keyhole. You will see both sides of the issues."

"We have the same goals as you and your parents have — for you to reach beyond your expectations."

"We start a partnership on this very special day," Carrider said. "It's a partnership in the experience of living together, in caring and growing together."

ZIMMERMANN, JEROME SHIFT IN ACADEMIC AFFAIRS

By Martin Romjue
staff writer

As JMU students worked and vacationed this summer, some of JMU's administrators shuffled positions.

Dr. David Zimmerman, formerly assistant vice president for academic affairs, replaced Dr. Fay Reubush as an associate vice president in that office. Reubush retired July 1 after 23 years at JMU.

As assistant vice president, Zimmerman was right-hand man to Dr. Russell Warren, vice president for academic affairs. In his new position, Zimmerman keeps track of student records, updates the university catalog, and supervises the Bachelor of General Studies program and summer school.

Zimmerman also works with Dr. William Hall, an associate vice president in academic affairs who develops programs that improve professors' teaching and research skills.

Zimmerman served as assistant vice president since 1986. He came to JMU in 1979 as director of audio visual services, and worked as acting dean of libraries and learning resources in 1984-85.

Dr. Robert Jerome, an associate professor of economics, succeeds Zimmerman.

"I'll be doing whatever Dr. Warren needs done and doesn't have time to do," Jerome said of his new position.

"I'm here to free up his time," Jerome said of his new position. "I'm here to free up his time." Jerome also manages programs for honors students and tracks the budget for the Department of Academic Affairs.

In the records office — the department that documents a student's record of courses, grades and credits — assistant director Sherry Hood was promoted to director. She replaces Pauline Long who retired after working in the records office for 46 years.

JMU also hired a new dean and a head of an academic department this summer:

• Dr. Jean Ramage, former co-director of the school psychology program at San Diego State University, became the new dean of JMU's College of Education and Psychology July 15.

Ramage replaces Dr. Frank Luth, acting dean of the college, who has headed a panel that will help form JMU's science and technology college.

Ramage, a professor and administrator at San Diego State University since 1973, also chairs the National Consortium for Child Mental Health Services.

• Dr. Robert Koslow, former chairman of the physical education department at the University of Alabama, started supervising JMU's new department of physical education and sport — formerly called physical education and health science — in mid-July.

The disciplines split into two departments because "we felt they reached the point where they needed to have departmental identity," said Dr. Julius Roberson, dean of the College of Health and Human Services.

Koslow worked as an administrator and professor at the University of Alabama since 1986. He previously taught at Southern Methodist University and Indiana University.

Koslow succeeds Dr. Marilyn Crawford, who retired in July.
The truth behind familiar business names

By Marney Rich Kenan
Gannett News Service

Certainly, one of the most profound mysteries that has plagued man since time immemorial is the life and times of Thom McAn. Like Elvis sightings, Marilyn's death and Chappaquiddick, McAn's true story is aching to be told. Where did he live? How many pairs of shoes did he own? Did he know the Sibleys or Dr. Scholl?

Like Rowland Hussey Macy, Richard Warren Sears, James Cash Penny and Leon Leonwood Bean, old Thom must have an illustrious history.

At McAn's headquarters in Worcester, Mass., we learned the truth -- there is no McAn. "It's a made-up name," the spokeswoman said. "They wanted a familiar name that sounded Scottish. Something short, easy to remember. So they came up with Thom McAn."

She said she didn't know who "they" were. Talk about deceptive advertising. "But, a lot of people do call here and ask to speak to Thom McAn," she said.

Well, of course they do. Why do you think people call the Quaker Oats Company and ask for Aunt Jemima?

Because Aunt Jemima was a bubbly person and fun to talk to. Born in Montgomery County, Ky., she moved to Chicago shortly after the turn of the century and cooked for a judge's family, where her specialty was -- get ready -- pancakes. Aunt Jemima became famous at the World's Fair in Chicago in 1893 where, legend has it, she flipped more than a million pancakes by the time the fair was over. In 1923, Aunt Jemima, 89 and jolly as ever, died in a car accident.

What follows is actual documented evidence of real live people behind the products: not this kind of foolery. Betty Crocker keeps pulling. She seems to think she can change her hairstyle and put on a new set of pearls every 10 years or so and that'll keep us guessing.

Howard Johnson -- Howard Deering Johnson exactly -- would be appalled at the thought of a fictitious name to adorn his chain of restaurants. Johnson was such a showman it was his idea to paint the roofs brilliant orange to attract passing motorists.

He started the business in 1925 in Wollaston, Mass., in a small store where he made and sold the ice cream that originally brought him fame.

Before Duncan Hines, of Bowling Green, Ky., became famous for his cake mixes, he worked as a traveling salesman in the '20s and '30s. As a hobby, Hines would keep a notebook of his favorite restaurants.

In 1936, he published "Adventures in Good Eating" and regularly updated the book. During World War II, Hines cake mixes gained such popularity that he gave up selling. But he always loved to travel. In 1948, in his retirement, he wrote "Duncan Hines' Vacation Guide."

Dr. Pepper didn't invent Dr. Pepper, but he did own a drug store in Virginia and he had a beautiful daughter who fell in love with the young man who worked behind the fountain. Rome was always concocting new fountain flavors for his sweetheart. Dr. Pepper, however, didn't approve of the young suitor, and fired him. When he moved to Texas, the young man continued to experiment with soft drink ingredients in a soda fountain there, and customers, learning of his devotion to the daughter of Dr. Pepper, nicknamed their favorite concoction Dr. Pepper.

Fortunately, Romeo returned to Virginia and won Dr. Pepper's daughter's heart, while a customer in Texas was a beverage chemist and began promoting the soft drink.

Over in Chicago, young William "Billy" Scholl was busy making shoes when the number of complaints from customers led him to the conclusion that people abused their feet and somebody had better do something about it.

So he went to what is now Loyola University, got his medical degree at the age of 22 in 1904, and developed the first hand-made arch support.

In 1918, Scholl sponsored a series of walking contests throughout his retail stores across the country. Having invented the pedometer, which measures the distance a person walks, Scholl offered prizes to those who covered the most miles over a given period of time.

He also had a Cinderella Foot contest where women left their footprints on the "Pedo-Graph" in the store, and a panel of judges selected the most perfect foot. The foot was then prominently displayed in the newspaper. Dr. Scholl was often fond of saying that he "put the nation back on its feet."

Lea and Perrins, as in Worcestershire sauce, were John W. Lea and William Perrins two chemists in Worcester, England. In the mid-1800s, a British nobleman named Sir Marcus Sandys discovered a rare sauce in India and entrusted the recipe to the two chemists to make up a small amount for his own use. The nobleman would serve the sauce from time to time to the elite members of the nobility and soon word spread far beyond the town of Worcester. The town of Worcester is in the shire (or county) of Worcester, hence Worcestershire. Copyright 1989, USA Today/Apple College Information Network

NEWS BRIEFS

Mattel licenses Barbie to Purina

Ralston Purina Co.'s new cereal, Breakfast with Barbie, will be in supermarkets by mid-September. It is the first time Mattel has licensed Barbie to a package goods marketer. The fruit flavored cereal is primarily pink, Barbie's favorite color. The shapes will include hearts, bows, stars, cars and the initial B, which are all associated with the glamour world of Barbie.

Students charged for selling drugs

Wide receiver Cedric Riles, 21; offensive lineman Sean Henderson, 20; linebacker Errol Martin, 21; and former player Clyde French, all from the University of Utah, were arrested Aug. 10 on charges of trafficking cocaine and crack cocaine. The suspects also are charged with conspiracy. If found guilty, they could face the maximum penalties for the charges. Because six of the alleged cocaine sales — each defendant is charged with at least one — are claimed to have been made on campus, the defendants may be facing double prison sentences due to federal law that requires those guilty of selling cocaine on public school campuses to serve double prison sentences with a one-year mandatory term.

Court wins battle over child abuse

Florida's successful prosecution Thursday of a mother for delivering cocaine to her child through the umbilical cord signals the latest effort to end child abuse. Fewer than 20 women have been prosecuted for using illegal drugs during pregnancy. While several cases are pending in Ohio, Massachusetts and South Carolina, only Jennifer Johnson of Sanford, Fla., has been convicted.

Report confirms medical school applications down

The number of students applying to U.S. medical schools continued its decade-long decline last year, according to an annual report by the American Medical Association. There were 26,721 applicants to medical schools in the 1988-89 academic year, 1,402 fewer than the previous year.

Welcome and welcome back

We would like to extend a sincere welcome to returning students, and especially to each of the 1,950 members of the class of 1993.

Coming from 40 states (not counting the three states of Virginia Beach, Richmond and NoVA), they represent a third of those who applied.

Hailed at Saturday night's Fall Freshman Convocation as "the most talented we've ever had" by Vice President for Academic Affairs Russell Warren, this year's freshmen undoubtedly have high expectations of both themselves and their school.

Academically, they already have given proof of their potential. And more than ever, JMU must be prepared to encourage, challenge and stimulate the scholarly instinct, not pandering to freshman anxieties and distractions.

For though this year's astute freshmen may find JMU materially comforting — an excellent food service, hospitable living quarters, a charming campus (see the next editorial), and a party atmosphere — they are equally likely to notice that JMU can be as much a country club as a college. But here, whether you're a happy, educated camper or a complacent, hedonistic, anti-intellectual brat living off your parents' good intentions is up to you.

More fables of reconstruction

"Although the projects are temporarily disconcerting, each and every one will make a significant contribution towards a first-class university."

So says Director of Facilities Planning Steven Knickrehm. And although campus construction seems omnipresent, ugly, noisy, inconvenient, scarlet and a first-class pain, he's right.

It's about time JMU concentrated on improving its current facilities and resources, instead of on relatively fanciful proposals, like developing land masses and building technology schools.

It seems that JMU has gotten back to the here and now. But that's just the problem. Construction can be seen everywhere on every scale, from the General Services Building's facelift to the new Music Building. And the timing couldn't be worse.

But the heavy rain this summer, which Knickrehm called "absolutely astounding," has made it difficult to work. "For more than two days in a row," it all seems to be happening at once, Knickrehm said, because there have been "too many people in too few buildings" for a while in nearly every department.

Nielson finished the Music Building first and it should be in use by the end of September, he said. They also are working on an estimated completion of Sonner Hall and the College of Business building by January and Fall 1990, respectively.

Lionberger, a firm from Roanoke, will continue to work on Burruss, probably past the estimated completion date of Fall 1990. But Knickrehm says that with a vastly modernized and more efficient facility, the end result will be "delayed gratification."

Finished next will be the "Kezrell-Carrier Library Plaza," a landscaped, cement-designed area for students to congregate. The pedestrian plaza, being built by Moss Construction Co., was begun due to a density plan to accommodate those who applied. It will be in use by the end of September.

Until then, there's little we can do, except hope good things really do come to those who wait.

Besides, this is only the beginning.

Letters

Keep 'poisoned pen' in dry well; concentrate on issue, not insult

To the editor:

I have followed the letters to the editor in opposition to Students For America and feel that JMU students truly misunderstand what the organization stands for. I recently joined SFA because I believe that many of the moral values once prevalent in our society are slipping away. All around the nation, crime is rampant, convicted criminals are treated as hotel guests in prison; drugs and gang violence plague the largest cities and smallest towns — all of this at the expense of the American public.

SFA, despite its misrepresented as "commie-fascists" and "Hitler Youth," is a group which seeks to promote traditional Judeo-Christian values. SFA is not a group bent on the destruction of homosexuals and pro-life activists. It merely attempts to reinforce the moral foundation upon which our nation was built.

I listen to "liberals" talk about SFA's intolerance toward groups such as UCAM and NOW, which maintain基本上 opposite ideological views from SFA. However, I must ask you "radicals" (the term is used to describe those of the far left), why don't you practice what you preach and refrain from your name-calling and intolerance of Students For America? I believe if both ends of the spectrum would concentrate on the issues and attempt to understand each other before implementing the poisoned pen, the animosity between reactionaries and radicals on this campus would be diminished.

Group plans China liberty statue as show of support for students

To the editor:

We want to spread F.A.C.T.S. across your campus.

You see, we believe the courage and strength displayed by Chinese students fighting for democracy should not go unnoticed. And what better way to honor the Chinese protesters than through an outpouring of support from their American counterparts.

To achieve that end, a committee called Freedom Also Plans a Chinese Liberty Statue has been formed. Its goal is simple, its credo selfless. We want to collect enough money to finance the donation of a permanent goddess of liberty to be erected in Tiananmen Square, a symbolic gesture from the students of America to the students of China in support of their cause.

We believe without reservation that China will be free one day, and all Chinese students will enjoy the freedom that we Americans hold so very dear. However, if China is not as quick to grant its citizens this fundamental right as American students are to show their support, the monument will be erected in Hong Kong.

We need help to spread F.A.C.T.S. across your campus and across the nation. No doubt, you are aware of the ghastly fact news reports bring us from China, from the Tiananmen Square massacre to the seemingly daily arrests and executions. Please join the cause. More information can be obtained by writing P.O. Box 1223, University, Miss. 38677, or by calling (601) 236-5172.

Are You Financially DISTURBED?

Many college students are. To determine whether or not you have a problem, take this simplest test before you go back to school.

First, relax. Take a deep breath. Maybe lie down on that couch over there.

Now, think about your bank and look at this ink blot. What do you see?

Bad things? Checks that nobody will accept because your bank is out of town? Faraway parents with no way to deposit money into your account? A vast expanse of time and space separating you from needed additional funds? Inconvenience in its purest form?

Hmmm. Sounds very...well...disturbing.

But don’t worry, there’s an easy cure – Sovran Bank.

By opening a checking and savings account at Sovran, you’ll have complete control of your finances. With the convenience of Cash Flow® 24-hour banking, you can access your money whenever you need it.

And because there’s probably a Sovran Bank at home as well as school, you can leave some deposit slips with your parents, just in case.

So blot out your banking troubles. Stop by Sovran Bank as soon as you get back to college. You’d be crazy to bank anywhere else!

First American Bank Welcomes JMU Students!

★ WIN A PORTABLE TV WITH AM/FM RADIO ★
★ FREE T-SHIRTS ★

First American Bank is throwing a Back-to-School Celebration for all its JMU customers -- and you're invited! Come on by our branch in Gibbons Hall and see just how easy your banking can be at JMU.

We've got two special checking accounts, designed to meet the needs of our JMU students: The Big Gold Account and the JMU Student Account. Plus, we've got Money Exchange, giving you 24-hour a day access to your money. And for your added convenience, we've extended our hours the first few weeks of school to make opening your account with First American even easier. Check the posters on campus for these special hours.

And here's the best part --- beginning Monday, August 28, the first 500 students to open an account will receive a free "I survived the First Week at JMU" T-Shirt. Definitely a collector's item! And all our customers can enter the drawing for our Back-to-School Grand Prize -- a Portable TV with AM/FM Radio. You can enter any time up to 4:00 p.m., Monday, September 4, when we draw the lucky winner. What a way to start the school year!

So plan to stop by during our Back-to-School Celebration. We want to get to know you -- and help you survive your first week at JMU!

LET'S GO, DUKES!

The Joshua Wilton House Inn and Restaurant

Passing through the door of Joshua Wilton House Inn and Restaurant, you'll feel as though you're taking a step back into history, for Joshua Wilton House is a 100 year old Historical Landmark.

Restoration of this fine old house has been centered around the preservation of as much of the original architecture as possible to create this elegantly appointed Inn and restaurant.

The Inn features Bed and Breakfast with 5 bedrooms that have been decorated and furnished with beautiful antiques reminiscent of the 1890 period when Joshua Wilton House was built. Overnight guests will be treated to a sumptuous country breakfast.

Casual dining in an elegant atmosphere!

The restaurant will have 3 dining rooms that will seat 16 to 24 people each. Two of the dining rooms will have fireplaces and the third is a sunroom. In the summer months the terraced garden will lend itself to outdoor dining.

Craig and Bert Moore are noted throughout the Shenandoah Valley for their excellent cuisine featuring culinary delights made with French sauces, mouth-watering seafood specialties, and homemade breads and desserts.

The restaurants are open for dinner Tuesday through Thursday 5:30 to 9:00 p.m., Friday and Saturday 5:30 to 10:00 p.m. Lunch will be served Tuesday through Friday from 11:30 a.m. to 2:00 p.m. Reservations are suggested in the Joshua Wilton House restaurants.

THIS AD WIL DISAPPEAR IN 30 SECONDS

Wouldn't that be ridiculous?

That's what's great about newspaper advertising. It won't go away in thirty seconds. As a matter of fact, it sticks around for days on end. Consumers read it at their leisure — again and again. They can put it down and then refer to it later. They can cut out coupons. Let's face it, newspaper advertising lasts longer and reaches more people than other media we sometimes hear from — if it happens to be on.

Don't Let Your Business Become Ancient History...

When you reach for a dream, whether it's in school, in sports, or on stage, you've got to be on your toes. That's why you should take a second look at marijuana and think twice before you smoke.
New studies show that smoking pot can hurt your lungs much more than you think.
If you're young and growing, it's a lot more dangerous than you imagined. And a lot less cool.

If you don't think you can find unique and exciting fashions in Harrisonburg,

YOU CAN!

Just ask Molly. "The party was a SMASH! I danced all night and everyone wanted to know where my outfit came from!"

Here's a great new way to keep your shoes good-looking—for a nice price and with the convenience of superfast service! We're a new idea in custom shoe maintenance and repair. We can fix most shoes in under an hour, and many while you watch! Best of all, we guarantee your satisfaction. One more thing: the boss wants us to tell you a little tidbit about himself, but we want you to know about all the really important stuff first (don't worry, boss, we'll get to you):

At Shoe Fixers
You'll Find:
- 82 colors of polish
- 64 colors of dye for leather & vinyl
- Over 160 styles & colors of laces
- Full line of waterproofing products
- Largest display of accessories and shoe care products between here and D.C.
- Cedar shoe trees

And we also do:
- orthopedics
  - leather half soles
  - heels
  - stretching
  - satin shoe dyeing

Our Story
The idea for Shoe Fixers came from two entrepreneurs named Paul Pell and Sal Parotta. Paul and Sal teamed up in 1969 and presently own 85 shoe repair shops, 25 of which are Shoe Fixers stores. Today Paul and Sal are most likely the nation's leaders in instant shoe repair.

Our Valley Mall Shoe Fixers was purchased by Jay Rainey, the second Shoe Fixers franchise to be sold (talk about getting in on the ground floor!). Jay also owns a Shoe Fixers in Christiansburg. Jay is a '71 JMU alumnus and feels a special attachment to the University community.

Jay & Co. are here to fix your shoes professionally, courteously, and fast. Visit us soon!

You're off on your own now. Ready to start what everyone has said will be the "best years of your life." And although JMU has lots of promises in store, The Breeze would also like to warn you about some of the pitfalls that come with the territory.

You'll be here to see the library courtyard, business school and Sonner Hall.
But you'll probably never get to use the front door of the library this semester.

Hillside Area gets free entertainment courtesy of the marching band for the next three months...
But Lake Area residents will get a wake-up drum cadence on the morning of every home game.

An ample supply of grease is available on campus at PC Dukes...
But the place is invaded by aerobics fanatics around 7:30 p.m.

You get non-alcoholic hall programs, like an ice cream social, in your dorm...
But pay your hall council dues — or else you'll never get to use that cake pan.

It is possible to wake up at 7:50 a.m. for an 8 a.m. class and be on time...
But set your alarm anyway, because Mom's not there to say "rise and shine."

Mom will occasionally send money...
But usually you'll have to bum quarters from your roommate for the dryer.

There never will be a line at D-Hall the nights they serve Shepherd's Pie...
But there are lines for everything else — the bank, Mr. Chips, the bookstore, registration, the post office.

The showers do have hot water...
But only when someone on the hall flushes the toilet.

The tracks provide a great shortcut home from Greek Row...
But plan walking to class around the train schedule.

The Health Center has the best supply of aspirin and salt...
But you have to fill out your life history and wait three hours to get any.

Movies on campus don't cost $5...
But allow for technical difficulties.

Freshmen don't have to worry about parking shortages or $15 tickets...
But DIF's are the pedestrian equivalent of a DUI — don't walk past the campus police station after a party.

D-Hall occasionally offers the great delicacy of London broil...
But don't expect to cut it with their butter knives.

Guys: the male/female ratio is in your favor...
But that 53 percent usually wants older men.

Girls: all the guys are older...
But get used to conversations that begin with, "Wanna listen to my new stereo?"

The local residents are fairly friendly...
But don't shop at K mart during a "Blue Light Special."

The library is a great place to find information on mating habits of early inhabitants of Bora Bora...
But it's still not a cool place to be at 10 o'clock on a Friday night.

As a new feature of the Arts section this year, The Breeze will run a regular upcoming events column every Monday. Included in this week's listing are movies; however, Movie Watch normally will run in the Thursday issue.
Deadline for submissions is noon the Thursday prior to publication.
Information should be sent to Laurel Wissinger, Arts Editor, The Breeze.
Copy will be run on a space-available basis.

Allison and Lasher drafted; JMU baseball recruits sign

By Matt Wasniewski
assistant sports editor

The JMU baseball team lost an everyday starter to the pro draft, recruited several top-notch players, and named an assistant coach over the summer.

Would-be senior Matt Lasher opted to forego his final college season and move on to professional ball. Lasher was drafted by the Angels organization and is playing Class A baseball in the Northwest League in Bend, Ore. So far he has appeared in 28 games and has a .242 batting average, 11 RBIs and 2 stolen bases.

Dana Allison was drafted by the Oakland Athletics shortly after graduation and is playing Class A ball in the Midwest League. Through last Thursday, he had pitched 24 innings and posted a 2-3 record with a 1.13 ERA.

Rob Boddie, Jeff Garber and Mike Linskey, who were drafted at the end of the 1988 season, are playing on pro farm teams. Linskey is 9-6 with the Orioles AA team in Hagerstown, Md. Boddie and Garber are playing Class A baseball for the Montreal and Kansas City organizations, respectively.

In the meantime, first-year head coach Ray Heatwole was busy pounding the pavement in search of some top junior college players to fill some big holes in his lineup. He managed to sign right-handed pitcher Brett Misavage, third baseman Kevin Sisk, catcher Mike Hubbard and outfielder Gary Campbell.

Misavage began his collegiate career at Penn State University, before transferring to Allegany in his sophomore year. He compiled an 8-2 record with a 3.39 ERA. He struck out 60 in 63 innings and registered five complete games.

Sisk, who played for Montgomery Community College in Montgomery, Md., was a two-time recipient of the Washington Home Plate Club's Player of the Year award and also was named as a Region 20 selection. He batted .419 with 95 runs, 11 home runs and 30 doubles in his two-year college career.

The third junior college transfer, Campbell, played both baseball and football at Chowan College (N.C.) during the past two seasons. Campbell batted .320 with eight home runs and 40 runs batted in during his stay at Chowan. He was the Braves' most valuable player in 1989 and was an all-conference selection as a freshman in 1988. In addition, he received Academic All-American honors as a football player last fall as the Braves' starting quarterback.

The Dukes also signed Hubbard, a top scholastic player from Amherst County High School. The catcher batted .441 in three years of varsity play. As a junior he batted .492 to lead the Group "AAA" Western District in hitting.

Hubbard also was named to the first-team All-Western District and All-Northwestern Region squads in his junior and senior seasons.

The Dukes named Dan Maynard to the position of assistant baseball coach. The 26-year-old Virginia graduate played professional baseball as a catcher in the Texas Rangers' organization. He also served as a part-time assistant at JMU during the 1988 season and spent the past year as an assistant coach at UVa.

Coach Heatwole expects Maynard to coordinate recruiting, work with the catchers and serve as a hitting instructor.

"We know, by Dan being here before, his work habits and that he has a good rapport with the players," Heatwole said. "He has proven his ability to recruit players and has a willingness to put in the time necessary to find them."

BUSINESS

College of Business moves toward the '90s

By Meghan Johnson

As most JMU students return to campus this week, they'll pass what looks like a great big swimming pool on the lawn in front of Eagle Hall. In truth, it's the beginning of what will become the new College of Business building, expected to be completed in June 1991.

Dr. Robert Holmes, dean of the College of Business, said the rainy summer weather has slowed construction, originally slated for completion in January 1991. "Nielsen [Construction Company] appears to be off to a very good start with the building, except for the weather," he said.

The 100,000 square-foot building will house 145 faculty, secretarial and staff offices, 18 classrooms, a computer lab the department hopes will hold 100 macro and microcomputers, a business information center and other facilities.

Holmes placed the construction of the building first on a list of three College of Business goals for the academic year. The college also must complete a self-evaluation, to prepare for its reaccreditation evaluation scheduled for the 1990-91 school year.

The college will continue to raise funds for its Excellence Through Achievement campaign, a $2.2 million capital fund-raising campaign which began last May. The campaign now is at about the halfway mark.

Donald Lemish, JMU vice president of university advancement, said the campaign is directed by the Office of University Advancement and chaired by volunteers from the Executive Advisory Council of the College of Business. Alexander Berry III, executive vice president of Signet Bank, serves as chairman for the committee.

Lemish said the campaign, the first capital campaign to be conducted for JMU, is in the "advance gifts" phase while the college seeks "leadership" gifts of $25,000 or more. Most gifts are made as commitments to be filled within three or four years, he said.

Holmes added that of the $1.1 million raised to date, College of Business faculty and staff members have pledged a little more than $180,000 toward the goal.

Lemish said the funds raised will be channelled for teaching endowment and faculty development, scholarship endowment, equipping and outfitting the new business building, and computers and equipment as well as other programs.

The schools of marketing and hotel and restaurant management officially merged this summer. They had been operating together unofficially for the past few years, Holmes said.

Dr. Robert Reid, formerly director of the HRM program, will head the school.

"I felt that one person could manage the entire area," Holmes said of the eight marketing and the four HRM faculty members.

Former marketing department head Dr. George Wynn has resigned and returned to full-time teaching. New faculty members also have been added to the hotel restaurant management and marketing department. Joining the staff are Sandra Woodfin and Melinda Jones in marketing and Dr. Reg Foucar-Szocik in HRM. Raymond La Forge will fill the Wampler-Longacre professorship in marketing.

Dr. Robert Jerome, formerly director of the international business program, is now an assistant vice president in the Office of Academic Affairs in charge of international education. Dr. David Kroutzer moved last week from JMU's economics department to fill Jerome's position.

Expansion for the studies abroad program for international business students is under consideration, Kroutzer said. Possible programs include semesters in Japan, Australia, Canada and perhaps a Latin America country.

Kroutzer added that Jerome, who has worked extensively with the new overseas programs, will continue to do so while in his new office.

The management department has added two faculty members to its staff, department head Dr. Charles Pringle said. Louis La Jaunic, of the doctoral program at the University of Kentucky, and Robert McMillan, a graduate of JMU's MBA program, will be at JMU for a year.

The economics department added four faculty members: Melvin Ayogu, Donna Pearssall, William Wood and Gene Kimmel will be filling staff positions this fall.

Dr. Charles Bilbrey, head of the information and decision sciences department, said his department also added two new faculty members. Dr. Robert Brookshire, formerly director of academic computing at JMU, and Terri Smith will be teaching in the IDS department this fall.

Disney Co. doesn't mouse around with bootleggers

Anyone who thinks Walt Disney Co. delights in being cute and cuddly had better not get in Peter Nolan's way.

For the last 17 years, Nolan has taken thousands of copyright violators to court for infringements against the company's world-famous critters. Since 1985, he has filed over 1,700 suits, most of them targeted at foreign markets.

The character of Mickey Mouse has served as the main article of paraphernalia for Walt Disney Co. and has been used more often than any other Disney creation in illegal merchandising campaigns.

World-wide sales from Disney-licensed products reached $11 billion last year, with the rodent's image generating 80 percent of that revenue. Retailers and vendors often can't help but try to cash in on the market, but Disney is determined to halt the illegal products.

"For four years running in Hong Kong alone, we were filing 80 lawsuits a year," said Nolan. "Now, I think they've gotten the idea."

Holiday Inn chain sold to British investors

In keeping with the recent corporate trend of dishing off major hotel chains to foreign investors, Holiday Corporation sold its Holiday Inn franchise to Great Britain's Bass PLC Thursday, taking advantage of the company's enormous asset values in making the $2.23 billion sale.

Holiday Corp. followed suit with the Ramada and Westin chains, both of which were sold recently to foreigners, in order to expand its casino-hotels and expand its three newest hotel chains.

Make no mistake about it, big games often come early for football teams.

Such will be the case for Bloomsburg when the team arrives in Harrisburg tomorrow for the season opener for both teams. The Dukes are the sole Division I-AA school on the Division II Huskies' schedule, so the thought of an upset has Bloomsburg coaches and players primed for Saturday night's matchup.

The Huskies' strength unquestionably lies in the offense, where seven of their eight returning starters are back. Three-time All-Pennsylvania Conference center John Fulmer anchors a solid Bloomsburg line that boasts both size and experience. Joining Fulmer on the line are junior guards Brian Crouthamel (6-foot-5, 320 pounds) and Rob Grow (6-foot-3, 273 pounds), along with senior tackle Dave Pysher and freshman Bryan Melliger.

The Bloomsburg receiving corps appears to be strong with senior tight end Paul Lonergan leading the charge. A big target at 6-foot-5, 220 pounds, Lonergan checked as the team's top receiver in 1988 as he pulled in 40 passes for 508 yards. Also back is wide receiver Jeff Sparks, who has registered 38 receptions for 614 yards and nine touchdowns in the previous two seasons. Checking in at the other slot will be Stef Kern, a sophomore who led all Bloomsburg receivers a year ago with a 28.1 yards-per-catch average.

The backfield has been a hot spot for competition all summer for the Huskies. Arm problems have sidelined sophomore quarterback Dave Robson for much of the preseason, leaving the slot open for fellow sophomore signal caller Alan Eck. The 6-foot-3 Eck transferred to Bloomsburg a year ago and has yet to take a snap in competition.

Four running backs with limited experience should see plenty of time in the Bloomsburg backfield. Junior John Cannon and sophomore Jerry Marks appear to have the inside track, but junior Sal Brown and freshman Craig Harris also have looked sharp in the early going. Both Cannon and Marks saw limited duty in 1988, with Cannon carrying the ball just nine times while Marks registered only seven rushing attempts.

The Bloomsburg defense also will be loaded with newcomers as well as returning starters Tom Heavey is the only returning starter from last season. Joining Heavey in the secondary will be safeties Derrick Hill and Trent Dennis, along with cornerbacks Jerome Wilson.

The two linebacker slots in Bloomsburg's 52 defense likely will be manned by senior Brian Angney and sophomore E. J. Weston, both of whom have some game experience. Up front, the Huskies will have Jeff Haflet and Jake Robinson at the ends, while tackles Larry Beilis and Chaine Casner will fill the middle along with nose guard Mike Gonzalez.

The two linebagger slots in Bloomsburg's 52 defense likely will be manned by senior Brian Angney and sophomore E. J. Weston, both of whom have some game experience. Up front, the Huskies will have Jeff Haflet and Jake Robinson at the ends, while tackles Larry Beilis and Chaine Casner will fill the middle along with nose guard Mike Gonzalez.

Saturday's contest will be the first chance for JMU to unveil its new Multi-T offense. Designed to take full advantage of Waters' drop-back passing skills while still placing emphasis on the run, the Huskies uncommon 5-2 defense should prove to be an interesting test.

The Dukes' defense also will be under the gun against Bloomsburg. Injuries to standout veterans Jerrel Harris and John Gutter have left JMU in a situation where a number of inexperienced players will be forced into starting roles.

Gametime for Saturday evening's matchup is 7:00 p.m. instead of the traditional 2 p.m. JMU head coach Joe Purzycki apparently asked for the change in an effort to better accommodate those people who are not able to attend the afternoon games during the early fall weeks.
Purzycki kicks off fifth season at JMU

By Stephanie Swaim

Linebacker Sonny Smith thinks head coach Joe Purzycki may have missed his calling.

"He's a great motivator," Smith said. "He's gonna be an author someday because he'll have a lot of quotes from all the speeches he's given."

Whether or not Purzycki would make the best seller list with a motivational quotes book or not, he seems to be doing okay at his present job. He begins his fifth season at the helm of the JMU football team tomorrow against Bloomsburg State, after compiling a 24-20-1 record here.

Purzycki came to JMU in 1985, after a four-year stint as head coach at Delaware State where he had a 21-21-1 record and had nationally ranked teams in 1983 and 1984. Since coming to JMU, the team annually has played one of the tougher schedules in Division I-AA football.

This season will mark the finale for Purzycki's first recruiting class at JMU, which includes 11 fifth-year seniors. Smith is one senior who has worked closely with Purzycki for the four years he has been here. Smith has grown to respect his coach for his blue-collar work ethic and says he will never forget the "boot-camp-like" preseason camps he has experienced over the years. Although the first few weeks of three-a-days at summer preseason are especially grueling, Smith feels that these are the days Purzycki uses to bond the team together.

"It's like Parris Island for the Marine Corps," Smith said of the preseason camp. "You kinda hate it, but you also love him for busting your ass, working you hard, making you better."

"It brings all the guys together to unite them, even if it's against him at first. We have a focus and a common bond that we can put towards each team each week," Smith said.

Those who make it to the regular season under Purzycki get to see a side of the coach that few fans ever see. Linebacker Steve Bates will remember his fiery "quotable" locker-room speeches, while senior defensive tackle Matt Uliana has also been moved by the talks.

"He's one of the best motivators I've ever been around," Uliana said. "There are really few people that can really grab you emotionally the way he does.

"He can get a team so fired up you wouldn't believe it, just single-handedly," he said. "It's really hard for one person to manipulate a whole group like that, but he can do it."

With his recent success, it's not surprising that other schools have taken notice. Last spring, Purzycki was one of two final candidates for the head coaching job at Temple University in Philadelphia. The offer was tempting, Purzycki admits, but he decided that JMU was the best place for him to be at this point in his career.

"I'm really glad that nothing came of it," Purzycki said. "I think this is a better place for me, a better place for my family, with a greater possibility of winning. In my profession, in the long-term you have to create a program that can win."

"What I saw in James Madison in the long term is that we can win here — we will win here," he said. "We're on that level and in the direction we're going and they [Temple] really have it cut out for them."

Even though Purzycki has said that he is happy at JMU, he admits that he hasn't turned a deaf ear on all other offers. He admits that there will always be that "desire to climb, or go to the next level."

"I'll continue to always listen," Purzycki said, "but in many ways I find the more I get out there and listen, the more I appreciate the situation we have here and the chance we have to build a program we can really be proud of. That's not possible at a lot of places."

When the "Temple talks" where going on, however, several players were following the progress too. Smith said that he was "kind of ticked off" when he thought Purzycki might leave.

"When I heard he was gonna leave it kind of ticked me off, because he would be letting us down," Smith said. "He did promise me, Steve Bates and the guys who came in the first recruiting class that he wasn't going to leave till we won the national championship. If he does leave he'll be hard to replace."

Maybe he didn't miss his calling after all.
Team looks to prove itself on the field

By Dave Washburn
staff writer

For the JMU football team, the 1988 campaign proved to be an unfortunate lesson in one of life's simplest laws — what goes up must come down.

After taking the Division I-AA football ranks by storm with its playoff appearance and national ranking in 1987, the Dukes fell upon hard times in 1988 as a rash of midseason injuries devasted the defense and left JMU with a disappointing 5-6 mark.

But last season's losses may pay big dividends for the Dukes in 1989. In addition to the return of 16 starters, JMU returns a number of other lettermen who gained valuable experience in the wake of the number of injuries, a thought that has JMU head coach Joe Purzycki cautiously optimistic.

"We will be as experienced and as deep as any team we've had at JMU, but we've still got major question marks at several positions," Purzycki said.

"This team seems on paper to be as good as any we've had in five years, but we have to come together and gel as a team. We have to develop the chemistry that allows you to be a successful football team."

If JMU is to return to the ranks of the elite, the offense must be able to rebound from a showing last season that ranked as the worst in four years. And if the early indicators are correct, the Dukes will do just that, thanks in part to a new offense called the Multi-T. Without changing the traditional elements of the run-oriented Winged-T the Dukes now will have the opportunity to take full advantage of strong-armed abilities of junior quarterback Roger Waters.

The burly 6-foot-5 Waters has looked sharp in the preseason on his way to emerging as JMU's top signal caller over a pair of fleet-footed competitors in junior transfer Tom Green and redshirt freshman Eriq Williams.

"One of the reasons we considered changing sets was because of Roger Waters," Purzycki said. "Here we have a big, strong-armed quarterback whose abilities really didn't suit themselves to being in the Winged-T. So we wanted to adopt more of a passing offense for Roger, and we did that."

Despite the new set, Purzycki leaves no doubt that the ground game will again be the Dukes' forte with All-State fullback Greg Medley leading the way. The hard-running 5-foot-10, 210-pound senior led all JMU carriers with 761 yards last season despite being riddled with injuries. Medley enters the 1989 campaign with a definite shot at becoming the team's second all-time leading ground gainer.

Medley will get plenty of help with the rushing chores from experienced juniors Leon Taylor and Willie Lanier. Taylor, a speedy 195-pound halfback, was the Dukes' second leading rusher and third leading receiver last season, while the massive 250-pound Lanier will serve as both Medley's backup and backfield mate when Taylor is shifted to the flanker slot.

A host of talented underclassmen will vie for time at the other halfback spot for the Dukes. Junior Mike Campbell was impressive in a late-season victory over Richmond last year and appears to have the edge over redshirt freshmen Kenny Sims and sophomore Garrett Washington.

JMU also returns a pair of its most gifted receivers in recent years in junior split end Keith Thornton and senior tight end Walt Frye. Thornton will be hard pressed to top his stats in 1988 when he caught a team-leading 30 passes, including a school-record seven touchdown passes.

What was literally the Dukes' sorest spot last year, the offensive line appears to be one of the squad's great strengths this year. A line which boasts a pair of all-state honors recipients in senior center Rob Howard and junior guard Chris Schellhammer. The 270-pound Howard is back after sitting out the 1988 campaign and already is being touted as the perhaps the top center in Division I-AA. Schellhammer, at only 6-foot-3, 230 pounds, is said by Purzycki to be one of the best players pound-for-pound he's ever seen at the collegiate level.
Multi-T

New-look offense hopes to put more bite in its bark

By John R. Craig
staff writer

Welcome to the "Dog Pen."

In the past this JMU Stadium nickname was for the Dukes' defense, but this season the offense will do much of the barking.

You can't say that head coach Joe Purzycki doesn't learn from his mistakes. After a sub-par performance in 1988, when the Dukes had their lowest offensive output in Purzycki's four years at JMU, he's gone back to the drawing board.

What he's come away with is the Multi-T, an offense designed to better utilize the abilities of starting quarterback Roger Waters. The new look combines Purzycki's traditional winged-T set with the easily recognizable "I" formation.

"Here we had a big, strong-armed quarterback whose abilities didn't really suit themselves into being in the winged-T, so we wanted to adapt a passing offense more for Roger," Purzycki said.

A team that used to pride itself on a nationally ranked defense will now be concentrating on scoring some points of its own.

The 6-foot-4, 240-pound Waters opened the 1988 season but was replaced soon after with Greg Lancaster. This year there is no Lancaster breathing down his neck, but there are a couple of back-ups ready to take Waters' place.

Quarterbacks Eriq Williams, a red-shirt freshman, and Tom Green, a transfer from the University of Maryland, have impressed Purzycki so much that Waters was not named to bark out the signals until after the final preseason scrimmage last Thursday.

"When those two guys are behind the center, the offense takes on a little bit of a different look than when Waters is, and we're trying to accommodate these two different types of talents," Purzycki said.

Williams and Green both possess the ability to threaten the flank and run the option more effectively — similar to the style of Eric Green in 1987 when the Dukes made their first NCAA postseason appearance.

The Multi-T offense is best described by personnel. In one set 210-pound Greg Medley lines up at tailback and 250-pound Willie Lanier is at fullback. Leon Taylor sets as flanker on one side and Keith Thornton is wide on the other side. The formation also allows both to split to the same side.

"We're not going to run away from anybody, but we might kill somebody," Purzycki said. "We're big."

The other set moves Medley into the backfield as the fullback with Taylor at one halfback and Mike Ragin, Kenny Sims or Garrett Washington at the other halfback. In this set the wide-out is usually Thornton.

Confused?

Sometimes players and coaches are too, according to offensive coordinator Herky Billings.

"It gets a little difficult at times — who's going in at flanker, who's going to play the tailback," Billings said. "But we've got the right personnel, we think, with Leon Taylor out at flanker and Mike Ragin as a back-up flanker.

"At the same time they can both be running backs so it can get a little confusing in terms of substitutions, not confusing in terms of their assignments."

Medley, one of only two true seniors on a squad that includes 11 fifth-year seniors, gives a warning to the opposition.

"Defenses can't just focus on one of us or any particular person," Medley said. "Now they have to concentrate on both of us.

"Also, included is more of a passing attack which [Purzycki] told us is now going to be 60 percent running and 40 percent passing. So it's going to complement both Willie and me."

A 40 percent passing game will give Waters use of the whole field as he reaches his favorite targets — Thornton, Taylor and tight end Walt Frye.

"I like it," Waters said of the Multi-T. "It widens things out. You get Leon and Keith spread out all over the field. It helps the running game and the passing game because it makes the defenses, where they would sit in tight, now they're spread out all over the field. It's great."

Purzycki said he's impressed with Waters and how well he's been able to perform in each scrimmage against the competition. On the other side of the coin, if the coach sees a defense he can exploit another way he may attack with Williams or Green.

"If some defense wants to line up and play us unsoundly like they did last year, I wouldn't hesitate to take one of those guys off the bench and put them in the game," Purzycki said.

With the new formations and a renewed confidence in the experienced offense, the Dukes hope to add a new, potent offensive unit to an already proven defense.

The "Dog Pen" awaits.
Steve Bates: JMU's next pro hopeful?

Senior linebacker begins season amidst hype and national recognition

By Stephanie Swaim

Don't ask Steve Bates about all his preseason honors. You'll have to ask his mom about them. She's the one looking for his name in sports publications.

"My mom collects the magazines," Bates said. "It's good to see your name written down somewhere, but I don't go looking to see it."

It's probably a good thing.

How's this for pressure? The first game hasn't even been played and already the 6-foot-4 senior linebacker is being touted as an All-America candidate, has been named to the all-atlantic coast team by Street and Smith's, has been likened to Charles Haley, singled out as being one of the best special teams players in the state, and labeled as an excellent professional prospect. Whew!

But mom is probably the only one who's sending copies to relatives. Bates is looking to prove himself on the field.

"They don't really mean anything," Bates said about the recognition. "You've got to go out there and play. You can't make any honor at all unless you do something on the field."

The 250-pounder from Pittsburgh emerged as one of JMU's leading defensive players last season when he moved from defensive tackle to outside linebacker midway through the season. Bates took part in 59 tackles, including 26 unassisted and 11 for losses, had seven quarterback sacks, and blocked two kicks. He was named to the second-team All-ECAC selection and was an honorable mention Associated Press All-America choice.

Bates also has been noticed for his work on special teams, but says that whether or not he plays on this years special teams is "up to the coaches."

Head coach Joe Purzycki has been just as enthusiastic as the sportswriters have about the senior.

"We feel like we have one of the best football players in America in Steve Bates," Purzycki said. "He's a guy with an enormous potential. We're talking about a Charles Haley-type potential."

This summer, it was discovered that Bates had torn cartilage in his right knee, forcing him to undergo arthroscopic surgery. Apparently, the problem has been alleviated and has not bothered him significantly since.

Looking to himself, Bates has kept the hype from getting to him. Instead of worrying about what others think he can do, he's looking for a total team effort to reach his goals.

"At the beginning of the preseason I was feeling some pressure, trying to live up to something somebody else set for me," Bates said. "Right now I just think I'm gonna go out there and play. Have fun, just do the best I can, not try to achieve somebody else's goal."

"If we win, I've achieved my goal," he said. "If I don't have the best game of my life and the team is winning, I don't care."

Steve Bates will be battling opponents, not teammates, come Saturday.

"They don't really mean anything. You've got to go out there and play. You can't make an honor at all unless you do something on the field."

Freshman haircuts cause hairy dilemma in preseason

By John R. Craig
staff writer

Some odds and ends from JMU Stadium:

• There was a hairy uproar in late August with regard to the freshman football players. Every preseason, as the story goes, the freshmen get their heads shaved as a show of unity. According to the members of the team, the haircuts were strictly voluntary.

Head coach Joe Purzycki said that he received several calls about the haircuts and had been meeting with school officials about the incident. On a lighter side, one parent sent Purzycki an article from The Washington Post, where a similar incident involving freshmen on the University of Maryland football team was reported.

"Up there in The Washington Post it was a big joke," Purzycki said. "Down here I've been in and out of meetings."

Team captain Darryl Thompson also has had to field a lot of questions. His answer: "It got out of hand and got to too many people. It's always been a team thing, we've always done it, it's a tradition. It wasn't involuntary, we didn't make those guys do it. We told them if they didn't want to get their haircuts they didn't have to. And there were some guys that didn't get their hair cut."

Did Thompson get his haircut freshman year? Sure did.

• The freshman football players reported to school Aug. 7, veterans arrived Aug. 10 and practice began Aug. 11.

• Reserve cornerback Jerry Roney would have seen a lot of action this season had he not decided to trade in his football shoes for hurdler's spikes. Roney is one of the top hurdlers in the nation and decided to concentrate on it year-round. Had he returned, he would have started because of John Gutt's off-season injury, a fractured fifth vertebrae in his neck from a summer surfing accident.

• Starting offensive lineman and back-up center Lance Doty may be in the press guide but that's as close as he'll get to JMU Stadium this semester. Doty is participating in an internship with a New York television station as a cameraman. Apparently it was the first time an offer had come to the telecomm department and it was something he couldn't pass up.

"We hated to lose Lance, but it was best for his career and that's what we're here for," Purzycki said. "[But] you don't like to lose people that you've spent that much time with."

• Earlier this summer The Sporting News reported that the Southern Conference had rejected membership applications from JMU, Richmond, and William and Mary. JMU never made an official application to the Southern Conference and still is hoping to join a conference or has speculated on creating one with Richmond, Liberty, William and Mary and Virginia Military Institute, the five I-AA schools in Virginia.

• Purzycki testified in May before the Senate Judiciary Committee studying steroid use. The witness list also included pro representatives Pete Rozelle, Chuck Noll and Marty Schottenheimer. College coaches included Bo Schembechler of Michigan and Joe Paterno of Penn State.

• JMU graduate Charles Haley, whose San Francisco 49er team won the Super Bowl last January, finally came to undisclosed contract terms late last week after a holdout for much of preseason. Haley, who is JMU's all-time leading tackler with 506, is in his fourth season with the 49ers. Haley reportedly asked for $500,000 after earning $175,000 last season.

• Former JMU All-America linebacker Shawn Woodson was cut from the Minnesota Vikings Monday. He was a twelfth round draft pick in the April NFL draft.

• The JMU Coaches Show, produced by the JMU Video Network, can be seen Sunday afternoons at 1 p.m. on WHSV-TV3. The show, hosted by Mike Gastineau, features a discussion of the previous day's game with Purzycki. One new segment will be "Hey Joe," in which an average Joe questions the decisions of coach Joe.

Purzycki himself will not be making predictions on college games as he had in the past because of a decision by the NCAA coaches that has asked coaches not to offer their expertise to the general public. They decided coaches are privy to other information that the average fan is not. Neither Purzycki nor the NCAA wants to promote gambling, which is prevalent in the headlines lately. But that's a Rose of a different color.

SUPERBOWL CHAMPION

Okay, okay, we admit this week’s games are a little, well, boring. But the pickings were pretty slim since there were no pro games, and few college games. So we did the best we could and even added a special feature, where in our infinite wisdom, we wild-guessed the winner of the Superbowl. (That may serve to break ties at the end of the season). Last year’s champ Dave Washburn returns to defend his title, while sports editor Stephanie Swaim will be looking to dethrone him after finishing just one game back last year. Matt Wasniewski is a first-time panelist, while John R. Craig returns after finishing dead last.
They call themselves the kicking staff, but come tomorrow night only one of the JMU placekickers will have the opportunity for late game heroics while the other will be forced to watch contently from the sidelines.

After senior Tim Garritty completed his final season of eligibility, the battle for the placekicking duties became wide open. Sophomores Mike Granuzzo and Johnny Perez have risen above all challengers and have been locked in a head-to-head battle for the starting spot.

Coach Joe Purzycki said Monday the battle remains close and that a starter won't be chosen until the final statistics from the preseason can be computed and analyzed.

With Roger Waters already having won the highly publicized battle for quarterback, the spotlight has now focused on the Perez-Granuzzo duel. While Perez came into camp listed first on the depth chart, each kicker was aware of the tentative status accorded kickers and prepared for the job over the summer.

Perez, a redshirt sophomore, maintained a conditioning program this summer, but thought that coming into preseason mentally prepared would be the key to his performance.

"I didn't really kick that much and probably didn't kick as much as I should have this summer, but I played a lot of soccer and ran a lot," Perez said.

"I think more importantly for me was preparing mentally," Perez explained. "I knew I was going to have to go for it all in preseason. I just set my mind to do as well as I could during preseason and let everything work out instead of worrying about how well Mike's doing because I can't control that. So I prepared more mentally than physically."

Granuzzo, on the other hand, concentrated less on the mental aspect and worked more on his mechanics and adjusting to kicking without a tee.

"The mental part has pretty much been taken care of," Granuzzo said. "I transferred here from the University of Richmond, and when I was there I competed with two guys day in and day out."

"The competition is a big deal, but I don't worry about it. You've been doing this for a long time so you just come out and kick. If you kick well, you kick well, and if you kick poorly, you kick poorly."

Granuzzo as well as Perez has had to make the transition of kicking off the turf after the NCAA prohibited the use of the standard kicking block.

Granuzzo used his preparation time to get used to the change.

"I just concentrated on getting the steps set and getting the ball up quickly so it doesn't get blocked," Granuzzo said. "It has been a big transition. My strongest asset is getting the ball up quickly, and that's what keeps me here."

Although neither kicker feels he is at the top of his game, both feel confident heading into the season opener.

"John and I have been on for about a week now," Granuzzo said. "We haven't missed many kicks and were getting in a groove."

The two placekickers, along with punter Scott Todd, like to think of themselves as a staff and insist that they need to stick together, adding that kickers are somewhat alienated from the rest of the team.

"You have to stick together to survive out here," Perez said. "If one of us looks bad, we all look bad."

The two placekickers are friends and have remained that way throughout the challenge. While the two have been in a virtual deadlock for the job, Perez may have a slight advantage because he is probably going to be handling the kickoff chores and the coaches have said that they would like one kicker handling all of the placekicking duties.

While the questions surrounding the placekicking unit remain unanswered, the return of standout punter Scott Todd helps make special teams' coach Bill Bachman's job a little easier. Todd's progress this preseason has been a bright spot and head coach Purzycki said Todd has looked excellent.

"I look at the hope of going pro just like everyone that plays college football," Todd said. "I'm not setting my whole life to go pro. I try to kick everyday with the thought of kicking well. I want to kick the ball consistently, get stronger and kick further. If I do all of those things then I think I have a shot."

Johnny Perez blasts a practice field goal. Perez and fellow kicker Mike Granuzzo are vying for the starting job.
Injuries dampen preseason optimism

As much as playbooks, touchdowns and goal-line stands, injuries can determine the outcome of a football game. The JMU football team already has had its share, and the Dukes' defense, which had hoped to return eight of eleven starters from last year, will be without a few main ingredients.

Jermel Harris, who head coach Joe Purzycki has touted as "the best defensive tackle who has ever lined up and played here," is out with a knee injury he incurred Aug. 16, the first day of contact drills. Out too, is starting cornerback John Gutter who was involved in a season-ending accident.

"The offense was running a play to my side, and someone came over me from the back side and landed on my leg," Harris said Tuesday. "I'll probably be out for two or three more weeks."

"It's a big loss," Purzycki said. "There's some real fine players on the defense. How well we fill Gutter's shoes and Jermel's shoes will determine whether we'll be able to have the kinds of defenses we've had in the past," Purzycki said.

Harris is now on a week-to-week basis but will definitely not play in tomorrow's opener against Bloomsburg and is questionable for next week at Massachusetts. Harris also will need time to get back into shape after missing three weeks of practice.

"I doubt I'll be ready for Massachusetts," Harris said. "It all depends on how well my leg heals."

Harris will have to play the waiting game as he longingly watches his teammates work in the summer practices he used to hate.

"No one wants to be out there because it's hot, bothersome, and you sweat a lot," Harris said. "As much as you don't like being out there, you'd rather be out there than in my position. I'm confident that the replacements can do the job while I'm out."

Also injured is Brian Lewis, a second-team defensive tackle who would have been elevated. Lewis is sidelined.

Most recruits to learn from sidelines in redshirt season

When head coach Joe Purzycki announced his 1989 recruits, he hit the nail on the head.

"What we needed to do first was take care of a depleted defensive line corps," he said at last spring's press conference.

How right he was. With graduation, preseason injuries and unexpected departures from the Dukes' nationally ranked defense, some of the "green" Dukes — freshmen and transfers — may see some playing time.

Steve Noble, a 6-foot-5, 275 pound freshman from Smithton, Pa., is one of the biggest Dukes. He could wind up lining up at defensive tackle if injured Jermain Harris doesn't return.

"Noble could, we'd rather him not, but he could figure in our plans by mid-season if we continue to experience injuries," Purzycki said last week.

The other thin spot on defense is the secondary, and Chris Parrott may be the answer to that problem. Parrott is listed at second-team free safety.

"I think we'll just have to play him," Purzycki said.

Moving Bill Bachman, who had coached outside linebackers in his previous four years, to work the defensive line. Before coming to JMU he spent a year as the graduate assistant at Southern Connecticut State where he coached the defensive line and served as the junior varsity defensive coordinator.

"Nick is young and has a real good grasp of what we're doing here," Purzycki said. "He'll fit in well.

Greg Christodulu joins the staff this year as a tight end specialist. He played two seasons at Syracuse and two at Delaware. He received Delaware's 1986 Unsung Hero Award for football and also lettered three times in baseball at Delaware.

"With the renewed emphasis on the passing game," Purzycki said, "we wanted to get more [coaches] on the offensive side of the ball."

With that same theory in mind, Purzycki moved Bill Bachman, who had coached outside linebackers in his previous four years, to work with the passing game.

"We spent a lot of time in the off-season at other people's camps," Purzycki said. "We talked to a lot of people who [work on passing games] for a living."

Hanky Billings and Jeff Cannon return for their fifth year as running backs and offensive line coaches respectively, giving JMU five assistant coaches on offense. Billings has helped coordinate the Dukes new Multi-T offense while Cannon serves as the football team's administrative assistant.

Football, more than any other collegiate sport, utilizes the option of redshirting freshman players. When head coach Joe Purzycki and the five assistant coaches he brought with him were hired at JMU, it was late in the recruiting season and the majority of his freshman recruits were redshirted.

Now five years later, those same players are seniors providing Purzycki and his staff with the most experienced core of players he has had at JMU.

"I think we have the best level of leadership that we've had in a long time," Purzycki said.

"Some people here have devoted a whole lot of their lives to this football program and I think they would really like to see their final year looked upon as very successful."

The key to that success may well lie within the Dukes' coaching staff, which has combined a bit of the old with the new this year. Joining Purzycki and the five assistants that have been with him for five years are three new assistant coaches.

"What I was really looking for was some quality teachers," Purzycki said. "I'm pleased with the way things are shaping up right now."

Purzycki brought in Maury Jarmon, a 1986 graduate of Salisbury State where he was a three-year starter and team captain. Jarmon coached defensive backs for two seasons at Central Connecticut State before arriving at JMU.

"I've known Maury since he was a high school player and I was a high school coach in the state of Delaware," Purzycki said. "I know a good deal about him . . . know he's going to do a fine job for us."

Nick Polk, a graduate assistant last year, will take over the defensive line. Before coming to JMU he spent a year as the graduate assistant at Southern Connecticut State where he coached the defensive line and served as the junior varsity defensive coordinator.

"Nick is young and has a real good grasp of what we're doing here," Purzycki said. "He'll fit in well.

Greg Christodulu joins the staff this year as a tight end specialist. He played two seasons at Syracuse and two at Delaware. He received Delaware's 1986 Unsung Hero Award for football and also lettered three times in baseball at Delaware.

"We've become, coaching-wise, a lot more specific on offense," Purzycki said. "I feel good about the way we've broken it up . . . I think it's starting to pay dividends."

Joining Jarmon on the defensive side are five-year men Hank Hughes as inside linebackers coach and defensive coordinator Jim Pletcher, who also serves as defensive backs coach. Pletcher and Hughes worked together at Springfield and Northeastern in 1980 and '81 before being reunited at JMU in '85.

There has been stiff competition among a number of players for the three remaining line positions but it appears as if senior guard Richie Breeze and junior tackles D.R. Carlson and Brian Roes are the odds-on favorites for the slots.

JMU's defense, which has received national recognition for the past four years, again is attracting a great deal of attention this fall. But unfortunately for the Dukes, the reason for the hype is because of who is missing rather than who is playing. Three injured starters who have received much billing are defensive tackle Jermel Harris, cornerback John Gutter, and reserve Bryan Lewis.

Add to that the unexpected decision by reserve cornerback Jerry Roney to give up football to pursue a possible track and field career, and the once strong link in the JMU armor appears to be on the verge of falling apart.

"We thought going in, that this defense would be just like all the others — one of the nationally ranked defenses," Purzycki said. "I still think that's their hope, but with the injuries that are occurring, some people are going to have to step in and fill rather big shoes."

Harris, who Purzycki regards as "the best defensive tackle that's ever lined up and played here," went down with a second degree knee sprain on the first day of contact drills and is expected to miss the Dukes' first three games. The news is not so good for Gutter, who likely will be lost for the entire season after suffering a fractured neck in an off-season surfing accident. Lewis' condition, meanwhile, remains up in the air after he shattered a bone in his hand during a preseason workout.

But the news is not all bad for the defensive unit, especially at linebacker, where JMU returns four solid veterans, including pre-season All-Atlantic Coast selection Steve Bates. The 6-foot-4, 250-pound senior became an instant success after being shifted from defensive tackle to outside linebacker early last year. He registered 59 tackles, seven quarterback sacks and two blocked punts and is now being considered as a sure-fire pro prospect.

Bates will be in fast company as he

...also be on a week-to-week basis and will be missed on the defensive line. To fill the void, sophomore Faris Fahed, who had been a second-team offensive tackle, and sophomore Clive Pettis are competing for the job.

Pettis had been competing with senior Matt Uliana for the left tackle job vacated by last year's top pass rusher Greg Colvin who graduated. When Harris returns, the left tackle spot will be split between Uliana, Pettis and possibly Fahed.

"These are guys who were not household names a year ago. They didn't play a whole lot and now they're being counted on to be an integral part of the defense."

After two operations on torn cartilage in his knee during both his redshirt freshman and sophomore seasons, Uliana is glad to be healthy and competing for a starting spot.

Uliana spent the summer here working out with strength coach Kerry McClure and is in the best health of his career at JMU.

The other notable absence from the Dukes' defense is Gutter. A starter the past two seasons, Gutter suffered a hairline neck fracture as a result of a surfing accident this summer.

Gutter was skin-boarding at Rehobeth Beach in late July when he hit a wave, flew high in the air and landed on his head.

"He won't be playing this year," JMU trainer Ron Stefancin said. "John came very close to a major tragedy, and we're not going to take any chances."

Gutter does not wear a neck brace and has normal mobility in his neck, but he is restricted from any type of athletic activity until the fracture heals.

"What he has is a fracture between the fourth and fifth vertebrae of the neck," Stefancin said. "He will be further evaluated with more X-rays next week and we'll have a better idea of what the future holds then."

Gutter currently is attending practices and helping coach the defensive secondary. He cannot be redshirted this year, but will still have one year of eligibility remaining after this year.

Purzycki will call on seniors Mark Kiefer and Frank Jacobs to handle the cornerback positions while sophomore Anthony McElveen will need to be ready to go as the third cornerback. Purzycki's secondary was thinned out even further this summer when probable starter Jerry Roney decided to leave the team to concentrate on track.

"He was one of the fastest hurdlers in the country when we recruited him," Purzycki said. "We had originally agreed that he could do both, but after he went out and ran this summer a lot of track people told him that if he wanted to do well he would have to concentrate on it."

National limelight blinds '88 Dukes

By Matt Wasnlewskl

Coming off a 9-3 playoff season in 1987, the JMU football team was basking in a bit of national limelight during last year's preseason.

With a record of 14-5-1 over the prior two campaigns, big things were expected from "little James Madison college." There was the number five Division I-AA ranking by The Sporting News. And with that came a lot of media hype.

So much hype, in fact, that when the Dukes drearily trudged off a rainsoaked JMU Stadium field on Sept. 24 after a dismal 10-3 loss to William and Mary, no one knew who was to blame for the 1-3 start.

It seemed like all the attention had glossed over the hard facts, as well as a difficult schedule.

Gone was senior Eric Green, the talented scrambling quarterback who made the Dukes offense go. The front line lost Roy Delph and Carlo Bianchini, and much of its punch to graduation. Much of the halfback corps also had gone by the wayside in May. In reality, 1988 had become more of a rebuilding year than a drive toward national prominence.

The opening day 27-14 loss to Navy in Annapolis characterized much of the Dukes' season. They came out of the gate at a good clip, but just couldn't put the game away. JMU held a lead in four of their losses.

The timing could not have been more opportune for head coach Joe Purzycki and crew, as Navy had been on an eight-game home losing streak. And for the first half of the game at least, the Dukes proved they could hang with a Division I-A team.

Sophomore Roger Waters, who was billed by Purzycki as a gunslinger/superhero sort of quarterback, connected on two touchdown passes to Walt Frye in the early stages of the game. But the Middies battled back in the closing minutes of the half to take a slim 17-14 lead.

Inexperience showed as the JMU offense came to a grinding halt in the second half and Navy cushioned their lead with another touchdown and field goal.

Still, Purzycki was very upbeat about the season that lay ahead.

"We're young and we showed it," he said. "We had a lot of youthful mistakes but this team is only going to get better and move on."

JMU's Willie Lanier looks upfield for some running room against Virginia Tech's defense. The Hokies won the game 27-6.

In reality, Waters never did live up to his much-touted potential during the season. He finished with a .458 pass completion percentage, 627 yards and 6 touchdowns. And after the loss to the Tribe, the Dukes were immersed in a quarterback controversy that riled any net rushing yards in the Appalachian State game. Behind the surging defense, which would boast a second-team All American and two honorable mentions, the Dukes won four out of their next five games.

On the year, the Dukes would allow a meager 281 yards of total offense per game, which ranked them as the 13th best defense in Division I-AA. All-American linebacker Shawn Woodson was the keystone.

Woodson was credited with 84 tackles on the year, to finish fifth on the team's all-time career tackle list. He also was drafted by the Minnesota Vikings in the 12th round of the NFL draft.

In addition to Woodson, All-American honorable mentions Steve Bates and Eupton Jackson would also anchor the defense. Bates would take part in 59 tackles and seven sacks, while Jackson finished second on the team in tackles (93).

Inside linebacker Darryl Thompson led the Dukes with 124 tackles in 1988, 36 of which were unassisted.

The rally began at Boston University where several blocked punts lead to a 23-13 victory. Then, after the loss to the Tribe, the undisputed low point of the season, the Dukes rattled off three consecutive wins.

In the 31-28 come from behind win over Liberty, quarterback Greg Lancaster, who was substituted for Waters in the starting lineup, completed 15 of 23 passes for 282 yards. Lancaster's impromptu passing performance was the second best pass-yardage showing in JMU team history.

The Dukes reached the .500 plateau with a 29-13 win at Northeastern, before pounding VMI 37-0. Again, Lancaster was impressive going nine for 13 in passing, with 137 yards and two touchdowns.

But injuries, notably on the offensive line, sidelined the Dukes' hopes of rebounding. Tom Halleckman and Rich Breese went down with injuries, while Rob Howard was suspended for the duration of the season due to disciplinary reasons.

JMU lost three out of its final four games, including a 34-6 pounding by Towson State. Virginia Southern spoiled JMU's homecoming, with two quick touchdowns, running away with a 27-13 victory.

The Eagles—sixth-ranked in Division I-AA, and in some minds were the toughest opponents the Dukes would face all season.

"Navy was not the best team we played last year and neither was Virginia Tech," coach Purzycki said. "The best team we played last year was Georgia Southern."

-Navy was not the best team we played last year. The best team we played last year was Georgia Southern."

— Joe Purzycki

kind of preseason scramblings for the starting slot.

After Navy, JMU moved on to a home date with third-ranked Appalachian State, a game in which they squandered a 14-0 third quarter lead and wound up losing a 17-14 heartbreaker on a last-second 35 yard field goal by State's Bjorn Nitto. In April, Nitto was taken in the sixth round of the NFL draft by the New York Giants.

However, for JMU, there was a ray of light. The defense allowed only two
