FINDS PIGMENT IN FOOD

The following clipping taken from a New York paper will be of interest to students of nutrition:

Philadelphia, Oct. 18.—Pigment which plays an important part in the normal development of the eye, ear and brain is largely a product of food, Dr. Percy H. Fridenberg of New York declared today in an address at the twenty-sixth annual meeting of the American Academy of Ophthalmology and Otolar yngology.

Such things as butter, oranges, spinach and other highly colored foods contain a substance which prevents certain deficiency diseases, among which are rickets and scurvy, he said, adding:

"Mothers' milk is best protection for all these deficiency diseases. There are secretions in the body called 'hormones' which act like vitamins and add substantially to such process as normal growth, weight and reaction to disease."

Professor J. van der Hoeve of Leyden, Holland, told of investigations in connection with the lack of pigment in the eye and the excess of pigment in the visual parts of the eye, both often congenital and leading to blindness, and with similar pigment distribution in the ear leading to deafness.

ENTERTAINMENTS SUITABLE FOR HIGH SCHOOLS

[Teachers in the field are quick to make use of published lesson plans, of lists of references informing them of devices, books, and other materials valuable in their work. The Virginia Teacher has noted the cordial response made to the lists of questions and other helps prepared by Dr. John W. Wayland for use in the teaching of Wayland's A History of Virginia for Boys and Girls; to the excellent and comprehensive tabulations of aids to home economics teachers published in February, 1921; and to Som Aids in Physical Education, published in March, 1921.

In later issues of The Virginia Teacher are to be published reference lists and aids helpful to the teacher of English, drawing, geography, history, music, nature study and science, arithmetic, and hygiene. These aids will include bibliographies of useful books on method; addresses of commercial firms from whom devices, apparatus, etc., may be obtained; addresses and prices of appropriate professional periodicals.

These compilations were initiated by seniors in Education 22 and Education 201, during the spring quarter of 1921. Three sources of information were drawn upon by the student committees. Each committee consulted available material in the library, interviewed the critic teachers of the training school for suggestions and helps, and finally submitted the assembled material to the normal school instructor in whose field the subject lay.

Herewith are presented suggestions and helps gathered by Misses Gladys Hopkins and Katherine Willson, which have been revised and extended by Miss Ruth S. Hudson, instructor in public speaking and dramatic coach.]

Courses in commerce and business administration now lead to degrees at many institutions. The University of Virginia offers the B. S. in its school of economics; Washington and Lee University, the University of Richmond, and the College of William and Mary offer the B. A. degree in commerce.

If you fail to receive your copy of The Virginia Teacher each month, you will confer a favor upon the management, if you will let us know this fact. If you change your address, drop us a card, telling us where to send you the magazine. The address can be changed as often as you like; the magazine, however, will be sent to your last address unless notice of change is sent to the Business Manager of The Virginia Teacher, Harrisonburg, Va.

THE CALL FOR VOLUNTEERS

The Great War recently won at a cost of ten million lives is fresh in our memories. To limit the armament of nations is even now the object of a great world conference in Washington. The masses of humanity everywhere are praying that ways may be found of diverting the billions wasted in preparation for war into the constructive enterprises of peace.

The call for volunteers has never been clearer than now. There are important tasks ahead—big, challenging tasks that call for the best effort of the constructive forces of our civilization. The call is to every citizen everywhere. It is primarily a call to service in the army of friends of education, for there can be no permanent peace or secure world leadership based on democratic ideals without firm foundations in universal education.

For every American the duty is plain. Adequate elementary education must be made a vital, universal opportunity for every boy and girl. Higher education—general, professional, and technical—must be helped to grow until it is able to meet full and ready-handed the problem of training the leadership of our democracy. Libraries for rural communities as well as urban must be built up to keep alive the high purpose and the spirit of intelligence which schools exist to create. The ideals of educated men and women must more and more be made the ideals of all our people.

The influence of America must always be exerted to combat ignorance and to liberate the human spirit. It is for us to join hands and go over the top in the greatest battle that ever was fought—the battle for peace and righteousness based on universal intelligence.
