Life at Madison often seems chaotic.
Crowds and lines of people wait and move. Small groups mingle within large groups disturbing patterns of regularity. Organized activities take on an air of disorganization as people hurry to make ... to do ... to achieve. Stacked lumber beside a new building, heaps of luggage before vacation, and bubbles of lights in the new circular dining hall are signs of the changing scene. Tradition gives away to growth as brick replaces bluestone. Individuals may be lost in the enthusiasm of a crowd, yet, they react as personalities. Expressions and gestures reflect ... joy ... sorrow ... contemplation. For the individual, chaos can have meaning. As the boldness of a plaid becomes reassuring through its constant repetition, the individual finds a pattern within the chaos. Encouraging words from a friend ... strains of Christmas music on the quiet air ... an exciting discovery of something learned ... These constant, enduring memories echo life at Madison.

In the midst of a changing campus scene we recognize a constant sense of support and enthusiasm ... we cite two spirited people at class meetings ... we remember that unexpected joke ... the quiet smile ... the sound of laughter. We see the hands that reached out to guide us ... With one voice, we offer our most sincere thanks to the couple who became members of our class. We, the class of '65, offer our respect and affection as we dedicate the record of our last year together to Mr. and Mrs. Forrest C. Palmer.

DIVISION OF SOCIAL SCIENCES

Expert knowledge and professional insight... enthusiasm for American heritage and current events... professionals... politicians... historians... sociologists... demand hard work which requires self-satisfaction and prepares students for life.

DIVISION OF TEACHER EDUCATION

"An old man's thought of school — an old man gathering youthful memories and blooms — that youth itself, can not... Tis not the future only — the past is also stored in thee." (Whitman) Nothing is so elastic as the human mind... Sincere interest in the mental, physical, and social growth of a child... motivate students to know themselves... teaching teachers to teach... a practical approach to education.

In Memoriam

With sorrow in our hearts, we pause to remember...to honor...to pay tribute...to one we have loved and lost. We recall Dean Percy Holmes Warren, a man who truly walked among us.

We cherish the memory of twinkling eyes...a cheery smile...the word of greeting...which were a part of his frequent walks across campus.

Dean Warren will be missed by students and faculty alike. He was active in affairs of the Episcopal church in the diocese of Virginia, in the civic life of the Shenandoah Valley and in scientific matters throughout the state. It could be said that he was a man who loved people. His spirit will continue to live with those who knew him; it will endure as the spirit of Madison.

WHO'S WHO AMONG STUDENTS IN AMERICAN UNIVERSITIES AND COLLEGES

A treasured volume ... a gold emblem ... these objects brought recognition to twenty members of the senior class. Madison College presented the names to be placed among the honored WHO'S WHO. A committee composed of Administration, Faculty, and the class officers selected students on the basis of scholarship, leadership, and contributions to the college.

I think it has stopped raining.
Amid cries of "This story has to go in, where are the cuts, and that hole has to be filled," the Breeze staff produced a surprisingly well-organized record of campus events. Every Tuesday and Thursday nights they worked frantically to produce the bimonthly paper. After working on the Breeze, staff members became immune to broken typewriters, glue on tables and that last story at 1 A.M.

After spending many months in a small, ramshakled room on second floor Alumnae, Madison's 56th yearbook finally went to press. In an atmosphere of thought . . . planning . . . work . . . and CHAOS, the staff often stopped to wonder what was to be the outcome. Deadlines . . . cancellations . . . dispositions . . . and traditions all had to be overcome. The labored results may not be as expected or desired but at least it's CONTROVERSIAL!

"You might could re-draw it this way."

The morning after the night before.

SAY became more than just a word around Thanksgiving time. Student Government Association used the letters as a reminder in a campus-wide collection for Save America's Youth. Collegiates helped their neighbors by contributing money for children's education in Virginia and West Virginia. Student Council made a study of student penalties and suggested revisions. Because of the new dining hall the Cafeteria Improvement Committee met. Student Council provided better communications; bulletin boards and frequent announcements kept students informed. SGA worked with other campus groups to produce a "big dance" weekend.
Mimi Hunt, Elaine McGlathery, Yvonne Fisher, and Mary Johnson get some last minute figures before going to student teach.

Marching cadets and a familiar musical theme introduced new students to the responsibilities and implications of living under an honor system. From the West Point television series, the Honor Council presented "The Hard Right", a film depicting the importance of reporting evidence of honor violations. Individual council members also taught handbook classes during Orientation Week to acquaint freshmen and transfer students with the purposes and procedures of the Madison honor system. During Honor Emphasis Week in March, the Council conducted a mock trial in an assembly.
Masculine voices . . . laughter . . . words of introduction . . . fellowship . . . Men on campus made new friends through the social activities given by the Men's Student Government Organization. The group invited all men students and faculty to their annual smoker. In the spring, hot dogs, coat hangers, and marshmallows appeared on the scene for a picnic. S. G. O. continued to work toward their objectives. They planned activities to promote better understanding in student-faculty relations; they provided for communications between the administration and the men students.
Madison men learned to use the little green and yellow Student Handbook this year. The Men's Student Court adopted a new reprimand system for dealing with minor infractions of college rules. They asked each man to refer to the Handbook. Under the new system, the court investigated violations and gave warranted reprimands. Two reprimands of the same nature or three of any nature automatically brought about a court meeting. The court handed down an appropriate penalty for the offense subject to approval by the College Administration.
A suggestion box in the P. O.? The Standards Committee asked for student ideas as they planned to bring social regulations up-to-date. In an effort to change some of the outmoded rules, Standards worked with the legislative council of Student Government, the Student-Faculty Relations Committee, and the Dean of Women. Student suggestions brought results; new rules appeared. Girls could wear bermudas till 9:30 A.M. They welcomed the extension of dating regulations.
FIRE SAFETY

Windows . . . transom . . . lights . . . a long coat and hard-soled shoes . . .
the door . . . quiet . . .
Sleeping girls stumbled down steps and outside trying to remember fire safety rules. Once a month, usually after midnight, secretively campus fire chiefs arranged dormitory fire drills.
After being aroused by a clanging bell or beeping buzzer, girls tried to remember whether they were to close the doors or leave them open.
The new fire instructions included a change in directions;
doors were to be closed.

HANDBOOK

During Orientation Week, freshmen and transfer students became quite familiar with a little green and yellow book, the Student Handbook produced by the Student Government Association. Whenever they asked questions, they heard the same statement, "Look in your Handbook." Junior and Senior Counselors conducted classes to help the new students understand college regulations. Upperclassmen used the Handbook in reference to rule changes.

Crowded cafeteria lines, tray trucks, and easy-to-lose meal tickets left questions unanswered as the new dining hall became part of the campus life.

Mimi Hunt, editor of the 1965 Handbook, saw the need for a supplement to the Handbook to explain added rules.
From polishing silver to pouring tea, the Social Committee gained practice in the social graces. Committee members cleaned campus silver and used it for faculty and student receptions. Throughout the year, the group helped Freshmen meet members of the opposite sex. They began first semester with mixers at V.P.I. and A.M.A. Spring brought colorful decorations and a concert on May Day. Seniors left Madison with memories of their graduation dance and garden party given by the Social Committee.
Christmas Carols and Broadway show tunes contributed to the cheerful atmosphere at the dining hall as the Recreation Council provided background music. Rec Council continued to circulate records and magazines in the dorms. They maintained cracker, candy, and drink machines on campus and planned for the purchase of a change machine. The Council discussed a project for making past magazines available to students. They provided a new television set for the student day room. Groups as well as individuals benefited from the efforts of the Recreation Council.

Jane Colhoun, President, selects background music for dinner in the new dining hall.

Girls in white solemnly walked down the aisle to organ music as they led the processionals in Wilson auditorium. Junior class officers selected ten Junior Marshals and several alternates to assist in Thursday, one o'clock assemblies. The girls were the official welcoming committee for visiting scholars and lecturers. Each Junior Marshal considered her job quite an honor as she served at Convocation, capping assemblies, and graduation.

KAPPA DELTA PI

A gasp of surprise ... the long aisle to the stage in Wilson ... a purple carnation and a handshake. Kappa Delta Pi initiates remembered these moments as the National Honor Society in Education tapped them for membership at a banquet in January. Alpha Chi Chapter continued to encourage high professional, intellectual, and personal growth; they invited everyone on campus to hear visiting speakers. Madison's chapter also voted to accept additional new chapters on other college campuses across the nation.
Pi Omega Pi, a National Honorary Sorority, initiated business students who had achieved high standards in the general academic areas as well as the business curriculum.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CLUB

Students on campus learned about the group as they met in Blackwell auditorium to see the film, "The Story of Christian Science." Many questions and answers followed the activity as young Christian Scientists explained their organization to those present. In March, Elbert Slaughter visited on campus to lecture. The group met on Tuesdays.

KAPPA PI

Budding Picassos found recognition in Kappa Pi, the international honorary fraternity for art on campus. Gamma Kappa Chapter, as a part of Kappa Pi recognized outstanding scholarship and achievement in art. The group used charcoal and sketch pads as they worked on illustrations for the Chrysalis, the college literary magazine. They exhibited and judged student work for the annual art show. Throughout the year, the chapter sponsored educational activities in the visual arts.

PHIOMICRON TAU

On campus, Phi Omicron Tau functioned as a local honorary society in home economics.
Lovely ladies in black with programs in hands, ushered at all Community Concerts and Lyceum programs. These were the members of Sigma Alpha Iota, an internationally incorporated professional fraternity for women in the field of music. Gamma Iota Chapter presented musicales with emphasis on American music. The group contributed their support to national projects. Qualifications for membership included a C average in academic subjects, a commendable personality, and integrity of character.

Sigma Phi Lambda members actually saw the grotto, in which Christ was born, at their Christmas party. Dr. Bessie Sawhill, and her husband, Dr. John Sawhill, showed slides of their trip to the Holy Land.

The local honor society viewed a film on elementary and secondary education. Faculty members discussed short works of fiction at club meetings.

The society sponsored an assembly centered around the departments in the curriculum. Each member of Sigma Phi Lambda contributed to the writing of dialogue, make-up, costuming, and scenery.

In the spring, the club initiated new members. Students with a three point average were eligible.
Big sister greeted little sisters with a "Y" smile at the "Madison Carnival" talent show and party. The Young Women's Christian Association welcomed new students with their well-planned Big-Little Sister Program. Regularly, the YWCA sponsored Saturday night Singspirations, Thursday Chapel and dorm devotions. Students could use the "Y" meditation room in Alumnae for quiet moments of thought. During Religious Emphasis Week, the Reverend Henry M. Matthews considered "Mastering the Fine Arts" and "Taking Time." The group sponsored Thanksgiving and Easter services. Christmas brought The Holy Grail as an assembly pageant.
New men students on campus became acquainted with the Young Men's Christian Association through the Big-brother-Little brother program. The YWCA also worked on a Men’s Day Show. As the inspirational Christmas season approached, men joined with the Young Women's Christian Association in producing the annual Christmas pageant. They worked with the girls on the Old Students' Talent Show. The YWCA gathered food and presented a Christmas basket to an underprivileged family. Members of the group, both students and faculty, represented a wide range of interests and faiths. They were drawn together by a desire to render service and enrich their educational, social and religious ideals. They were grateful for the opportunity to encourage the development of the Christian personality.
V.M.I. cadets visited on campus as guests of the Methodist Youth Fellowship, Wesley Foundation. The group gave their views on atheism and agnosticism in a Sunday evening discussion. Methodist students studied "The Church and Urban Affairs", "Biblical Faith and Ethical Revolutions", and "Christian Living in the Space Age." A four-week study group considered "The Human Venture in Love, Sex, and Marriage." The entire group discussed the novel Absalom, Absalom. They saw a fireside film, No Hiding Place, from the East Side, West Side television series. At Christmas, Wesley Singers participated in a presentation of the "Messiah." Local welfare children enjoyed toys made by the Foundation. Wesley cooperated with the Asbury Memorial Methodist Church in planning and carrying out their activities.
Members of the Baptist Student Union might be called early birds. In preparation for the 1964-65 session, they joined together for a pre-school retreat. Their experiences brought inspiration to the year's work. Madison's Baptist students enjoyed talking with students from other campuses at the National B.S.U. Convention Party. Bongos and coffee houses were familiar words for beatniks at the group's Friday night Expressos. Chiming voices... words of praise... glorias... brought forth the spirit of Christmas as B.S.U. went caroling. Later the group made new friends as they met with other groups at V.M.I. and W & L. Lacy red hearts, delicate flowers, and a Valentine's breakfast made Valentine's Day a memorable day. As Spring approached, the group planned for a conference at Eagle Eyrie. They thought about Student Week at Ridgecrest. As new officers took the place of old at the installation banquet, members looked back at a year of purposeful activity.
WESTMINISTER FELLOWSHIP

Presbyterian young people met each other through Westminster Fellowship at an introductory party at Massanetta. They became better acquainted as they gathered for study groups, guest speakers and films through the year. Goblins ... Witches ... black cats, all appeared for the group's Halloween party. Silver bells, and red and green elves appeared on the scene for a Christmas party, too. Even the threat of exams failed to dampen the spirits of the group as they took a study break for a pre-exam party. With hymns and carols, the members lifted their voices to sing together, as the year came to a close.

Dances at the University of Virginia and Virginia Military Institute were popular social activities of the Newman Club. The club operated as a part of the National Catholic Organization to promote religious, educational, and social ideals on the college campus. As a major activity in the ecumenical spirit, the group sponsored a lecture series and invited the entire student body to attend.

LUTHERAN STUDENT ASSOCIATION

Crackling leaves of red and brown mingled with laughter...conversation...and prayer as the Lutheran Student Association met Lutheran students from other colleges in Virginia for the Fall Retreat. Madison's group worked closely with Michlenburg Lutheran Church to provide strong fellowship for students through spiritual and social activities. Notes of joy and good will brightened the Christmas season as the group sang holiday carols. Members gained renewed inspiration through their monthly programs. As a part of the National Student Movement, L.S.U. contributed time and money to the work of the Lutherans' Student Association of America.
In a little kitchen in the basement at Emanuel Episcopal Church, college students spent time preparing for their original Sunday night suppers. After eating, the Canterbury Club met for programs and discussions. Mr. Peachey from Eastern Mennonite College spoke on his religion. Miss Margaret Bernard, a Madison graduate, told of her experiences with a work project in Kenya. In March, the club entertained newly elected officers at a banquet.

Musical notes gained new meaning for the members of the Schwarzenau Club as they sponsored a musical program. Since the club was sponsored by the Church of the Brethren Student Christian Conference at Juniata College. At the conference, delegates learned more about themselves as well as other people. During the season of holly and mistletoe, the group contributed their time and energies; they adopted a needy family for Christmas. Spring arrived and the Schwarzenau Club climaxed the year with a retreat.
Calm tones of musical beauty prepared Madison's campus for the Christmas season as the choir presented Sunday Vespers. Strains of "I Wonder as I Wander" and "Wind in the Palm Trees" echoed in the crowded but hushed auditorium in Wilson Hall. The choir sang in assemblies and presented a spring concert in April. They added to the impressive atmosphere at Baccalaureate and Commencement. Off campus, the group represented the college at St. Thomas Church in New York City. They sang at Monumental Methodist Church in Washington, D.C., and Northminster Baptist Church in Richmond. Dr. Lester Bucher directed the choir.
OFFICERS: B. Harmon, C. Green, E. Stevens, J. Foster, J. Taylor, President.

Students who planned to teach music in public school found opportunities for professional development through the activities of the Music Educator's National Conference.
STRATFORD PLAYERS

A girl on stage played with tiny glass animals as the Stratford Players began the year with a production of Tennessee Williams' play, The Glass Menagerie. Since many of the seasoned actors had graduated, the club worked to reorganize with fresh new talent and new experiences. They welcomed Mrs. Nancy O'Hare as new Director of the Theater. With the traditional open house, Stratford introduced students to their purposes and activities. Faculty members and collegiates presented programs throughout the year. Spring brought another full-scale dramatic production. The group again participated in the Madison College Fine Arts Festival. Members attended their fifth annual banquet.

Ellen Wade, President.
In a scene from THE GLASS MENAGERIE, H. Hite tells F. Vaughan, "I'll rise but I won't shine."
Madison's chapter of Phi Beta Lambda, the National Business Fraternity, received state-wide recognition this year. They won the distinctive title of "outstanding chapter" in the state of Virginia. The group offered a parliamentary law course to interested students as a part of their yearly plan of worthwhile activities. They took field trips to local business concerns to learn more about their chosen vocation. High school students visited campus for the Regional meeting of the Future Business Leaders of America in March; Phi Beta Lambda members welcomed them. April brought thoughts of spring and the State Convention at Roanoke.
SENIOR COUNSELORS

Green and yellow handbooks . . . student government tests . . . parties . . . Senior Counselors were easily recognized by these signs. They acted as guides to all new students on campus during the year by familiarizing them with the college rules and regulations. Handbook classes were conducted for the new students during Freshman Orientation Week for this purpose. Counselors found it a rewarding experience to work with their counselees.
Amid a mass of crumpled paper and shining ribbon, children's voices exclaimed with glee. Santa Claus arrived with his snow queen to distribute presents to eager youngsters at the Student Education Association's annual party for a welfare group. The boys and girls heard stories, played games, and enjoyed punch and cookies. At a late fall meeting, the group welcomed back campus student teachers, who discussed their experiences. Foreign students from Bridgewater College and Eastern Mennonite College met with the association. April was banquet month for the group. All members received monthly copies of the V.E.A. and N.E.A. Journals.

FRANCES SALE CLUB

Frances Sale Club furthered interest in homemaking for those students majoring or concentrating in Home Economics.

Home Economics students learn the art of baking.

Pat Thomas, President.

Alpha Rho Delta, the Fine Arts Club, served students interested in ancient cultural heritage.

Alpha Beta Alpha, the National Honorary Fraternity for undergraduate students in library science, attempted to promote interest in librarianship as a vocation.
As usual, in the spring of the year, a colorful little magazine appeared on desks, tables, and beds, across campus. There was a frenzied scramble as students hurried to obtain their own personal copy while the supply lasted. The paper book in demand was the Chrysalis, the campus literary magazine published by the Criterion Club. Members of the club passed on their love for all forms of literature to other students. They sponsored a reading contest to encourage reading. Stressing the use of vivid word descriptions, the club encouraged creative writing through a writing contest. Members attended art festivals, lectures, and plays through Criterion organized events.

MATH CLUB

Hikes ... card games ... boat rides ... horseshoes ... food. Math majors and minors found that they could have fun sharing common interests at their spring picnic at the college camp. The local honorary math society met on the second Thursday and fourth Tuesday of every month for worthwhile programs. Students lectured on theorems, mathematical inductions, mathematical principles, and methods of teaching mathematics. Each senior gave a speech to the group as a part of membership requirements. Throughout the year, members looked forward to the future; they worked diligently on a petition to be presented to a National Honor Fraternity in Mathematics. They hoped to establish a local chapter on campus.
MERCURY CLUB

A professional organization for physical education majors and minors, the Mercury Club worked in co-operation with the American Association for Health, Physical Education, and Recreation.

4-H ALUMNAE ASSOCIATION

Fellowship . . . leadership . . . co-operation . . . development of these qualities was the goal of the 4-H Alumnae Club this year. Made up of students who had been 4-H members in high school, the club provided an opportunity for its members to continue their affiliation with the national organization.
With pad and pencil in hand, members of the Sesame Club made a survey of the present and future needs of day students at Madison. The women's day student club helped a needy family at Christmas time. At an initiation party at Riverwood, the girls had fun together. They planned a holiday party and spring banquet. Club activities encouraged a close relationship with campus life.
INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS CLUB

Members of the International Relations Club acted as politicians. They attended the Model United Nations Assembly, sponsored by the Social Science Department, the Model Security Council for high school, and the Model Security Council at Hollins College. At V.M.I. members attended the International Relations State Convention. The group held a faculty-student seminar and mock election.

PHI SIGMA IOTA

With a halting voice and weak knees, a member of Phi Sigma Iota, the Romance Language Honor Society, rose to read an individual paper at a monthly meeting. Every active member prepared one paper in a selected field during his active membership. The reading of these papers constituted programs at meetings. Sigma Eta Chapter made its appearance on Madison's campus on February 14, 1964 with eleven college students and six faculty members as charter initiates.

With a sparkle in their eyes and rhythm in their hearts, members of the German Club planned social activities for the year. The group held mixers with men from German Clubs of neighboring colleges. They sponsored record hops after Saturday night movies. A grateful family received a food basket from the group at Christmas time.
With German mugs and a glint of excitement, members of the Bluestone Cotillion Dance Club prepared for their first informal dance of the year. The theme of the festivity was "The Rathskeller." Cotillion "goats" sang loudly as a part of their initiation ceremonies. Goating took place in the fall and again in the spring. Madison's group joined with the club at Virginia Polytechnic Institute for an evening of dance and conversation. Spring brought the second informal dance as well as the annual picnic. At the picnic, the club honored senior members.

As the year ended, the Senior Class realized that they were no longer members of the student body. They joined the vast number of former Madison students who were Alumnae. Their four years on campus had been filled with joy, fulfillment, and sadness, as well as happy memories. Madison Alumnae had made valuable contributions in all walks of life and many of them remembered their Alma Mater. The Alumnae Association of Madison College helped all Alumnae to stay informed about the activities and growth of the college.
GREEK
A big, open sleigh filled with brightly wrapped packages paused near a smiling snowman in Harrison Hall lobby as students entered a winter wonderland on their way to Panhellenic dance. They saw visions of an "Old Fashioned Christmas." Bluestone, the old dining hall, became a ballroom with a blazing hearth, Christmas stockings, a ceiling-high tree, and the woody smell of pine and cedar.

Members of the Panhellenic and Interfraternity Councils entered the room through a grandfather's clock for the figure. Ted Simms' Orchestra played music with a holiday flavor for the dance. During the one week of Fall Rush, sororities used the houses for the last time. Spring Rush was an informal occasion for open-bidding. The Panhellenic Council sponsored a Fall sing, Christmas caroling, and a Spring picnic. Zeta Tau Alpha received the Scholarship Cup given annually by the group. The council also awarded a scholarship to a worthy student. Freshmen learned about campus sororities and the Panhellenic spirit at an orientation coke party. April and May introduced all new students to the open house. Sorority girls entertained for four Saturday night open houses.
ALPHA GAMMA DELTA

Autumn leaves found Gamma Mu Chapter busily preparing for new sisters. Pat Darnell and Mrs. Lota Williams, two international representatives, visited campus. After the Alpha Gams welcomed new pledges, the group settled down to enjoy Saturday night suppers, inter-fraternity gatherings, teas, and parties.

The Christmas season brought the annual Panhellenic dance and the initiation of pledges with banquet at Shenvalee Lodge. New sisters entertained at a Christmas party. With the new year came exams and new pledges through open-bidding.

Members celebrated International Reunion Day with a tea and dinner at Messick House for parents and Alumnae. Seniors departed with tears as June brought good-byes and a vacation at Virginia Beach. Two girls attended National Convention in Portsmouth, New Hampshire.
ALPHA SIGMA ALPHA

Club ASA was the scene for night life with Alpha Sigma Alphas during Fall Rush. The Chapter used new ideas gained at Convention in Asheville, North Carolina throughout the year. Old members celebrated with the thirteen new pledges at the Belle Meade. On November 15, the group observed Founder's Day with a program and banquet at Bear Trap Farm. Seniors gave a party for all members on the night of the ghosts and goblins. ASA aided others on Thanksgiving; they gathered food for a family in need. Skits, refreshments, and gifts brightened Christmas for patients at Western State Hospital. Three new chapters joined the name and sisterhood of Alpha Sigma Alpha.

New Pledges honored at banquet.
ALPHA SIGMA TAU

On a colorful “merry-go-round” the Alpha Sigma Tau’s began the year with a carnival rush party. Seniors later challenged the 23 new pledges to charades. On Halloween, members attended a “come as you are” party. The AST’ers enjoyed their Founder’s Day banquet on November 4th, as well as an “old officer - new officer” dinner. Pine Mountain Settlement School received a box prepared by the pledges. The girls visited an “Alpine Stopover” at their surprise theme party. They honored their mothers on Mothers’ Day. Alumnae sisters felt extra welcome on May Day and Homecoming, as they returned to campus. This was reunion year for the class of ‘55. After a weekend at the college camp, the girls entertained seniors at a graduation breakfast.

“Carnival” at Zirkle House was a tremendous success.
On Aladdin's Magic Carpet, Phi Mu's traveled to the World's Fair with rushees in the Fall. Fifteen enthralled girls chose Phi Mu as the wondrous carpet whisked them away to a mountain cabin for the night after rush weekend. Six children and their parents found presents under the tree on Christmas morning because of the group. The girls also made puppets for children in the hospital, and place cards and tray favors for all the patients on Thanksgiving and Christmas. Candy canes and popcorn strings reminded everyone of the old fashioned Christmas tree decorated by Phi Mu at the Panhellenic Dance. Since the group had the greatest number of members present at the dance, they won the Poinsettia given by Panhellenic Council to the group with the largest attendance. In April, Gamma Theta Chapter entertained district chapters on College Day. Phi Mu's from five other colleges attended.

Phi Mu's put final touches on Rush decorations.

SIGMA KAPPA

Visions of sugar plums introduced prospective pledges to Sigma Kappa dreamland during Fall Rush. Seventeen girls accepted bids and became pledges. At Halloween and Thanksgiving the sorority attended surprise parties. They gave thanks by providing food for an underprivileged family. With beard and pack, Santa Claus appeared at the annual Christmas party. In the holiday spirit, the group collected clothes for welfare and filled baskets for local nursing homes. Spring brought more pledges, banquets, parties, and projects. The Sigma Kappas entertained the retired faculty members at a tea. They welcomed their national inspector on campus as they learned more about their sisterhood.
Tri-Sigmas returned to Hoffman Hall in September with plans to meet the challenge of the new rush system. Their hard work resulted in the welcoming of fifteen pledges. The active pledge class visited the children's ward at Rockingham Hospital for a Thanksgiving party and campaigned for the Christmas Seal drive in Harrisonburg. Hues of red and green left memories of Christmas activities. A Christmas party and old fashioned greenery hung for the Panhellenic dance. Twenty Sigmas attended the regional meeting in Roanoke, Virginia; they held conferences with other chapters from the Southeast. Students on campus noticed many girls dressed as sisters; the Sigma Sigma Sigmas wore matching purple jumpers and white blouses to signify their bond and colors. Open bidding, pledging and initiation again took place in the Spring.

ZETA TAU ALPHA

From the sun and sand of Miami, Florida, Zetas returned to campus after the 1964 Convention inspired by new ideas. Gamma Kappa chapter received third prize in the Magazine Drive and an Executive Committee Special Award for outstanding merit. The group entertained rushees in cowboy hats and holsters during Formal Rush. Fifteen pledges accepted the colors of turquoise and silver. Memories of events remained with the girls of Zeta Tau Alpha ... Founder's Day on October 15 ... The Panhellenic Scholarship Cup ... Initiation Banquets ... Christmas decorations for geriatric patients ... secret buddy weeks ... Sunday night suppers.

High averages are well rewarded by scholarship cup.
PHI ALPHA EPSILON

Robin Marvel received a bouquet of red roses as Wendell Turner announced the Phi Alpha Epsilon Sweetheart for 1964—1965. Fraternity men brought in the large Christmas tree and greenery for the Panhellenic and Interfraternity dance. Members of the group gave combo parties and planned other social activities to enrich campus life.
SIGMA DELTA RHO

As a part of their "Old Fashioned Christmas," members of Sigma Delta Rho chose Marianne Matthews as Fraternity Sweetheart. The men worked together to build strong personal relationships and common group ties. They frequently sponsored off-campus social activities for members and guests.

Ponhellenic-Interfraternity dance was one of the most successful in Madison's history.

Fraternities select Robin Marvel and Marianne Matthews as sweethearts for the new year.

After losing the scholarship cup by a narrow margin, ASA hands over cup to ZTA.

In weekly panhellenic meetings, sorority rules and activities are discussed.

Greeks eat heartily at annual spring picnic.

Tension mounts as Linda Nobles announces the winner of the scholarship cup.
WOMEN'S ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION

September brought the beginning of a busy year for the Women's Athletic Association. During Freshman Orientation Week, all athletic facilities on campus were made available to every student. WAA also sponsored the annual Chuck Wagon Party for new students. Chicken...potato salad...songs...and laughter helped to make the event a gay introduction to college life.

At the height of the hockey season, Miss Constance Applebee, the foremost British authority on field hockey, came to Madison at the request of the Blue Ridge Field Hockey Association to observe the hockey facilities on campus and at other colleges in the area. Miss Applebee, who introduced the game to the United States in 1901, gave constructive criticism to the teams on the improvement of their skills in the game. Various clubs sponsored by the WAA were active during the year, and many of them received honors for their achievement in their perspective fields of interest. The Porpoise Club presented two exhibits for the student body during the year. One, given at Christmas time, presented the members demonstrating their interpretations of Christmas carols in water ballet form. The other show was given in the spring. During Easter vacation, several members attended the International Water Show in Chicago. Orchesis, the modern dance club, performed at various assemblies and inspirations during the year, and participated in the Winchester Apple Blossom Festival in April.

Throughout the year, WAA sponsored intramural sports opportunities to the entire student body. Along with the other major organizations, WAA presented a hootenanny for the freshmen.

HOCKEY TEAM

BASKETBALL TEAM

A Madison player and her adversary attempt to keep the ball within the bounds.

Duchess teammates at practice strive for an undefeated season this year.
Sharon recovers the ball from her Westhampton opponent.

Merle and Dorcas receive a critical analysis of the game from Coach Morrison.
Tryouts for the Fencing Club usually produce many prospective members.

Brenda comments on the progress of the hockey game to other spectators.

According to PE majors, life is not easy in Dr. Sinclair's aquatics class.
All athletic activities for men students were sponsored by the Men's Athletic Association. These activities included intramural sports such as football, basketball, volleyball, tennis, bowling, ping pong, checkers, and chess. Every male student on campus was eligible to participate in any or all of these sports. Madison's basketball team, the Dukes, was also sponsored by M.A.A. Coached by Mr. Ward Long, the team members found relaxation and developed team spirit through this activity. In the spring, M.A.A. presented an award to the Athlete of the Year, chosen by the M.A.A. Council on the basis of participation and sportsmanship throughout the year.
Dukes reach great heights.

The Dukes look apprehensive, but John confidently shows the sign of victory.

This year, it has been the desire of the Bluestone Staff to create a book which captures the thoughts and transitions of our modern world. Life on Madison’s campus is like being in a small, separate world with its own stress... tension... joy... and chaos.

For four long years we struggle with hopes and plans for leaving this artificial world behind. We long to be on our own. We desire the calmness of a predictable life. Soon four short years past... and graduation brings a renewed evaluation of reality. It is ironical to find that we are constantly amidst chaos... and, yet, wish to be part of a larger, busier world. Each individual must find order, organization... and a pattern of regularity within the disorder. Recognizing this, the Staff has attempted to record the disorder by giving... consistency to the inconsistency.
