SMITH-HUGHES TEACHER TRAINING IN HOME ECONOMICS AT HARRISONBURG

ON FEBRUARY 23, 1917, Congress passed the Smith-Hughes Act, which provided funds for a national program of vocational education in agriculture, trades and industries, and home economics. This was significant in that home economics was recognized as an essential part of the public school curriculum and funds were provided for developing that program.

The money appropriated was available to every state and carried the stipulation that it must be matched dollar for dollar by state or local funds. The Federal Board for Vocational Education was created and authorized to interpret the Smith-Hughes Act, to set up policies and standards, and to cooperate with states in the disbursement of funds. The appropriation for home economics was made available for all-day schools, part-time schools, evening schools, state supervision, and teacher training.

From the very beginning, Harrisonburg State Teachers College has had a broad vocational outlook. Home Economics was inaugurated here with the establishment of the college, and from the beginning the high standard of the home economics work of this institution was recognized throughout the state. It was not surprising therefore that this college was one of the two institutions in Virginia designated to train teachers for home economics in the national program under the Smith-Hughes Act.

Scholastic standards set up by the Federal Board for Vocational Education were met, and plans were made for further develop-
