HOW RUMORS GROW

Here is a little tale which it would be well for each one of us to remember in any time of international crisis.

It is an illustration, from “The Power of the Press for Peace and War,” by Florence Boeckel, of the way in which exaggeration develops a monstrous falsehood out of a tiny germ of truth.

The following wartime statements were made by responsible European newspapers:

Cologne Zeitung (Germany)—“When the fall of Antwerp became known, the church bells were rung” (meaning in Germany).

Matin (Paris)—“According to the Cologne Zeitung, the clergy of Antwerp were compelled to ring the church bells when the fortress was taken.”

The Times (London)—“According to what the Matin has heard from Cologne, the Belgian priests who refused to ring the church bells when Antwerp was taken have been driven from their places.”

Corriere della Sera (Italy)—“According to what the Times has heard from Cologne via Paris, the unfortunate Belgian priests who refused to ring the church bells when Antwerp was taken have been sentenced to hard labor.”

Matin (Paris)—“According to information to the Corriere della Sera from Cologne via London, it is confirmed that the barbaric conquerors of Antwerp punished the unfortunate Belgian priests for their heroic refusal to ring the church bells by hanging them as living clappers to the bells with their heads down.”—London Tid-Bits.

Since the days of John Marshall a majority of the decisions of the appellate and supreme courts have been in favor of property rights, when a question of property rights and human rights came into conflict. When it comes to the test, the world still regards human life and human rights as of little value. A few years ago this same world was converting the flower of the manhood of the world into cannon fodder at seven cents to one dollar per day.—Supt. Leslie D. Kline.

LAID OFF

When the first-grade teacher began to check records she found that little Alice was several months under school age, so the child was sent home.

“What is the matter?” asked the little girl’s mother when the child returned.

“What has happened?”

“I—I got laid off,” sobbed the child.

MUD AND MARBLE

Nevertheless, if we look through all the heroic fortunes of mankind, we shall find this same entanglement of something mean and trivial with whatever is noblest in joy or sorrow. Life is made up of marble and mud. . . . What is called poetic insight is the gift of discerning, in this sphere of strangely mingled elements, the beauty and majesty which are compelled to assume a garb so sordid.—Hawthorne, in The House of Seven Gables.
